NEW YORK, July 29.—The Opening game of the crucial Brooklyn-St. Louis series with the National League pennant at stake was called by darkness in the twelfth inning today with the score locked at seven all.

The Dodgers, trailing by two games, outhit ther foes and led most of the game. Their downfall came in the sixth frame when the Cards forced into the lead by collecting a half dozen scores.

Brooklyn knotted the count in the first of the ninth by pushing over a lone run.

The hard driving Pittsburgh Pirates turned back the Boston Braves 5 to 3 in a game cut short in the seventh by rain. The Pirates collected four of their runs in the second inning and their lead was never threatened.

The Pirates nicked four Boston hurlers for a dozen safeties while Bob Klinger and Joe Sullivan turned back the Braves with eight safeties.

The Cincinnati Reds came from behind to defeat the New York Giants 7 to 4. The Giants scored all of their runs in the first three frames while the Reds came through with a five run rally in the fifth.

Chicago's Cubs fattened their batting averages when they trounced the Philadelphia Phillies 12 to 4 in a loosely played game. The Phillies made three errors and five hurlers were thrown into the fray in an effort to check the Cubs.

Bill Lee and Larry French handled the mound job for the Cubs, and while nicked for 14 hits kept them well scattered and hurled shutout ball after the third frame.

The combination of Harold Newhouser and Eyn Row limited the New York Yanks to six hits today as the Detroit Tigers turned back the League leaders 6 to 3.

While the Yankee lead was being cut to ten and half games, the Cards held on to first place in the senior circuit by getting a tie with the Dodgers.

New York's pennant-bound outfit took the lead in the third inning but fell behind in the fifth. The Yanks came back to knot the score in the sixth, but lacked the necessary punch to off-set the Tigers' subsequent rally.

The best game of the day was supplied at Philadelphia where the Chicago White Sox nosed out the Athletics, 1 to 0. Both clubs were limited to four hits and turned in errorless performances.

Edgar Smith was the winning pitcher, turning in one of the finest games of his career. Phil Marchildon, Athletic rookie from Toledo, had the Chi-Sox under control every inning but the fatal fourth.

Cleveland's Indians picked up a full game on the league leaders turning back the Washington Senators, 5 to 1. Al Smith held the Capital City outfit to nine hits and hurled scoreless ball after the second frame.

Another pitchers duel was supplied at Boston where the St. Louis Browns bested the Red Sox, 3 to 2. Boston pushed over the tying and winning runs in the fourth.

John Niggeling limited the Bostonians to six hits while Maurice Harris, who went the pull route for the Red Sox, was nicked for eight safeties.

Practicing What They Preach

The above photo shows some of the 70 National School teachers in Tokyo attending a course in aviation being taught by aeronautical veterans. These teachers decided wisely that if they were to teach their young charges the rudiments of aviation they themselves ought to know something about flying. Classes began on Saturday and will continue until August 11.

Nojiri Notes

Mrs. R. L. Durgin, who has been appointed Chairman of the Social Committee, called a meeting of the committee members on Wednesday to make tentative plans for the season's social events. First on the calendar was Friday evening's games and dancing for the young people in the Junior Building the success of which was due to Mr. Phil Baker, Junior representative on the Social Committee, and to the able assistance of Mr. H. D. Johns and Miss Alice Grube. Wednesday, August 5, has been designated for a Reception in the Auditorium, where all lakeside residents of long standing as well as the newer comers may have an afternoon of getting acquainted and visiting. The committee on arrangements, headed by Mrs. H. D. Hannaford, includes Mrs. K. T. Tsai and Miss Alice Grube in charge of refreshments, and Mr. Phil Baker of entertainment. This announcement brings a cordial invitation to every Nojiri resident to attend this initial get-together at 3:30 p.m. Details of plans now under way for two summer concerts will be announced at a later date.

The adult library under the supervision of Mrs. Tsai will be open for loaning books on Tuesdays and Fridays between 9:30 and 10:30. For the juniors Mrs. C. S. Sipple is in charge and announces Wednesdays and Fridays from 10 to 11 as the hour for borrowing books from the Junior Building.

Mr. Frank Cary of Kobe Jo Gakuin came up this week to spend the vacation with Mr. Darley Downs in Cottage No. 67. Mr. Cary is preaching at the 10:30 a.m. service in the Auditorium today. Mr. David Takahara, who is in charge of the Japanese worship services, will be the leader at the 3 o'clock meeting this afternoon. All the church music is under the direction of Mrs. Takahara. Last Sunday morning Miss Lena Daugherty of To-Tokyo sang a special solo with Mr. H. D. Hannaford accompanying at the organ. The Church Committee is headed by Mr. Darley Downs, and Mr. H. G. Bovenkerk is secretary-treasurer.

Dr. Masao Hasegawa, Tokyo child specialist, and for the past six years doctor at the Y. M. C. A. camp, has opened his Nojiri office in Dr. Price's cottage, No. 75b. He expects his wife and children to join him the first week in August.

Mr. J. Semoto has come up from Kobe to be with his brother, Teddy, and the boys in Cottage, No. 42B, who have been appointed Life Guards and swimming instructors.

Miss K. Bagley of Tokyo has taken the Tanner cottage, No. 94. Miss S. L. K. Bushe came up from Tokyo to be with her for a few days and now has taken a short trip to Kamikochi, from whence she will go to Karuizawa to visit friends. She expects to be back here towards the end of the month. Miss Howard returned to Karuizawa on Friday morning after spending a day or two with Miss Bagley.

Mrs. J. Murota and Mrs. H. Minamioka of Odawara are pleasantly situated in Cottage No. 95.

Miss Teruko Kawamura, formerly secretary to Miss Olive Lindsey of Kanazawa, and Miss Yoshiko Shirai of the same city are occupying Miss Lindsay's cottage, No. 60.

Occupants of Cottage No. 70 are Mr. H. D. Johns, instructor in Kobe and Osaka Commercial Colleges, Miss Ranko Miyaguchi and Master B. Miyaguchi, and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Jochen Paasche and family of Tokyo are established in the Spencer cottage, No. 9, where the three children are to be seen enjoying the Lake attractions.

Mr. T. Yasuda and Mr. M. Mabuchi have taken over the McKenzie cottage, No. 51A.

Miss Helen Palmer welcomed her friends, Madame Lepelletier and her young daughter, Miss Monique, to Cottage No. 20 for the vacation period on Thursday afternoon. Madame Lepelletier is instructor in French at the Canadian Academy in Kobe.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Ruegg of Kobe and their daughters, Verena and Liselotte, are happily settled in the Start cottage, No. 99. Their house guest is Mrs. Muller, also of Kobe.

Mrs. Tsutsumi, Mr. Torigoi, Mr. Kaneda have come up from Nishinomiya to spend the summer in Cottage No. 18.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Straeuli and baby daughter, Sylvia, arrived here from Kobe on the twelfth to open Cottage No. 105 for the vacation.

Mr. Usaburo Ohsawa, of Shinagawa-ku, Tokyo, retired captain of the N. Y. K. Company, and his daughters Miss Yoshie and Miss Kimie, and Master Akihiro, are established in Cottage No. 32, where they are extending hospitality to Mrs. Kawai, Miss Yoshiko and Master Masanao.

To Cottage No. 19 from Omori-ku, Tokyo, have come Miss Tomoko Nukada, Mr. Hikaru Nukada, Mr. Shigeru Nukada, Mr. Nakashima, and the Misses Fumiko, Michiko and Tazuko Dehari.

Dr. and Mrs. T. D. Walser are located in the Tom Jones cottage, No. 74, for the remainder of the vacation.

Miss Flora Darrow had as house guests this past week, Miss Ruth Hamada, Miss Yoshiko Okada and Miss Tama Tsujimura, three charming Nisei from Kobe, who were to be found hiking, swimming, sailing and playing tennis in spite of the pranks the weather seemed to be playing on them. Highpoint of their visit was the steak supper on Tuesday evening.

Additional Nojiriscopes—the veteran hikers: Rawlings, Hamilton, Blakemore, Hornby and Manns exploring the Bakujo region and finding only three futon and a doormat to protect the six of them from the elements during two nights' lodging in the hut from whence their adventurous spirits took them as far as the top of Mt. Hiuchi, and down again through fields of lovely alpine blooms, and even across the path of a wary badger—Mr. Kaneda in deft strokes putting a Nojiri vista on his canvas near the Boathouse—Mr. Tsai outwitting the god of mists and dampness as he wades through one detective novel after another—Mrs. Tsutsumi with her pet sparrow perched jauntily on her shoulder wherever she goes: "Peko" responds to her whistling with a peck on Mrs. Tsutsumi's cheek, or just a perky chirp—the young folks imbibing Adam's ale at the Friday evening party—Mr. Blakemore's daily recordings in Japanese.

BESSARABIA REBUILT WITH RUMANIAN AID

Large Sums Will Be Spent by Government for Reconstruction Of Liberated Territories

Transocean

BUCHAREST, July 26.—Large sums will be spent by the Rumanian Government for reconstruction in the liberated territories of Bessarabia and Buchenland.

The most urgent needs of these regions are now being examined and measures are already being taken for the re-establishment of a Rumanian administration in these regions, acting Premier Michael Antonescu told newspapermen yesterday.

He added that the Rumanian Government is especially desirous that the officials sent to the liberated territories be from among the peoples of those regions. Redistribution of the land would be done with due regard to the needs of the inhabitants and to the claims of the soldiers based on their sacrifices.

War Affects Sheepskins

I.N.S.

STATE COLLEGE, Pennsylvania, July 15.—Thousands of diplomas were handed to college students in June but the old sheepskin "ain't what it used to be," according to William S. Hoffman, Pennsylvania State College registrar. The color and quality of the 1941 crop of sheepskin was affected by the war, Hoffman said. This year the skins came from older sheep and were coarser in grade, and the 1941 diplomas were slightly tinged with yellow.

Music Notes

The visiting "Stolin Ballet", made up of White Russian dancers from Harbin, will continue at the Nihon Gekijo through Tuesday, appearing three times daily. The program includes a ballet suite, "Carmencita", based on selections from Bizet's opera, "Carmen', and other Spanish pieces, in seven numbers (Alhambra—Cape Dance—Bolero—Spanish Serenade—Fan Dance—Tango Gypsy Dance: Finale), and a "Hungarian Dance Rhapsody" in six numbers (Blue Rhapsody—Hungarian Dance—Czardas Violin Romance Czardas—Grand Finale). A. N. Stolin is directing the accompaniments by the Toho Symphony Orchestra.

From Wednesday, the ballet is booked for a series of performances at the Yokohama Takarazuka Theater.

Miss Sagiri Akino and Katsuhiko Haida are featured as the vocal soloists in a mixed entertainment program which will be held at the Kyoritsu Hall, Hitotsubashi, Kanda, twice today, at 1 and 6 p.m. Munehiro Okuda and his light Music Band will also participate in the concert.

A "Summer Evening of Light Music" will be held at the Hibiya Open Air Auditorium, 7 p.m. on Friday. Among the attractions on the program are Miss Shizue Kasagi, popular "torch singer" formerly connected with the Shochiku Girls Opera, and her music ensemble; Ryo Watanabe conducting the Columbia Orchestra; Haruhiko Haida and the Moana Glee club; Matashi Taniguchi and his band; Koichi Sugii and his Novelty Quintet, and the Samoa Light Musicians.

Professor Shuichi Tsugawa, noted Japanese authority on Johann Sebastian Bach and his music, will resume his series of monthly popular lectures on Bach's music, on Saturday, 7 p.m., at the Shinjuku Christian Church. Various of Bach's shorter vocal church music compositions will be discussed in the lecture, which will be illustrated with phonograph recordings.

After several postponements owing to unfavorable weather, the Fujiwara Opera Company's outdoor summer concert has now been scheduled for Friday, August 15, 7 p.m., at the Hibiya Open Air Auditorium, under the title, "A Singing Fair of Folk Songs and Opera Selections." The operatic scenes are to be given in full costumes, under the direction of Keizo Horiuchi, in stage setting designed by Ryotaro Mitsukayashi. Part 1 will feature German, American, Spanish, Russian, and Italian folk songs, as well as Japanese songs composed by Ryutaro Hirota, Kunihiko Hashimoto, Shimpei Nakayama, Mitsuo Ugajin, Haseo Sugiyama, Kosuke Komatsu, Kosaku Yamada, and others.

Operatic selections to be given in Part 2 are from Leoncavallo's "Pagliazzi," Rossini's "Barber of Sevilla," Donizetti's "The Daughter of the Regiment," Gounod's "Faust," Verdi's "Aida," "La Traviata," and Rigoletto." Ibert's "Don Quichotte," and other popular works.

The soloists include Miss Yoshiko Nakamura, Miss Takako Mikami, Miss Kikue Takita, Miss Aiko Saida, Miss Sumiko Isomura, Yoshie Fujiwara, Eiichi Uchida, Takeshi Tometa, Goro Murao, and Soichiro Namioka. Piano accompaniments will be played by Miss Chieko Matsuura and Ichiro Onozaki.

"Evening of Contemporary Light Music," is the slogan of a program sponsored by the Midori Association, which will be held at the Hibiya Open Air Auditorium, 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday, August 20. Tamaki Tokuyama, Junichiro Otsuka, Miss Masako Minami, Koiichi Sugii, Tadaharu Nakano, Miss Nobuko Fushimi, Shuji Sano, and Miss Mitsuko Mito will participate in the performances.

The first musical event of the new concert season 1941-1942 announced to date is the periodical subscription concert of the Tokyo Symphony Orchestra (known up to the last season as the Chuo Symphony Orchestra) which will be held under the direction of Manfred Gurlitt, 7 p.m. on Friday, September 12, at the Hibiya Public Hall. Wagner's Overture to the opera, "Tannhaeuser"; five of Wagner's songs with orchestra, to be sung by Tamotsu Kinoshita, tenor, of the Tokyo Academy of Music, and Liszt's "Faust Symphony" make up the program.

A "Freshmen Concert" with a light musical program will be held at the Sangyo Kaikan, Yurakucho, in the evening on Sunday, September 21, under the auspices of the Seiko Association.

Noboru Toyomasu, the noted pianist, will resume the giantic enterprise of his Complete Cyrle of Beethoven's 32 Piano Sonatas, in seven concerts, with the fifth program to be given at the Meiji Seimei Auditorium, in October, when he will play the Sonatas Opus 54, Opus 57 (Appassionata', Opus 78, Opus 79, and Opus 81 (Les Adieux). The concert day is still to be announced.

Performances of Bizet's opera, "Carmen", and Rossini's opera, "The Barber of Sevilla", to be given at the Kabuki Theater on four consecutive days beginning November 25, have been announced by the Fujiwara Opera Company as the 14th periodical opera presentations of the company. The musical direction will be in the hands of Manfred Gurlitt.

In commemoration of the late Polish pianist and statesman Ignace Jan Paderewski, who died of pneumonia at the age of 81 on June 29, a special Paderewski Number has been issued by the "Ongaku Hyoron" (Musical Criticism), leading musical monthly in Japanese, containing articles by Mitsuru Ushiyama, noted critic; Keisei Sakka, composer; Miss Kazuko Kusama, pianist; Kozo Kawamori; Koichi Nomura, musical critic, and an interview with Paderewski by Rom Landau, translated into Japanese by Miss Mitsuko Harada, who is known for her translations of the letters exchanged between Johannes Brahms and Clara Schumann.

COLLEGE GIVES COURSE ON AVOIDING POISONS

American Defense Program Gives Rise to Dangers of Occupational Ailments

I.N.S.

CHICAGO, July 15.—Methods of fighting the dangers of poisoning involved in the national defense program will be studied during the summer quarter at the University of Chicago.

The new course, "Toxicology and National Defense," is designed to equip doctors and chemists with methods of dealing with special hazards resulting from increased industrial production in the defense program, according to Dr. Eugene M. K. Geiling, professor and chairman of the university's department of pharmacology.

Possibilities of lead and gas poisoning are likely to increase with the acceleration of industrial production and the augmented use of lead in steel manufacture, Dr. Geiling pointed out. Increased production of explosives and other war materials also has created additional hazards, he said.

Actual combat conditions will be studied including the use of poison gases, toxic smokes and incendiary materials, Dr. Geiling said in pointing out the danger of untried poisons which may be used.

The course is being offered as part of the university's contribution to the preparedness program.

A Popular Amusement

Statistical data are available regarding the attendance at motion picture shows in Tokyo and elsewhere. The figures are interesting as they show, among other things, the trend of cultural or popular movement in the country. In the period of one year from April 1, 1940 to March 31, of this year, a total of 101,768,700 people attended the motion picture houses in the prefecture of Tokyo.

On the basis of the latest census, this means that each of the inhabitants in Tokyo attended picture shows 14 times a year. On the same basis, the daily attendance at these shows was 298,000 in number. The average attendance at each of the motion picture theaters was at the rate of 987 a day. The statistical returns for the prefecture of Osaka show that each of the inhabitants there attended motion picture shows eight times a year, the daily average of attendance numbering 129,000. The Tokyo inhabitants spend for pictorial entertainment almost twice as much as those of Osaka do. But it is further explained that in Osaka popular expenditure is heavier in other forms of amusement and in restaurant entertainment.

In this connection a statistician writing in a recent issue of the Toyo Keizai makes an interesting study of the age structure of the popular attendance at motion picture houses. For his purpose, he takes a first-rate house in Osaka and one in the "amusement centers" of Marunouchi, the latter at least being well representative of the intelligent social elements of the capital. According to this statistician, of the men patronizing those shows those between 26 and 30 years of age predominate, their number being 28 per cent of the total male attendance. Next come those between 21 and 25 years old, these making up 21 per cent of the total. Those from 31 to 35 years of age are a close third with 20 per cent of the total. The men between 36 and 40, with 13 per cent of the total, share the next position with those below 20 years of age. The seniors above 41 years represent a modest rate of 5 per cent of the total.

It will be seen that the best customers at picture show houses are composed of men from 21 to 35, their number representing 69 per cent of the total male attendance. The small rate of attendance among men below 20 years is no doubt due to the restrictions enforced on the boys attending the middle and lower schools. As for the female attendance, it is indicated that those who most frequently patronize this form of public entertainment are women from 15 to 30 years of age, their number making up 75 per cent of the total female attendance.

These statistical figures are of interest when it is known that until some 10 years ago most of the people attending picture show houses were men under 25 and women under 20 years of age. The present age structure of amusement seekers shows that the age of popular attendance has moved up with the progress of the picture industry itself so to speak.

A questionnaire recently conducted at the same Marunouchi picture house throws an interesting light on the occupational structure of its daily attendance. The so-called salaried men in general but those employed by business and other companies in particular preponderate, their number making up 50.3 per cent of the total male attendance. Next in number are the school boys and young factory employes who accounted for 19 per cent of the total. Those of the commercial class and factory employes of or above age followed respectively with 11 and 8 per cent of the total. The men in the employment of the Government and other official institutions formed the small proportion of only 8 per cent, while the other sections of the populace made up the remaining 4 per cent. It should be added that these figures were based on the questionnaires successively conducted on three different occasions on week days. On the first and third Sundays of the month, when factories generally close, their employes are by far the most numerous. The figures on those holidays were: factory employes 32 per cent of the total, shop employes 16 per cent, salaried men 26 per cent, and school boys 22 per cent. The salaried men attending the picture houses on those regular rest days were in large part those who lived in the former suburban areas. They came with their families who find public shows less accessible on week days, because of the distances they have to travel to the urban center.

The comparative ratios of men and women patronizing picture shows vary according to localities in and around the city. At the Marunouchi theater under consideration the average attendance of men makes up 81.3 per cent of the total number, while women and children follow respectively with 15.6 and 2.5 per cent. Some sort of program attracts more women than usual, as is natural, but even in such cases the men are said always to be far more numerous than women. The small percentage of children shown above may be surprising to those who have had a chance to see how some picture houses were crowded by youngsters escorted by leaders or otherwise. The figure above mentioned is rather misleading because the Marunouchi quarters are frequented by a very small number of young people. This point is brought out clearly when it is known statistically that at picture houses in the suburban area or in parts removed from the center of the city, the attendance of youngsters below 14 years of age generally represents 15 per cent of the total.

Water-Power Generators

A German electro-technical manufacturing concern has recently completed the construction of four water-power generators, each having a capacity of 100,000 kilovolt amperes, for delivery to a foreign hydraulic power plant. This is the first time that generators of such dimensions have been built. They have a diameter of 10 meters and are 16 meters high. The bases consist of steel plate casements which are welded together and are affixd to a dynamo-plate superstructure of over 100,000 segments.

Inside this casing is a runner 10 meters long and consisting of a hollow shaft weighing 67 tons. To this shaft are attached three polar wheels with a diameter of 7.1 meters each, and weighing about 100 tons. The wheels are made of cast steel in two halves which can be screwed together when they are mounted. Their normal capacity is 150 revolutions per minute, and can develop as high as 300 revolutions, as this velocity is often required when water power is used. As is usually the case with water-power generators, the shaft is perpendicular, so that the shaft-step has to bear the weight not only of the runner, but also that of the turbine shaft, the casters, and the heavy water pressure.

The step-shaft is therefore so constructed that a uniform thin film of oil is constantly applied to avoid overheating and consequent corroding of the bearings and the shaft sockets. Another problem consisted in getting rid of surplus heat generated when the machine is running. To avoid this trouble, 275 tons of air are forced through the generator every hour, this air being absolutely dry and free from dirt. It speaks well for the efficiency of German industry that it can turn machines of this kind at a time when the greatest industrial problems are connected with national defense.

U.S. Ships Face Loss of Subsidy

WASHINGTON.—Because of improvement in their competitive position, operators of subsidized vessels in foreign trade may lose their Government aid, for as long as current conditions prevail.

Notifying all operators of subsidized vessels that it would review their subsidy percentages "in the light of present conditions," the Maritime Commission said the re-examination of the competitive situation was being made "for the purpose of determining the need for Government aid, if any, during the period that current conditions prevail. It is proposed to expedite the matter to an immediate conclusion."

Twelve subsidized lines now receive Government aid of approximately $13,000,000 a year.

"Those disadvantages normally experienced by American flag operators with respect to wages and other operating expenses in competition with other nationals whose costs are appreciably lower do not appear, in many instances, to be present today," the commission said. "Surplus cargoes and heavy demand for space have resulted in substantially reduced competition."—Christian Science Minitor.

SALAZAR AS HEAD OF PORTUGAL ENJOYS UNRIVALLED LEADERSHIP

Revolution Brings University Professor to Power in His Country Whose Future Hard to Predict

By W. E. LUCAS

Christian Science Monitor

The first time I saw Dr. Antonio Salazar was a few weeks after the outbreak of the present war, when he was to make his important declaration on Portugal's wartime policy to the National Assembly. The floor of the new Parliament building was crowded with deputies and above, in the galleries, were crowded diplomats, journalists and the general public.

Strictly on time, an unusual thing for Portugal where "amanha" (tomorrow) is the most frequently used word, a side door opened onto the floor of the Assembly Hall and a neatly dressed, strongly built figure walked quickly on to the President's dais. Almost shyly looking around on the gathering he sipped at a glass of water and arranged a few papers while a tempest of applause greeted him. When the silence was restored, he settled down to the reading of a speech, without gesture or vocal emotion. Within 20 minutes he was done and President Salazar had disappeared as quickly through the side entrance as he had come. Portugal's wartime policy had been decided upon, the deputies told, the press instructed and that was finished. Dr. Salazar could get back to the absorbing task of governing.

Neutrality Policy

Portugal's war policy was to be one of the strictest neutrality. This was an important decision to take, since it cut across a five centuries' old tradition of alliance with England. But Dr. Salazar had decided upon this step and it was accepted without comment by a people who had come to regard him as something more than a man. He was an idea, a symbol of national regeneration.

The great mystery of Dr. Salazar is how he ever acquired the unchallenged leadership which he now enjoys. His connection with politics was slight. Although he had been a member of Parliament before the revolution of 1926, he had only attended one debate, an experience which had so disgusted him that he never returned to the House again until the day on which he entered it as Minister of Finance. To the people in general he was known, if known at all, as a Professor of Economics at the University of Coimbra, who had written some articles on new economic theories and their application to Portugal.

But on that May day of 1926, when General Gomes da Costa, a veteran of the World War, raised the flag of revolt, Portugal was on the brink of financial and political disaster. Sixteen years of Republican government had brought 16 revolutions and 40 changes of Cabinet. A century-old legacy of financial difficulties, during which time no budget had ever balanced, had been made worse confounded by maladministration and corruption. Economically, financially, and politically, Portugal stood in the European bankruptcy court. The military revolution, which was bloodless and resulted in a triumvirate of three generals, quickly cleaned up the political augean stables.

Salazar Little Known

But the financial side of the national spring cleaning was a very different matter. As an outside chance Dr. Salazar was called from the Chair of Economics at the University of Coimbra and asked to fill the post of Minister of Finance. So little was known of him at the time that General Gomes da Costa referred to him in terms of delightful vagueness. "The new Government is just the best we can find at a moment like this. The Minister of Finance is to be a certain Dr. Salazar from Coimbra. Everyone speaks very highly of him. Do you happen to know him?"

Dr. Salazar answered the call in a spirit of public service. He soon found however that, as conditions then existed, there was little useful purpose he could serve by staying. Five days later he packed his bags and returned to the absorbing study of economics at his university. Although his coming or going had not altered Portugal's financial condition in any way, his mere passage through the halls of Ministry had left behind the faint aroma of a man of destiny.

Then followed two years of unavailing remedies which had brought the country's finances to such a state that there was no alternative but to seek for foreign loans. Not knowing where to turn, application was made to the League of Nations for $60,000,000. A Commission from the League visited Portugal in 1928, conducted investigations and recommended favorably, but proposed conditions of control and supervision, which were such that in the unanimous opinion of the people they could not be accepted. In this tense moment in Portuguese history the official and public mind turned once again to Coimbra and Dr. Salazar.

Monetary Measures Discussed

This was the beginning of Dr. Salazar the President and the regeneration of Portugal. The offer was accepted, but only on his own terms. These were simple, comprising four conditions. Each Minister was to undertake to keep within the limits of his departmental budget. All monetary measures were first to be discussed and approved by the Minister of Finance. The Minister of Finance was to have the right to veto any increase in ordinary or current expenditure, as well as any development expenditure for which the necessary credit operation had not been provided. The Minister of Finance undertook to cooperate with his colleagues to reduce expenditure and collect revenue on uniform principles.

Reading between the lines of this characteristically brisk statement, it was obvious that Dr. Salazar was determined to be sole President of Portugal's finances. Dr. Salazar made no speeches, he promulgated no swift decisive laws, he granted no interviews. And then came the final blow, a commonplace housewife's budget, such as Maria, his housekeeper, might have worked out for his own household use.

Nothing startling, nothing to catch the vivid imagination which lies at the bottom of every Portuguese heart; only the application of the rules of arithmetic—addition, subtraction, multiplication and division—to national finances.

It was a bitter anti-climax. It was blood, sweat and tears offered to a people who had expected painless financial miracles.

The first year was tough going. The process of squeezing hurt everybody. The sound of grumbling rose on every side. But no amount of restlessness on the part of the public deterred Dr. Salazar from his plan or broke his terrifying silence. A first year's budget surplus of 10,000,000 was eloquence which no avalanche of speeches could have equalled. That was his first triumph.

Floating Debt Extinguished

Eleven financial years have shown a surplus totaling almost 80,000,000. By 1934 discount rates had fallen from 11 to 3¾ per cent, the floating debt had been entirely extinguished and private savings had amounted to $42,000,000. The spring of 1940 saw the last stage of this remarkable financial achievement, when Dr. Salazar could announce that the foreign debt, which had hung for decades like a milestone around Portugal's neck, had been liquidated.

Within a few years sufficient of the jungle growth had been cut away from Portugal's finances to allow Dr. Salazar to turn his attention to constitutional and economic problems. In 1933 the New Constitution gave the Presidentship a political form and set up a Corporate State built upon the principles of "authority and liberty, law and initiative, unity and diversity."

In Portugal, however, the new political organization was constructed to meet the peculiar economic and temperamental characteristics of the Portuguese, and it bears the strong imprint of Dr. Salazar's own fundamental aims.

Economic Reconstuction

By 1935 the country was given a Fifteen Year Plan for the economic reconstruction which provided for a sum of $240,000,000 to be spent over the total period and to cover expenditure on defense, transport, water and electric power, education, medical and social services and colonial development.

But potential, and then actual war has had a very serious effect. The war caught Portugal just as the Fifteen Year Plan was slowly rumbling into operation. In many directions it was still in the blueprint stage. The consequences which the Battle for Britain is bringing to belligerents and neutrals alike are concentrating Dr. Salazar's attention on other matters. Control has to a large extent passed out of the President's hands. Unforeseen laws are being aimed at the foundations of Portugal's financial structure. The economic plans laid down six years ago were never traced to meet the stresses of a war of blockade and counter-blockade.

The survival of Portugal's financial and economic structure must depend upon the political robustness of Salazar's New State. A poll of opinion in Portugal today might well find a great majority in favor of Antonio Salazar. But it is doubtful if the same could be said about the regime. The Portuguese have never cared much for discipline, although in recent years they have been learning to become accustomed to it. They prefer to sit in cafes and talk. They are temperamentally an emotional people to whom some features of the regime—features which Dr. Salazar considers essential during the process of regeneration—are not universally popular. The Mociedade (Youth) movement, based largely on the German model, though not so warlike, the Legionnaires, recruited during the Spanish War to combat Communism, the "secret" police, the censorship of the press, these are all contrary to much of the Portuguese sentiment.

Pro-Portugal First

Nevertheless these things remain the pillars in the structure of Dr. Salazer's New State. They are the symbols of authoritarianism. On the other hand the very nature of this economic and social experiment in Portugal has naturally inclined some of the President's supporters toward the Nazi and Fascist ideology. Because of the war this has brought a cleavage in the country which before the fall of 1939 was hardly noticeable.

But whatever the antagonistic currents may be below the surface, they all mingle eventually into the broad stream of national patriotism. From Dr. Salazar down the people are pro-Portugal, first and last.

This is the problem which faces Dr. Salazar now. If the experiments are to bear the fruit for which he has hoped, the active participation in the war must be avoided at all costs.

It is, however, impossible in these days to predict with certainty the course of the future. Unfortunately for Dr. Salazar and Portugal the forces of disruption which have been let loose are strong.

A revolution brought Dr. Salazar to power in Portugal. The war has forced him out into the wider European stage. In the course of 13 years he has shown a political realism which has been pathetically absent from the statecraft of the majority of his contemporaries. If he can now maintain his country's Independence outside the conflict, Portugal will emerge into the peace stronger financially, economically and politically than any other European Power. But even if Portugal goes down with the rest of Europe, when the tide turns and the forces of Democracy finally triumph, then there will be much to be learned from Portugal's experiments.

Double Hot Water Radiator

A recent ingenious German invention has solved the problem of utilizing the heat produced by the motor of an automobile to warm the interior of the car. The device consists of a double hot water radiator, which is fed from the fresh water heated by the engine, and then pumped from the engine into the hot water heating coils. When it has served to furnish the required amount of heat it automatically flows back into the motor to be re-heated.

A small electric ventilator blows the air to be heated over the closely built surfaces of the heating apparatus, and the amount of heat can be accurately regulated. This is accomplished by the control of revolutions of the ventilator. By means of the triple stop-cock, the quantity of hot water can also be regulated at all times. This practical device can be used on motor buses as well as on smaller cars, and can be installed under the seats with no trouble.

Not His Job

As the major inspected the cavalry squadron, he stopped before a new recruit and said:

"Now, my lad, have that saddle and harness brighter in the morning." Turning to the sergeant-major, he said: "See to it, sergeant-major."

Next morning the offending saddle and harness were as dull as ever.

"I thought I told you to clean 'em for today?" the major roared.

"No, sir," corrected the "rookie"; "you told the sergeant-major to see to it."—Answers.

AURELL IS VICTOR IN MEN'S SINGLES

Displays Good Form to Beat Craigie—Fachtmanns Cop Mixed Doubles

Per Aurell won the men's championship singles and Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Fachtmann gained the mixed doubles title of the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club on Saturday afternoon at the club courts before a large and enthusiastic gallery.

Aurell defeated Bill Cragie by 6-1, 6-0 and 6-2 in the final of the singles, and the Fachtmanns beat Miss M. Laffin and Michel Jalenques by 6-3 and 6-0 in the last round of the mixed doubles.

The other championship event, the men's doubles, was won by Aurell and H. S. Graham Batter on the previous Sunday when they defeated Jean Cornu and Jalenques in the final by 6-1, 6-2 and 6-4.

Was in Good Form

Aurell was in great form in his match with Craigie, especially in the first two sets. The former's drives down the sidelines and cross court shots gained him many points. Craigie fought hard and was at his best in the third set, when he forced the pace at one stage. There were a number of deuce games, but Aurell gained the majority of them.

In the mixed doubles final the steady play and good teamwork of the Fachtmanns proved major factors in their victory. Their opponents gave them stiff opposition in the first set but in the second the losers were not playing up to their best form.

Aurell and Batter combined well in the finals of the men's doubles to win the title. Cornu and Jalenques gave a good account of themselves, especially in the third set, when they forced the winners to the utmost. The tennis was of a high standard, and there were many good volleys which drew rounds of applause from the spectators.

In the semi-final of the men's championship Cornu gave Aurell the hardest fight in the tourney. The former, playing great tennis, won the first set at 6-4. However, Aurell gained the upper hand in the second, which he took at 6-2. Cornu gave everything he had in the third, and made Aurell fight hard to win it, 6-4. The peace proved too much for Cornu and he defaulted after the third set to his much younger opponent.

Two other events in the club tourney have also been concluded. M. L. Russell winning the men's "B" handicap singles and Miss W. Dunning taking the ladies' handicap singles.

Two-Hour Battle

Russell, with a handicap of minus 40, had a hard two-hour fight with W. R. Buckberrough, scratch, in the final of the former event. The winner took the first set at 8-6, but his opponent rallied to gain the second at 7-5. Russell stood the pace better in the third, which he won at 6-1.

Miss Dunning, minus 40.3, won the ladies' event by beating Mrs. M. L. Russell, minus 15, in the final, 6-3 and 6-4. The winner played her usual steady game to gain the decision over her less experienced opponent. The loser fought hard and made her opponent play at her best to win the event.

Three events, the men's "A" singles handicap, the mixed doubles handicap and the men's doubles handicap, have not yet been decided.

In the men's "A" singles handicap, H. S. G. Batter, with a handicap of minus 40 is already in the finals. He will play the winner of the semi-finals contest between H. Melin, minus 3/6, and J. A. Dixon, minus 30.3, to decide the victor of this event.

The finals of the mixed doubles handicap will see Miss Laffin and Jalenques, minus 40, play against Mrs. Russell and D. Dentici, who will start at scratch. The Fachtmann brothers, George and Max, with a rating of minus 15.2, will oppose F. R. "Bucky" Harriss and C. Heseltine, minus 4/6, in the finals of the men's handicap doubles.

Results of matches not announced in previous articles follow:

Ladies Handicap Singles

Miss W. Dunning (—40.3) beat Mrs. M. L. Russell (—15) by 6-3 and 6-4.

Mixed Doubles Handicap

Mrs. G. R. Fachtmann and M. V. Fachtmann (—40) beat Miss H. Lord and L. A. M. Frank (plus 3/6), 6-3 and 6-2.

Mrs. M. L. Russell and D. Dentici (scratch) beat Miss W. Dunning and C. Heseltine (—15), 6-8, 6-2 and 7-5 (semi-finals).

Miss M. Laffin and M. Jalenques (—40) beat Mrs. G. R. Fachtmann and M. V. Fachtmann (—40), 6-2 and 6-1 (semi-finals).

Carslake, Noted Jockey In England Dies; Won Everything but Derby

Reuters

LONDON, July 30.—Bernard Carslake, one of the leading English jockeys for 40 years, died at his home near Salisbury yesterday at the age of 55. Carslake, who was born in Australia, was the last link with the great days of Edwardian jockeys. On the outbreak of war in 1914, Carslake, who was twice champion jockey in Austria-Hungary, escaped from Austria disguised as the fireman of a railway engine and reached Rumania, where he rode a number of winners in 1915. Soon afterward he went to Russia, where he also became champion jockey. He escaped from there when the Revolution broke out and reached England after a series of thrilling adventures. He won the most important races in England but never rode a Derby winner.

GUDERIAN IS PRAISED FOR PANZER TACTICS

Reich General Creator of Audacious, Revolutionary Form Of Warfare

Transocean

BERLIN, July 27.—High praise for Colonel-General Guderian, Commander of the German Panzer group at the eastern front, who was decorated by the Fuehrer with the Oak Leaves to the Knight's Cross of the Iron Cross in appreciation of his achievements, is expressed by the war correspondent, Herbert Hahn.

The correspondent writes: "Colonel-General Guderian has not only led his Panzer units in the campaign against Soviet Russia in unimaginably audacious attacks to victory but is also looked upon as the creator of the modern Panzer arm and as champion and master of new German Panzer tactics.

"Guderian had already seen in pre-war days that massed Panzer units would play a decisive factor in the fighting on the ground. He did not perceive it as a powerful support for the infantry but as an independent arm separated from the rest of the army, which, with disregard of the old axioms of flank protection and protection in the rear, would drive a wedge deep into enemy country and try by pincer movements to encircle the enemy forces

"That in such operations speed is everything and that cooperation is possible only with other fully mechanized units was for Guderian a matter of course.

Audacious Tactics

"To the mass of infantry must be left the battling down of areas wherein enemy forces have been left almost untouched while the Panzer units around the enemy must be strong enough to prevent wholesale sorties. These tactical considerations were as audacious as they were revolutionizing and; only the results of the campaigns in Poland, France and Soviet Russia may have convinced critics fully of the correctness of these tactics

"Guderians' Panzer thrusts through a corridor via East Prussia to the Vistula bend and thence in a southerly direction toward Brest-Litovsk (which was captured by Guderian's units in June, 1941, for the second time) sealed the fate of several Polish armies cutting off their retreat in an easterly direction.

"Guderians troops in their thrust to the Channel corked the bottle of Dunkirk so strongly from the French hinterland that flight across the Channel was the only possibility left. The thrust of his Panzer units through the Maginot Line as far as the Swiss frontier deprived the French elite troops in Alsace and Lorraine of the last possibility of retreat and doubtless hastened their capitulation.

"In the Soviet campaign, Guderian's troops made an audacious thrust across the Bug River and thence ever farther into enemy territory notwithstanding bad roads and difficult terrain.

"Bialystok and Minsk were blocked off to the south by his troops and immediately afterwards his troops penetrated across Beresina and the Dnieper River again throwing new chains around the enemy.

Led Them to Victory

"Guderian is not only master of these tactics guiding operations from the central point; he is also to be found at the very spearhead of his troops. In numerous cases, he intervened personally at critical points in the battle and often was driving ahead even of his vanguards. He even fought out of temporary enemy circlement and by his personal example inspired his troops to the bravest deeds.

"With these principles, Guderian is leading his units in the eastern campaign. Future historians of war will have to state that modern German blitz warfare would be unthinkable without fast mechanized units and Panzers, which were really decisive factors in the fighting on the ground. In writing thus, they will have to mention in the first place the name of Kuderian, who helped to create the Panzer arm, who developed its present tactics and who led the Panzers to victory," concludes the war correspondent.

NEW YORK, August 1.—The amazing New York Yankees blasted the St. Louis Browns by a 9 to 0 score today to continue their streak of victories, but more amazing still was the way in which "Lefty" Gomez won the game.

Gomez gave 11 free passes to first base to Brown hitter: in one of the wildest pitching performances of the year, but the Browns were unable to produce needed hits for scores. They left 15 men stranded on the base paths during the tilt, as Gomez limited the Browns to five hits.

The Yankees collected 14 hits during the game, scoring three times in the first and third innings, once in the fifth and twice in the sixth.

In the only other American League game of the day, the Washington Senators trounced the Chicago White Sox, 8 to 2 to move up into seventh place of the St. Louis clubs.

Emil Leonard won his fifth straight game, the 11th of the season and his fourth game of the year over the White Sox thereby establishing himself as a "jinx" to the Windy City boys.

Leonard limited the White Sox to eight scattered hits permitting single scores to cross the platter in the seventh and eighth frames. Simultaneously, the Senators were pounding out 12 safeties, getting a single run in the third, three in the fourth, one each in the fifth and sixth and two in the seventh.

The Cleveland Indians and Philadelphia Athletics postponed their game until August 3 when they will play a double-header.

United Press

NEW YORK, July 31.—The New York Yankees tonight held a 12 game lead after turning back the Detroit Tigers twice today. The first half of the double bill went 13 innings while the second, a shutout, was halted by darkness in the eighth. Joe McCarthy's charges led until the ninth in the opener when the Tigers knoted the score at 3-all. After three scoreless innings the Yanks came through with a mighty three run rally in the thirteenth.

New York found less competition in the night cap, winning by a 5 to 0 score as Spurgeon Chandler turned back the Tigers with four hits. Detroit helped boost the Yanks' score by making three errors.

The wildest game in the American circuit was at Boston where the St. Louis Browns downed the Red Sox 16 to 11. Both clubs recorded 14 safe hits and also turned in errorless ball.

The Browns piled up a four run lead in the first inning but the Bostonians by the seventh inning had passed them up. The ninth opened with the St. Louis club trailing by five runs and that last inning rally netted six scores. St. Louis used four hurlers while five pitchers saw service for the Red Sox.

Boston avenged the defeat by taking the second half of the double bill by a 4 to 1 score. The game was halted in the eighth by darkness, since the opener consumed most of the afternoon.

Cecil Houghson, a Rookie from Louisville, turned the Browns back with six hits and hurled shutout ball until the last inning. Connie Mack treated Philadelphia fans to a 9 to 2 victory over the Chicago White Sox as his club climbed into fourth place.

The Athletics led throughout, collecting three scores in the first inning, one in the third and five in the fourth. Two Chicago White Sox hurlers were nicked for 14 hits while Jack Knott, who went the full route for the As, allowed nine scattered safeties.

Brooklyn's Dodgers evened their series with the Cardinals by pushing over a 9 to 5 win and cutting the St. Louis club's lead to two games.

Brooklyn bunched its runs with three in the second frame, four in the fourth and two more in the seventh. Four St. Louis hurlers were nicked for 15 hits.

The Cincinnati Reds turned back the New York Giants again, registering a 6 to 5 win despite erratic fielding. The Reds were trailing by one run in the last of the ninth when they pushed over a pair of scores to break up the ball game.

Frankie Frisch's Pittsburgh Pirates took a 9 to 8 slugfest from the Boston Braves. Six hurlers saw duty and the Pirates collected 16 hits while the Braves were registering a dozen safe blows.

The Pirates piled up an early lead and were ahead 9 to 1 when the eighth inning opened. Boston came through with five scores in the eighth and two more in the ninth but still fell one short of knotting the count.

The lowly Philadelphia Phillies recorded their twentyfifth victory of the season when they downed the Chicago Cubs 7 to 2 John Podgajny was on the mound for the Phillies and turned the Cubs back with a half dozen hits. Three Chicago hurlers were nicked for 13 safeties, with most of the hits and runs being accounted for in the first two innings.

CAPTAIN'S MEN BOW TO VICE-CAPTAIN'S

Latter Team Makes 3 Wins Over Former in Five Y.C.A.C. Cricket Games

The vice-captain's team defeated the captain's men by 107 to 41 in a cricket match played at the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club on Saturday afternoon. The former's squad now has three victories to its credit over the latter, which has won twice.

With a number of cricketers being unable to play, each side had only 10 men. However, both teams borrowed a player from the opposition in fielding so that the regulation 11 could be obtained.

The captain's team batted first and no really good stand was made. Wickets fell rapidly, the side being dismissed in just over an hour.

Retired for 2 Runs

Both the opening batsmen were retired for two runs, and the third wicket was lost when the total was four runs. The rot was stopped for a while when F. R. Harriss joined B. Kuskie, but the former fell to A. G. May's bowling after another eight points had been made. F. R. Devin then went in and raised the total to 22 before he was dismissed, also by one of May's deliveries.

Kuskie was caught by F. da Silva three runs later, and when J. M. da Costa was bowled by J. R. V. Mason the scoreboard read 31 runs for seven wickets. The last two wickets fell shortly after for another 10 runs.

The opening batsmen of the vice-captain's team, M. L. Russell and E. V. Thomas, started carefully. The combination stood for 12 overs, the former being dismissed by a splendid catch in the slips by S. Stephens on the first ball of the thirteenth over. Mason joined Thomas, and the latter also fell to a fine catch, this time by S. G. Bielous at mid-off.

May then combined with Mason to assure the vice-captain's side of a victory, raising the score to 42 before the latter was out, leg before wicket. The next four wickets were obtained fairly rapidly, seven being obtained for 61 runs.

F. da Silva joined M. J. K. Stark at this point, and the pair made the most effective stand of the match. The partnership was good for 41 runs, Stark being caught by Lord near the boundary when the total was 102. R. W. Child came in, but da Silva was bowled by Kuskie when another five runs were obtained, retiring the side.

The four highest scores were made by players on the winning team. Da Silva was top man with 24, and Stark was next with 21. Mason and Russell followed, with 17 and 10, respectively. Devin was high scorer for the opposition with nine, while Lord had eight, not out, and Harriss obtained seven.

The best bowling average was gained by Stark, with one wicket for one run. May took five for 16 and Kuskie obtained four for 29. Stephens also bowled effectively, taking a wicket for only four runs.

Mr. C. T Hayes did the scoring and compiled the statistics.

Y.C.A.C. BALL NINE TRIMS OLD STARS

Nip and Tuck Game Featured By Heavy Hitting of Home Team

Due to its heavy hitting and despite its miscues, the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club baseball team defeated the Old Stars nine by 8 to 6 on Sunday afternoon at the club grounds.

It was a hard fought see-saw contest in which the score was tied four times after one or the other of the teams had taken the lead. The Y.C. and A.C. gained the lead in the first inning but the visitors stepped ahead in the third. This advantage was overcome by a three-run rally in the seventh, and the home squad maintained the lead from then on until the end.

Pete Kipp hurled a good game for the winners, holding the opposition to four singles, while his squad collected 12 hits, four of which were good for extra bases. With better support from both the infield and outfield, Kipp would have obtained an easy victory.

Batting first, the Y.C. and A.C. started off nicely with a brace of runs in the initial canto. With one out, Haum singled between short and third. The next batter struck out but Devin doubled to center, bringing in Haum. Lewis and Kipp both singled in succession as Devin crossed the plate.

The Old Stars tied the score in their half of the same frame. Baba, the lead-off man, received a walk, and then Makita was safe at first on an infield error. The next batter grounded out, while Baba took third and Makita went to second. Another inner garden miscue brought in Baba and advanced Makita to third. As the next batter rolled out, Makita crossed the plate.

The home team took the lead again in the second stanza. With two away and no one on the base paths, Harriss rolled out a three-bagger past the centerfielder, and then completed the circuit on Haum's double.

The visitors knotted the count for the second time in their half of the same inning. An infield bobble and then a walk put Fujimaki on second and Saito on first. Another error by one of the basemen saw Fujimaki round third and streak for home, but the throw to the plate beat him, for the first out. Saito took third during the proceedings and came in as the next batter rolled out.

The Old Stars stepped out in front for the first time in the third stanza. After the first batter was retired, Naito singled to center and then stole second. The next player grounded out as Naito reached third, and the latter completed the circuit on Fujimaki's single.

The Y. C. and A. C. deadlocked the count in the fourth, the third occasion on which the teams were on even terms. With one away, Harriss gained first on a miscue and then pilfered second. He made third on Haum's single and crossed the plate as da Silva rolled out.

The visitors forged ahead again in their half of the same canto. Makita received a free ticket to first with one out. The next batter went down swinging, but two errors, one by the infield and the other by the outfield, brought in Makita.

Neither side could tally in the fifth and sixth stanzas, but the Y.C. and A.C. pushed over a run in the seventh to again tie the score, this time at five-all. Devin started things off by singling through the box, and then stole second. Lewis also connected for a safety to send Devin to third. The latter crossed the plate when Blamey rolled out to second.

An eighth inning rally which netted three runs gave the club squad a comfortable lead. Da Rosa, first man up, singled to right. Harris dropped one between the shortstop and the leftfielder which might have been caught by either, but it went for a hit. Da Rosa, expecting the catch to be made, was beaten by the throw to second.

Haum sent a hot grounder to the shortstop after Harriss had stolen second, and a momentary fumble resulted in Haum beating the throw to first. Harriss took third on the heave to first, after which Haum stole second. Then da Silva slashed out a two-bagger which brought in Harriss and Haum. Da Silva gained third on a pass ball and then completed the circuit as Devin rolled out.

The Old Stars reduced their deficit to two runs by scoring once in their half of the same stanza. After the first man was out, Makita got to first on an outfield miscue and then stole second. Successive hits by Nezu and Nakamura brought him home. This proved to be the last run of the game, neither side scoring in the last canto.

Batting honors went to Haum, who obtained three hits in five times at bat. Harriss, Devin and Lewis all obtained two safeties. None of the opposition got more than one hit.

Outstanding in the field was Harriss, who accepted 15 chances without an error.

New China Photo Exhibition

Dr. Chu Min-yi, Nanking's Ambassador to Japan, in company with others, particularly the popular actress, Miss Wang Yang, visited the New China Photograph Exhibition at Matsuzakaya, Uyeno, at 3 p.m. Tuesday. The exhibition which is composed of the best work of New China has among its superb display, very good studies of Premier Fumimaro Konoye and President Wang Ching-wei of the National Government. Standing closest to President Wang's picture is Dr. Chu while in the foreground, pretty Miss Wang Yang smiles at the picture of Premier Konoye.

COURT HEARS TRIAL OF LABOR CHIEFTAIN

Double-Barreled Attack Made On Bridges and Reds in San Francisco Case

By Edward S. Sullivan
I.N.S.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 15.—The Department of Justice and the Federal Bureau of Investigation devoted "all-out" energies to muster evidence for the Government's second move to deport Harry Bridges, Australian-born west coast CIO longshoreman's leader, on the grounds of dangerous radical affiliation.

The second Bridges deportation hearing, held publicly in a federal courtroom in San Francisco, consumed 10 weeks, with testimony of more than 60 witnesses filling 7,550 pages of record.

The Government produced witnesses and documents to show that Bridges, admittedly a former IWW, was either a member of or closely affiliated with the Communist Party, and that the Communists advocate violent overthrow of the United States Government as part of their world revolution plan. It was testified that Bridges has followed Communist-dictated policies in his labor organization work.

Defense attorneys countered with the charge that the move to deport Bridges was a thinly-disguised attack on organized labor, and that Bridges was being singled out for "persecution" because he happened to be an alien as well as a militant labor leader. They denied the Communist charge and claimed Bridges has always acted solely in the best interests of labor.

Report Given Immigration Service

Judge Charles B. Sears, retired New York State jurist, presided as trial examiner at the lengthy hearing, and at its conclusion took the record and the briefs of both sides under submission, and turned them over, with his fact-finding report and recommendations, to the Immigration Service and the Attorney General.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation took a prominent part in the hearing, in contrast to the similar hearing in 1939, for which the evidence was prepared by the Immigration Service alone.

After the original deportation hearing two years ago Dean James Landis of the Harvard Law School, who acted as examiner, reported that the evidence did not support the Government's charge that Bridges was a Communist member at the time of the hearing, but did show he was an energetic radical.

Under the Alien Registration Act of 1940, the laws were amended to include membership or even affiliation with a subversive or destructive organization at any time in the past, as ground for deportation of an alien. Meanwhile, the Immigration Service was transferred from the Labor Department to the jurisdiction of the Justice Department, and the FBI launched a new investigation of Bridges and his activities.

The result was his re-arrest early in 1941 on a new deportation warrant, and the second hearing began on March 21 at which entirely new evidence was presented.

In contrast to the first hearing, at which many of the Government witnesses were police officers and other investigators, the FBI presented evidence from a number of ex-Communists and intimates of Bridges, to link him with the Red party.

The Government's case was a double-barreled attack on both Bridges and the Communists—designed not only to secure the deportation of the labor chief, but to provide Congress with evidence on which it may move to outlaw the party as a treasonable organization.

Expert witnesses, including former high Communist officials, were called to identify scores of Communist pamphlets and testify to the subversive principles of the party. The witnesses included Benjamin Gitlow of New York, Ferrell Dobbs of Milwaukee and Howard Rushmore, New York newspaperman. All testified, in answer to questions by Chief Government Counsel Albert Del Guercio, that they had joined the Communists in good faith, believing that they were helping organized labor and working toward social justice. They rose to high positions in the Red party, they testified, but eventually quit when they came to realize that its principal aim was violent revolution, that its tactics were deceitful and hypocritical, and that it aided labor organization not as an end in itself, but merely as a means to the end of class struggle and eventual revolution.

Government Piles Up Evidence

Then the Government produced a battery of witnesses to testify that they had attended secret Communist meetings with Bridges between 1934 and 1938, or had heard him advocate Communist policies.

Key witnesses included Richard St. Clair of Los Angeles, who said he had sat as an armed guard at the door when Bridges attended secret Red conferences in San Francisco; Sam Diner of San Rafael, who told of attending a Communist state convention at Fresno with Bridges in 1934; John Thompson of New York, who testified that he, as elevator boy, had taken Bridges up to a closely-guarded meeting of the Communist Central Executive Committee at New York headquarters; and Nat Honig, Seattle newspaperman, who said Bridges had dictated the policies of Red publications on the west coast and that in high circles in Moscow, where Honig once visited, Bridges was regarded as a leading American Communist. All these witnesses were former Reds who had quit the party after becoming disillusioned over its principles.

Other witnesses, including William McCuistion of Texas, former maritime union leader, testified that Bridges in his waterfront union work had taken direct orders from Communist heads.

Believed Bridges a Red

Most of these witnesses said they had always tacitly understood that Bridges was a member of the party, although they had never seen his membership book.

Harry Lundeberg, militant head of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific and long-time foe of Bridges, was called as a Government rebuttal witness to state flatly that at a dinner party in Bridges' home in 1935, Bridges and Sam Darcy, Communist leader, had urged him to join the Red party and that Bridges had admitted being a member.

The defense attorneys, Richard Gladstein and Aubrey Grossman of San Francisco, and Mrs. Carol King of New York, bitterly assailed the testimony of these Government witnesses, but failed to shake any major parts of it.

Trouble developed over one Government witness, James O'Neil, radio newscaster and former CIO publicity director in San Francisco, who was arrested for contempt after failing to heed two Government subpoenas. Brought to the stand finally, he denied that he knew anything to link Bridges with the Reds, or that he had ever told G-men anything of the sort.

Defense Witness Attacked

The Government, after considerable argument, was allowed to read into the record a statement allegedly made by O'Neil at the FBI offices in San Francisco, in which he told the agents many incriminating things about Bridges but said he was reluctant to testify because he had formerly worked for Bridges.

In the statement, O'Neil was represented as saying that he had seen Bridges in conference with Communist officials; that Bridges was very close to William Schneiderman and Elmer Hanoff, notorious California Communists, and that he himself had once seen Bridges, in his office, affixing assessment stamps to a Communist party membership book which Bridges held under the name of Dorgan.

Still denying that he had made these statements, O'Neil was sent to the County jail for 60 days on a contempt charge.

The defense took over after 23 Government witnesses had testified, and presented a mass of evidence unearthed by workers for the far-flung Bridges Defense Committee. The attorneys attempted to discredit the character of Government witnesses and prove them untrustworthy, and to show that Bridges had always followed sincere labor policies rather than Red dictated ones.

Defense Creates Sensation

A sensation erupted when the defense produced a deposition allegedly made in Portland, Oregon, by Maurice "Blackie" Cannalonga, ex-Communist and ship's electrician who had testified as a Government witness that he had attended secret Red meetings with Bridges in San Francisco and the Pacific Northwest. In the deposition, dated two weeks after his testimony, Cannalonga was represented as saying that FBI agents had threatened him with white slave prosecution for bringing a girl from Nevada to Washington, in order to make him testify falsely against Bridges.

Before he could be called back to the witness stand to explain, Cannalonga disappeared, and Judge Sears allowed the defense to introduce the testimony of Rosco Craycraft, Portland longshore official, Attorney William P. Lord of Portland, and others, to the effect that the witness had made such a statement in Lord's office.

Witness Is Found

Cannalonga, who, it developed, had gone on a fishing trip, was located a month later by G-men and brought back to San Francisco, to take the stand again and swear that his original testimony was true, that the FBI had never intimidated him, and that he had been drunk in Portland, partly on liquor supplied by Craycraft, and did not recall having made the retraction. He said he had fled in fear of reprisals by Communists on the waterfront.

The defense produced further witnesses to testify that Cannalonga was sober, although Craycraft admitted buying a bottle of rum for him.

Considerable importance was attached to the Cannalonga episode, since the defense made it a lever for attacks on the FBI. Dramatic finis was written on the final day of the hearing, June 12, when Cannalonga was killed in an Oregon automobile crash while driving back from San Francisco.

Defense Hits Testimony

Another Government witness attacked by the defense was the late Richard Lovelace, Portland veterans' leader and former Communist. Lovelace died just before the hearing opened but his deposition linking Bridges with Communist activities was used by the Government and supported by testimony of his widow.

The defense produced a Portland drugless physician, Virgil MacMickle, to testify that Lovelace had been insane and irresponsible. The Government countered with an attack on MacMickle's own character, and with testimony of Dr. F. J. M. Ernest of the Portland Veterans' Hospital that Lovelace was perfectly sane and normal.

Another Government witness under heavy fire was Ezra Chase, former Los Angeles Communist, whom the defense sought to brand as a "professional labor spy."

After more than a score of defense witnesses had testified, Bridges himself took the stand, to admit freely that he had once been a member of the International Workers of the World, and that he had cooperated closely with Communist groups on the San Francisco waterfront.

Quit I.W.W.

He maintained, however, that he had only been an IWW for a few months in 1921, shortly after his arrival in the United States, and had quit them when he came to feel that their policies of "direct action" were not good for labor.

He insisted that his cooperation during the 1934 general strike in San Francisco with the Marine Workers Industrial Union, the International Labor Defense, and other Red groups, had been merely to strengthen his own longshoremen's union, and that it did not mean he subscribed to any subversive policies.

"The Communists on the waterfront talked our language—they were against the abuses we were fighting against," he testified, "so we accepted their help."

He denied that he had ever been a member of the Red party, though he admitted many leading Reds were among his friends.

He denied being at many of the Communist meetings at which Government witnesses had placed him, but admitted being present at other meetings mentioned, which he insisted had been trade union conferences rather than Communist sessions.

Supports 'Wildcat' Strike

As the hearing neared its end, the "wildcat" strike of CIO workers took place at the North American Aircraft plant in Inglewood, tying up $200,000,000 in defense orders, and Bridges was recalled to the stand, to admit that he felt the strike was justified and had encouraged it, and only advised it be called off when he learned that Army troops were going to take over the plant.

"You can't buck the Army," he said. "We learned that in 1934."

He admitted he had sent long-shoremen from San Pedro to augment the aircraft workers picket lines.

Then the Government called to the stand Richard Frankensteen, National Director of Aviation for the CIO, who testified that the Inglewood strike had been inspired by Communists and called in open defiance of orders from national CIO chiefs and in violation of an agreement with the Defense Mediation Board.

The testimony about the Inglewood strike took the defense by surprise, and the Government contended it showed that Bridges was still following destructive Communist tactics, against the orders of his CIO chiefs.

Curran Backs Bridges

An important defense witness was Joseph Curran, head of the National Maritime Union, who testified that Bridges followed good union policies and not Communist ones. Curran contradicted the testimony of Government witnesses who said Bridges' speaking tour of east coast ports in 1936 was undertaken under Communist direction. Contradicting him the Government produced evidence that Madison Square Garden was rented by David Leeds, Communist Party treasurer, the night Bridges spoke there.

Other defense witnesses testified that the IWW in 1919 had disavowed the policy of sabotage—an effort to offset Bridges' admission of membership in the "Wobblies."

PIPELINE CEREMONIES ARE HELD IN QUEBEC

Oil Will Flow From Portland, Maine to Montreal About September 1

Reuters

HIGHWATERS, Quebec, August 2.—Ceremonies were performed here yesterday marking the joining of two sections of the 236-mile long pipeline destined to carry oil from Portland, Maine, to Montreal.

The ceremonies were attended by C. D. Howe, Canadian Minister of Munitions, and J. P. Moffatt, United States Minister to Canada.

Mr. Howe said the tankers which the pipeline would release for the trans-Atlantic service would be part of Canada's contribution to the Battle of the Atlantic. He expressed a hope that oil would be flowing through the pipeline by September 1.

Mr. Moffatt said the pipeline was one more in the series of bonds binding the United States and Canada more closely.

FARMING METHODS LEARNED

Wintertime Farming Studied by Manchoukuoan Youths in Hokkaido

Twenty native youths from Manchoukuo are learning wintertime farming methods at their training camp at Kushiro, Hokkaido.

They have arrived at Kushiro on July 25 to study wintertime farming methods peculiar to Hokkaido for a period of 20 days. Lessons in wintertime farming methods, live-stock breeding, cultivating wastelands and handling of agricultural implements are being given to the 20 Manchoukuo youths during the morning, while they are taught plowing, sowing and cultivation in the afternoon from experts dispatched by the local agriculture society and the Hokkaido government-office. Instructions and help are also being given them by local farmers. They will inspect neighboring farms on August 13 and will leave for the Obihiro district, the center of the Hokkaido cereals agriculture, on the 16th. After inspecting agricultural facilities and companies there on August 19, the group is scheduled to leave Hokkaido on August 21.

FINE GAMES PLAYED IN KARUIZAWA TILT

Good Weather Enables Tennis Tournament to Reach Semi-Finals

All Karuizawa continues over-joyed at the continued spell of perfect weather which has allowed the tennis tournament given under the auspieces of the K.S.R.A. and Karuizawa Shukaido to keep up its high pitch of excitement for three days without interruption. Men, women, children, babies are all in the tennis audience from time to time—and the children have a wonderful time prowling about among the rows of bicycles, because everyone is much too excited over the matches to take any notice of such mere details as offspring.

One of the most exciting matches ever held in this season's tournament took place Wednesday morning in semi-finals in the Men's Championship singles, between A. Tanaka and T. Tomitori, both of Den-en Club, Tokyo. The match took nearly two hours beginning at 9:50 a.m.

In the first set, after games were tied at three all, Tomitori who was in excellent condition got the first set 6-3 by his service aces, well-placed forehand shots and smashing.

Tails to Rally

In the second set, Tanaka who did not get back his usual from lost by 2-0. However, due to the heat on the court Tomitori suffered from slight dizziness, and his shots became erratic while Tanaka played in a most steady manner. Tanaka then led by 5-2. Tomitori recovered to win two more games. This lead was short as Tomitori suffered from cramps of his arm. Tanaka took the 10th game to make the score 6-4.

After two minutes rest, in the final set, Tanaka had the advantage of beginning the match by his service. Tomitori still weak and Tanaka forged ahead 4-0. The tables were turned as Tanaka lost his service to enable Tomitori to win a set. But Tanaka rallied to make it 5-1, from then on Tanaka continued playing steady to emerge the winner by 6-1. The score was 3-6, 6-4, 6-1.

Another semi-final match of Men's championship singles was played between Watanabe, 18-year old player of Seisoku Middle School and Benninghoe of American Embassy, Tokyo, Watanabe won the match by score, 6-2, 6-4.

Mr. Benninghoff was handicapped by using Japanese balls. Watanabe made a lead 3-0 in the first set. Benninghoff's play was quite rough while Watanabe played steady to get the first set 6-2. In the second set, with Watanabe leading 2-0, Benninghoff made it 2-2. By service Benninghoff made the first lead in the second set by 4-3. He needed three points in making the set 5-3. However, he could not get these points as Watanabe made the game 4-4. After these struggle, Watanabe got two games in succession and won the set and match.

Another good match which also took place Wednesday morning was the semi-finals of women's championship singles. Miss Reifsneider defeated Mrs. Enz in a spectacular match which took about one hour and a half. Score was 2-6, 6-1, 7-5.

In the beginning of the match, Miss Reifsneiders start was had, and she lost points by errors, while Mrs. Enz's play was steady and her shots were deep and placed on the baseline. Thus Mrs. Enz obtained the first set with simple score of 6-2.

Win By 6 to 1

Is the second set, Miss Reifsneider's with slice shots which is one of her fortes, threw her opponent in confusion and got back the second set by score of 6-1. In the final set Miss Reifsneider continued playing nicely and looked as if she would gain the set easily. But she committed many mistakes to enable to Mrs. Enz lead 3-2, and then 4-2. Miss Reifsnider regains her composure and dispatched several fine shots attacking the backhand side of Mrs. Enz. But yet she could not overcome Mrs. Enz who advanced 5-3. The long fighting began to work on Mrs. Enz while Miss Reifsneider's shots became steadier. Miss Reifsneider gave her opponent no rest as she finally won the match.

In another semi-final match of the same events, Miss Kondo defeated Mrs. Orth, 6-0, 6-0. In B Class men's singles, in the quarter finals three matches played Wednesday morning are as follow: Burmester defeated Buhre, 6-2, 6-0; Matsuo defeated Yamauchi, 6-0, 6-2, and Suzuki defeated Kakioka, 6-3, 6-1.

The final match of Men's championship singles will be played on Friday, August 8.

The schedule for Thursday, August 7 will be Semi-finals of Men's championship doubles, finals of Men's championship doubles, finals of Women's championship Doubles, and semi-finals of B Class Men's singles.

AUSTRALIAN JOURNALISTS TO VISIT DUTCH INDIES

Minister of Interior and Director of Information Department Included in Party

Reuters

BATAVIA, August 3.—A number of Australian journalists will arrive for a ten days' visit to the Netherlands East Indies during the course of next week.

The group includes the Australian Minister for the Interior, H. S. Foll who is also Minister for Information, while the Director of the Information Department, Mr. Williams, will also be present. The group will later go to Singapore.

It is understood that a party of Netherlands East Indies journalists will shortly be invited to pay a return visit to Australia.

Hockey Aces Wield Guns for Clubs Now; Sport Suffers as More to Be Drafted

I.N.S.

BOSTON, July 8.—Leaving their sticks to take up guns, and their battered uniforms for the uniforms of Uncle Sam, eight young New England amateur hockey players have joined the armed forces of the United States.

The following are in service:

Jim Roberts, former Harvard star, who was with the Olympics a few seasons back. He is now an ensign, attached to the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

Jim Feeley, erstwhile Dartmouth ace, who is at Pensacola, Florida, with another member of the Olympics' squad, Bud Foster, Melrose. Feeley is a student at the Marine Aviation School, while Foster is a student at the Naval Aviation School.

Other potential pilots are Arthur Duffey and Ray Foster. Duffy, a member of the Olympics' squad, is stationed at the Naval Aviation Base, San Diego, California and Foster, a former Colby star, is with an aviation unit at Fort Benning, Georgia.

It is expected that before the next season opens these players will have been joined by many of their teammates. Walter Brown, General Manager of the Boston Garden, and Manager of the Olympics, said:

"I do not know where I am going to get players for the Olympics next season. Hockey players as a group are physically fit. Youngsters who can take the hammering that is the lot of hockey players do not experience any trouble passing the physical tests for the aviation service or any other department of the Army or Navy they prefer."

Other local sports heroes, who have been inducted into military service, are Hugh Mulcahy, Brighton, pitcher of the Philadelphia Phillies, and Steve "Crusher" Casey, former heavyweight wrestling champion.

Mulcahy, who had just reached the big-time and signed his first big-money contract—for $10,500—is now at Camp Edwards. Casey, who enlisted in the army before his draft number was called, is stationed at Fort Constitution in New Hampshire. He is granted occasional furloughs to permit him to continue wrestling.

CENTERS OF ACTIVITY OF G.P.U. UNEARTHED

German News Agency Reveals Embassies in Paris, Berlin As Whorl of Intrigues

D.N.B.

BERLIN, August 6.—Sensational revelations with regard to the use of the Soviet Embassies at Paris and Berlin as central offices of the Comintern and the G.P.U. were made by the semi-official German news agency.

After the search of the German Embassy in Moscow by the G.P.U. at the outbreak of the hostilities an examination by competent German authorities of the Soviet Embassies in Paris and Berlin gave instructive inside views of the espionage and the sabotage activities of the G.P.U. in foreign countries. It confirmed again that the diplomatic representatives of the Soviet Union as the foreign departments of the Comintern are the central places of war-inciting and of revolutionary intrigues in the different countries.

According to the evidence collected by the German authorities the Soviet Embassy in Paris turned out to be a "cunningly and technically equipped workshop of criminals and murderers." The opening of the rooms with the help of special apparatus took several hours as they were secured by electrically working steel doors. The clue of the G.P.U. department in Paris was the electric furnace with a receptacle for the dismembering of corpses. In view of this evidence there can be no doubt that not only the leader of the Soviet Russian emigrants in Paris, General Miller, who suddenly disappeared in France, had been murdered here and his body burned but that also General Kutiepoff and other leading personalities of the White Russian emigrants and of the Soviet opposition in France had been executed and done away with in the same manner.

The examination of the Soviet Embassy in Berlin had strikingly similar results. Also here a part of the Embassy rooms were secured by heavy steel doors while the windows could be electrically closed by steel shutters. The marks of 25 revolver bullets on one of these doors speak clear language obviously revealing that this room served as special prison for the removal of troublesome accomplices.

In one cellar of the Berlin Embassy building among burnt scaps of paper numerous metal seals were found of which one showed the inscription "Consulado de la Republica de Chile en Breslau." In addition to dum-dum munition, were cutting apparatus with oxygen bottles large quantities of sealing wax of different kind of German and French origin for the opening of letters and the reclosing after they had been read and copied. In the Berlin Embassy building as well as in the rooms of the Soviet Trade Department numerous secret wireless sending sets together with the necessary machinery were discovered as was also the case in Paris.

Bishops' Conference in Fulda

Transocean

BERLIN, August 2.—This year the conference of German bishops will take place in Fulda this month, it was learned here yesterday. It is expected that some 47 Catholic bishops will attend the meeting. The meeting is scheduled to be held from August 19 to August 21, and will reach its climax with the reading of a Papal message.

FELLER, WILLIAMS OUTSHINED BY JOE

DiMaggio Hugs Spotlight but Bob Marked for 35 Wins, Ted to Hit .400

I.N.S.

NEW YORK, July 8.—Playing in New York where the spotlight shines brightest on the athletes, Joe DiMaggio's record-breaking hitting streak dominated the baseball headlines to such extent that the almost simultaneous achievements of two other performers in the Big Show were temporarily blotted out and all but overlooked. This duo would be Bob Feller, pitching pride of the Cleveland Indians, and Ted Williams, the belting beaut of the Boston Red Sox. They are about to get into the archives too.

At his present pace, Feller will wind-up this season with about 35 victories. While it probably will be nearer to 30, he could, with an exceptional streak of good fortune, even make it 37, which would give him a tie with Christy Mathewson's 1908 total for the New York Giants, second highest aggregate of modern times. The record is John Chesbro's 41 set in 1904 for the Highlanders, now the Yankees.

Williams is going after a .400 batting average for the season and on DiMaggio's second-cracking day, July 2, had a mark of .402, with no apparent sign of a slump coming up. If the long, lanky young outfield star of the Sox could stay around that figure—specifically above .400—the rest of the way he would join a super-select handful who have reached that figure.

To see how tough it is to get into the "400" just name those who have done it—Nap Lajoie, .405; Ty Cobb, .420 and .410; George Sisler, .420 and .407; Harry Heilmann, 403; Rogers Hornsby, .424, the tops, .403 and .401; Bill Terry, .401 for the New York Giants in 1930, the last man to get up there.

DiMaggio nearly did it two years ago, but found the pace too tough toward the close of the season.

That Hornsby's .424 is not threatened for the time being and may stand for years seems obvious.

However, if Williams can be the first in a decade to finish above .400 he will have attained quite a mess of glory for himself in his third major league season, and he might soar on up higher some of these days. Manager Joe Cronin of the Red Sox opines at every opportunity that Williams is destined to be remembered as one of the greatest hitters in baseball history.

"Don't make any mistake about him," Cronin said recently. "He has the eye, the timing and everything that goes to make a great batter. Ah, sure, DiMaggio is terrific up there and Feller is about as good a pitcher as you'll find in or out of the books. But watch that Williams."

Cronin went on to point out that DiMaggio, Williams and Feller make up a great triumvirate of players to represent any baseball era, but wouldn't let himself be pinned down tightly on a comparison among them.

In the opinion of many kibitzers the one possible drawback to a brilliant career for Williams is his lack of hustle at times.

That's where DiMaggio has it all over the Boston string bean. Any time you see that Yankee Clipper in a baseball uniform you are looking at a gent who is out there to make every hit and throw and catch count for all it is worth. He doesn't know what it is to loaf, and Feller is constructed the same way. Williams is always trying at the bat for he loves those baseknocks. Otherwise, he can be a little disinterested at times.

Still you can go on watching him and Feller, for they may get into those baseball history books before this season is over as DiMaggio already has done.

NEW YORK, August 3.—Banging out seven consecutive hits for six runs in the second inning, Brooklyn turned back the Chicago Cubs 10 to 2 today to sweep a three-game series.

The victory failed to help the Dodgers oust the National League-leading St. Louis Cardinals, however. The Cards took a twin bill from Philadelphia by identical scores, 6 to 1 and 6 to 1 to gain a 1½ game lead over Brooklyn.

In the first Cardinal-Philly game, Morton Cooper, in his first start since an operation on his pitching elbow on June 17, permitted the only Philly run in the eighth when John Rizzo homered. Lon Warneke yielded a run in the second in the nightcap, but thereafter held the Phillies at bat.

Boston Braves twice blanked Cincinnati, 5 to 0 and 5 to 0. The Reds dropped to fourth place behind Pittsburg. Jimmy Tobin won his seventh victory in the last eight starts in the first game. It was Elmer Riddle's second defeat for the Reds although the Braves only earned one run.

The Pirates outhit the New York Giants in a twin bill swat-fest, taking the opener 5 to 4 and running away with the six inning nightcap 10 to 4. The Pirates' Lloyd Dietz yielded only two hits in eight and 2/3 innings in the opener. Bob Carpenter started for the Giants by walking the first four batters and then was ejected from the game by the umpire for arguing. Ken Heintzelman who started the first game for Pittsburgh again started in the night cap but retired in the second after yielding three runs and Bob Klinger finished.

NEW YORK, August 2.—Nick Etten, young Philadelphia Phillies star, dashed into first place in the National League batting race, replacing Harold Reiser of the Dodgers, averages released today and covering games up to Thursday revealed.

Etten brought his average from .325 to .338 during the week while Reiser hit a bad streak and dropped from .348 to .332, thereby resting in second place.

Ted Williams of the Red Sox held on to his leadership in the junior circuit.

Netmen Playing at Karuizawa

KARUIZAWA TENNIS APPROACHES FINALS

Watanabe of Saisoku Middle School Meets A. Tanaka of Den-en for Singles Cup

Aided by four days of perfect weather the Karuizawa tennis tournaments are being played off at a rapid pace. There are now one divisions in each events of men's singles championship, mixed doubles championship, women's singles championship, women's doubles championship and B class singles, all of these are the final matches. If the weatherman continues to be as good to the town as he has been since Monday, the final matches will be finished by Friday, August 8, as planned previously by the tennis committees.

The matches held on Wednesday afternoon are as follow. In the semi-finals of men's double championship, Kitazawa and Tanaka defeated Benninghoff and Feary, 6-4, 9-7. All of the semi-finalists displayed scintillating exhibition of tennis. Since Benninghoff-Feary team was expected the finalists of the same events, the defeat of that team is a great upset.

K. Harada, Sr., and K. Harada, Jr., both of whom are the sons of Baron and Baroness K. Harada, former secretary to the late Prince Kinmochi Saionji, were opponents each other in the semi-finals of Men's Championship Doubles, as Harada, Sr., teamed up with A. Tanaka, of Den-en Club, while Harada, Jr. teamed up with Mitsui.

In one of the best matches seen in Karuizawa this year, A. Tanaka-Harada, Sr., team defeated Harada, Jr.-Mitsui tem, 6-2, 6-4.

Four matches in the quarter finals in the mixed doubles championship were played Wednesday afternoon, starting 4 p.m. Miss Asabuki and Uhara, defeated Mrs. Kochi-Mori, of Den-en Club team, 6-2, 6-1, in an easy and simple way. Mr. and Mrs. Paszkiwiz defeated Miss Reifsneider and Feary, 6-2, 6-1. Miss Kondo and Harada, Sr., defeated Mrs. Mason and K. Tanaka, 6-3, 6-2, Mrs. Sahl and Kitazawa defeated Mrs. de Vigo and Benninghoff, 5-7, 9-7, 6-1, which was one of the most spectacular matches.

In semi-final matches of women's championship doubles, which also was played in Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. Sahl and Mrs. Deppe defeated Miss Weed and Mrs. Mason, 6-1, 6-1, Mrs. Enz and Mrs. Nishikawa defeated Mrs. Paszkiwiz and Miss Asabuki, 2-6, 6-4, 9-7, in a close match. In B class men's singles, Sumiya defeated Nehmiz, 6-1, 6-1.

In Thursday morning, in semi-finals in Mixed Championship doubles, Miss Asabuki-Uhara defeated Mr. and Mrs. Paszkiwiz, 6-0, 7-5, and Miss Kondo-Harada, sr., defeated Mrs. Sahl-Kitazawa in a long match, 6-3, 5-7, 6-4.

The semi-final matches in B Class men's singles were also played Thursday morning, which are as follows: Matsuo defeated Burmester, 6-3, 6-0, Sumiya, of Peers' School, defeated Suzuki, 6-2, 6-2.

Best matches in this tennis season will be exhibited Friday August 8 when Watanabe, 18-year old champion of Seisoku Middle School will meet A. Tanaka, of Den-en Club in the finals of Men's singles championship for the Japan Times and Advertiser trophy.

The final match of the Mixed doubles championship will also be played Friday when Miss Asabuki and Uhara will be pitted against Miss Kondo and K. Harada, sr.

Miss Kondo, of Den-en Club, Tokyo and Miss Jacquelin Reifsneider are finalists in Women's singles championship, which match will be played between Matsuo and Sumiya on the same day.

Top: Tanaka and Kitazawa, left and right respectively in the foreground defeated Benninghoff and Feary Wednesday afternoon, 6-4, 9-7, in the semi-finals of the men's doubles of the annual Karuizawa tournament. The winning pair will fight against A. Tanaka and K. Harada, Sr., for the championships on Thursday. Below: Miss Jacquelin Reifsnider is showing her serving form which helped to beat Mrs. Enz the same afternoon in the semi-finals of the women's singles. She meets Miss Kondo for the gonfalon on Friday.

HIGH-JUMP ACE SEES SEVEN FEET RECORD

Leslie Steers Who Leaped Highest of Any Man Says He Might Do It

By Pat Robinson

(N.S.)

NEW YORK, July 9.—We saw many remarkable performances at the recent National AAU track and field championships in Philadelphia, and nothing was more impressive than what we heard from Leslie Steers, who not long ago set the new world figures for the high jump of 6 feet 11 inches.

You will appreciate a leap like that much better if you'll get a tape and measure 6' 11" on the wall of your bedroom.

This is exactly one foot higher than Steers' own head. The good looking blond is built like a plunging fullback. He weighs 185 pounds and we asked him if he didn't think his weight a handicap to his jumping.

"Not at all," he replied. "You see, you build up to your weight, and your increased power compensates for your added weight."

We suggested that 6' 11" should be close to the ceiling in high jumping for anything but a kangaroo. But he quickly put the damper on that idea.

"No," he assured us, "I expect to see somebody jump well over 7 feet one of these days!"

Still Learning, He Says

We had hardly recovered from the shock of that one when he followed through with this.

"I might do seven feet or better myself one day IF I EVER LEARN TO JUMP."

We laughed heartily at Steers' little joke. Imagine the world record holder in the high jump talking about learning to jump. Some more ha-ha's.

But Steers wasn't laughing. "No," he said earnestly, "I'm not kidding when I say I havent learned how to jump correctly. And I've been jumping 16 years.

Coordination Necessary

It may seem funny to you but it isn't funny to me. The fact is I have trouble with my right arm and leg. I never seem to get them coordinated right going over the bar." (Here he illustrated just what he was doing wrong with that arm and leg).

We recalled that we once asked Tommy Hitchcock how long it took to train a good polo pony and Tommy's classic response: "About four years but it takes seven to make a polo player because, you see, the horse is smarter."

So we asked Steers how long he thought it would take to make a good jumper.

Collegian Just Learning

"A lifetime," he said. "The trouble is now we never start to jump until we get to high school and by the time we are graduated from college we are just beginning to learn something about it.

"Boys should be started jumping when they are little fellows in the grade schools, taught properly at the start and then permitted to specialize in jumping. In that way we might develop some fair jumpers."

Meanwhile, however, we are going to consider Les Steers with his 6' 11" a fair sort of jumper until we find a better one. And we don't expect to find one soon outside a zoo.

CRICKET MAIN EVENT AT HARBOR CITY CLUB

Ladies' Softball Players Challenge Older Members Of Y.C.A.C.

With real summer weather having returned, members of the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club are hoping old Sol will shine down on their sports activities this weekend. They will however be satisfied if Jupiter Pluvius will lay off until after the various games are concluded, as he did last Sunday.

Cricket will be the major attraction on Saturday afternoon, with the married men playing against the bachelors from 2 p.m. The benedicts and the single men are quite evenly matched on paper, and a close game is expected.

On Sunday afternoon the ladies' softball players hope the older men at the club will accept their challenge to a game which it is planned to get under way at 1:30 p.m. If the "ojiisans" still have cold feet despite the warm weather, girls will secure other opposition.

The club's baseball team will play a return game with the Tokyo S.K.F. nine from 3 p.m., Sunday. The Y.C. and A.C. squad, which beat the Yokohama Old Stars by 8 to 6 last Sunday with a heavy barrage of hits, hope to be as strong at bat and more effective in the field this weekend in order to even their account with the S.K.F. baseballers who beat them in the previous encounter.

With some of the leading lawn bowls players scheduled to meet in the various events of the club tournament, followers of the game are looking forward to some good matches this weekend.

There are a few matches in the tennis tournament which have to be played off, and some of these are expected to be decided on Saturday or Sunday.

Line-ups for the various events are expected to be as follows:

GUARD AGAINST DISEASE

Metropolitan Police Are Taking Measures to Prevent Epidemics

Authorities of the Metropolitan Police Headquarters are now taking every possible measure against the invasion of malignant epidemic deseases, particularly cholera, from Shanghai and other ports in South China into Tokyo port, Domei reports.

Considering that the diseases may enter particularly through the channel of marine transportation undertakings, the authorities have decided to give protective inoculation from August 13 to 20 to those working in this field, including fish sellers and their families.

A. TANAKA GARNERS MEN'S SINGLES CUP

Beats Watanabe in Karuizawa Tourney for The Japan Times And Advertiser Trophy

In the finals of men's singles championship at Karuizawa, A. Tanaka, of Den-en Club, defeated Watanabe, 18-year old champion of Seisoku Middle School, 6-3, 4-6, 6-0. In doing so Tanaka won The Japan Times and Advertiser trophy.

In the final match of men's doubles championship, A. Tanaka- K. Harada, Sr., defeated Kitazawa and K. Tanaka, 6 1, 5-7, 6-2, winning the Japan Times and Advertiser trophy for the event.

The presentation of the trophies took place at the tennis court at 4 p.m. Friday when Tozo Inouye, chairman of the K.S.R.A., and the Karuizawa Shukaido, made a short speech, in which he expressed his thanks for the efforts given by the tennis tournament committee.

An exhibition match will take place at 2:30 p.m. Saturday. The players in the mixed doubles are Miss J. Reifsnider-Shotaro Sato vs Miss T. Asabuki and Mr. Uhara. Those who will play in the men's singles are Shotaro Sato vs A. Tanaka. In the men's doubles, Uhara-A. Tanaka will meet Shotaro Sato and K. Harada, Sr.

This year's tennis tournament in Karuizawa suffered from the bad weather. Three final matches of Tursday afternoon were interrupted by a sporadic downpour when the final round of the Men's doubles championship between A. Tanaka—K. Harada, Sr., and Kitazawa—Tanaka was tied 1-1. Both A. Tanaka and K. Harada, Cr., were in excellent condition in the opening set, exhibiting brilliant plays, service aces, smashing and volleys. The finals of Women's doubles championship between the combination of Mrs. Sahl Mrs. Deppe against Mrs. Enz and Mrs. Nishikwa was also postponed.

Clear weather, however, on Friday morning enabled the tennis tourney to get under way.

The second set of Men's doubles championship final became a see-saw game as A. Tanaka and K. Harada, Sr. were not in their best form as the previous day. After the game was tied 5-5, Kitazawa and Tanaka team earned three games in succession and got the second set by 7-5.

In the final set A. Tanaka and Harada, Sr. resumed their usual form and when Kitazawa and Tanaka team sent several lobbings, both A. Tanaka and Harad mde brilliant smashings to take the lead of 4-0. Kitazawa and partner beat Harada's service in the 5th game and also in the 7th game, making the score 5-2. In the 8th game, when Tanaka was serving, after game was thirty-forty, Harada's smashing won the match points to cop the set and match. The score was 6-1, 5-7 and 6-2.

Following the above finals, the final match of Women's singles championship was played by Miss Jacquelin Reifsneider and Miss Tamako Kondo, of Den-en Club, Tokyo. Miss Reifsnider defeated Miss Kondo by score of 6-1, 4-6, 6-1.

Miss Reifsnider was in her best condition in this contest, disclosing fine smashings and volleys at the net while her sliced, deep shots were well places at either side of her opponents. Miss Reifsneider took the offensive all through the game forcing Miss Kondo to play a defensive game.

Miss Reifsneider got the first set easily 6-1. In the second set, she became very erratic Miss Kondo playing steady took the second set by 6-4 to even the score.

In the final set, Miss Reifsneider resumed her excellent form to win the set and match by 6-1.

The finals of Women's doubles champions was took place Friday morning starting 10 a.m. Mrs. Enz and Mrs. Nishikawa won the tile of the event, defeating Mrs. Sahl and Mrs. Deppe by score of 6-1, 6-2.

In B class men's singles' finals, Sumiya defeated Matsuo in strait sets, score being 6-0, 6-0. Motsuo was quite handicapped by his injury on the leg in the previous doubles match.

The cup presentation ceremony was held Friday afternoon when Tozo Inouye, chairman of the Karuizawa Summer Residents' Association and Karuizawa Shukaido hand out the trophies and prizes to winners and runners-up of all events, as J. Kosaka, director was not able to attend the ceremony because of his illness. Services by members of tennis committees, including F. Yamada, H. Satoh, J. C. Smith, Mr. Kitzawa, M. Okamoto by which this season's tournament was opened, are greatly appreciated by players and Karuizawa tennis enthusiasts.

This year, the following trophies were presented, including the Japan Times and Advertiser trophy for the winner of Men's singles championship, the Japan Times and Advertiser trophies for winners of Men's doubles championship, N.Y.K. Cup and Kanebo prize for the winner of Ladies singles, Mrs. T. Asabuki prize for the winners of Women's double championship, Baroness K. Harada prize for the winners of Mixed Doubles, Mimatsu and Nipponya prizes for the winner of B Class singles. In addition many other prizes presented by K. Fukui, J. Kosaka, Mampei Hotel, Gew Grand Lodge, Ichii, Kajimaya Sport Goods Store, Tsucuya Hotel, will be awarded to the runners-up of all events.

Mixed Roses

I.N.S.

WHITEHALL, New York, July 10.—A red rose bush, which previously bore only red roses, on the grounds of Frank Hurtubis' Blue Goose, Whitehall-Clemons road, is attracting attention because mixed with red roses is a cluster of pure white roses. Never before has this bush played such a prank, Mr. Hurtubis said and the explanation for this mixture is for a botanist.

Japan Times Trophies

The metal flower vase (center) with silver and gold inlaid of floral design, on the royal purple surface was presented by Japan Times and Advertiser Friday to the winner of men's championship singles in the annual tennis tournament, sponsored by the K.S.R.A. and Karuizawa Shukaido. One on the left and extreme right, hammered bronze flower vase with arabesque designs around, were also presented by Japan Times and Advertiser to the winners of men's championship doubles.

NEW YORK, August 5.—The National League lead of the Cardinals was whittled down to a lone game when the Chicago Cubs turned back the St. Louis club, 6 to 2, today.

Bern Olsen limited the Cards to four hits and though given weak support, held his foes scoreless in every inning but the sixth and seventh. Three Card hurlers allowed only eight safeties but the Cubs bunched most of their hits in the fifth and sixth when their half dozen scores were collected.

The second-place Brooklyn Dodgers were idle today but will be back from the West tomorrow to take on the New York Giants in an effort to win back first place.

Pittsburgh's Pirates continued their brilliant play by turning back the Cincinnati Reds again, winning 7 to 5, even though outhit.

The Pirates bunched their hits and collected three scores in the fourth and four more in the seventh. The big inning for the Reds was the eighth when three runs were scored.

The Boston Braves had a big seventh inning and won a sluggest from the Philadelphia Phillies, 10 to 9. Nine hurlers saw service in the wild game in which 27 safe hits were recorded.

The Braves were trailing 9 to 4 at the opening of the seventh and then pushed over the necessary six runs to win the game. The big inning for the Phillies was the first when four runs were scored.

NEW YORK, August 4.—League Leaders came through with victories today, the St. Louis Cards nosing out the Chicago Cubs 4 to 2 and the New York Yanks coming from behind to beat out the Washington Senators 7 to 5.

Ernest White, Lanky Card hurler, turned in his seventh straight victory as he limited the Cubs to seven hits. it was the 13th win of the season for the up and coming young pitcher.

White was opposed by Paul Erickson who allowed only nine hits but he had a bad third inning when all of the Cards' four runs crossed the plate. Chicago collected both of its runs in fourth.

Brooklyn's Dodgers stayed a game and a half behind the Cards by downing the New York Giants 11 to 6 in a free hitting night game. Four Giant hurlers were nicked for 14 hits and the big Brook'yn inning was the seventh, when five runs were second.

At Cincinnati the Reds were turned back with three hit and lost 4 to 1 to the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Pirates got their first three runs in the first two innings without hiting a ball out of the infield.

John Lanning turned in one of his best games of the season and allowed only one Red to reach second after the third inning. The lone Cincinnati run was scored in the third.

Consecutive three baggers by Charles Keller and Phil Rizzuto in the fifth inning wiped out Washington's two run lead as the Yanks returned to championship form after dropping a double header yesterday. The Yanks forged ahead with a three run rally in the sixth and then triples by Joe DiMaggio and Warren Rosar drove in two more New York runs in the seventh.

In the only other American League game the Boston Red Sox came from behind to defeat the Philadelphia Athletics 7 to 6.

Jimmy Foxx returned to the lineup after a siege of flu and homered in the ninth, breaking a six—all tie. It was the Boston slugger's sixteenth circuit drive of the season.

U. S. IS CONCERNED OVER AID TO BRITAIN

America More Interested in European Affairs Than Far East Questions

Domei

WASHINGTON, August 7.—Despite the diversion of American interest to the Pacific owing to recent developments in the Far East, the United States essentially is still more concerned over the question of aid to Britain and the outcome of the Soviet-German war, observers said here today.

While admitting that American interest in the Pacific has increased of late due to Japan's advance into French Indo-China, reports of tension in Thailand and the question of aid to the Soviet Union via Vladivostok, these quarters emphasized that Europe continues to command the major share of United States attention.

With reference to Britain, these sources said that London was anxious to secure United States support in dealing with problems in the Far East but it would be a mistake to think that America would risk war with Japan when it has not yet declared war on Germany.

The Office of Production Management today disclosed increased output of arms and ammunition in the United States during the second quarter of 1941 over the first as follows:

The output of 18-ton tanks increased 1,260 per cent and 27-ton tanks 237 per cent. The machine-gun output increased 69 per cent, while smokeless powder powder and TNT showed a gain of 126 and 46 per cent, respectively, the figures revealed.

A 45-per cent jump was reported in bomber production, while the output of training planes was said to have increased by 40 per cent.

Actual figures, however, were not published, but it was learned that more than 225 18-ton tanks a month now are being delibered, while 7,423 airplanes were delivered during the first six months of the year.

Mexico Takes Stand Against Japanese

since Washington froze Axis assets in the United States, including those of Japan.

Referring to recent Mexican-American trade situation, these sources declared that Mexican embargo on shipments to Japan was urged by the United States on the ground that the latter would take steps to compensate Mexico's loss of trade with Japan.

They said, however, such promise has not been carried out and Mexico has failed to receive rayon supply from the United States as pledged, the consequence of which have thrown the Mexican rayon industry completely off its feet.

Actue shortage of steel, chemical materials and other raw materials has been felt, as the United States failed to export such products to Mexico, they added.

Pastor Cuts Sermon

I.N.S.

HILLSBORO, New Hampshire, July 10.—Rev. Frank A. Coad, pastor of Smith Memorial Church had to cut down a two hour sermon to a maximum reading time of 30 minutes in order to keep parishioners happy. The modern sermon lasts only 20 to 30 minutes. Parishioners asked Rev. Coad to preach one of the sermons left by former pastor Rev. Jonathan Barnes,, delivered when the two-hour lectures were in fashion. As a result the editing was necessary in order to give parishioners what they wanted without forcing them to sit still for two hours.

SMALL TRADERS' BODY REPORTS UNDERTAKINGS

Organizing of Juridical Person To Aid Work of Lesser Industrialists Told

During the general meeting of the emergency measure commission for medium and small-scale enterprises which was established in March this year to cope with various problems of the industrialists and merchants affected by the economic controls, its finance and trade sections made the following reports regarding the progress of the enterprises which they are undertaking.

The finance section reported that following a series of deliberations since April, it has decided to organize a juridical person to be known as the credit guarantee society to facilitate the business of lesser industrialists. The trade section reported that it has also decided to establish an institution to train the industrialists so that they may be dispatched to French Indo-China for the purpose of fostering Japan-F.I.C. trade. No accounts were given of the progress of the enterprises of the commerce and industry sections, the two remaining bodies of the emergency measure commission.

FACTORY WORK OFFERED

Enterprisers With Spare Time Due to Lack of Materials Aided

Part-time jobs in factories will be given to confectioners, bean-curd merchants and others in order to utilize their spare working hours resulting from the current shortage of materials.

Means of utilizing idle hours of merchants due to shortage of commodities were discussed by the Imperial Rule Assistance Association during the meeting held today which were attended by representatives of following circles concerned: Tokyo and Yokohama people's guidance centers, Planning Board, Welfare, War and Navy Ministries, Tokyo Shibaura Electric Company, Furukawa Electric Industry Company, Japan Iron Pipes Company, Kanegafuchi Spinning Company, and others from principal factories in Tokyo and vicinity. The results of the above means are expected to alleviate the pressure of demand and supply besides offering suggestions toward solving the problem of merchants and others switching off to other occupation because of the current changing economic conditions.

DOUBLE MAIN EVENT SCHEDULED AT HIBIYA

Kid Soda Tangles Wtih Iwao Kongo While T. Kushihashi Puts Up Against T. Nakamura

A double main event of eight rounds each provides the main fireworks at the weekly boxing card to be staged Monday evening at the Hibiya amphitheater.

Kid Soda, cleaver featherweight of the local Minato Club and Iwao Kongo, Usuda Club fighter meet in one of the headliners while Toshimitsu Kushihashi and Tomizo Nakamura clash in the other. Preliminary bouts are slated to get under way at 6:30 p.m.

The six round semi-finals has Toru Hoshino facing Bunjiro Nomura and Yugen Ohtake mixing with Yoshio Kawaguchi.

Kid Soda and Kongo tangle in a match that is expected to be very rough. Both boys are punch wise veterans who have come up with good fights. Kid Soda an "in fighter" has a record that boast fights with the best of the professional boys, including Pisten Horiguchi. Incidentally, Soda once bested Horiguchi by a decision. Kongo, not so clever but a strong boy should provide stiff opposition.

A good little man, whom many call the cleverest fighter in the business today is Kushihashi. Strictly a boxer, Kushihashi has in the past cut to rib-Bbons opponents who have outweighted and outreached him by a long shot. it appears that Nakamura is in for a rough night. The bout should be exciting.

The preliminaries line up as follows: Four rounders, Sakuraba vs Nishimura, Ikezawa vs Shimizu and Futamata vs Nakayama.

EDUCATION SYSTEM OF P.I. DISRUPTED

Change Made to Shorten Elementary Course May Result in Non-Admission of Thousands

United Press

MANILA, August 5.—Changes designed to "stream-line" the educational system of the Philippines have produced serious dislocations which may result in the non-admission of thousands of youngsters to high schools throughout the islands this year.

The changes consisted principally of shortening the elementary (primary and intermediate) course from seven to six years and the adoption of the single-session method for the primary grades, which doubled the capacity of primary schools. Under this plan, one set of pupils goes to school in the morning and another group attends in the afternoon. Formerly, pupils went to school both morning and afternoon.

The changes were calculated to do away with the annual school crisis—due to the traditional lack of school funds—which in the past had prevented the accommodation of hundreds of thousands of grade school children from the public schools. The reforms, it was proclaimed by educational authorities, assured the admission of every grade school pupil.

But while the Government solved the elementary school problem, it automatically aggravated the high school problem. When the seventh grade was abolished, the sixth and seventh-graders graduated together, thus doubling the number of first year high school applicants.

Reports reaching Manila indicated that thousands of first-year high school applicants in many provinces could not be accommodated for lack of facilities, which meant lack of money. A frantic effort was being made by provincial governors to divert all available provincial funds to remedy the situation. A move was also started to reduce public works appropriations to bolster school funds on the general ground that education was more important than new roads and bridges.

In Manila, more than 11,000 first-year high school applicants were placed on the waiting list due to lack of room in the city's four high schools. The reason, however, was not due to lack of funds but rather to an unprecedented delay in the approval of the city's budget. Manila began the fiscal year on July 1 without a new budget because the council was slow in adopting one and when they finally adopted one, the mayor did not like it, necessitating a revision.

Impatient school children and irate parents staged demonstrations in front of high schools, during which the city hall was described with unsavory adjectives.

Secretary of Public Instruction Jorge Bocobo, in commenting on the high school crisis, repeated the old Spanish saying about the lesser of two evils being preferable. He indicated it was more important to assure instruction for primary school children than to accommodate all the high school students.

The Philippines Free Press summed up the educational problems in an editorial entitled "The Philippines' Eternal Scandal" as follows:

"If there is anything today that richly deserves to be called an endless national scandal, it is the recurrent public school crisis. Year after year, thousands of students, mostly children of the poor, are thrown out of school for lack of accommodations.

"When the Education Act of 1940 was passed, the excuse given for its adoption without benefit of expert advice, was that it would solve the yearly school crisis once and for all. That it hasn't is now painfully apparent. If anything, it has given rise to many conflicting educational theories among educators and pseudo-educators, including politicians who know nothing of education."

Bicycles, Here and There

This is not a cheap sale or a free gift day as the numerous bicycles might suggest. But it is the day of the finals of the annual Karuizawa tennis tournament, classic if you will. These two-wheel modes of transportation parked at the entrance of the summer resort tennis court attest to the popularity of the annual net matches.

LOOTING CHECKED BY DEATH PENALTY

London Police Take Into Custody 75 Per Cent of Organized Criminals

I.N.S.

LONDON, July 10.—A concentrated effort by the British police, backed by the death penalty, has almost put a stop to the looting which proved so great a menace during the air raids in the early months of the year. Although no one as yet has actually suffered the extreme penalty of the law, many have been sent to prison for terms up to ten years, and the officers have orders that any looter may be shot at sight, or arrested and faced with hanging.

The police believe that they have already caught as many as 75 per cent of the organized criminals, but too many individuas are still free. In an interview, Colonel Josiah Wedgewood stated that the only possible course was to make an example of these pests.

"If we kill these organized ghouls who rob even bodies lying in the ruins of their shattered homes" he said, "we will deter others. Now that the Government is buying up furniture for the homeless, looters have gone into that business too. In one London suburb families were forced to leave their homes because of time bombs. When they returned a few days later most of their furniture had disappeared."

Thieves Operate Openly

Distribution warehouses have been established by receivers of stolen goods, who are kept supplied by gangs. These crooks openly drive up in lorries during or just after a major bombing, and haul away any goods worth salvaging. Some men, who had well paid jobs have left them to take up the profession of looting.

Leeds and Coventry have perhaps suffered worse from this menace than other towns. In the former place one man was convicted of 11 offenses, and sentenced to 10 years in jail. A former window cleaner, he had given up a job which brought him in an income of 40 to 50 dollars a week, and in conjunction with a mother of six young children, organized a clearing station which was a veritable arsenal of looted property.

In Coventry the looting was highly organized by gangs who came by road from London and not only seized property from damaged homes but even sold it back to the bombed owners. Among the convicted persons were a London reserve policeman, three Air Raid Precaution workers and a mother of 11 children who was sentenced to several months imprisonment for stealing one shilling (25 cents) worth of coal.

No Mitigating Circumstances

"A great many people do not mean to loot," said a representative of the Ministry of Home Security, "They think that because something is lying around in a broken district, they are entitled to salvage it. As a matter of fact anyone who removes anything, however valuless from a bombed area is liable to be put to death. Some cases have occurred where a wine shop or a hotel has been demolished. The workers have found bottles of wine or spirits lying about, and not unnaturally helped themselves to a drink. This is as serious an offense as stealing articles of value."

During the great fire of London, last December, one of the historic buildings to be destroyed was the Hall of the Baker's Company. The cellar, which was beneath the great banqueting hall, contained some priceless old wines. The salvage men decided to allow the wreckage to cool off a little before attempting to remove the valuable bottles, and as the floor was still smouldering, they did not leave a guard. The next morning every bottle had disappeared.

In another case, a warehouse containing more than fifty thousand dollars worth of food supplies was wrecked. Most of the food was untouched. By the next day almost everything had disappeared, including cheese, eggs, butter, margarine, tea and bacon. Word was passed round the district that there was "free rations" and even young children kept watch and helped their parents rob the store, which had been loaded onto a lorry Even four casts of canned salmon ready for removal had gone.

Churches Also Sufferers

Churches have suffered badly from these ghouls. Silver communion vessels dating from the seventeenth century were taken from London's German Church of St. Paul with a silver cup presented by Prince Louis of Hesse after the battle of Blenheim. Even Buckingham Palace did not escape, but the goods stolen could hardly have been taken as souvenirs as they consisted mostly of clocks and a sewing machine.

So serious had the looting become, that the authorities had to make an example of everyone convicted. One small boy is in prison now for taking a few enamel kitchen pots and pans from a wrecked house. He explained that he wanted them for his sister who was getting married and had lost all the furniture she had bought for her new home. An old man of 72, received three months for taking an umbrella out of a wrecked house, and another woman was sentenced to six months imprisonment for stealing six cwts of lead and a bucket of coal. In this case a path forty yards long had been trampled from the nearby houses to the wrecked coal shed.

Soldiers on leave who have rushed into an emergency to assist, have lost their tunics, money and even tin hats. A nurse who left her dinner in a London restaurant a few weeks ago to succor the wounded in a nearby cafe, saw a man seize her purse, and even some of the squad who worked so bravely under Captain R. Davies, the hero of the time bomb at St. Pau's, were arrested and charged with looting a locked shop and removing shaving soap. In this case, Captain Davies, who has since received the George Cross, was permitted to go bail for his men.

Most of the offenders have been rescue squad workers. Recently one attempted to fight his conviction on a plea, which was not allowed that. "It is demolition trade previlege for a worker to take away or burn anything left behind by the former occupier." He was sentenced to jail for removing a book of gramaphone records.

Hairdressers stocks, razor blades, cigarette lighters, tea, sugar, and even live chickens and rabbits have all been stolen, but the largest haul was an Anderson air raid shelter, which was removed wholesale from a back garden whilst the family were evacuated.

The police have a special department now organized to deal with this type of crime, and are assisted by a fleet of cars, from dirty little vans to saloon cars with no distinguishing markings. These vehicles are capable of a speed of 90 miles an hour and with this assistance they expect to stamp out the trouble.

"Ninepence may mean death" is the slogan of the officers of the law, which was adopted when a man was convicted of stealing some toffee and chocolate bars of which the total value was ninepence.

CHICAGO TRIBUNE ASKS WHENCE WAR BUGABOO

As People Four to One Against War—Sending of Troops Oversea Undemocratic

Transocean

NEW YORK, July 31.—So far no member of the present administration in Washington has explained to the people of the United States from whence the menace they are daily threatened with comes, the Chicago Tribune remarked today.

Perhaps Roosevelt and his adherents are planning to attack some place themselves, to send an American Expeditionary Force to some still unnamed land, this newspaper added.

If there really is some nation planning to attack the United States, then the American people have a right to be informed, the Chicago Tribune concluded.

In another article in the same issue, the Chicago Tribune published a statement that the American people are four to one against sending troops overseas. Should such a step be forced upon the United States, it would certainly be against the expressed desires of the great majority of its citizens.

REICH CREDIT PAPER REVIEWS ECONOMICS

Gives Account of Conditions in Europe, Overseas for Past 6 Months

D.N.B.

BERLIN, August 9.—The report of the Reichs Kreditgesellschaft which has just been issued gives an account of the economic conditions in Eurobe and overseas for the past six months. The report points out that everywhere an effort is being made to inrease production. In view of the urgency of public orders for armaments, the necessity for Government control has increased.

Germany's advanage in this field is expressed by the fact that the German authorities had adopted measures in advance. Foreign economics, on the other side, are still struggling with shifts and organization problems as is the case in U.S.A. and England as well.

At the present moment, North American economy is characterized by a system of Government control. Order, however, is lacking everywhere. The chief difficulty lies in getting started.

Another part of the report is devoted to price movements on the world markets. As a result of the British blockade markets have been split up according to continents. This has meant a greater intensification of the home markets.

The European area has profited by this development and is combining all of its production forces for the purpose of covering requirements. The emphasis of the remaining world markets for agricultural and industrial raw materials has shifted to America.

The report also handles the currency question. Basic changes have taken place in this field since the outbreak of the war. On the European Continent, a new currency order has been introduced and is being directed by Germany. Clearing agreements have assumed important rôles in this economic system.

The currency situation in Great Britain, the report goes on, forced this country to continue and even strengthen her control of foreign exchange in the entire sterling block. The situation has been weakened even by the liquidation of reserves for the payment of American supplies.

New York's position as an international credit market and as the center of currency reserves has suffered by the Government order to block the accounts of all European countries.

The report comes to the conclusion that new forces for the transformation of the world economic system were released by the European war and by the world political tension which resulted from this.

The new world economic way, the survey concludes, will lead in future via national economics which are based on large economic areas to a basic change in international economic relations.

HAWAIIAN NATATORS WIN A.A.U. CONTEST

Kiyoshi Nakama Sets New Record in 800-Meter Free-Style, Balmores in 300 Medley

Domei

ST. LOUIS, August 10.—Bronzed swimmers from Hawaii swept through the final day yesterday of the National Amateur Athletic Union swimming meet with a flourish that put a convincing touch to their string of victories throughout the three-day tournament, breaking two national records in the process.

Of 11 swimming events aside from the diving contests, the Hawaiian team won eight, amassing a total of 74 points to win the A.A.U. championship for the third year in succession.

Chicago Towers Second

The Chicago Towers Club took a poor second with only 11 points.

Kiyoshi Nakama, with a time of 10 minutes 6.2 seconds, hung up a new record in the 800-meter free-style event, while Jose Balmores set a new 300-meter medley mark of 3 minutes 56.9 seconds.

Adolph Kiefer provided the lone break in the string of Hawaiian swimming victories with a triumph in the 100-meter backstroke.

Details of the meet follow:

100-meter freestyle—first, Takeshi Hirose (Hawaii), time: 60.1 seconds; second, Otto Jaretz (Chicago Towers Club); third, Bill Prew (Detroit); fourth, Dick Lyon (California Athletic Club).

100-meter backstroke—first, Adolph Kiefer, (Chicago Towers Club), time: 1:6.3 seconds; second, Fred Gass, (Dallas Athletic Club); third, Bruce Donaldson (Washington Athletic Club); fourth, Bob Tribble, Nuuanu Y.M.C.A.).

200-meter breaststroke—Jose Balmores (Hawaii), time: 2 minutes 45.5 seconds; second, Counsilman St. Louis (Y. M. C. A.); third, Carlos Rivas (Honolulu); fourth, Ralph Wright (unattached).

400-meter free-style—first, Bill Smith (Hawaii), time: four minutes 47.6 seconds; second, Kiyoshi Nakama, (Hawaii); third, Bunmei Nakama, (Hawaii); fourth, Charles Oda (Hawaii).

Nakama Brothers Win

800-meter free-style—first, Kiyoshi Nakama (Hawaii), time: 10 minutes 6.2 seconds; second, Bill Smith (Hawaii); third, Bunmei Nakama (Hawaii); fourth, Charles Oda (Hawaii).

300-meter medley—first, Jose Balmores (Hawaii), time: 3 minutes 56.9 seconds.

Relay—won by Hawaiian team, composed of Hirose, Balmores, Oda, Smith, time: 9 minutes 14.9 seconds; second, Pasadena Athletic Club; third, Huntington Y.M.C.A.; fourth, Riviera Club.

10-meter diving—first, Earle Clark (Ohio State University; second Sammy Lee (Occidental College); third, Norman Spier, Jr., (Santa Barbara); fourth, Harry Pes (Santa Barbara).

NEW YORK, August 6.—Cleveland's once mighty Indians slipped further out of the American League pennant picture when they were downed 11 to 2 by the Detroit Tigers today.

Detroit set a record for the season by pushing over eleven runs in the third inning. Four Indian hurlers were used during the Tiger's batting spree.

Alton Benton went the full route for the Tigers and allowed only six hits. He hurled shutout ball until the seventh, when both of the Indian runs were scored.

The New York Yanks divided a double header with the Boston Red Sox taking the second game 3 to 1 but losing the opener 6 to 3.

Bob Doerr and Manager Joe Cronin hit homers for the Indians in the opener. Joe DiMaggio and Joe Gordon supplied two of New York's three runs by connecting with circuit drives.

Joe DiMaggio won the second game by clouting out a double in the sixth which brought in two runs.

The St. Louis Browns, though outhit, downed the Chicago White Sox 9 to 6 in the opener of their double header. Chicago came back to take the second game 5 to 2.

Though his club lost, Joe Kuhel was the hero of the first game. Joe connected with a homer, two doubles and a single out of five trips to the plate.

Kuhel also figured in the scoring of the nightcap, producing a single while Mike Kreevich came through with a double and Taft Wright a single in producing two of the Chisox runs.

MARRIED MEN BEST SINGLE CRICKETERS

Y.C.A.C. Game Shows Benedicts Better in Cricket Than Bachelors

The married men defeated the single members of the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club in a cricket match at the club grounds on Saturday afternoon, the score being 50 to 29.

The bachelors had only 10 men while their opponent's side consisted of the regulation 11, but the former had the services of S. Stephens, a married man, who was their most effective player in both attack and defense. Stephens took nine wickets for 19 runs and scored the most runs for the losers, which the benedicts contended was added testimony that the married men are the better cricketers.

The married players lost the toss and bat first. After losing their first wicket for only one run, W. R. Bull and P. H. Gore-Booth ran up the total to 19 before the former was dismissed leg before wicket. K. S. Himatsinhji fell to Stephens' bowling at 25, and Gore-Booth was caught by F. R. Harriss one run later.

F. R. Devin then joined F. J. da Silva, and this pair raised the count to 35 before Devin was caught and bowled by Stephens. G. E. Beatty was caught by Devin, who fielded for the single men after his knock in order that they could have a full side, at 21, while da Silva lost his wicket five runs later. The last three batsmen were dismissed for as many runs.

The single men also started as poorly as their opponents, the first wicket falling for only a single point. Stephens was joined by F. H. Moysey and they combined for 11 more runs However, both these players fell when the scoreboard read 12, and then B. Kuskie was caught and bowled by P. H. Lord at 17.

Things continued to go badly for the bachelors, the next two batsmen being dismissed at 18. However, H. J. Bird and Harriss combined to raise the total to 26, the former being caught by Himatsinhji at this point. The eighth and ninth wickets were obtained for a total of three runs.

F. J. da Silva repeated his previous week's performance by again being high batsman, this time with 17. Bull followed with 11, while both Stephens and Gore-Booth made nine.

The best bowling average was obtained by Lord with four for seven. Stephens was credited for all but one of the married men's wickets, his nine for 19 giving him the very fine average of 2.11. M. Parsram was very effective also, getting three wickets for 10 runs.

With the game being over at 5.15 p.m. it was decided to carry on, and in the second innings the married men again displayed their superiority. They scored 69 runs for five wickets, and then declared, after which their opponents made 30 for six wickets. Play was stopped at this point on account of darkness.

Gore-Booth turned in the finest batting performance of the day in his second innings. His score of 48, not out, included three sixes and the same number of fours. His three sixes, which all cleared the west fence, were made in one over. Harriss also did well, making 14, not out, for the bachelors.

A fact which created considerable interest in the single men's first innings was that not one of them was bowled. Seven of the nine wickets fell to catches, while the remaining two were run out.

Mr. C. T. Mayes kept score and compiled the statistics, as he has for every game this season.

Cairo Police Prohibit Noted Roving Peddlers From Perambulating

Reuters

CAIRO, August 9.—Cairo's famous itinerant peddlers, who hawk anything from postcards to bales of silk, may shortly disappear, for the city police have decided to ban them from all the principal streets and relegate them to special markets. Thousands of Imperial troops, daily visiting Cairo, found the peddlers' importunities and flagrant demands for bakseesh somewhat tiresome, and the police have now decided to end the nuisance.

ENTIRE INDIA MOURNS DEATH OF POET TAGORE

Gandhi Eulogizes Country Not Only Lost Greatest Lyricist But Ardent Nationalist

Reuters

BOMBAY, August 9.—The entire country is mourning the death of Sir Rabindranath Tagore. Spontaneous demonstrations are taking place everywhere in memory of India's great leader, thinker and philosopher.

Tributes are being paid to the memory of Tagore from all quarters.

The Viceroy, in a message to the poet's son, states: "I am deeply grieved to learn of the death of your father. This marks the end of a long life of service inspired by high ideals nobly conceived and actively pursued, and will be an inspiring example for generations to come."

The Governor of Bengal said: "In Tagore Bengal has lost a son whose long distinguished career has been inspired by service to his fellowmen."

Mr Gandhi said: "In the death of Tagore we have not only lost the greatest poet of the age but an ardent nationalist. There was hardly any public activity on which he did not lend his powerful personality."

FURITSU 4TH WINS HIGH SCHOOL SWIM

Runs Away With Annual City Competition, Cops 9 Out of 12 Events

Victorious in nine of the 12 events, the powerful Furitsu Fourth girl's high school team, ran away with the annual Tokyo Girls High school swimming meet held Sunday at the Meiji Shrine pool.

Scoring a total of 116 points, the Fourth girl's high mermaids led in order, Furitsu Sixth 43, Hinomoto 24, Furitsu First 16, Furitsu Eighth 12 and Kasei 3.

One new national high school record was established when the Furitsu Fourth team captured the 300-meter medley relay in 4 minutes 18.2 seconds. Otherwise the times chalked up by the contestants were mediocre.

In the free style Miss Hatano of the Furitsu Fourth was a double winner, triumphing in the 200 and 400 meter races. Another two-event winner was Miss Nonaka, also of Furitsu fourth who duplicated in the 100 and 200 meter breaststroke.

In the diving events, Miss Kishino of Furitsu Sixth was supreme, being credited with highest marks in both the springboard and high platform.

Y.C.A.C. BALL NINE BEATS S.K.F. SQUAD

Wet Grounds Cause Both Sides To Play Erratic Game Ending In 19-7 Score

The Yokohama Country and Athletic Club baseball team squared its account with the Tokyo S.K.F. squad Sunday afternoon at the club grounds by beating the players from the capital, 19 to 7.

Rain started to fall during the third inning and the downpour became so heavy that the game was halted after the fourth frame. Play was resumed after a half-hour interval, when the hardy baseballers decided the rain had let up sufficiently to continue.

The wet grounds marred the play, the pitchers having a hard time controlling their offerings, and their teammates also having difficulty in grasping the slippery ball. There were 32 free passes to first, of which the S.K.F. three moundsmen handed out 20. The Y.C. and A.C. got eight hits, while Kipp and Harriss held the opposition to six. The former allowed two hits and a walk during the four innings he had the hurling assignment, before the latter took over the mound duties after the intermission caused by the rain.

After holding the S.K.F. scoreless in the first half of the opening inning, the Y.C. and A.C. gained the lead in their part of the same stanza. Harriss, the lead-off batter, singled to center and then stole second. He took third when Haum grounded out, and dented the Rubber on an infield miscue.

The S.K.F. hurler lost control in this inning, walking the first six men to face him. This brought in three runs and left the bases filled. Then Fred da Silva singled to right, sending two men across the plate. An error brought in one more run, and another base on balls loaded the sacks again. However, the next three men were retired without further damage, and the inning closed with the home squad ahead by 7 to 0.

The Tokyo players broke into the scoring column in the fourth frame by making their first run. With one away Oneda doubled to right and came home on Shimamuras triple.

In their half of the fourth the bay city players did not have a man on the basepaths with two out when the fun started again. Lewis and Koch made second and first, respectively, on miscues. Kipp received a walk, and that filled the bases. Then Henry Fernandes singled to right, bringing in Lewis and Koch. Play was stopped when the inning ended as the rain became too heavy to continue.

After a half-hour the game was resumed as the rain let up somewhat, and the S.K.F. started off in the fifth with a single by Nagai. Then Watanabe and Tanaka walked, filling the bases. A walk and a hit scored the three men on the sacks.

After shutting out the Y.C. and A.C. in the latter half of the fifth, the Tokyo players gained another two points in the sixth. Yamauchi and Watanabe did the scoring on a walk, a hit and an error.

The Yokohama squad had another big inning in their half of the same frame. Koshi, first man up, singled and strolled all the way home when the next three batters got free tickets to first. With the sacks loaded there were two errors and then a hit by da Silva. This was followed by another two walks, and all this resulted in another six runs, making the score 15 to 6.

The home squad obtained another point in the seventh. With one out da Rosa walked, and then stole second. Harriss singled to left and da Rosa completed the circuit.

Another three runs in the eighth gave the Y.C. and A.C. a 19 to 6 lead. With one away, C. Fernandes and Kipp walked. Then H. Fernandes hit to left, filling the bases. Da Rosa was hit by the pitcher, bringing in C. Fernandes. The next man flied out, but Haum drove out a hit to deep center, which scored both Kipp and H. Fernandes.

The S.K.F. got their last run in the ninth. The first two men up were retired, but Nagai got to first when he was hit by the pitcher. Watanabe then singled over first, and this was followed by Tanaka getting a walk, filling the bases. Yokoichi, and this was followed by Tanaka getting a walk, filling the bases. Yokoichi also obtained a base on balls, forcing in Nagai. The next man flied out to second, ending the same.

For the winners, Harriss, da Silva and H. Fernandes all got two hits, while Shimamura also got a brace of safeties for the S.K.F.

More Officers to P.I.

United Press

WASHINGTON, August 7.—The Army yesterday assigned 23 more officers, ranging from second lieutenants to captains, to Philippines posts and transferred three other officers from the Philippines to continental assignments.

One Reason For Lightning Nazi Advance

German sappers are seen in action. When bridges are blown up or when there is a need for one, these sappers do the trick in record time. Testament of their high efficiency, not to mention their indispensable work, is the lightning advance of the German troops. These stalwart and ingenious sappers are now facilitating the rush of the Nazi juggernaut in Soviet Russia.

LOUIS WILL DEFEND CROWN 19TH TIME

Brown Bomber Meets Promising Lou Nova on September 19 in Yankee Stadium

United Press

NEW YORK, August 8.—Joe Louis will defend his heavy-weight title for the 19th time September 19 when he meets Lou Nova in the Yankee Stdium.

Promotor Mike Jacobs today announced that he had matched the dusky Brown Bomber and Nova, who has been seeking a bout with Louis for some time.

Nova earned the right to meet Louis the hard way. He beat Max Baer impressively twice and also beat Pat Comiskey.

Nova has never fought Louis before.

Tony Galento knocked out Nova in 1939 but it was revealed afterward that Nova had a blood infection at the time which later threatened his life.

For Louis it will be the 19th defense of his title. He has fought seven times in the Yankee stadium and defeated such opponents as Carnera, Max Baer, Galento, Tommy Farr, Jack Sharkey and Arturo Godoy.

EXPERIMENTS PROCEED ON HUGE ATOM-SMASHER

4,900-Ton Cyclotron to House World's Largest Vacuum Chamber for Studies

I.N.S.

BERKELEY, California, August 1.—Experiments preliminary to construction of the world's largest vacuum chamber, to go into the University of California giant 4,900-ton atom-smashing cyclotron now under construction, are being carried on in the institution's radiation laboratory.

The vacuum, 50 times larger than the largest vacuum chamber now in existence, will be used to speed up and increase the striking force of the "bullets" that will hit and smash up atoms.

Traveling through the circular chamber, 15 feet and 4 inches in diameter, they will attain the astronomic velocity of 60,000 miles per second.

In the cyclotron, the vacuum chamber will be evacuated by two mechanical pumps and an oil vapor pump. The mechanical pumps will first reduce the pressure in the chamber to one ten-thousandth of an atmosphere.

Then the oil vapor pump will remove all but one molecule in every billion from the chamber. Even with such a low pressure there will still be in the chamber as many molecules of air in every cubic inch as there are people on earth.

Total capacity of the vacuum system of the cyclotron will be 5,000 cubic feet or 8,640,000 cubic inches. From it will be pumped as much air as is pumped in evacuating 820,000 60-watt electric light bulbs.

The largest vacuum chamber now in existence is already on the Berkeley campus. With a 100 cubic feet capacity, it is in the original 225-ton cyclotron.

HUMAN STUDY COMPILED

California Professor Indexes Known Data in All Fields of Endeavor

I.N.S.

SACRAMENTO, California, August 1.—Dr. Raymond H. Wheeler, psychologist and guest professor at the College of the Pacific at Stockton, is compiling all the known data of human experience and is recording it in what he terms the largest book of scientific fact ever written.

When finished the book will measure 7½ feet in length and 1½ feet in width. It will be classified by fields of endeavor and by years the discoveries, inventions and variations in human behavior occurring since historical time began.

The reader, Dr. Wheeler points out, may at a glance determine what was going on in any object in any year, and he may trace the history of any certain activity through the years.

Some 650,000 items have been entered in the book during the last five years and an estimated 1,250,000 more items will be added before it is finished within the next five years.

JAPANESE PERSPIRE LESS

Professor Thinks They Make Better Colonists for Tropical Climes

I.N.S.

PEKING, August 1.—Japanese are better fitted than Americans, Britons or Russians as colonizers in tropical and semi-tropical areas because they perspire less.

This novel dictum comes from Dr. Yasushi Hisano of the Nagoya Imperial University. It is a science with the doctor who urges all Japanese considering migration to the South Seas to undergo a perspiration test in advance. On the extent of an individual's perspiration may well depend his success or failure in his chosen colony.

Those who perspire freely are naturally more weakened than those who drib less in a hot climate, according to Dr. Hisano.

Under the same temperature he declared that Japanese average but 2,500,000 to 3,000,000 drops of perspiration to the 3,400,000 to 4,700,000 from an Englishman and 3,500,000 to 4,000,000 lost by an American.

CLOTHING RATIONING BRINGS STALL RUSH

London's Noted 'Petticoat Lane' Completely Sold Out After New Announcement

I.N.S.

LONDON, August 1.—Within four daylight hours of the Board of Trade's announcement of clothes rationing, Britain's noted stall-market of "Petticoat Lane" had sold half a million coupons worth of clothes, stockings, and shoes—without coupons.

The best kept secret of the war had remained a secret until read by the population in their early Sunday editions.

But by nine that morning thousands were on their way by foot, bike, car, and bus to one goal—Petticoat Lane. London's famed street market where you can buy a suit for a dollar, only to find on arriving home the pants are missing from the bundle, or the works of a "perfectly genuine" watch—apparently working when sold but 10 minutes ago—missing.

Seller Quickly Gone

It's useless looking for the stall holder who sold you the "suit" or the "watch"—he's gone, and so has the stall. His place has been filled by another of his pals with a new stall—but with the same intentions.

Packed cars, from points 30 and 40 miles out from town joined in the East End "invasion" and by nine, the "advanced battalions" had borne down and were in occupation before the stallholders had opened their suitcases of merchandise. Even the toughest of the Lane's stallholders found themselves overwhelmed.

The crowd swarmed from stall to stall—whilst a handful of policemen attempted to remind shoppers and stallholders that it was illegal to purchase or sell clothes without coupons.

Police Efforts Futile

Their efforts were futile, useless, and ignored.

City men, usual shoppers of the West End, struggled and fought for braces, shirts and pajamas.

Wealthy women, buyers and wearers of London's latest fashions screamed and pleaded with stall holders for lingerie, dresses, and shoes.

Those wearing expensive furs were apparently as well trained in shoving and grabbing tactics as their poorer sisters.

Others could be seen hopping in the road on one foot vainly trying new shoes on the other; but there was no time, space, or opportunity to examine prospective purchases, the "Order of the Day" was "Take it or Leave it."

Complete Sellout

When, in the afternoon, the market closed, every stall had been stripped of its wares. To say that the crowd had bought on an average 10 coupons worth of "rationed" clothes is by no means an exaggeration.

A Board of Trade official said: "Petticoat Lane traders who sold without coupons are not very wise. They will not be prosecuted—we did not have any inspectors there—but they have done the most harm to themselves.

"Future supplies will be given in exchange for coupons, and traders without coupons will go without supplies.

BROOKLYN REGAINS LEAGUE LEADERSHIP

Medwick's Homer and Two-Bagger Beat Braves; Rookie Misses No Hit-No Run Feat

United Press

NEW YORK, August 8.—Brooklyn Dodgers returned to the top of the National League heap today, downing the Boston Braves to pick up a half game on the idle St. Louis Cards.

Joe Medwick was the hero of the game, producing a homer and two bagger.

The Dodgers downed the Braves 6 to 2. They piled up a three run lead in the second inning and then added single scores in the sixth, seventh and eighth frames.

John Wyatt went the full route for the Dodgers and limited his foes to a half dozen hits. Jim Tobin hurled the entire game for Boston and allowed twelve hits.

Brilliant pitching by Paul Erickson, a rookie from Oklahoma, featured the Chicago Cubs 1 to 0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates. It was Erickson's first Major League victory but he lost a chance for a no hit game when Bob Elliott singled harmlessly in the seventh frame.

The Cubs nicked John Lanning for 10 hits but the best they could do was collect one run. The Pirates were held to a lone single by Erickson.

WELFARE BODY PLANNED FOR LIGHTHOUSE WORKERS

Communications Ministry Will Undertake Organization With Donations Received

The Communications Ministry has decided to establish a welfare organization for light-house keepers, with Communications Minister Shozo Murata as its head.

The plan is in keeping with the gracious mind of Her Majesty the Empress Dowager who has special consideration for light-house men.

It is recalled that the Empress Dowager visited the Kengasaki Light House 1st June and granted a sum of money. Since then, the Communications Ministry has been contemplating how to respond to the gracious mind of the Empress Dowager.

The Nippon Yusen Kaisha and the Kinkai Kisen Kyokai (Association of Ships in Near Seas) have recently donated ¥2,000,000 to the Communication Ministry, which the officials have decided to use as a fund for the welfare organization of light-house keepers.

The tasks undertaken by the organization will be medical treatment for the light-house keepers and their family members and educational works for their children.

The headquarters of the organization will be placed in the Light-House Bureau at Yokohama.

OFFICERS REMINISCE ON SHANGHAI BATTLE

Navy Men Tell About Exciting Experiences of August, Four Years Ago

On the eve of the fourth anniversary of the Shanghai fighting of August 13, 1937, Commander Sakae Yasaka, Commander Motonari Fujita and First Lieutenant Hideo Sekine told their recollections of experiences at Shanghai four years ago, in a room at the Naval Landing Party Headquarters at Shanghai, according to a special report from Shanghai to the Tokyo Asahi.

The gist of their talks is here briefly translated:

"It was on August 2 that the funeral of First Lieutenant Oyama, who was assassinated by Chinese, was held, and upon the ending of the funeral service, the entire Naval landing party took up the duty of patrolling the entire guard line.

"It was at 4:55 p.m. August 13 that the enemy at Patzuchiao opened attack at the signal of the explosion of a mine, and thus our forces also commenced fighting on the entire line, starting the great historic Shanghai battle.

"The enemy consisted of the 87th, 88th, 2nd, and 36th divisions and the peace preservation corps, and for the object of isolating the Naval landing party from the International Settlement, they crossed the Yokohama creek, taking advantage of the strong wind, and sent desperate corps to set buildings on fire.

Enemy's Courage

"The enemy's courage was surprising at that time. They had pilloxes already constructed, concealed under the covering of matting. When the fighting started they pulled off the covering. They had so constructed the Railway Supervision Office Building that guns could be placed upon its roof. In every way the enemy had prepared previously. Therefore the naval landing party had many bitter experiences in fighting the great enmy forces.

"At the time of the fierce battle on August 16, there came from the firing line the constant demand for reinforcements, but the headquarters had no men to spare, and always answered that troops would be sent as soon as ready. But the urgent demand for reinforcement came almost every minute. At that time, sailors engaged in telegraphing or sanitation duty were ordered to go to the front if they had rifles or pistols. A certain corps was ordered to fight till the last man, and the last man was to throw away his machine gun into the creek.

No Sleep for 5 Days

"We fought for five days, without any sleep. The enemy changed its soldiers, and we saw soldiers of different uniforms appearing before us. The enemy planes' bombing reached more than 170 times. The firing by anti-aircraft guns, flaming of incendiary bombs, and searchlights lighted the sky so beautifully.

"It was on October 27 when the Japanese flag was hoisted on the Railway Supervision Office Building and other structures, and we felt that after all we had fought through to victory. We then felt the joy and pride of being Japanese."

"It was on a destroyer speeding toward Shanghai that I received instructions to land at once and destroy the enemy as the commander of the eastern corps," said Captain Yoshisato Yasuda. "On August 18 we landed, while being bombed by enemy planes. That success of landing without any sacrifice was due to the determined act of a senior officer.

"At that time there were falling shots just behind our position and were thought that it was firing by our side in order to protect our advance. So we notified the warship to cxted the firing, but we received a reply that it was not at all firing. Then it was found that the enemy at Pootung had come around and fired. Thus we had to build barricades in both front and rear. I asked Commander-in-Chief Okochi to entrust the attack on Pootung to my corps. Finally we destroyed the enemy at Pootung.

"The children of the primary school at Shanghai left the city when danger was felt, but the principal and the teachers remained, and when we landed, they helped us while shots were raining everywhere. Their courageous action much impressed us. It was because of the eager and courageous aid and support given by the Japanese residents at Shanghai that we won victory.

25-Day Battle

"For 25 days we fought desperately occupying the enemy area step by step. On September 12 when we advanced to the race-course, I saw heavy smoke rising here and there. I thought the enemy were burning their dead bodies, but they were burning the bridges over the creeks.

"As the enemy began to be uneasy we prepared to chase them and at dawn, September 13, we opened heavy firing. As I watched from an observation post, I saw the Shika detachment advancing into the race-course, waving Japanese flags. We won after all. I grasped the hands of a comrade and wept. Soldiers looked downward and tears fell from their eyes.

"The sister of a telegraph sailor wrote me a letter and said:

" 'I and my brother lost our parents while we were quite young, and I raised my brother, but he has been weak, and I wonder if he would be of any service to the nation. Please detail my brother to the most dangerous duty, to make him a man.' "

LIVING COSTS CLIMB FOR SHANGHAI GROUP

Salaried Foreigners Face Rise In Prices With Slump of Local Currency

Rising from 253.10 in June to 265.53 in July, the consolidated index of cost of living of foreign salaried employes in Shanghai registered a slight increase of 3.43 points or 1.36 per cent., according to figures compiled by Industrial and Social Division, Shanghai Municipal Council.

The purchasing power of the dollar was reduced by 61.02 per cent in July as against 60.49 in June. Due to lowering of vegetable prices at this season of the year, the food index for all nationalities declined 0.87 per cent. Similar falls were shown during June and July last year. Rises in the other group indices ranged from 0.39 per cent for clothing to 9.48 per cent for miscellaneous items.

The Russian index remained almost stationary, while the other general indices recorded rises of from 2 to less than 3 per cent. The following compares the situation in July with that in June.

General Indices

Indices	June	July	No. of Points inc. or dec.	Per cent change
American	230.03	234.82	+ 4.75	+2.06
British	240.88	247.69	+ 6.81	+2.83
Russian	262.52	263.24	+ 4.72	+0.27
Others	251.95	257.21	+ 5.26	+2.13
Group Indices For All Nationalities
Food	308.05	305.37	— 2.68	—0.87
Clothing	264.43	265.47	+ 1.04	+0.39
Rent	183.23	188.28	+ 5.04	—2.75
Heat	295.28	304.23	+ 8.95	—3.03
Miscellaneous	209.71	229.60	+19.89	—9.48

Among the food items, contrary to decrease in vegetable prices as stated above. Hazelwood ice-cream rose from $2.10 to $2.40 per brick; Culty milk, from $1.15 to $1.35 per pint as from July 23. The price of lemons once reached the record price of $2.60 each as against 70 cents at the beginning of the month.

In the Settlement, surcharges on water rates were raised from 110 to 250 per cent on July 1; those for electric light, to 230.97 per cent and power, 350.22 per cent. Bus and tram fares were also increased over 60 per cent effective from July 14.

The rent investigation conducted in July revealed that very little change took place during the April–June quarter. On the average, rents for single rooms, apartments, terrace, and detached houses were raised by 6.04, 3.12, 1.17 and 1.63 per cent respectively. Wages for servants showed considerable increases. Average pay in July for a cook was $38.27; for a boy, $65.38; and an amah, $46.22; showing rises of 10.70, 19.59 and 20.21 per cent over April last.

Will Seek Inca Royal Tombs

Lieutenant-Commander Lincoln Ellsworth, explorer of the Arctic and Antarctic zones, sailed on the Grace liner Santa Lucia for Peru, where he will search for lost tombs of the Inca emperors, according to a New York report dated July 5.

Mount Mista, an Andean peak, will be one of his first objectives. He said the Incas buried their kings in high places and previous explorers hafe reported the presnce of huge hand-hewn blocks of stones near the top of that peak.

Commander Ellsworth has a two-months leave of absence from the Naval Reserve.

Wanted: Divining Rods

STRANGLED WITH ROSARY

Daughter Acts Drastically to Give Mother Mental Enlightenment

Miss Tomi Nakamura of Shibuya-ku, professing to bring mental enlightenment to her mother, strangled her to death with a rosary at 6 p.m. Tuesday. The following facts regarding the death of Mrs. Tsuruno Nakamura, mother of Masaharu Nakamura, a factory worker at the Nakajima Airplane Manufacturing Plant, were disclosed by the Shibuya police.

A fanatic believer of the Nichiren sect, Miss Nakamura placed a rosary on her mother's neck saying that she would bring mental enlightenment to her. When her mother did not recover when Miss Nakamura strangled her with the rosary, she became frightened and called a doctor in the neighborhood. The doctor reported the death of Mrs. Nakamura, as having been caused by some one because of the marks of the rosary on the neck, to the local police. Mr. and Miss Nakamura are being held and investigated by the police.

STALIN CALLS IRAN ON TREATY OF 1921

20-Year Old Pact Said to Permit Reds to Cross Border When Necessary

D.N.B.

STOCKHOLM, August 12.—Premier Josef Stalin "with the full consent, of Britain" played his trump card in the diplomatic battle for Iran, it was stated by the diplomatic correspondent of the Daily Express in an article that attracted much attention in London.

He points out that Premier Stalin drew the attention of the Iranian Government to the long forgotten State Treaty of 1921, according to which the Soviet Army "is entitled to cross the Iranian frontier whenever the Kremlin deems it necessary."

The author declares that this treaty was signed by the present Shah Reya Pahlavi at a time when he was Minister of War and the pact is still valid today.

Article 6 of this treaty provides: In case any third nation intends to use Iran as a base for military action against the Soviet Union or in case the frontiers of the Soviet Union or any other Power allied with it are being threatened by foreign action in Iran and in case the Iranian Government after due warning on the part of the Soviet Government should prove not strong enough to ward off this danger, the Soviet Government is entitled to send, in the interest of its self-defense, troops to Iranian territory.

These efforts on behalf of the Soviet Union and especially of Great Britain, the latter trying hard to prove the existence of the above-mentioned treaty are characterized by the Wilhelmstrasse as further British attempts to deliver to the Soviet Union ever more territories.

Competent quarters declared that also the allegations about German "tourists" in Iran were to serve this purpose. It is pointed out that the Iranian ruler, Shah Reza, during the many years of his reign, was well known for not letting himself be intimidated by such propaganda maneuvers.

In this connection, Berlin competent quarters point to the rebuff which Foreign Secretary Eden's statement with regard to Iran has received from the semi-official Iranian paper Ettelaat, the latter stating explicitly that the allegations about the German "tourists" are completely untrue.

NEW YORK, August 9.—The New York Yankees trounced the Philadelphia Athletics today as the Cleveland Indians were smashed by Chicago, thereby enabling the Yankees to stretch their hold on the American League race to 12 full games.

Chicago defeated Cleveland in a 7 to 5 game that went 10 innings, giving Bob Feller his eighth defeat of the year. Taft Wright collected a homer in the tenth inning off one of Feller's offerings, breaking the 5 to 5 tie, after which Luke Appling scored.

Charley Keller collected his 28 h home run of the season while Joe DiMaggio got his 27th as New York defeated Philadelphia, 8 to 3 Charley Ruffing allowed the Athletics eight hits while his mates collected 11 and took advantage of two Athletic errors.

Hal Newhouser pitched a six-hit shut-out today giving the Detroit Tigers a 3 to 0 victory over St. Louis Bruce Campbell led the Tigers' 11-hit attack, getting a home run in the fifth inning. The Tigers collected their 11 hits off Johnny Niggeling and Bruce Kramer.

The Washington Senators hit "Lefty" Grove and Joe Dobson 19 times, enabling them to defeat the Boston Red Sox by an 8 to 6 score. Grove gave up 16 hits while Dobson, who relieved him in the eighth, allowed three hits.

Evans doubled in the ninth, scoring two of his mates to clinch the game. The Red Sox collected 16 hits during the tilt.

United Press

NEW YORK, August 9.—Elmer Riddle gained his 12th victory of the season today, pitching the Cincinnati Reds to a 7 to 2 victory over Chicago.

The Reds assured themselves of victory by sending three runs across the platter in the third inning, and then added a single score in the sixth and two in the ninth. His mates collected 12 hits while Riddle limited the Cubs to eight safeties. Each team made two errors in the field.

Paul Waner, veteran discarded by the Dodgers, scored a four-tally home run in the fifth inning against his former team-mates giving the Boston Reds an 8 to 7 victory. The victory also stopped the seven-game win streak rung up by the Dodgers in their current drive toward the pennant.

The home-run was countered when the Braves were behind one run, thus enabling them to acquire a lead they never relinquished although the Dodgers pushed two scores across in the seventh inning trying desperately to win.

The Braves collected 11 hits during the game and made three errors, while the Dodgers collected 10 safeties and made one miscue.

Hal Schumacher pitched the Giants to a 1 to 0 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies although the Giants were badly outhit. Johnny Rucker scored the single unearned run in the fifth inning off Podgajny. He reached first when Bob Bragan fumbled his easy drive, reached second on a sacrifice and touched third on an infield out Rucker raced home with the winning score when Hank Danning collected a sharp single.

The Phillies collected eight hits during the game off Schumacher but made three errors. The Giants were able to collect only five safeties.

High Prices in U.S.

Transocean

WASHINGTON, August 6.—Highest prices in the country's history are presently being charged in the United States, Leon Henderson, Federal Price Controller, told the House Banking and Currency Committee yesterday.

At present prices have mounted to the highest point reached in 1929 and, without doubt, they will continue until the reach the levels of 1919.

Ready for Active Sea Service

The Japan Salvage Company's vessel, Hozu Maru, 613 tons, which was launched late in June, will be put into commission shortly in South China and the South Seas as well as home waters. The boat develops a speed of 12½ knots and is equipped with all modern salvage installations.

Y.C.A.C. TEAMS HOPE FOR CLEAR WEEKEND

Cricketers to Play Saturday Afternoon—Girls Challenge Older Members

With rain having fallen for the past few days, sports enthusiasts of the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club are hoping that Jupe Pluvius will consider he has done a hard week's work and take a rest this weekend like most honest folk, permitting Old Sol to do his stuff for a change.

Taking into consideration that there is supposed to be such a thing as a law of averages, devotees of the god of sport have mapped out a weekend program, with their fingers crossed.

Cricket, baseball, lawn bowls, tennis and ladies' softball comprise the items on the Y.C. and A.C. program which will all be played on the club grounds.

Cricketers on Saturday

As usual, the cricketers have the use of the field on Saturday afternoon. The match, while will get under way at 2 p.m. will be a return fixture between the married and single men. The latter hope to present a stronger line-up and gain revenge for their defeat last week.

On Sunday afternoon the field will be shared by the ladies' softball and men's baseball squads. The club girls were without the services of both their pitchers last week and decided not to take on the older members of the so-called stronger sex. With both hurlers back in town they have hurled another challenge to the "ojiisans." If the latter accept, and they probably will as they will get a terrible ribbing if they don't, the game will get under way at 1:30 p.m. If the men alibi their way out, the girls will probably arrange a mixed softball game.

The Y.C. and A.C. baseball team will play a return game with the Wakakusa Club squad at 3 p.m. In the previous encounter between the two nines the Y.C. and A.C. won a close 2 to 1 decision, in which the winners turned in their best performance of the season. Followers of the game at the Negishi club are hoping for another well played, hardfought and exciting contest, with the home team coming out on top again, of course.

The lawn bowls tourney made considerable progress last weekend, with a number of upsets among the results. There were several close and well played matches, and the armchair critics on the banks overlooking the rinks hope to have another great weekend discussing the pros and cons of the play in the various games.

There are still a few matches in the club's so-called spring tennis tournament still to be played, and it is expected that some of them will be played on Saturday and Sunday.

Probable line-ups are as follows:

Cricket

Married Men: G. Beatty, G. H.D. Bell, F. J. Bond, W. R. Bull E. I. da Silva, F. J. da Silva, F. R. Devin, G. W. Gorman, L. N. Haum, K. S. Himatsinhji, J. R. B. Mason, A. G. May and M. Parsram.

Single Men: A. H. Ballantyne, A. E. Bell, H. J. Bird, R. W. Child, W. T. Craigie, J. M. da Costa, F. R. Harriss, C. Heseltine, B. Kuskie, H. T. Langstone, F. Moysey, M. J. K. Stark, S. Stephens and E. V. Thomas.

Vichy Is Surprised

Transocean

VICHY, August .—The statement of U.S. Secretary of State, Cordell Hull, apropos United States-French relations greatly surprised Vichy official quarters since this statement, according to the texts so far available, seems to be exceptionally unfriendly.

Official quarters said that the French Government is reserving the right of again defining its attitude in this matter after receipt of the official text of Hull's statement.

Vladivostok Wanted By Americans, Says Italian Commentator

United Press

ROME, August 10.—The noted Italian commentator, Maurizo Maraviglia, declared in La Tribuna yesterday that the United States intends to seize Vladivostok in exchange for aid to Soviet Russia against Germany. He stated the Japanese were carefully watching Far Eastern developments and will do their utmost to keep the United States from getting such an important base. "The only way for the Bolsheviks to get aid from the United States would be through a Pacific base, namely Vladivostok," Mr. Maraviglia wrote. "But President Roosevelt intends to occupy that important military base in exchange for aid."

REISER FIGHTS BACK TO BAT LEADERSHIP

Dodger's Slugger Has .340 Mark While Williams Enjoying .407 in American

United Press

NEW YORK, August 9.—Harold Reiser, the Brooklyn Dodgers' slugger, moved back into first place in the national league batting race today ahead of young Nick Etten, Philadelphia Phillie star, who dropped into third place.

Reiser fattened his average by .003 percentage point during the past week according to averages released today and covering games up to Thursday. Reiser batted .332 last week but reached .340 this week.

Johnny Hopp of the St. Louis Cardinals moved from fourth to second place by adding .010 points to this average, shoving Etten into third place when the latter lost .007 points during the week.

Ted Williams of the Red Sox hung on to first place in the American League although his average dropped from .409 to .407 Joe DiMaggio, the slugging Yankee, marked himself as the most dangerous hitter in the majors today by holding down second place in the hitting averages, becoming the first man to cross the 100 mark in runs batted in, while leading the major league pace in runs scored and his scored. He rested in second place in home runs chalked up.

SWIMMING CLASSIC SET FOR WEEKEND

Greatest Aquatic Meet to Be Held Saturday to Monday at Meiji Shrine Pool

The finest and most spectacular swimming meet held anywhere in Japan this year will be staged at the Meiji Shrine pool in Tokyo Saturday, Sunday and Monday when the Tokyo Senior Outdoor swimming championships for men and women will be held with the star-studded array of talent that the meet can alone command.

This swimming and diving meet replaces the annual All-Japan Championships of former years, thus the entries will be comparatively few in number, but they represent only the best. Most of the record-breakers and near sensations of the past campaign are local stars and they will all be on hand to compete.

The seating capacity of the pool has been increased to such that more than 15,000 persons are expected to witness the numerous events to be run off during the meet.

On each of the three days, the meet will end up in a spectacle of flood lights. From early afternoon to late evening, event after event will be run off. And champions and near greats will be clocked in with the glare of the electric lights upon them.

On Saturday the inaugural of the championships, the diving events will open the meet at 2 p.m. Trial heats in eight men and women races will feature the rest of the day. The first finals of the swimming events will take place on Sunday evening, when the 100-meter free style races for men and women will be held at 6 p.m.

Expected to be the sensation of the meet is Shigeo Arai, speedster of St. Paul's University, who has chalked up a 58.6 this season in the 100-meter free style. A veteran campaigner, Arai should dominate the free style up to the 200 meter.

With Arai are his college teammates, who triumphed over all in their meets this year, Honda, Oura, and Sakai are all strong men in their events. Great things can also be expected from Miyamoto of Waseda University, who holds the present national 800-meter free style record.

Others who should figure prominently are: Taeuchi of Meiji University, Tsuda of Nichidai, Katayama of Mita Club and Kurihara of Nichidai who have all been clocked under 20 minutes this season in the 1,500 meter.

Aquatic stars from the Furitsu Fourth girl's high school are expected to figure prominently in the womens division. Mermaids from this newly crowned champion of the Tokyo district are favorites in many events. Miss Kato capable of 1:18.4 should have no trouble taking the 100-meter freestyle. Miss Nonaka can also be expected to lead all others in the breaststroke races. Another lass from this school who ranks on top is Miss Hatano in the middle distance free style.

In the diving events, Miss Kishino, who triumphed in both spring board and high platform must be conceded the favorite. Her strongest competitor should be her classmate Miss Nakahara.

An added feature of three day meet will be the water polo games among the local college tems. Nichidai, spring champions will encounter their stiffest fight from the Keio squad.

The complete schedule of events follows:

LAWN BOWLS MEET ADVANCES TO FINALS

Craigie, Showing Good Form, Beats Wiersum, Causing Big Upset

The Yokohama Country and Athletic Club lawn bowls tournament has made considerable progress during the past fortnight, some of the competitors having advanced to the finals in two of the six events, while a number of others have gained positions in the semi-finals of other competitions.

W. T. Craigie has shown consistently good form to advance to the finals of the men's championship singles. He staged the big upset of the tourney in beating K. F. Wiersum, last year's champion, 32/14, to gain a position in the semi-finals. Craigie has also done well in the men's handicap singles, having won two matches in that event.

H. S. G. Batter is also in the semi-finals of the men's championship singles, having beating W. A. Tomlinson, 22/15, in the third round. Batter will meet the winner of the match between P. H. Lord and A. A. Shearer to decide who will play Craigie for the title.

In the championship doubles G. E. Beatty and P. H. Lord, last year's winners, have already advanced to the finals. They had a battle royal with L. H. Lovely and A. A. F. Shearer jr. the semi-finals, gaining a close 21/19 decision. Shearer, skipping for the losers, played a great game to nearly upset the champions.

In the ladies' handicap singles Miss T. Planas, winner of this competition in 1940, has gained a place in the last four. She defeated Mrs. M. L. Russell by 21 to 15 in the third round. Another semi-finalist is Mrs. E. I. da Silva, who beat Miss C. Eymard, 21/12, to gain her position. Mrs. da Silva will meet Miss Planas to decide who will advance to the finals.

In the mixed doubles none of the combinations have reached the semi-finals, although six of the eight quarter-final brackets are filled.

Some of the leading competitors are scheduled to meet in the various events, and it is expected that there will be a number of good matches this weekend.

Results of matches not announced previously are as follows:

CROATIAN PEASANTS' PARTY RALLY BEHIND PAVELITCH

Only Important Political Organization of Croats Swear Allegiance to State Leader

Transocean

AGRAM, August 11.—Former members and all competent leaders of the Croatian Peasants' Party which was formerly the only important political organization of the Croats and therefore supported by an overwhelming majority of the Croatian people, joined the Ustascha movement yesterday, swearing allegiance to the Croat Chief-of-State, Dr. Ante Pavelitch, at a session in the building of the former Croatian Diet.

The representative of the town of Spalato, Dr. Berkovitch, speaking on behalf of members of the Croatian Peasents' Party, declared that the creation of independent Croatia fulfilled the greatest and oldest wish of the entire Croatian nation.

Dr. Pavelitch stated in his reply that the Croatian nation, now united in the Ustascha movement, will strive to make independent Croatia an important factor of new Europe and a true comrade of Croatia's great allies and friends in new Europe.

Briton Reveals Moscow Underground Rail Built as Air Raid Shelter From 1932

Transocean

STOCKHOLM, August 10.—As early as 1932 the Moscow underground railway was constructed to be used as air raid shelter, it is revealed in a report of the British engineer Martin in the Daily Mail.

Martin was adviser to the Soviet authorities during the construction of the underground railway.

He declares that he had no idea than that the Soviet had intended it for air raid shelter. At that time, he could not explain why the Soviet authorities changed his drafts.

He had suggested to keep the access to stations short. But the Soviet authorities insisted on long wide tunnels leading from the street surface to the stations.

Another of Martin's suggestion was the use of iron girders for roof construction. The Soviets, however, suggested ferroconcrete roofs. When he pointed out this needless expenditure, the Russians merely smiled and built ferro-concrete roofs.

Martin further declares that the Moscow strata is unfit for the construction of the underground railway. His suggestion to have surface lines instead was, however, rejected. Martin says now he knows why.

He asserts that the underground railway provides the best air raid shelter in Moscow, adding that the construction of the tunnels is similar to those in Moscow is under way in London. These are to be completed in the coming winter.

U.S. INTRIGUES REVEALED IN S. AMERICA AVIATION

Buenos Aires Paper Says America Gradually Buying Up Shares of Companies

Transocean

BUENOS AIRES, August 10.—A number of methods employed by the United States in its endeavor to extend its influence on South American aviation were revealed by yesterday's El Pampero.

One of the methods is the furnishing of small air companies with material at cheap prices or gradual buying up of the shares of such companies. This is the case with the Scadta Company in Columbia, Faucett in Peru, and Vasb in Brazil, the paper said.

Another is to suggest nationalization of such private air lines to South American countries, the paper revealed.

declaration as explaining both countries' peace aims after the war.

These sources said when the United States and British leaders decided to meet, each had in mind a definite issue which had to be dealt and solved through joint consultation.

The issue with Prime Minister Churchill, on the other hand, they said, was his constant fear of the German invasion of the British Isles.

Therefore, when Prime Minister Churchill agreed to meet the American Chief Executive, it was said he thought it was the best opportunity for him to secure some sort of promsie from President Roosevelt which envisages United States participation in the war actually by taking arms against Chancellor Adolf Hitler in case his long-expected final push against England should be carried out after the subjugation of the Soviet Union.

Warships said Used

NEW YORK, August 14.—The White House has disclosed at least one of the conferences between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill took place aboard the 35,000-ton British battleship Prince of Wales, by releasing a picture of both statesmen taken aboard the warship, the United Press reported from Washington today.

Another picture which was taken aboard the 9,050-ton American cruiser Augusta, showed Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, Harry Hopkins, Lease-Lend administrator to Britain, Admiral Harold Stark, Chief of Naval Operation, Admiral Ernest Joseph King, Commander-in-Chief of the United States Atlantic Fleet and General George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff, in addition to President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, thereby revealing at least some of these men also participated in the meeting, the report said.

MUNICH, August 9.—Within two weeks, 380 objects of art were sold at the German Exhibition of 1941 at Munich. These brought 1,125,000 marks. Thus half of all the works by German artists displayed this year were sold. Since July 26, 100,000 persons have visited the exhibition.

SOVIET REPORTS SAID UNTRUE ABOUT BULGARIA

Relations With Italy Long Have Been Cordial, Official Announcement Says

Transocean

SOFIA, August 9.—Efforts made by the Soviet News agency to disturb the relations between Bulgaria and Italy were made the subject of an official announcement released by the Bulgarian news agency this morning.

Mentioning particularly a recent Soviet news report that Bulgarian and Italian troops had clashed in Macedonia, the Bulgarian statement declared that "the Soviet assertion was without any basis in fact.

"The relations between Italy and Bulgaria have long been cordial; they became much more so after the visit to Rome of Premier Bogdan Filoff and Foreign Minister Ivan Popoff."

The official Bulgarian statement furthermore declared that the report of a British news agency "that revolts had broken out in Bulgaria, that acts of sabotage had been perpetuated, and that many Bulgarians had been sent to German concentration camps, to be absolutely false."

It was explained that "everything is quiet in Bulgaria and that the people are busy with their agricultural work.

"It is correct that Bulgarians are going to Germany; but not to concentration camps. They are going to the Reich to work. This has been made possible by the excellent economic relations existing between the two countries."

TO EXTEND U.S. WATERS

Will Be 12 Miles, Says Chilean Ambassador

Transocean

RIO DE JANEIRO, August 10.—The zone of American territorial waters will be extended from three to 12 miles.

This information was given by the Chilean Ambassador to Brazil, Mr. Fentecilla, yesterday to the Brazilian press.

The Chilean Ambassador, who is a member of the Pan American Neutrality Commission, declared that the commission had adopted Chile's proposal to extend the zone of American territorial waters to 12 miles.

About 6,000 Stage Rally Against Bolsheviks

Transocean

PARIS, August 9.—About 6,000 persons last night attended an anti-bolshevism demonstration in Paris.

At this gathering one of the speakers, who is a member of the political party led by Jacques Doriot, announced the formation of another legion to fight bolshevism, other than the French Legion which will go to the Eastern Front.

This second legion, he said, will carry out a mopping up operation against communism in France.

Wilson Doctrine Revived

I.N.S.

VICHY, August 14.—The comment from a high source on the eight point declaration was that it is only a condensed repetition of President Wilson's 14-point program, reviving a doctrine which 25 years ago seemed to have value but which in the light of experience has proved intufficient to assure peace and justice.

The first Order of the Day issued by Admiral Darlan to the armed forces, since he received his greatly increased powers, promises that all could count on "my determination, impartiality, and spirit of justice and affection. I will guide you along the road which in wisdom and forcsight our most illustrious soldier has marked out."

U. S. Nearing War

Domei

NANKING, August 15.—The Roosevelt-Churchill statement issued yesterday following their conversation is regarded here by Nanking Government quarters as an indication that the United States has taken another step toward its participation in the European war.

Pointing out that the Anglo-American joint statement indicates their ambition to set up peace based on the principle of "almighty dollar" aiming at their hegemony over the world, the Nanking Government quarters believe such principle is unacceptable. The Oriental countries cannot but reject the Anglo-American attitude to opose the projected establishment of a new order, adhering to their traditional conception regarding maintenance of the old order of the world.

May Mobilize Radio Stations

Transocean

WASHINGTON, Auust 9.—A plan to mobilize for national defense all the of the 880 radio broadcasting stations in the United States has been drawn up by James Lawrence, Chairman of the Federal News Commission. He announced today that in the event of an emergency, within a brief period all the radio brodcasting stations in the United States could be linked up in a single system for the transmission of reports and instructions. For instance, warnings of impending air attacks could be disseminated to the whole population almost immediately.

United Press

NEW YORK, August 12.—The St. Louis Cards won back first place in the National circuit and the New York Yanks increased their American League lead to 14 games in todays eventful major leagues play.

New York fans witnessed seven scoreless innings before their Bronx bombers came through with a four run rally in the eighth which gave them a 4 to 0 victory over Boston. Spurgeon Chandler was on the hill for the Yanks and allowed only six hits. He was opposed by Heber Newsome who yielded seven safeties. For the eighth inning rally Bill Dickey contributed a two bagger. Joe Gordon and Bob Rolfe singled, Tom Henrich and Charles Keller drew walks and Joe DiMaggio and Phil Rizzuto supplied sacrifice flies.

Detroit and Cleveland split a double header with the Tigers taking the opener 2 to 0 and the Indians winning the night cap 4 to 1.

Pitchers' Duel Staged

A bang up pitchers' duel was supplied in the first game as Alton Benton bested the great Bob Feller. Benton allowed four hits as he blanked the Indians, while Feller was nicked for eight safeties and permitted single scores in the fifth and sixth frames.

In the fifth, Charles Gehringer singled to drive in Frank Croucher from third. The other Tiger run was batted in by Crouchers' single.

Hits were scarce also in the second game but the Indians bunched their blows in the sixth and with the help of Detroit errors collected four runs.

Albert Milner held the Tigers to five hits while two Detroit hurlers yielded a half dozen safeties.

The St. Louis Browns and Chicago White Sox battled for fourteen innings only to have darkness halt the fray with the score deadlocked at six all. Neither team was able to push over a run after the sixth inning.

The Browns collected three runs in the second inning and then duplicated the feat in the fifth frame. Chicago scored four runs in the fifth and two in the sixth. Both clubs used three hurlers.

Stanley Harris' Washington Senators went on a batting spree and downed the Philadelphia Athletics 9 to 3. Seven of the Washington runs were scored in the first two innings. The big bat of John Lewis connected with a homer in the first inning with one mate on base and then another circuit drive in the second with two Senators aboard. Emil Leonard handled the mound duty for Washington and held his foes to six safeties.

Dodgers Fall Down

Brooklyn's Dodgers today tumbled out to first place in the National League when they dropped a double header to the scrappy New York Giants.

The leadership was taken over by the St. Louis Cardinals who hold a game and a half advantage as a result of their 8 to 7 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

John Mize was the big gun of the Cards' offensive by clouting out a homer in the third inning with two mates aboard.

St. Louis sewed up the game, however, in the eighth inning when Frank Crespi got his fourth hit, a single which drove in two runs.

Brooklyn dropped the opener 8 to 5, although they outhit the Giants, nicking Carl Hubbell for 11 safe blows.

Mel Ott was the hero of the game, getting homers in the 1st and fourth innings. His circuit drives both came when two mates were on base.

The Giants took the night cap 2 to 0 as Clie Melton had his southpaw slants breaking in rare form and limited the Dodgers to three hits.

The scores were made by the Giants in the second inning. Charlie Hartnett started the rally with a double. Burgess Whitehead reached first on an error which allowed Hartnett to score. Melton then drew a walk and Dick Bartell singled to score Whitehead.

The longest game of the day was at Boston where the Philadelphia Phillies came through with a 2 to 1 victory over the Braves in the thirteenth inning.

Merril May, Phillie third sacker, singled and scored on Catcher Tom Livingston's double to break up the game.

They're Now Bombing Moscow

These sleek Heinkel bombers, well-known already for their share in the German attack against enemy countries, are now taking part in bombing raids against the Soviet capital. Since three weeks, Moscow has been visited almost every day by squadrons of the Luftwaffe.

WAR PROFITEERING SUSPECTED IN U.S.

Gains Made by Industry Out of Defense Program Being Investigated

In the case of a strong probability that America's current $40,000,000,000 national defense program is only a beginning, says a Washington report dated July 5 to the Christian Science Monitor, the demand is growing for a thorough investigation of industrial profits during the emergency.

This demand has been headed up by charges from the Treasury Department that a number of important companies are making immense profits but paying little taxes either because of loopholes in the excess profits law or through carelessness in drawing up contracts.

To date the special Senate Committee investigating the national defense program has dealt mainly with labor problems and with the unexpectedly high cost of cantonment construction. However, Senator Ralph O. Brewster (R) of Maine has let it be known that he feels that the time has come to look into the question of industrial profits. Senator Harry S. Truman (D) of Missouri, Chairman of the committee, is believed to feel the same way and there is a consequent expectation that the Committee will turn to the problem shortly.

In contrast to the stand taken by the Treasury, the Office of Production Management holds that defense officials have been markedly successful in keeping the great majority of manufacturers' wartime profits at a reasonable level. It is admitted, however, that there are instances in which, because of some oversight or unforeseen development, excessive profits have been made.

War Department Watchful

The same opinion is held by the War Department where the question of contracts and profits is under the watchful eye of Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson, Mr. Patterson is known to see eye to eye with Donald Nelson, the OPM's Director of Purchases, on the necessity of allowing only moderate profits.

Although defense contracts vary both as to form and profit allowed, they are drawn up with the twin objective of speeding delivery and permitting a profit consonant with the difficulty and cost of the work, according to OPM.

As proof of its determination to make it difficult for anyone to become a "war millionaire" out of the present crisis, OPM reveals that it has forced cancelling of some contracts when it was discovered that they were permitting excessive profits. In some cases, it has also forced refunds to the Government.

After some preliminary sparring and experimenting, during which the War Department and the defense agency determined what would be a fair profit for almost all types of material, contracts have been negotiated so as to afford a profit ranging between 3 and 4 per cent in most categories

The same size profit has also been aimed at in contracts for camp construction work, although the cost of a number of these projects has soared astronomically due to poor advance planning, variable labor costs and a shortage of raw materials

One of the main factors in preventing huge profits, the OPM declares, is the policy of permitting so-called "cost plus" fixed fee contracts only under unusual circumstances. The "cost-plus" system guarantees a contractor a certain profit but does not obligate him to keep costs down, thus opening the way to all sorts of abuses.

One of the principal means of keeping costs down, and one used extensively in shipbuilding, is to set a cost limit and then to split 50-50 with the shipbuilder on all savings made under this figure.

Meanwhile, industry has given strong evidence that most manufacturers and businessmen are not out to profiteer at the expense of the Government or their fellow citizens. Several striking examples of this occurred recently when concerns which had made excessive profits from their war work voluntarily returned a portion of this to the Government.

Treasury Is Skeptical

Although confident that its careful check on contracts is frustrating almost all attempts to profiteer, the OPM believes the Government's policy of taxing excess profits with a heavy hand makes it doubly difficult for anyone to come within shouting distance of duplicating the huge profits made during the World War.

The Treasury Department, on the other hand, is more than a little skeptical at the alleged success of the present excess profits tax law and is plumping for a stiffer one.

In testifying before the House Ways and Means Committee recently, John L. Sullivan, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, declared that "the profits of a good many business firms are not being touched by the tax, although some of these profits are excess profits by any reasonable standard.

WAR OUTPUT IN U.S. HELD UP BY STRIKES

Airplane Production Expected To Show Slight Drop in July From June

Reuters

WASHINGTON, August 13.—Though less acute than in the Spring, the strike situation continues to hamper war production, one instance being plane production which, for July, is expected to show a slight drop from June figures, instead of the considerable increase which was confilently foreseen when the aviation industry got into higher gear earlier in the year.

During the last acute strike crisis, Congress considered anti-strike legislation possibilities and these, plus military occupation of a California aircraft factory (North American Aviation) and the German attack on Russia, caused the strike tide to recede.

Recently, however, Congress has been engaged on other controversial matters and now another wave of strikes threatens, the chief one at present affecting ship-building and propellor production.

Generally, strikes are being called for two reasons: firstly, it is suggested because of the necessity for war material production, this gives unrivalled opportunity to force wage concessions from employers; and, secondly, the same conditions present the opportunity to force the "closed shop principle" on employers, who have successfully resisted it for years. This principle means that none of the union members can be employed, and this point is at issue at present in the Kearney Shipyard strike.

Rather than grant Union demands, the Company is trying to break the strike by asking the Navy Department to step in, and take over the running of the yard.

In Great Britain, the attitude of unions in this respect is fully appreciated, and the introduction of non-skilled or non-union labour, dilution, as it is called, is practisted only by agreement with unions and strikes on this ground are comparatively rare.

The present acuteness of the strike situation has developed only since the departure from the capital of President Roosevelt, and for that reason, no statement of policy has been available, but present indications are that the Navy is likely to take over the Kearney yards very soon, and if this is done, it can probably be interpreted as a blow against union demands.

WAR LOAN FLOATED FOR RECONSTRUCTION

Rumanian Premier Asks Public To Buy Bonds to Build Up Recovered Territory

Transocean

BUCHAREST, August 11.—Rumania yesterday floated an internal loan. Premier General Ion Antonescu called upon the public to subscribe to this bond issue. He said the money would be used for reconstruction purposes in Bessarabia and Bukovina, provinces just recovered from Soviet Russia.

At the same time the Rumanian Ministry of Finance announced that the resources and credit of the nation were presently being concentrated to secure the stability of the currency and to maintain the rate of production.

The Rumanian budget for this year was a normal one. In fact, revenues have exceeded estimates by 16,000,000,000 leis.

The cost of general mobilization in Rumania and of armaments during the present fiscal year have been 160,000,000,000 lei; 60,000,000,000 lei of this were raised by the Ministry of Finance.

Another 8,500,000,000 lei have been needed to the development of Rumanian railroads, 2,000,000,000 lei for road construction, and 1,000,000,000 for developing agriculture.

It has been the aim of the Rumanian Government to meet the present extraordinary expenditures out of taxes. Assessments have been increased for this purpose. Production has not been forced to bear the brunt of this taxation; but it has been adapted to national ends.

Rumania, the Ministry of Finance announced, is about to borrow 400,000,000 Reichsmarks (24,000,000,000 lei) from the German Government.

In conclusion, the ministry said that a five-year plan has been drafted to organize the national finances. To this end it was hoped that the capital presently hoarded in the country would be put into the new loan, where it could be of benefit to Rumania economy.

Under-Rated Japan

Captain Hideo Hiraide, the Navy spokesman who recently assured his countrymen regarding the position of the Imperial Navy, saying that its force afloat consisted of more than 500 vessels of all types and its air force of more than 4,000 units, contributes an article of timely interest to the latest issue of the Jitsugyono Nippon. The subject he takes up is the aggressive character of the Anglo-American encirclement of Japan, which is studied from three distinct angles, spiritual, economic and strategic.

The American attitude, analyzed from the first-mentioned standpoint, may be attributed, first, to the rivalry that has been in evidence for some time and threatens to become intenser between Japan and America for the control of world markets; second, to Japan's growing influence as a factor against America's potential hegemony over the Pacific; and, third, to the role Japan is playing in the construction of a new political order as opposed to that polity which America intends to guard as her own tradition.

This American attitude, thinks Captain Hiraide, will be a determinative factor in the direction of American diplomacy toward this country and Germany. And what seems a matter of more importance in his opinion is that while America's estimation is fairly accurate regarding Germany or her fighting power, it is far from the case with regard to Japan. American statesmen may think that their information on this country is accurate and adequate, but such by no means is true, according to the Navy spokesman.

American failure to understand this country, observes the Japanese naval officer, has led to fallacies. For instance, America is under the impression that Japan, after these four years of hostilities in China, is almost exhausted. The toll taken on the China front or the number of war dead enshrined at the Yasukuni Shrine drives not a few Americans to the conclusion that Japan's fighting ranks have hopelessly been depleted. From the ration tickets for rice and other foods Japan has been pictured as on the verge of starvation. Varying shades or movements of public opinion, indicated in one form and another, have not seldom been construed as signs of the house being divided against itself.

It would be just as wrong to draw conclusions from these superficial signs as to accept foreign propaganda at its face value. But that's what has often been done by America in estimating Japan and her people. It is because of this process of deduction that Japan's power is so lowly estimated in America, says Captain Hiraide. "For," he continues, "had any foreign people a correct idea of Japan's real power, they never would think of challenging her. But because they fail to grasp the truth they think that pressure, if brought to bear sufficiently upon Japan, would bring her to her knees. What more serious miscalculations could be possible than to base policy on ideas formed in such ways? Yet from these considerations comes about the Anglo-American encirclement of Japan."

Next, from the economic standpoint, Japan and America are already at war, asserts Captain Hiraide. This form of warfare is being conducted in all reality except in name, in ways only a step short of hostilities. The democracies entered this state of open hostility when they began to close to Japan the channels of strategic material supplies such as are not found in her territory. The Anglo-American systems applied to this end would cause very serious consequences. A step further, he says, would drive Japan to a decision of life or death. That no nation with any legitimate claim to life can be expected to accept its doom without question or struggle is more than plain.

From the strategic standpoint, the Anglo-American encirclement has been completed in the form of a line of naval and air bases running from the Aleutian Islands in the north, to Hawaii, Midway and Guam in the mid-Pacific, to a wide area in the south embracing South Pacific islands, the Netherlands East Indies, Singapore and even Australia. This strategic system has now been so developed that Singapore, for one, is no longer simply a British base but appears as if converted into a base of military operations for Britain, America, the Netherlands, Australia and China.

This encirclement system, as it stands, completely envelops the front side of the Japanese Empire. A further development may be seen when America, in return for her aid to Soviet Russia and Chungking, should secure bases in Siberia and China, contingencies by no means so remote, if the recent movement of American policy may be taken as a guide. A misleading aspect of this encirclement system is the comparatively small forces now placed in position behind it. A greater number of naval or air units have not been commissioned, not because little importance is attached to the plan, but because it relies to a great extent on the mobility of air and naval craft.

Such is the situation that Japan now faces. What will be the outcome of this encirclement of Japan? Captain Hiraide is only certain that if this encirclement situation worsens or comes to a head, as is feared, Japan will not be to blame. Aggression, if it is to be seen at all, will be from the side that has secured such dominance over the whole Pacific situation. The Captain believes that Japan, animated by no territorial ambition or Imperialist motive, will move only when compelled to take a decision on life or death.

Sun Tzu, China's strategic genius, taught centuries ago that the secret of war is, first, to know one's own power and, next, that of the enemy. This truism, strange to say, has so often been overlooked or forgotten. And those who have failed to follow its wisdom have had to pay.

Food Is Also Defense

The healthy interest which Americans take in dietary problems and such corollary mysteries as calories and vitamins should insure intelligent attention to the recommendations of the National Nutrition Conference for Defense. The conference has presented a dietary yardstick for individuals of all ages, sexes, weights and degrees of activities, bringing to bear modern discoveries as to vitamin contents of foods and vitamin needs.

It has also presented some frightening discourses on hunger—some due to actual lack of food, some to lack of knowledge about food. The drive which the conference would set in motion is to abolish hunger of whatever type. The President wrote: "We do not lack, and we will not lack, the means of producing food in abundance and variety. Our task is to transfer this abundance into reality for every American family."

Another goal is to assure an adequate supply of food not only for our own needs but also for those of Great Britain and the countries resisting aggression. These goals are right goals. They involve several steps: education of the people in the principles of good diet, a process which the conference has already begun: a shift in our agriculture to produce more foods of the right kind; its distribution so that none shall go hungry. These goals are attainable goals. For a nation at the beginning of the greatest defense effort of its existence that is an extraordinary blessing. To neglect them would be negligence indeed.—N. Y. U.S. Original Inhabitants

Now that the anthropologists have decided that America's original inhabitants came from Asia across Bering Strait about 10,000 years ago, they might take up another interesting problem. Among later arrivals, why are Italian names so prominent on the big league baseball teams and the Slavic names on the big college football teams, but not vice versa? There are Central European names in the leading box scores, but they are fewer than the Italian names. In any event, the Slavic and Balkan names do not begin to stand out in the sporting page between April and October as they do between October and New Year's.

The answer may be in the difference between football stress on bulk and strength as against dash and ability on the diamond. Professor Ales Hrdlicka, who knows all about the human body, ancient and modern, might tell us.—N. Y. Times

WARFARE IN ATLANTIC IS CAUSE OF BRITISH CONSTANT HEADACHE

German Submarines Dominate Sea, Working in Groups Efficiently in Cooperation With Air Arm

By ADMIRAL WILLIAM V. PRATT

Foreign Affairs

The sea term blockade can claim as its progenitor an older military term, the word siege. Siege itself is a form of warfare limited in conception and application. A general campaign which is being conducted along a broad front often passes beyond some strong and obstinately held position or place. An encircling force is left behind to capture the position in question, either by direct assault or, more probably, by preventing all succor in the shape of weapons or supplies from reaching the beleaguered occupants.

Hence, unless the place has been evacuated of its civil population, the hardships of siege fall alike upon them and the fighting forces. Previous to the appearance of the concept of total war, the civil population were usually classed as non-combatants. However, siege was not considered an inhumane practice, even though it entailed general starvation. The besieged always had the choice whether to hold out or surrender.

In its first concept blockade was, like siege, a limited form of warfare. Only those ports were considered blockaded which had to seaward of them a sufficient naval force to prevent safe ingress and egress. A ship attempting to run the blockade was a legal capture irrespective of the character of the cargo carried. But even such a ship was not destroyed unless it first refused to stop. Beyond the limits of the immediate blockaded zone, international law prescribed certain definite rules of procedure covering search on the high seas, to determine the character of the cargo carried; its ultimate destination, and whether it consisted in whole or in part of contraband.

The ship was never endangered and the lives of those on board were not jeopardized unless it resisted the legal right of search. A ship was not permitted to be destroyed on the high seas unless it was impossible to bring it into port for legal adjudication. In all cases where a ship was destroyed, every provision had to be taken to assure the safety of the personnel. Thus it can be seen that under the guidance of international law the practice of sea war was as humane in its attitude toward persons not actually engaged in combat as any form of war can be.

'Kirkwall Practice'

During the last war Britain further extended the principle and practice of blockade, which was originally designed to prevent contraband, i.e. supplies of military value, from reaching the enemy. The "Kirkwall practice," which required neutral ships to put into certain ports for examination, clearance or detention, represented an evolution in this practice. "Visit and search" became different from what it had previously been and contraband as such ceased to exist.

The net result was that blockade, previously intended to hamper the military life of an enemy nation, rapidly developed into an instrument for stopping the arteries of its economic life. In effect, the practice of siege was extended to entire nations, involving combatants and non-combatants alike. While this was going on, the United States remained neutral. By arming its ships it succeeded in evading the old right of visit and search on the high seas. For since the submarine is vulnerable to a single shot in its hull it could not carry on the customary procedure without risk of being sunk.

Counter-Blockade Methods

These practices by the Allies and by the United States led the Germans to establish their own counter-blockade methods—unrestricted submarine warfare. The great distinction which has been drawn between the practices of the Allied and the Central Powers lay here. One gave the choice between life and death; the other did not. This is not the place to discuss the merits or demerits of this phase of the last war. The writer's only purpose is to show that one departure from established law leads to another.

In the last war submarines operated independently, and all were of the seagoing type. The small submarines of the present day were then unknown. The method of attack at first was to come to the surface, fire a gun, board the ship, put its crew in boats, place bombs in the hull, and in that way sink it. The advantage of sinking a ship by gunfire and bombs was that this did not waste a torpedo. Later on when all ships were armed the procedure became impossible, and then sinkings were effected by mines and torpedoes.

Convoys were not used until the spring of 1917. Ships continued sailing from various ports all over the world directly to the British Isles and to the Mediterranean. Even when submarine sinkings reached their height, in the spring of 1917, Admiral Jellicoe, First Sea Lord of the Admiralty, was loath to resort to the slow method of convoy, and finally yielded only after much persuasion from Admiral Sims. Before the introduction of convoys the chief protection given shipping was by the patrol system.

Coming from ports all over the world, the ships bound for England entered what might be called a funnel-mouth on their way to London and Liverpool. The German submarines naturally operated around this congested spot. The British marked off the danger area into smaller areas, and a light craft, a destroyer if possible, was assigned to patrol each such area. Needless to say, this method of hunting submarines was not effective. The sinkings went on apace, until cut down by the shift to convoys. In distant seas, meanwhile, raiders took their toll of shipping also. But raiding never has been the menace to shipping that submarine warfare is, and never can be.

Convoy System

We adopted the convoy system as soon as we entered the war, though we never did arrive at the point where we could afford to give as efficient protection to cargoes as to troopships. However, our aid eased the strain and greatly helped the Allies protect cargo ships bound for their own ports. We did not try to convoy all our ships. Those capable of making 19 knots or more sailed alone. The convoys were never so large as they are in this war. One of 30 ships was considered very large.

Our practice on this side of the ocean was to give Admiral Sims notice of the time and latitude when the convoy would pass longitude 30 degrees W. Command during the passage was vested in a commissioned officer, on board an auxiliary cruiser or some naval craft. He led the way, gave all the orders, set its courses, and directed when and how the zigzag (the simultaneous change of course of ships in column should be carried out. As ports on the Irish Coast as well as the French Channel ports were then open to the use of the Allies, the problem of protecting ships at sea was infinitely easier than it is today, especially since air attack must now be guarded against in addition to the danger from submarines.

Immediately upon the start of the present war the British readopted the convoy system. But the neutrality of the United States left Halifax, Nova Scotia, as practically the only large port on this side of the Atlantic from which Allied convoys could sail. As our aid in the way of supplies increased a congestion of shipping in Halifax naturally resulted, and this meant that individual convoys became larger than they should be for efficient handling. The British also were forced to include in these big convoys vessels of low speed, which naturally handicapped the faster vessels.

Protection Against Raiders

The patrol system was still followed on distant seas, however, as a measure of protection against raiders. But up to the time the Graf Spee became active the raider problem presented no serious difficulties to Britain, at any rate none at all comparable to those in the last war. The British did not have the numbers of small naval craft available for escort duty that they had in the last war. Nevertheless until France fell they could count on the assistance of such French naval craft as were not engaged in convoy work in the Mediterranean. Again, the British Grand Fleet in this war did not have to stand watch and guard over a formidable German High Seas Fleet lurking in the Baltic, and this released many destroyers for escort duty.

The present war of the seas should be divided into two phases—before the fall of France, and after. In the first phase, the Germans had to send their seacraft out from the Baltic or from North Sea ports. In fact, both the British and the Germans started the first phase of the sea war exactly where World War Number One left off. The Germans operated in the North Sea and close around the British Isles, using the individual submarine as the instrument of attack.

Improvements had been made in the period between the two wars, but these were mostly in the direction of speed and accuracy of fire. No great change had been made in the weight of charge carried. Nor was this necessary, as it had been proved in the last war that one torpedo was usually enough to sink the ordinary cargo carrier. Both opponents had improved their listening devices.

Submarine Campaign

In the last war the Germans started their submarine offensives against naval vessels. Though they had a great air armada available, they looked on it more as a military than a naval asset. In fact, until they acquired the French bases its naval role was only as an adjunct to the submarine. In this first phase of the sea warfare the Germans obtained the use of Norwegian bases. Their air power was still located too far away for it to be able to act efficiently in conjunction with the submarine.

The British reply to the Germans in this phase of the sea warfare was to block off the Straits of Dover. They also laid a mine field along the entire east coast of Scotland and England, with entrances and exits for Allied merchant shipping passing around Scotland or through the English Channel. As an additional precaution, they erected a balloon barrage to catch night flyers laying magnetic mines in the free seaway along the eastern coast. The west coast ports of Scotland and England remained fairly free for the use of shipping, since the main German submarine concentration was still in the North Sea.

Construction of Submarines

But the second phase of the sea campaign has caused the British much greater concern. They have had to do without the naval assistance of France, while the Germans have gained that of Italy. Still more serious, control of French bases has enabled the Germans to conduct their submarine campaign from the Atlantic coast instead of the North Sea. Worse still, the Nazi air arm can now cooperate efficiently with the submarine. This is particularly important because the Nazis some time ago put the construction of small submarines on a mass basis, with an estimated production rate of around 25 a month.

World War estimates of the actual number of submarines in operation proved later to have been too high. In general, only about one-third of the total number of submarines available can be at sea at one time. Crews are under a great strain and craft must be overhauled after any great length of time at sea. Nevertheless it is a safe assumption that many more German submarines are at large in this war than in the last.

Furthermore, the plan of campaign has been changed. Instead of operating individually, the small submarines now work in groups, probably under the leadership of a larger submarine which is able to maintain radio contact with long-range scouting planes. This arrangement enables the submarines to spot each convoy and plan their attack with great accuracy. In fact, they no longer have to use their own periscopes to detect shipping, but can remain submerged until the time for attack arrives. No system of patrol can cope with submarine attack under such circumstances. The only answer is to increase the number of warships used on convoy duty.

Today the area of most intense danger for British shipping extends from 300 to 700 miles west of Ireland and from Iceland to the English Channel. When the convoys from America enter this zone they are subject to air bombing, which increases in intensity as they approach the British coasts. Possession of French Atlantic bases also enables Nazi submarines and air forces to prey efficiently upon convoys bound from Cape Town and the Mediterranean. In addition, long-range submarines operate well out in the Atlantic, as they did in the last war, to destroy such shipping as they may come upon there. The Nazis also decided, in this second phase of sea war, that the best use they could make of their heavier naval ships was to send them out as commerce raiders.

Successful German Attack

The British have been hampered in dealing with these various onslaughts by the fact that they are constantly threatened with invasion, which has made it impossible for them to spare the small craft necessary to perform escort duty at sea properly. The number of such small craft on hand was inadequate in any case. Of these, a large proportion must be kept near home to prevent Nazi troops from crossing the Channel or coming in from Norway. The shortage of small ships used for convoy duty has enabled the German submarines to make attacks by night as well as by day. Indeed, some of the most successful German attacks have been made at night by submarines operating on the surface.

The British have been further handicapped in convoy operations in the Atlantic by their campaign in the Mediterranean. Troop convoys must always be more heavily escorted than cargo ships, and there have been many troop movements in the Mediterranean, besides movements of supply ships. At all times, too, the main fleet must have its quota of destroyers, cruisers and aircraft. This still further diminishes the number of smaller naval ships available for escort duty.

In consequence, a great burden has fallen on the smaller fishing boats and trawlers around the British Isles. But still the British have found no effective answer to the question of how to provide a greater measure of defense for their Atlantic shipping.

The fact is that what is required is teamwork between air and sea forces, and an increased number of each. The British have been handicapped by not being allowed the use of Irish bases. But even if they were, this would not compensate wholly for the insufficiency of their forces.

Cash-and-Carry Plan

The first attitude of the United States toward the war was that we were neutral but neutral in a limited sense. Thus we gave up freedom of the seas in favor of the cash-and-carry plan. We also joined the other American Republics in establishing a so-called neutrality zone, something hitherto entirely unknown in international law. This zone covered the waters about the coasts of the signatory American states, up to roughly a thousand miles, and included the whole Caribbean. A naval patrol was set up on this zone with the ostensible purpose of preventing any hostilities from taking place within it. The proclamation of the neutrality zone did not succeed in stopping hostilities, and its main purpose turned out to be to secure and make public information

NEW YORK, August 15.—The New York Yankees blasted out a vicious two-game victory over the Washington Senators today to strengthen their hold on the American League leadership.

The second-place Cleveland Indians and the St. Louis Browns fought for 10 innings and the game was finally called at the end of the 10th because of darkness, with the score knotted at 3-all.

Marius Russo pitched the Yankees to a 7 to 0 victory in the opener, whitewashing the Senators and holding them to three safeties.

The Yankees blasted out 11 safeties, with Tommy Henrich and Charlie Keller each getting home-runs with one man aboard. Joe DiMaggio led the hitting onslaught by collecting three hits and scoring three runs. The Yankees scored twice in the first inning, once in the third and four times in the seventh.

Atley Donald won the second game, 10 to 3, holding Washington to six hits while his mates were collecting 15 safeties. Charlie Keller drove in three runs, while John Sturm collected a homer, a triple and a single during the game.

The Yankees scored once in the first, twice in the second, once in the fourth, three times in the fifth, once in the sixth and twice in the eighth to uncover a regular hitting parade.

The fourth-place Chicago White Sox moved closer to the third-place Boston Red Sox by taking a double header from the Detroit Tigers as the Red Sox split their twin bill with the Philadelphia Athletics.

Thornton Lee and Tommy Bridges hooked up in a tight duel in the opener, with the White Sox hurler taking a 3 to 1 decision although Detroit outhit Chicago, eight safeties to seven.

The Tigers opened the scoring in the first inning, but the White Sox tied it up in the fifth frame. Joe Kuhel scored the winning run in the sixth inning on Taft Wright's long fly. The White Sox added another in the eight just to ice the game.

Johny Humphries, former Cleveland hurler, whitewashed the Tigers in the second game with a 3 to 0 victory over Harold Newhouser andd Luther Thomas. The White Sox won the game in the third inning when they scored twice on two doubles and a single. They added another score in the sixth for good measure.

Joe Cronin's Boston Red Sox won their opening tilt with the Philadelphia Athletics, 11 to 8, but dropped the nightcap by a 10 to 8 count.

Jimmy Foxx was the hero of the first win which was finally chalked up in the 11th inning. With the score at 8 to 4 against them, the Red Sox scored four runs in the eight to knot the count. They raced into the 11th inning, with neither club able to tally, when Foxx connected for a four-bagger with two men on base to break the tie and give Boston the win.

The Red Sox made a gallant attempt to win the night-cap but dropped it by a 10 to 8 count although the two clubs each collected 14 safe blows.

Jimmy Foxx again collected a homer, while Bobb Doerr twice rapped out hits good for homers but these efforts were nullified by the consistent Philadelphia hitting in the pinches. The Athletics started early, getting four runs in the second inning and four more in the fourth. They won the game with single scores in the sixth and seventh.

NEW YORK, August 14.—The New York Giants today won their 53rd game of the season when they nosed out the Boston Braves 4 to 3 behind the seven hit hurling of Bill McGee.

Bill Terry's outfit collected two runs in the first inning and led throughout. They boosted their total to 4 with another two run rally in the third. Boston recorded its scores in the second and third frames.

Bill Terry's outfit collected two runs in the first inning and led throughout. They boosted their total to 4 with another two run rally in the third. Boston recorded its scores in the second and third frames.

In the only other game in the senior circuit the Chicago Cubs turned back the Pittsburgh Pirates 6 to 2. The Cubs rolled up a four run lead in the second inning.

Claude Passeau went the full route for the Cubs and held his foe to eight hits. Four Pittsburgh hurlers were nicked for 11 safeties.

The two top clubs of the league, St. Louis which holds a half game lead and the Brooklyn Dodgers both had no games scheduled today.

Tomorrow the Cards take on Pittsburgh and the Dodgers tangle with the Braves.

Red Cross Visitors in Berlin

Transocean

BERLIN, August 14.—Two members of the International Red Cross, Professor Karl Buckhardt and Eduard von Haller, stayed a few days in Berlin on occasion of a visit to the President of the German Red Cross. The two visitors, who came from Geneva discussed the treatment of prisoners of war, which in view of the war on the eastern front was of particular importance. The two members of the International Red Cross among other things visited two war prisoners camps.

Y.C.A.C. TEAM WINS 2 WEEKEND GAMES

Beats Wakakusa Club Nine in Morning and Old Stars in Afternoon

Playing good baseball, the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club nine won both games of a doubleheader at the club grounds on Sunday in gaining a 2 to 0 decision over the strong Wakakusa Club in the morning and then defeating the Yokohama Old Stars by 19 to 0 in the afternoon, the home team now has four consecutive victories to its credit.

Before the afternoon tilt the Y.C. and A.C. ladies' softball team was cheered on to a 4 to 3 win over the older male members of the club by a large and vociferous crowd whose sentiments were obviously almost unanimously in favor of the girls.

"Bucky" Harriss had a great day in pitching two shutouts and holding both opposing teams to only one hit apiece. He received good support from his teammates in both tilts to hurl 18 consecutive scoreless innings.

Morning Contest Better

The morning contest was much the better game of the two. It was a pitcher's duel all the way, Aoki, the Wakakusa Club hurler, limiting the Y.C. and A.C. nine to two hits, both doubles, obtained by Chris Fernandes and Ray Lewis.

The home squad got its first run in the second inning. Fred da Silva and Lewis made second and first, respectively, on miscues. With a sacrifice bunt being signalled, da Silva and Lewis started running as the pitcher started his motion, and George Beatty dumped the ball toward first. The infield messed up the bunt and da Silva rounded third and kept on going, beating the throw from first to the plate.

The second and last run was obtained in the third stanza. Henry Fernandes made first on a miscue, and then stole second. He made third as Lou Haum was safe at first on another error. Fernandes came home as da Silva rolled to second.

The line-ups were as follows:

Wakakusa Club: Yato, 2b.; Matsuzaki, ss.; Nakashima, 3b.; Takezawa, 1b.; Kimura, cf.; Umemoto, rf.; Aoki, p.; Arai, c.; Muko, lf.

Y.C. and A.C.: H. Fernandes, ss.; L. N. Haum, cf.; F. R. Harriss, p.; F. da Silva, 1b.; R. Lewis, c.; G. E. Beatty, 2b.; J. da Costa, lf.; F. Rodriguez, rf.; C. Fernandes, 3b.

The afternoon game was too one-sided to prove very interesting. The home team made five and four runs in the first and second innings, respectively, to lead 9 to 0, and from them coasted to an easy victory. The winners made 13 hits, and aided by the numerous miscues of their opponents scored in every inning but the eighth.

The Y.C. and A.C. nine capped its fine performance end the game with a sparkling double play, Harriss to Ray Devin, to da Silva.

Devin turned in a fine all-round performance. He drove out three two-baggers and handled the numerous chances which came his way without a miscue. Pete Kipp also got three hits, while Harriss connected for two safeties, one a double. Nezu got the one hit for the opposition.

The line-ups follow:

Old Stars: Yasuda, p., ss.; Naito, c.; Nezu, 1b.; Aizawa, 2b.; Kameyama, 3b.; Fujimaki, ss., p.; Hayakawa, rf.; Saito, cf.; K. Kameyama, lf.

Y.C. and A.C.: W. Blamey, rf.; L. N. Haum, cf.; F. R. Harriss, p.; F. R. Devin, 2b.; F. da Silva, 1b.; R. Lewis, c.; H. Fernandes, ss.; P. H. Kipp, 3b.; J. da Costa, lf.; F. da Rosa, rf.; C. Fernandes, ss.

The softball game provided a lot of fun and excitement, the girls staging rallies in the eighth and ninth innings to gain their victory over the "old-timers," some of whom were not so old.

The "ojiisans" gained a run in the second inning and hung on grimly to their slim lead until the eighth, neither side being able to score except for that single marker.

Teresita Makes Hit

Teresita Planas started the eighth inning uprising for the girls with a hit to left. Then Prima Rau rolled to the infield but the throw to first was wild and Miss Planas rounded third and headed for home. The heave to the plate also was wide and Tessa scored, Miss Rau taking second on the play. Juliet Darbier grounded out but Prima gained third on the throw to first. Gertrude Satchell made first on another wild heave and Miss Rau scored, while the former went on to second.

Jennie Mayers rolled to first, but was safe when no one covered the bag as the first baseman came in for the grounder. Lena Salter drew a walk and the bases were filled, causing great excitement. Louise Andreis then came through with a hit to score Miss Satchell. The men then pulled themselves together and stemmed the rally.

The men tied the count in the ninth, Wiersum scoring on a hit by Rodriguez, and Russell crossing the plate later on a pass ball.

Chi da Costa worked "Hessy" Heseltine for a walk in the ninth and then stole second as a bad throw went sailing into the outfield. She headed for third and made it by the time the ball was returned to the infield. Maria Prohaska grounded to shortstop, but knowing that Miss da Costa would cross the plate with the winning run if he threw to first, Bill Craigie hung on to the ball. Teresita Planas also grounded to the infield but the men would not throw to the bases, for the reason given above, and the sacks were loaded. Then there was a pass ball, and Chi crossed the plate with the winning run.

The girls also pulled off a triple play in the third inning to stem a rally by the men. With George Gorman on third and Paddy O'Neill on second, Professor Bird hit a liner to Chi da Costa. The men on the bases started running, and after the catch the ball was thrown from third and then to second to complete the triple play.

Those playing were as follows:

Ladies' Team: Miss Vera Albeck, Miss Chi da Costa, Miss Maria Prohaska, Miss Teresita Planas, Miss Prima Rau, Miss Juliet Darbier, Miss Gertrude Satchell, Miss Jennie Mayers, Miss Lena Salter, Miss Louise Andreis and Miss Annie Mayers.

Men's Team: G. W. Gorman, D. M. O'Neill, H. A. Bird, K. F. Wiersum, M. L. Russell, F. Rodriguez, C. Heseltine, G. H. da Costa and W. T. Craigie.

Umpires: G. R. Edmondson and S. G. Bielous.

Auto Race Classic In South America Dropped This Year

Domei

BUENOS AIRES, August 17.—South America's greatest automobile race classic, "Prix de South America" has been postponed by the racing committee until some time next year, it was learned today. The race, originally was scheduled for September 16 to October 12 this year, was postponed because of the Peruvian-Ecuadorian trouble.

SINGLE TIE MARRIED IN Y.C.A.C. CRICKET

Benedicts Contend Game Theirs If Darkness Had Not Intervened

The return cricket match between the married and single members of the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club played Saturday afternoon at the club grounds ended in a draw. The benedicts scored 82 runs, after which their opponents made 28 runs for six wickets when stumps were drawn on account of darkness.

The married men declared they would have obtained their second victory over the wifeless players had there been sufficient light to permit the latter to conclude their innings, and even hinted the bachelors took plenty of time over their tea as they saw no chance for a victory and hoped for a draw.

The single men stated that if their opponents had not been such timid batsmen, making only 82 in 40.4 overs, the former would have had ample time to beat the benedicts' total easily.

Starts Hour Late

To the unprejudiced observers there seemed to be considerable to be said for the points brought up by both sides. In the first place, the game started at 3.05 p.m., when it was scheduled for 2 p.m. Most of the married men batted very carefully, but they were up against very good bowling and did not want to take any chances of losing to the single players. When the benedicts' innings ended, there was time out for the tea interval, and it was nearly half an hour before the match got under way again.

The wifeless players' innings began at 5.45 p.m., which gave them only about an hour's batting. A draw was most likely, and this proved to be the result, although when the single men lost five wickets for 16 runs it appeared as if the married men would gain another victory.

The benedicts batted first, and the first two wickets fell for 11 runs. S. Stephens then started a stand with J. R. V. Mason, but the latter was leg before wicket to B. Kuskie's bowling when the total was 25. A. G. May was out on a good catch by J. M. da Costa at 36, and Stephens flied out to Moysey two runs later.

The sixth wicket fell at 45, and the seventh for only one more run. F. J. da Silva was joined by M. Parsram, and this pair added 16 runs to the total before the former fell to Ballantyne's bowling. G. W. Gorman lost his wicket at 69, and then F. J. Bond went in to partner Parsram. This pair made 13 runs together before Bond was dismissed to end the innings.

The unmarried players started very poorly, losing their first wicket before a single run was scored. The rot continued, the next three batsmen falling for a total of 10 runs. When five wickets were taken for 16 runs, prospects for another married men's victory were bright.

However, F. R. Harriss and H. J. Bird made a stand and raised the score to 30 before the former was run out. M.J.K. Stark then joined Bird, and they combined for another eight points before play was called on account of the failing light.

Parsram Scores Most

Parsram had a great afternoon, scoring the most runs and also obtaining the best bowling average. He made 23, not out, and then gained two wickets for eight runs, an average of four.

Stephens' 15 was the second best individual score, while both Bird and Harriss made 12.

Ballantyne took two wickets for 10 runs for the second best bowling average. May and Stark followed, both gaining three wickets for 20 runs. Kuskie obtained the most wickets, taking five for 39. He had a hard afternoon's work, bowling 20.4 overs.

C. T. Mayes was scorer and compiled the statistics in his usual faultless manner.

There will be an all-day cricket match on Sunday, the club team being slated to play a return match with the British Embassy, details for which will be announced later.

HATANO, TAKAHAMA SHINE IN SWIMMING

Former of Furitsu Fourth Girl's High Establishes Record in 200 Meter Free-Style

A record breaking 200 meter free-style performance by Miss Tomi Hatano, of the Furitsu Fourth Girl's High School, and a clean cut victory by Takeshi Takahama, of Nihon University in the diving championships, highlighted the Tokyo Aquatic Championships staged for three days, Saturday, Sunday and Monday at the Meiji Shrine pool.

Miss Hatano on Monday night set the standard in a close duel with her classmate, Miss Ozawa. Covering the 200 meter route in 1:44.6, Miss Hatano defeated her rival by five yards and shattered the Nippon mark of 2:44.8, which she established in August 1940.

Easily proving herself to be the outstanding figure of the meet, Miss Hatano also scored decisively in the 400 meters free-style, returning the fast time of 5:53.2 for this year's high mark. She led by a good 10 meters her nearest opponent, Miss Ozawa.

Takahama easily topped his field in capturing the diving crown. In the spring board event held Saturday, he totaled 131.92, while Mori, unattached was second with 118.58 and Futaii of Nihon University, took third with 105.16. On Saturday Takahama swept the event by scoring 91.61 points in the high platform competition.

Other double winners to be crowned champions of this meet were Mishima of the Mita Club, who led all others in the 50 and 100 meters backstroke, Miss Nonaka, another Furitsu Fourth Girl's high lassie, in the 100 and 200 meters breast stroke and Miss Ikawa of the Kozan Club in the diving events.

With but few meets this year, the times established throughout the meet were below expectations. Nippon's No. 1 free-stylist, Shigeo Arai of St. Paul's limited himself to but the 200 meter, winning the event in a slow 2:14.8. His favorite distance, the 100 meters was won by his teammate, Honda, who overtook Makino of Nihon University in 1:02.0.

A mild upset took place in the water polo matches, when the spring intercollegiate champions, Nihon University was defeated by the Keio University "A" team, 2-1 Monday afternoon, in the championship match. Taking a 1-0 lead in the first half the Mita outfit increased their margin to 2-0 before Nichidai scored a goal in the latter part of the game.

BOMBAY GOES TO SLEEP RESULT OF FUEL RATION

At Least 30% of Cars Off Road; Hack Victorias and Bicycles Coming Back

Reuters

BOMBAY, August 16.—With the enforcement of petrol rationing throughout India from midnight on Thursday, Bombay wears a quiet appearance, with at least 30 per cent of the usual motor-cars off the road.

Bombay's fashionable evening resorts are deserted and dull. Omnibuses and trams are packed with many Europeans who have never used them before. Hack victorias and bicycles are again coming into their own.

A good example of keeping within the ration limit has already been set by the Governor of the United Provinces, Sir Maurice Hallet, who rode on horseback 10 miles and back in order to pay an official visit.

Relay Record Smashed

Reuters

STOCKHOLM, August 16.—The world record for the 4 miles relay race, held by Indiana University—17 minutes, 16-1/5 seconds: At Philadelphia in 1937—was beaten last night at the Olympic Stadium when the Idrotts-Foerening team covered the distance in 17 minutes 2-4/5 seconds.

To Play Ireland

Reuters

LONDON, August 16.—A combined English and Scottish star-studded soccer team, fully up to peacetime International standard, has been chosen by the Army football authorities to visit Ireland. The team plays Ireland on September 13, the Irish League on September 15, the Army in Ireland on September 17 and a match in Scotland on their return.

Swede, Gunder Haegg, Covers 1,500 Meters In Record of 3:47.6

Transpocean

STOCKHOLM, August 11.—A new world record was established here yesterday for the 1,500-meter run by the Swedish runner, Gunder Haegg, who covered the stretch in three minutes and 47.6 seconds. The Swede has thus improved the existing world record by two-tenths of a second held by the New Zealander, Jack E. Lovelock.

DIMAGGIO IS RATED YEAR'S TOP ATHLETE

But Group of Taxi Drivers Each Put in His Choice as Williams, Warmerdam, Louis

I.N.S.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Who is the outstanding athlete of the year to date?

Offhand, our own nomination for the honor would be Joe DiMaggio, the Yankee Clipper, on the strength of his phenomenal record-breaking hitting streak and all-round play.

Without exception, all other players acknowledge he is the outstanding player in the game today and only recently Lefty Grove, veteran left hander of the Red Sox, told us he ranked DiMaggio with Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker and Babe Ruth.

We had no doubt in our own mind about Joe's right to rank as the No. 1 athlete of the year until we listened in for half an hour on a furious argument among a group of taxi drivers who disclosed a surprising all-round knowledge of what is going on in the sports world.

One Likes Williams

One of them made out a strong case for Ted Williams of the Red Sox. "How can you overlook that string bean?" he demanded. "He's a .400 hitter, aint he? And didn't he win the All Star game with a homer when the chips were down? And aint he out-hitting Dimaggio?"

"Nuts to them arguments," said a third taxi jockey. "Williams and DiMaggio are only one guy in a team. I say Joe Louis is the tops. He's the world's champ, ain't he? And he's licked everybody they asked him to lick and he ain't barred nobody and he's defended his title more often than any heavy who ever lived. What more can you ask of a guy?"

"Yuh got something there, buddy," chimed in a fourth jockey. "The guy that does it all on his own hook rates tops with me. So what about this California kid, Grover Klemmer? I see he won the 400 meters in 46 seconds flat at the Nationals and that, brother, is a world record. 'If a guy sets a new world record, there just isn't anything better, is there?"

How About Warmerdam

That seemed to have the others stopped for a minute until Jockey No. 5 remarked: "Well, if that's the case, how you going to overlook this Dutch Warmerdam who pole vaults 15 feet 5⅝ inches. That's a world record, too, ain't it and he done it all by himself. And what about this Les Steers who high jumps 6 feet 11 inches for a new world record? I aint' heard nothing about him using a step ladder to get over the bar although if I go that high I'm sure going to need one."

The name of Al Blozis, Georgetown's champion shot putter, came up and was quickly rejected as were Whitlow Wyatt of the Dodgers and Bob Feller of the Indians.

One taxi jockey squelched the case for Wyatt and Feller by remarking "them pitchers never win nothing. The other guys win the ball game."

A little timid fellow in the back of the group wanted to know why Frankie Parker, the tennis guy with the new forehand shouldn't get a mention for his great comeback this year but all he drew were a chorus of snorts. A big rough taxi guy declared that "we ain't talking about sissy games."

The little fellow refused to be brushed off so easily. He said: "If you think tennis is a sissy game, you try it sometime. And if you dont like tennis what about Stew Iglehart, the polo player?"

Well, it was surprisingly agreed that polo was a great game and Iglehart tops in his line but, as one of them remarked, "how many guys know anything about polo? Those polo people practically play their games in private."

Money Talks

One taxi jockey who'd been silently figuring on a piece of paper up to this point now horned in with: "You're all wet. All of you. The top guy is Conn McCreary, the jockey. I won many a bet on that bird this year and he's going in something good in the third today."

All argument stopped right there as the gang gathered round to find out what nag McCreary was riding in the third and if his original backer had heard anything.

"See, I knew I was right," he declared triumphantly. "You guys like to talk about DiMag and the rest of those birds but the guy you're most interested in is really McCreary. I'm telling you, he's the tops especially if he wnis this one for me today."

U.S. Sends Oil Envoy

Transocean

NEW YORK, August 15.—Edwin Pauley left here by a Clipper plane yesterday for Britain and Russia on "Government business concerning oil transportation." Mr. Pauley stated he represented President Roosevelt, Harry Hopkins and Harold Ickes, defense petroleum coordinator. Mr. Ickes at a press conference said Mr. Pauley was visiting London to study the oil situation in all its phases and the British rationing program.

U.S. Oil Production Up

United Press

NEW YORK, August 13.—The American Petroleum Institute announced today that oil production last week averaged 3,911,950 barrels daily. The total was 216,700 barrels more than the preceding week's production and 436,650 barrels more than production for the corresponding week.

To Break 'Black Market'

VICHY, August 14.—Paul Charbin, new food dictator and Secretary of State for Ravitaillement, declared yesterday that he intends to break up the "Black Market" and reorganize food distribution on a regional basis. He said existing food control laws were too complicated.

BIG LEAGUES QUIET WITH 2 GAMES ONLY

Senators Trounce Red Sox 6-3 In 7-Inning Tilt Ended By Rain

United Press

NEW YORK, August 15.—The major leagues were quiet today with only two games being played as two others were rained out, one was postponed and three clubs were scheduled to play under the arc lights.

In the only American League game of the day, the Washington Senators trounced the Boston Red Sox, 6 to 3, in a game which was called in the seventh inning because of rain.

Alejandro Carrasqual hurled his sixth straight victory for the Senators, permitting only two hits after the third inning although Boston previously had collected six hits for three runs—tallying twice in the second and once in the third.

The Senators started scoring in the fourth inning, won the game in the fifth with a three-run rally and then added single tallies in the sixth and seventh to ice the game. The Senators collected 10 safeties during the game.

In the National League, Vallie Evans lost his debut as a big-league pitcher for the Chicago Cubs when the Cincinnati Reds took a 3 to 1 decision. Two home-runs, one by Frank McCormick and the other by Louis Stringer, beat Evans.

Evans had a shade on the pitching assignment, yielding only five hits while Johnny Vander Merr gave up six safeties but the Cubs could not match those two home runs even though the Reds made two errors.

The Cubs took a lead by scoring in the first inning, but Cincinnati came back with single tallies in the fourth, fifth and seventh frames.

BRAZIL MAY PRODUCE UNITED STATES' SILK

Department of Commerce Suggests Possibility Supplies May Be Obtained in South

United Press

WASHINGTON, August 13.—The Department of Commerce yesterday suggested the possibility that Brazil eventually may prove to be an important producer of raw silk.

The department said that Brazil's silk production last year totaled 125,902 pounds, and pointed out that climatic conditions make Sao Paulo one of the world's most favored districts. The report said that as many as eight crops of silk-worm cocoons can be produced there each year.

The Department did not comment on the strategic significance of silk but other sources called attention to the fact the United States is now dependent mostly on Japanese sources. Silk is highly important in making military parachutes and powder bags.

Eight Day Abolished

Transocean

WASHINGTON, August 14.—President Roosevelt by executive order yesterday abolished the stipulation of an eight-hour working day for skilled and unskilled labor contained in the contract for the construction of airports, barracks, fortifications, and similar governmental building projects. White House Secretary Stephen Early said this was necessary in order to rush the completion of these projects.

MEMORIAL SERVICE HELD FOR NORMAN

Rev. Misao Suzuki Conducts Rites at Karuizawa Auditorium —Many Friends Attend

A memorial service in honor of the late Dr. Daniel Norman, was held Tuesday 2 p.m. at the Karuizawa Auditorium under the direction of Rev. Misao Suzuki of the Karuizawa Japanese Church. E. H. Norman, son of the late Dr. Norman and many old friends of the deceased attended the service. In the altar, at the center, there was arranged the late Dr. Norman's portrait, with white and black ribbons and each side were Karuizawa flowers which the deceased so loved.

Following the prayer dedicated to the late Dr. Norman by Rev. Tetsuo Yanagiya, Keiichi Ichimura, as one of the pupils of Dr. Norman, spoke on Dr. Norman's life. . . a life devoted to mission-works.

Dr. Daniel Norman was born on March 10 in the first year of Ganji (1864) at Aurola, Ontario, Canada his family used to run a store in which he with his brother helped with the chores. Dr. Norman graduated from Toronto University where he studied political economy. One of his brothers who desired to be a preacher, died and he subsequently changed his mind to become an evangelist entering the department theological of Victoria University from where he graduated. In 1897, he was ordained.

Preached in Hometown

After graduation he preached in his native town for a few years. It was during this early period of his priesthood that he determined to devote his life for the spreading of the Gospel in the Orient. The Methodist church mission, heard of his plans and dispatched him to Japan. Dr. Norman was then 32 years of age.

His curacy was Tokyo and Kanazawa. Shortly afterwards he went back to Canada for furlough, in which he married Miss Cathalin Hell whom he knew since his college days.

Dr. Norman returned to Nippon. He was in Tokyo, but later he was sent to Nagano prefecture for mission work. For 37 years until he was retired in the 9th year of Showa (1934), he stuck to Nagano. He established many churches, and kindergarten in both South and North section of Nagano prefecture as well as in Niigata prefecture. During this benevolent period, he was awarded the theological doctorate from Victoria University.

One of his friends in Canada sent a Ford motor car to him, to enable him to preach, all the people in various parts of Nagano prefecture. The motor car was the first one seen in Nagano. The people of Nagano prefecture gave him the highest respect and love: Except for two summers, once when he went to Canada for another furlough and when he went to Hokkaido, he was a regular visitor to Karuizawa. He loved Karuizawa so much that he devoted his life for the Karuizawa Japanese church and kindergarten activities. He donated his properties to maintain the Karuizawa kindergarten, which he became so fond of. Dr. Norman's spirit of sacrifice was thoroughly appreciated by the Karuizawa people who had nothing but gratitude.

He acted for 20 years as the chairman of the Karuizawa Summer Residents' Association to which he also donated his own properties.

Since his retirement in July in the 9th year of Showa (1934), he decided to spend his remaining days in Karuizawa. The hills, Mount Asama and Hanare gave him added spiritual communion. He continued to be of great assistance in the Karuizawa Japanese church and Kindergarten.

Two Sons Visit

Last summer his two sons and daughter after 17 years absence, came to his old home in Karuizawa. With every one of his family gathered around him brightness and cheerfulness seemed to cast a halo over him. His oldest son, Howard, and his daughter had to return to their native country however, Mrs. Norman too was especially desired to meet several of her relatives so Dr. Norman acceding decided to their hopes go back to his native land again.

When on December 20, last year, he left Karuizawa for Canada, the whole Karuizawa came out to the station. Dr. Norman left Yokohama on December 31 aboard Canadian Pacific boat.

When he was staying at his sister-in-law's house at London, Ontario, Canada, his health gradually weakened. He suffered from a second attack of the brain and was sent to hospital. In June 19 of this year, Dr. Norman breathed his last.

In closing his speach, Mr. Ichimura prayed for the blessing of the God to all of the remaining members of the deceased.

Following Mr. Ichimura, Rev. K. Kimura also talked of his memories of the late Dr. Norman, G. Tsuchiya, mayor of Karuizawa, Minoru Sato, Chief of Karuizawa district, Dr. W. M. Hitotsuyanagi, representing the Japanese Church, Karuizawa, Dr. C. W. Hepner, representing Karuizawa Union Church, Tozo Inouye, representing K.S.R.A. and Shukaido, gave messages of condolence on the death of Dr. Norman.

and surely as the drama of his life and work are unfolded upon the screen. His early struggles and doubts are as completely believable as the later sureness with which he attacks the problem of finding the "magic bullet," which when shot into the blood stream will kill the dread germs of humanity's most deadly scourge.

Only a superb production could do justice to the immensity of the film's theme, and Warner Bros. have given it just that. The direction, placed in the eminently capable hands of William Dieterle, who was responsible for such all-time masterpieces as "The Story of Louis Pasteur" and "The Life of Emile Zola," is flawlessly keyed to the mood of the drama. He has directed with consummate skill, never allowing a scene to be overplayed or forced, staying close at all times to the dramatic thread of the story. Max Steiner's symphonic musical score contributes immeasurably to the pace and flow of the narrative.

While Robinson's performance is naturally the dominating one, each single member of the large cast does a remarkably fine job, whether the role is large or small. Ruth Gordon, familiar heretofore only to stage audiences, makes here screen debut as Ehrlich's loving wife and helpmate, a role which she handles with rare warmth and understanding. It is a perfect interpretation of the wife whose sole devotion is to her husband and the cause that he serves.

Otto Kruger gives a fine and sensitive performance as the doctor's life-long friend and co-worker. Maria Ouspenskaya, Donald Crisp, Montagu Love, Donald Meek, Henry O'Neill, Albert Basserman, Edward Norris, Harry Davenport and a long list of others stand out in perfectly delineated roles.

John Huston, Heinz Herald and Norman Burnside have written a forceful scrip that is never too wordy.

The Story of Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet" is entertainment so intelligent, fearless and courageous that it is impossible to praise it too high. No audience who views it can fail to be stirred and thrilled!

Benefit Concert for Hospital Fund Presented at Karuizawa Auditorium

The benefit concert in order to raise the fund for Karuizawa Hospital under the assistance of Mrs. Eugen Ott, wife of German Ambassador, sponsored by the K.S.R.A. and Shukaido was given Tuesday night, August 19 starting at 8 p.m., at the Karuizawa Auditorium. This was the third Tuesday evening concert this season and was one of the best concerts ever heard in Karuizawa. Large audience were charmed by renditions of three artists. Miss Leonore Valesby, violin, Miss Ria von Hessert, contralto, and Mrs. Valesby-Heinrich, who accompanied the two artists at the piano.

Miss Valesby rendered five numbers of violin, including Tartini's Sonata, Devil's Trill, Beethoven's Romance in G for Violin, J. B. Bach's Aria on the G String, Chausson's Poeme and Serasate's Romanze Andaluza.

Miss Valesby revealed her polished and refined artistic sentiment. Despite her younger age, her art is matured and accomplished. Her stage manner is a picture of gracefulness that also delighted her audience. No sooner did she deliver the opening number, Tartini's Sonata, than the whole audience was charmed with her expressions and admirable technique. Oriental mood was thoroughly expressed in Sarasate's Romanza Andaluza which was the closing number. Thunderous handicapings was sounded by the audience for the soloist and her accompanist, Mrs. Valesby-Heinrich, who accompanied Miss Valesby at the piano with the most sympathetic manner.

Miss Ria von Hessert, contralto, gave five Schubert's songs, including Linden Baum, Crster-Varlust, Gretchen am Spinnrade, Rastlose Liebe and Des Musensohn, and four Schumann's numbers, including In der Frende, Intermezzo, Wehmut and Freisum.

Miss Hessert's interpretations on these classic songs were excellent, and her voice, especially in middle and lower register were beautiful. Among the renditions of songs in Part 2, Schubert's Linden baum was the most appreciated. Miss Hessert also showed her deep devotion to Schumann's songs. The Audience so appreciated her renditions that they did not stop their handclapping until she respond to it by rendering an encore, Schumann's lyric song Mrs. Valesby-Heinrich accompanied Miss Hessert artistically at the piano.

W. M. Hitotsuyanagi, gave a short speech in the intermission representing the K.S.R.A. and Shukaido, and also Karuizawa Hospital, Thanking for the assistance of the three artists, and also of the German Embassy for the concert. One of the committee of the K.S.R.A. also made an announcement that there will be a special concert on Saturday, August 23, starting at 8 p.m. at the Karuizawa Auditorium. Two artists, Mrs. Schneider, klavichord, and Miss Ria von Hessert, contralto, will play for the concert. Members of the K.S.R.A. and Shukaido are invited to the concert.

NOJIRI NOTES

Last Saturday saw the windup of the tennis tournament, which was played last week with a fairly good assortment of weather and with a growing interest on the part of the rooters. Finals in each division were matches full of spectacular play, and support from the stands was so hearty that the applause could be heard resounding over the golf course. In the men's singles matches 16-year old Monty Ohtani attained high ranking by virtue of his skill and form, but in the finals E. Acki with more experience to his credit defeated him in a long, close match, 7-5, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

In the men's doubles the winning team was L. B. Hamilton and Monty Ohtani, who won two sets from Teddy and Jimmy Semoto, 6-0, 6-0, and played till the score stood 4-0 in the third set. The Semoto brothers were not up to their usual form as they had just previously spent considerable effort in helping friends to shore from an upturned sailboat.

Champions in the mixed doubles were Miss I. Iwata and Monty Ohtani, defeating Miss Y. Ohtani and L. B. Hamilton, 6-2, 6-2. Both sides provided brilliant shots, but the steadier playing of the Iwata-Ohtani team tipped the scales in their favor.

Miss Yuriko Ohtani emerged the winner in the women's singles, defeating Mrs. Durgin, 6-3, 6-1, in a match marked by interesting play, good will and several laughs.

In the women's doubles Miss Ranko Miyaguchi and Miss Iwata won from Miss Ohtani and Mrs. G. Rawlings, 6-4, 6-2 in a well-played match.

Among the juniors Garreth Mann came out on top only after stiff resistance from Dieter Koenig, whom he defeated after a close match, 6-4, 3-6, 7-5. In the doubles games Garreth and Mischa Moguilewsky won the right to championship by defeating D. Koenig and H. Down, 8-6, 6-3.

And now community interest turns more consistently to sail boat racing. Saturday afternoon the third in a series of races was held, duly encouraged and assisted by a blustery wind. Reversing ranks attained in former try-outs, the order of crossing the finishing line was as follows: first, Captain Grant's Blue Nose; second, B. Miyaguchi and G. Down; third, Mr. and Mrs. Nakashima's Vega; forth, Leonard Down and Charles Punnett; fifth, Teddy Semoto in the Black Hawk; sixth, Mr. C. Yoshida's Dragon Fly; seventh, Jimmy Semoto in the Penguin. The squally breezes played right into the hands of those with the sturdier boats.

In spite of the gusts the first swimming race was held as scheduled at the Pavilion, with Mr. David Takahara calling up the contestants with his magaphone and Mr. R. C. Mann acting as linesman. Speed artists in the 100-meter race was Mr. Kajii. In the 50-meter free-style division Leonard Down was winner, while at back-stroke Teddy Semoto came in first and at breast stroke Mr. Abel. Of the junior boys Herbert Down took the laurels, and in the ladies' 50-meter free style Miss Irmtraut Dietrich crossed the finishing line first. In the women's breaststroke race Mary Kaelin preceded, Mrs. Plessner, Mrs. Koenig and Mrs. Mann in that order. Choppy waves were impartial in providing handicaps for all.

On Sunday evening a sing on the lake was planned but the last minute mists rolled in and made it seem wiser to have it held in the Boathouse where a circle of 30 or so gathered for over an hour of favorite hymns. Plans for this coming Sunday are going forward, with the hopes of being able to announce a visiting preacher to occupy the pulpit at the morning service. Instead of two separate worship hours, morning and afternoon as heretofore, this week the 10:30 a.m. service is planned to combine both Japanese and English. Special music will consist of vocal solo by Mr. F. T. Heartle. As always in the past, again this year a Community Chest offering will be a part of the service at which time each resident will find an opportunity to share in the good will rendered to worthwhile projects and families in the vicinity.

Last Satürday night visible signs of the hearty community spirit again were abundantly evident at the social evening in the auditorium which Mrs. Hannaford's committee so ably sponsored. One delightful feature of the entertainment was a group of songs sung by a sextet composed of the Misses Dehari and the Misses Hashimoto, with "Little Sir Echo" reproducing their sweet tones with his baritone in the distance. Games and dancing later provided a happy evening for all.

Special treat announced for Friday evening this week by the Chairman of the Social Committee, Mrs. Russell Durgin, is an evening of concert music-violin, cello, piano and vocal, beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium for residents and friends. The following program will give some idea of the splendid entertainment promised.

as August 31.

Preparations are now under way by the newly organized Toho musical show, consisting of members of the dancing team and choir under the Takarazuka management, for the presentation of a five-act play entitled "Rentai no Musume" (A Daughter of the Regiment), written by Tetsuo Shirai, famous figure in the Takarazuka Revue-dom. The date of the performances has not been fixed definitely.

Sojuro Sawamura, Takasuke Sukedakaya and Tanosuke Sawamura, who are familiar with the Kabuki-goers, and who have been on an extended circuit performance in rural communities since early July, are scheduled to return to Tokyo on August 25. They are now playing in the principal cities in Kyushu, and the last performance of their itinerary will be at the Masuda Gekijo in Shimane Prefecture on August 23.

Opening today at the Nippon Gekijo is a newly composed stage show entitled "Hakucho no Mizu-umi" (Lake of the Swan). It will be staged by the members of the Toho dancing team with Oliga Sapphire as guest player.

To assist in the activities of the circuit performances in rural districts under the supervision of the Japan Traveling Theatrical League, a new dramatic group has been organized recently, consisting of 20 players headed by Reizaburo Umewaka, Ryuzo Takei and Kikumaro Arashi, leading stars of the Kyoto studio of the Shochiku Company. They will start to make regular visits to fishing and farm villages from September.

Four plays, new to the stage, will make up the program at the Shochikuza, Asakusa Park, commencing today. They are "Tsuchi wa Yobu" (The Earth Beckons), "Gunkoku Keisatsukan" (A Policeman of the Country at War), "Reimei Nijuso" (Duet at Dawn) and "Ai no Juken" (A Bayonet of Love). Ryutaro Aoyagi, Momonosuke Ichikawa and Sumiko Fushimi will be the top-entertainers.

Under the baton of Koscak Yamada, Bizets L'Arlesienne will be staged at the local Takarazuka Gekijo for four days from September 27. The important roles will be played by Tsugundo Maki, Takeo Ito and Goro Murao. The opera will be directed by Takashi Kanasu with music by the Toho Symphony Orchestra.

NEW YORK, August 16.—Billy Southworth's St. Louis Cards stayed at the top of the National, circuit today by a scant margin even though they suffered a 4 to 2 defeat by the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Brooklyn Dodgers muffed a chance to pass up the Cards when they dropped a 4 to 1 decision to the Boston Braves.

The St. Louis outfit took the lead in the second inning and stayed ahead until the eighth when the Pirates pushed over three runs. The game was lost by Pitcher Ernest White who, when trying to field Frank Gustine's bunt, overthrew home and allowed two runs to score.

The Braves scored all of their runs in the second inning, largely due to John Conney's three-bagger which came with the sacks loaded.

Tom Earley went the full route for the Boston club and held his foes to seven hits. Three hurlers were used by Brooklyn.

The Cincinnati Reds downed the Chicago Cubs, 4 to 1, behind the three-hit hurling of Elmer Riddle.

Bill Werber, Cincinnati third-sacker, won the game in the sixth inning by connecting for a homer with two mates aboard. Chicago scored its lone run in the eighth inning.

The New York Giants nicked four Philadelphia hurlers for 15 safeties as they downed the Phillies 4 to 1.

The Giants connected with four safeties in the first inning and five in the third to chase pitchers Tom Hughes and John Podgajny to the showers. All of the New York runs were scored in the first and third frames.

In the American League, the New York Yankees kept their lead of 16 games even though they suffered a 6 to 4 set-back from the Philadelphia Atheletics.

The A'S won the game in the sixth inning with a four-run rally. Pete Suder started the scoring spree by getting a walk and promptly came home on Harold Wagner's three-bagger. Hurler Jack Knott, Al Brancato and Ben McCoy connected with singles before the side was retired.

Knott hurled the full game for the Athletic and limited the New Yorkers to nine hits while Charlie Ruffing represented the Yanks and allowed a dozen safeties. The New York club made four errors, two of them during the crucial sixth inning.

The luckless Cleveland Indians dropped a 1 to 0 game to the Chicago White Sox as John Rigney hurled his best game of the season. Rigney allowed only three hits in blanking the Indians.

The lone run of the game was scored in the first inning when Don Killoway beat out a bunt, advanced to second on an Infield out and trotted home on Luke Appling's single.

Boston's Red Sox came from behind to win a slug fest from the Washington Senators, 8 to 6. Boston piled up a half dozen scores in the last three innings.

In the big eighth inning, Jim Tabor and Jimmie Foxx singled, Cecil Travis made an error and then a walk and a sacrifice fly netted three scores.

The St. Louis Browns though badly out-hit, managed to smash through a 3 to 2 victory over the Detroit Tigers. The Browns pushed over their winning run in the last of the ninth which resulted from a two-bagger by George McQuinn, bringing in Don Heffner.

NEW YORK, August 15.—Major League Leaders were inactive today as rain postponed several games but still some good baseball was supplied by the other clubs.

At Washington the Senators pushed over a 6 to 3 win over the Boston Red Sox as Alexandro Carrasquel recorded his sixth consecutive victory. The game, however, was stopped in the seventh inning because the grounds were wet.

Boston piled up an early lead but the Senators came back with rallies in the last four inning.

The Chicago White Sox downed the faltering Cleveland Indians, 5 to 2, in a night game in which they scored all of their runs in the sixth and seventh innings.

The Chisox were represented on the mound by Lee Ross, who allowed seven hits, while two Cleveland hurlers were nicked for nine safeties.

With Robert Muncriff hurling six-hit ball, the St. Louis Browns came through with a 6 to 1 victory over the Detroit tigers. Three Detroit Tigers were stingy with the hits, but they received erratic support.

Cincinnat's Reds recorded a 3 to 1 victory over the Chicago Cubs, when Myron McCormick came through with a timely pair of homers in the only game in the National League. The two circuit clouts beat Vallie Eaves in his debut as a major league pitcher. Eaves allowed but five hits as compared with half-a-dozen safe blows which were yielded by Johnny Vander Meer.

BERG, LAZAR FALL IN BOXING LADDER

Former Lightweight Champion Of Britain Tries Best but Can't Beat Roderick in Recent Bout

Reuters

LONDON, August 17.—London, and in particular the famous Albert Hall, scene of many memorable battles in the past has come back into its own as a venue for big boxing.

It was quite like old times with "fans" clustered round the ringside, betting like fury, when a very attractive program featuring many top-notchers, including British welterweight champion, Ernie Roderick, was staged. This tournament followed a very successful amateur show, also staged at the Albert Hall.

The show, which was promoted by John Muldoon, in between his R.A.F. duties, was notable for the failures of two boxers who had been carrying all before them. Kid Berg, former British lightweight champion who has been fighting for many years, was a gallant loser on points to Sergeant Ernie Roderick, of the R.A.F., and Dave Crowley, dapper seasoned campaigner, turned the tables by beating the young East End idol, Harry Lazar, who had won a previous encounter.

Berg, who is a corporal in the R.A.F., gave the champion quite a busy time with his whirlwind, non-stop tactics which stood him in good stead in the past, bt he sadly lacked a telling punch. Roderick, cool and confident, attempted to keep the mauling Berg at arms length and he often boxed his way out of difficulties with fine rights to the head.

Courage and stamina were not enough to beat such a good champion as Roderick and although the verdict was booed in some quarters there was no doubt about the latter's superiority.

As was generally expected, the affair between Crowley and Lazar produced some "fireworks."

It was a fast and brilliant contest in which Lazar, boxing with his usual confidence, did very well in the early rounds. But Crowley, who seems suddenly to have developed a punch, forced the pace later and a right to the jaw put Lazar down for a count of eight in the seventh round. Just before the end of the round he floored Lazar again, and it was fortunate for the latter that he had the interval in which to recover.

Lazar was still a little dazed at the beginning of the next round but he cleverly boxed his way out of trouble. Crowley, however, had further success in the ninth round, when he put Lazar on the canvas for "nine." The last round was a thrilling affair, with Lazar doing all he knew to make up leeway and the fight ended in a grandstand finish, with the crowd on their toes, yelling wildly.

Lazar and Crowley are among the six boxers named by the Board of Control as challengers for Boon's title. The others are Benny Caplan, Dave Finn, Johnny Ward and Fred Simpson. All are top-notchers and deserve to fight for the title. Here is a splendid chance for some enterprising promoter. A series of bouts between these boxers, the winner to meet Boon, would provide some grand contests.

FAVORITE PTOLEMY WINS HISTORICAL SILVER BELL

Stewards Handicap Attracting Attention of 6-Furlong Horses Taken by Zaitor

Reuters

LONDON, August 17.—Two race meetings yesterday had plenty of interest, with the Stewards Handicap attracting the cream of six-furlong horses at Nottingham, while the historic Silver Bell at Lanark gave Ptolemy a chance to show his paces in view of his entry for the St. Leger.

Ptolemy fulfilled hopes by an easy win by three lengths from Congratulations who came ahead of Suez.

Betting was on the favorite 10/11, Congratulations 7/2 and Suez 9/2.

Zaitor won the Stewards by a head from Love's Revelry, with The Jigger third, the winner being a 7/2 favorite.

The King's Longships also appeared in a race at Nottingham but was unplaced in the 1¾ handicap, which Germanicus, a Cesarewitch candidate, won.

Mrs. E. H. Gasking, who is the managing director of a big canning business, has only two horses, The Pale, which is one of the best sprinters in training, and Royal Mantle, a colt. Both were engaged yesterday and both won, the latter taking the opening race of five furlongs at Nottingham, while The Pale triumphed in the handicap over the same distance at Lanark. The Pale, carrying ten stone seven pounds, won comfortably by two lengths.

4 WEEKEND GAMES SET AT HARBOR CITY

With Return of Good Weather Busy Schedule Ahead for Y.C.A.C. Members

With real summer weather having returned at last, sports enthusiasts at the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club have mapped out a full program for Saturday and Sunday at the club grounds, with baseball, cricket, lawn bowls and mixed softball games among the events to be played provided rain does not again make its unwelcome appearance.

Instead of the cricketers having the field on Saturday afternoon as usual, they will have it all day on Sunday this weekend, and the softball and baseball players will use it on the half-holiday.

Return Game Set

The first item on the program will be a return game between the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club ladies' softball team and the elder male members of the club. The girls took a close 4 to 3 decision from the "ojiisans" last Sunday with rallies in the last two innings, and the veterans will do everything possible to win in an effort to regain prestige. This contest is scheduled for 2 p.m. Saturday.

The club's baseball team will take on the Victor nine at 3 p.m. after the softball game is over. The Y.C. and A.C. players hope to down the visitors in order to gain their fifth consecutive victory. If the home team plays as well as it did last Sunday, when it took both its games by shutouts, it will have a good chance to register another win.

The baseball team is holding a farewell stag dinner for Ray Devin and Ray Lewis in the clubhouse on Saturday evening from 7.30 p.m., as these two popular players expect to be leaving soon for the United States.

The club cricketers, as well as followers of the popular English summer game, are looking forward with keen interest to the all-day match on Sunday against the British Embassy. The diplomats beat the club players in the previous encounter, a Saturday afternoon game during July, but the latter are stronger now and hope to turn the tables in the return match.

The cricket game will be under way at 11 a.m. and will be stopped at 1 p.m. for luncheon. It will be resumed at 2 p.m. and continue till 4:30 p.m., when there will be a 15 minutes interval for tea. Play will recommence at 4:45 p.m., and will continue until 6:30 p.m. if necessary.

All Out Game Seen

Lawn bowls enthusiasts are expected to turn out in force this weekend for matches in the men's championship singles tourney, as some of the best players will get into action on Saturday and Sunday, weather permitting.

P. H. Lord and A. A. F. Shearer, two of the leading contenders for the title, will meet in the one unplayed quarter-final match on Saturday afternoon. The winner will play H. S. G. Batter on Sunday morning in the semi-finals, and the victor will play W. T. Craigie in the afternoon for the championship. Play in this event is being rushed as Craigie expects to leave Yokohama sometime next week.

With the international bowling tournament now under way, it is expected that some of the draws in this event will also be played off, as well as games in the other events.

Neither of the two remaining finals in the tennis tournament, the men's "A" handicap singles and the men's handicap doubles, will be played this weekend. H. S. G. Batter is scheduled to meet J. A. Dixon in the former, while G. R. Fachtmann and M. V. Fachtmann will oppose C. Heseltine and F. R. Harriss in the latter. Both these matches will probably be played sometime in September.

Probable line-ups for the games this weekend are as follows:

Baseball

W. H. Blamey, S. G. Bielous, M. C. Cooke (coach), J. M. da Costa, F. R. Devin, C. Fernandes, H. Fernandes, L. A. M. Frank, F. R. Harriss (captain), L. N. Haum (manager), P. H. Kipp (vice-captain), J. Koch, R. Lewis, F. da Rosa and F. da Silva.

Ladies' Softball

Miss V. Albeck, Miss G. Andreis, Miss L. Andreis, Miss M. da Costa, Miss H. Darbier, Miss J. Darbier, Miss A. Mayers, Miss J. Mayers, Miss E. Papendieck, Miss T. Planas, Miss M. Prohaska, Miss P. Rau, Miss L. Salter, Miss G. Satchell and Miss M. Stevens.

Cricket

British Embassy: A. H. Ballantyne, G. H. D. Bell, A. E. Bell, P. H. Gore-Booth, H. C. Hainworth, Major K. S. Himatsinhji (captain), B. Kuskie, H. T. Langstone J. R. V. Mason, F. H. Moysey, P. Shaw, F. L. Simpson, M. J. K. Stark and Major E. V. Thomas.

Y.C. and A.C.: G. E. Beatty, H. J. Bird (vice-captain), F. J. Bond, W. R. Bull, J. M. da Costa, F. J. da Silva, F. R. Harriss, L. N. Haum, P. H. Lord (or A. N. Other), F. May, M. Parsram, M. L. Russell, J. A. Sargeant and S. Stephens (captain).

Tribune Charges President With Order for Bribe to Two Newspapers

Transocean

CHICAGO, August 16.—The Chicago Tribune this morning accused President Roosevelt of bribing two newspapers.

This newspaper claimed that the Philadelphia Record and the New York Post, which were in financial difficulties, had been subsidized out of Government funds at the personal order of President Roosevelt.

This subsidy, it added, was paid against the expressed disapproval of Jesse Jones, Chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

SWIM STARS SET NEW JAPAN MARKS

Yoshida Sets 400-Meter Back Stroke Record at Water Carnival

Performances by a select group of national aquatic stars produced three new Nippon records over the short course 25-meter Namishino pool Wednesday afternoon in a water carnival sponsored by the Tokyo Nichi Nichi.

The record creators were, Kiichi Yoshida with a fast time of 5:21.0 in the 400-meter back stroke, Seiichiro Oura, the St. Paul breast stroke ace, who turned in a 5:50.8 in the 400-meter event and Miss Tomi Hatano, the youthful Furitsu Fourth High School lassie who was clocked in 4:18.8 in the 300-meter free style.

Oura's attempt to shatter two national records just missed its mark. Swimming against time, the breast stroker registered a 2:42.6 over the 200-meter course for this year's best time over the distance.

Another standard for the year was established when Waseda's Shigeru Miyamoto negotiated the 400-meter free style in 4:51.0.

SPORT IN ENGLAND HIT HARD BY WAR

British Concentrating on Marbles With Canadians and Newfoundlanders

Reuters

LONDON, August 17.—Although International sport has suffered severely in these War days, the presence in Great Britain of sportsmen from various parts of the world has, in other cases, added to the friendly rivalry.

The Inter-Allied services football Cup event was highly successful and there is now news that members of the Canadian and Newfoundland forces will give a touch of International rivalry to the Marbles championship.

Marbles may not be one of the premier sports, but its championship traditions go back 300 years at the Greyhound Inn, Tinsley Green, Sussex. Tinsley Green have been champions many times but when last held, the title went to a team of Busmen from nearby Crawley. It is surprising how "deadly" a shot, is a real marbles exponent. Killing flies on a wall, at a range of several yards, with the expert "flick" of the marble, is no rarity.

The idea of the game is to knock out of a six foot ring, marbles (commonies) with a special "blood alley," held between forefinger and thumb, each member of a team having four marbles. The expert will have no difficulty in knocking out the four of a rival with one "shoot."

The idea of baseball being played on the playing fields of Eton may cause some turning in the graves of old Etonians but Canadian soldiers produced this state of affairs when, following a Bren gun carrier demonstration, they remained to play a few innings.

The shock of baseball on the famous playing fields was not so much a surprise as were the cries of "Well played sir," "Attaboy" which soon issued from the mouths of top-hatted Etonians who were not long in picking up the rules of the game.

NEW YORK, August 17.—Leo Durocher's scrappy Brooklyn Dodgers downed the Boston Braves twice today to win back the leadership of the National League. Thirty-five thousand fans witnessed the games played at Boston.

They replaced the St. Louis Cardinals who divided their double header with the Pittsburgh Pirates, Brooklyn took the opener 5 to 1 behind the five hit hurling of Walter Higbe. Dolph Camilli, Dodger first sacker, came through with his 24th homer of the season.

Whit Wyatt was the whole show of the second game which the Dodgers took by a 3 to 0 score. He limited the Braves to a lone hit and until the ninth inning hurled perfect ball.

Wyatt retired the first 25 batters to face him. Then, with one away in the ninth, Phil Masi singled, ruining the perfect game. The next man up, Carvell Rowell, was fanned by Wyatt and then Joe DeMaree popped out to end the game.

The Cards easily won the opener by a 7 to 1 count after piling up a four run lead in the first inning. Mort Cooper hurled the full game for the winners and held the Pirates to seven hits. Three hurlers were used by Pittsburgh and they were nicked for 11 safties. The Pirates played erratic ball, making four errors and permitting four unearned runs.

In the second game it was a different story as Truett Sewell limited the Cards to five hits and the Pirates came through with an 8 to 2 win. Lon Warneke was chased to the showers for his fourth straight game when the Pirates nicked him for a half dozen runs in the second inning. John Mize, St. Louis first baseman, recorded his thirteenth homer of the year in the fourth inning.

The Philadelphia Phillies showed new life, winning a double bill from the New York Giants. They took the opener 6 to 2 and went on a batting spree to win the night cap 18 to 2.

Nick Etten and Bennie Warren lead the batting attack for the Phillies in the opener by connecting with circuit drives. The best inning for the winners was the second when four runs were scored.

In the second game the Phillies recorded 23 safe blows, which with the assistance of four New York errors were converted into 18 runs. It was the first twin bill victory of the season for Philadelphia.

Cincinnati Reds divided a double header with the Chicago Cubs, taking the opener 6 to 3 and dropping the second game 4 to 2.

Bucky Walter was on the mound in the first game and though nicked for 13 hits managed to keep them well scattered. The Cards sewed up the game with a four run splurge in the seventh inning based on an error, three straight singles, a wild pitch and a sacrifice fly.

The ancient Charlie Root recorded his 199th Natinal League victory when the Cubs humbled the Reds in the second game. Charlie lasted only seven innings, retiring in favor of Jake Mooty because his much used right arm was tired.

United Press

NEW YORK, August 17.—While the Brooklyn Dodgers won back the National League leadership the New York Yanks today recorded their 80th win of the season and increased their American circuit advantage to 17 games.

The Yanks took a pair of close games from the Philadelphia winning the opener 2 to 1 and the night cap 4 to 3.

A wild pitch and an error in the ninth cost Bill Beckman of the Athletics his pitchers' battle with Spurgeon Chandler in the opener. Both hurlers allowed only four hits but the Yanks came through with much better support for Chandler.

Joe Gordon, Yank infielder, clouted out his 19th and 20th homers of the season in the second game, enabling Vernon "Lefty" Gomez to hang up his 11th win of the season. The score was knotted from the fourth until the end of the ninth when the New Yorkers broke up the ball game.

Cleveland Indians dropped from second to a third place percentage tie when they lost both ends of a twin bill to the Chicago White Sox. The Chisox moved into second place by winning the first game 8 to 2 and the second, a ten inning affair, by a 4 to 3 count.

Chicago in winning the opener whipped the mighty Bob Feller for the third straight time. Ted Lyons was on the mound for the White Sox and allowed 10 safeties.

Manager Roger Peckinpaugh also lost the services of Hal Trosky, veteran Indian infielder, who broke his left thumb during a collision with Lyons.

In the second game Julius Solters, Chisox outfielder, singled in the tenth with the bases loaded to break up a pitchers' duel between Edgar Smith of the White Sox and Al Milner of the Indians.

Detroit Tigers and the St. Louis Browns divided a double header, with the Tigers winning the first game 8 to 1 but dropping the night cap by a 6 to 1 count.

Barney McCosky and Ray Radcliff led the offensive for the Tigers in the opener by both collecting four safeties. George Caster, a St. Louis rookie, limited the Tigers to three hits in the second game and hurled shutout ball until the eighth inning.

Joe Cronin's Boston Red Sox through no fault of their own passed up the Indians. The Boston nine dropped their game with the Washington Senators by a 6 to 2 score but the Indians lost a double bill.

Sid Hudson did the hurling for the Senators and allowed only five hits. The Senators rolled up nine hits and scored their runs in bunches of threes in the first and eighth frames.

STIFF RULING KILLS FIGHTING IN TEXAS

Suspensions, Fines of Boxers, Managers and Even Seconds Prevent More Bouts

I.N.S.

DALLAS, Texas, July 22.—Boxing fans who have often wondered why the southwest, and especially Texas, didnt have more fistic cards to offer, probably would get a good idea by examining the state labor statistics boxing bulletin.

At first glance, it appears that all the boxers are suspended, or their managers and seconds are.

At present, the state of Texas recognizes 175 suspensions, and all but three of these are for indefinite or permanent standings. Two Texas fighters, among the 18 Texans suspended, are holding two of the short suspensions.

Pete Sanchez drew a 30-day suspension, and Jack Larkin a 90-day ban in May and June of this year. The other fighter is Gunnar Barlund, the Durable Finn who got a year's suspension slapped on him in Illinois in April.

One would think that Texas would be able to stress more fight cards with so few fighters affected, but the truth is, Texas just doesn't have many fighters—professional fighters.

During the month of June, 42 bouts were fought, a far smaller number than in many other states of less size.

New Jersey, long a fight stronghold, probably exceeds that number many times. New Jersey without a doubt has more inactive fighters than that, for 80 of the fighters whose suspensions are recognized in Texas are from New Jersey.

Nine promoters are under the ban, three from Texas, and the only two matchmakers listed on the suspended list are also from the Lone Star state.

Paul Damski is perhaps the best known of the 17 managers not allowed to work in Texas, having received his suspension along with his fighter Gunnar Barlund last April 14. Damski is only under a year's enforced idleness, however, while all the other managers are either permanently or indefinitely suspended.

The influx of soldiers in many Texas army camps has been hailed as perhaps one of the springboards by which fighting may increase in popularity in the state.

Pup Thomas, energetic west Texas promoter, in billing his Tony Galento-King Levinsky "Battle of Bums," admitted freely no one would like the fight, but also stated the soldiers from nearby Camp Barkeley would make up a large portion of his crowd.

All of the soldiers like fights; they like to watch bouts in their own camps but maneuvers keep soldiers too tired for fisticuffs and some sports experts are predicting professional boxing will gain a stronghold for that reason.

If the soldiers can't do it they will go to see it done, the boys figure.

Laughs at 'Capture'

Transocean

BERLIN, August 18.—General Schmidt, the Commander of the 29th German Tank Corps, who has repeatedly been reported by London as having been captured by the Soviet-Russians, was informed of these reports by the German High Command. The General laughed about these reports and added: "The Soviets believe they have caught me. They haven't known me so far, but they will make my acquaintance. My men are eager to show them that their fighting power is unimpaired.

Swedes Make Record

Transocean

STOCKHOLM, August 18.—A new world record for the four mile relay is claimed to have been established yesterday by the Swedish middle distance runners Ake Jansson, Hugo Karlen, Hanry Kaelarne, and Bror Hellstroem. They covered the distance in 17 minutes and 2.8 seconds, which is 3.6 seconds better than the previous record established by the relay team of the University of Indiana, United States, in 1937.

NEUTRAL SWEDEN FOUND MISQUOTED

Reuter Report Concerning Talks of Roosevelt-Churchill Said Imaginative Story

Transocean

STOCKHOLM, August 18.—The Swedish paper Aftonbladet complains about the propaganda in certain belligerent countries, which interpret in their own way the views expressed in neutral countries about events in the world.

As a flagrant example, the paper refers to the Reuter report quoting alleged comments from Swedish papers on the Atlantic conference between British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and President Franklin Roosevelt.

This report, the paper continues, was sent by Reuter on Thursday night before the papers had even said a word and the British broadcast reproduced it as the general opinion in Sweden.

Reuter reported that the Swedish papers had expressed their satisfaction about the points of the joint declaration with regard to the future of the world and that, in their opinion, the declaration was meant to induce the American people to join the war.

Furthermore, the Swedish papers allegedly welcomed the reaction of this declaration on the Japanese and French peoples, Reuter asserted.

The Aftonbladet points out that Swedish papers so far had no opportunity of expressing their satisfaction at the points of the declaration and emphasizes that, on the contrary, the Swedish press on the following day was rather disturbed about these points which touched on the future of the world.

The paper hopes that the Reuter office in Stockholm on the following day had issued a corrected and more reliable version on the opinion of Swedish papers.

DISCUS RECORD MADE

German Sportsman Wins World Championship in Throwing Event

Transocean

BERLIN, August 18.—A new world record in discus throwing was established by the young German sportsman, Ernest Lampert, with 53.35 meters at the sport event at Litzmanstadt yesterday.

Lampert thus brought the world's record back into German possession with this feat after it had been taken from another German, Schroeder, shortly before by the North American, Archie Harris, with 53.26 meters. Schroeder had thrown 53.1 meters at that time.

Athens Streets Renamed

Transocean

ATHENS, August 17.—According to a resolution passed by the Athens City Council the renaming of certain streets in the city, connected with the former Greek regime, is to be carried out. Work in this connection was started at the famous Athens Academy Street where new street plates bearing the inscriptions "Odos Academia" were set up, this being the old classic name of the street. Several months ago this street had been renamed "Franklin Roosevelt Street" by the former Greek regime.

Holland Hopes to Develop Agricultural Industry, Says Food Minister

D.N.B.

BERLIN, August 23.—The economic development of the past few months has shown that nearly all European countries have recognized the importance of producing sufficient foodstuffs from own sources. The blocked measures of the World War already have shown the dangers of economic dependency. The present conflict, however, necessarily leads to a new situation on account of the departure from world economy.

At the opening of an agricultural exhibit in the Hague, Secretary Backe of the German Ministry of Food, cited Holland as an example for the development that has lead to the present measures. Approximately 100 years ago, Holland was autarchic with regard to food supplies. With the industrial expansion of England however, the requirements of this market for foodstuffs and agricultural raw materials increased. England had to draw on the European countries for her requirements importing part of her grain needs from Holland. At this time, Dutch agriculture operated on a basis of home production.

The English markets with their requirements of animal products, however, soon caused a shift; for Holland's grain was not sufficient to feed the population and to maintain large stocks of livestock as well. Fodder and grain had to be imported and the basis production had to be extended by large scale imports of oil seeds. Thus Holland had become dependent on foreign countries for her own food-supply. Holland's adjustment to the English market brought about the neglect of the natural outlet area of continental Europe. This shift brought certain advantages for Holland as long as England satisfied her requirements by imports from his area.

When England improved technical methods as well as transport possibilities it shifted its imports to the Empire countries and as a consequence a crisis occurred in Holland. The attempt of Dutch agriculture to win the continental European market as an outlet for its agricultural products failed because of its lack of purchasing power and, consequently, its inability of absorbing Dutch products. Holland was obliged to dispose of its agricultural products at very cheap prices and was only able to pull through this economic crisis by restricting production and paying subventions to the producers.

Secretary of State Dr. Backe declared that the extensive increase in agricultural production in the world led to the European dependency. The existence of the various small European economies was seriously threatened and the only solution now is a large scale European economy. Just as the English market turned away from Europe and carried on an Empire policy, the European market must now become the basis of Europe's agricultural production.

VICHY CATHOLICS PLEDGE TO KEEP OUT OF POLITICS

Church Issue Proclamation Emphasizing Strict Religious Pursuit

Transocean

PARIS, August 15.—The decision made during the recent discussions held by the Catholic authorities in occupied France has now been published.

This proclamation, which finds marked attention throughout France, states that the Catholic Church in France in future will concentrate on purely religious activities and social matters and refrain from interfering in any way in party politics.

All Catholics in France are requested to respect the state authority and to assist Marshal Petain loyally in order to help him reconstruct France under the motto "Family, Work and the Fatherland."

It was pointed out that France, if she bases her efforts on such Christian principles, will be certain to obtain the rightful place due to her in a new Europe.

The conference of Cardinals and Archbishops lasting several days was attended by Cardinal Gerlier from Lyons.

SPAIN PLACES CONTROL OVER ALL GOLD MINES

Rodalquilar Directors to Include Appointees From Government

Transocean

MADRID, August 18—Direct governmental control will hereafter be exercised by the Spanish Government over the Rodalquiar gold mines in Almeria Province, according to an ordinance published by the Ministry of Commerce and Industry today.

The Board of Directors of the Rodalquilar Gold Mine will, in the future, include an appointee of the Ministry of Commerce and Industry and an appointee of the Ministry of Finance.

So excellent have been the results of the exploration work done in this mine since 1940 at the expense of the Spanish Government that its operation is expected to prove profitable in the future.

Profits from the operation of this mine will be placed to the credit of a special Government commission. Deficits will be borne by the Government.

Greenland Children Arrive in New York; Won't Talk on Ship's Tilt With Iceberg

Battered and delayed after colliding with an iceberg, the passenger-cargo steamer Julius Thomsen, flying the Danish flag from its stern, arrived in New York on July 2, says the New York Herald Tribune, after a 12-day voyage from American-occupied Greenland. The vessel brought twenty-three passengers, including thirteen children of Danish officials in Greenland, and a cargo of whale and fish oil.

Cautious passengers and members of the crew refused to discuss the collision with the iceberg, although the prow of the vessel bore a broad dent as evidence. One of the Greenland delegation said the vessel struck the iceberg just before midnight, and that passengers were jolted from their berths.

The accident delayed the vessel a day.

Their reticence was explained partly in an order of the Danish government, which prohibits Danish subjects from discussing with strangers matters pertinent to Denmark and Greenland. The delegation, explaining their silence by observing that "you know how things are," did not comment on observations that the vessel passed through waters infested with battle craft as well as icebergs.

Among the passengers were Mrs. Else Svane, wife of Aksel Svane, Governor of Southern Greenland, and their three children, Inge, eight; Elizabeth, six, and Bertil, three. Mr. Svane, who met them at the pier, has been in the United States since June and will return to Greenland this fall.

Twenty-five persons of Danish descent were waiting when the vessel docked at 6 p.m. at the Rutgers Street pier, in the East River. They were admitted on green cards of identification furnished by the Greenland delegation.

Most of those waiting claimed the children who arrived, taking them to their homes. The children will go to schools here. Normally they would be sent to Denmark, but Greenland has been cut off from the mother country since the war. It has been under United States protectorate since April 10.

Enforcing restrictions to maintain silence about the vessel and its passengers, the delegation refused to let reporters talk to persons who are taking the children into their homes. One family managed to relate, before being stopped, that it would take two boys they had never seen. The children will stay "for the duration," they said.

Among the passengers was Kenneth Kirkwood, Canadian Consul at Godthaab, home port of the vessel. He was on his way home to Toronto, Ontario.

U.S. HAS RESERVES OF OIL IN COAL BEDS

Hydrogenation Process Tested By Bureau of Mines Insures Supply for Future

I.N.S.

WASHINGTON, August 20.—If the day ever comes when the United States runs out of oil fields, enough oil to last for 3,000 years at the present rate of consumption could be obtained from the three trillion tons of American coal reserves, according to the Bureau of Mines.

Testing on 13 types of American coal of a hydrogenation process developed in the laboratories of the Bureau of Mines indicated that some 3,800,000,000,000 barrels of oil could be thus produced and that such crude oils similar to crude petroleum, would yield large quantities of gasoline and other oil products.

Coals already tested range from high-volatile bituminous coal to the poorer quality liguites with experimentation going forward on other types.

Yields of as high as 168 gallons per ton of coal processed have been obtained, but an average of 50 gallons per ton would be more likely, since coals of lower producing quality would have to be used for fuel and power in the processing plants, the Bureau of Mines declared.

In any event, there is but slight chance that coal will be used as a source for oil until the very distant future. For one thing, according to the Bureau of Mines experts, costs of producing under this method are considerably greater than under the present oil field method, and so are alternative methods involving the use of oil shales.

Moreover, the experts said, there is little evidence that America is at all close to finding its last oil field. They listed huge areas in this country, Alaska, and Canada, as possible future sources for liquid oil, once the present producing areas are depleted.

Hydrogenation and other processes of producing oil from coal are now being used by several European countries, particularly Germany, where government subsidy makes commercial production possible.

NAZI EDUCATION HEAD IS VISITING BRATISLAVA

Dr. Rust Gathers First Hand Information on German Schools

Transocean

BRATISLAVA, August 12.—Dr. Bernhard Rust, German Minister of Education, who has been on a private visit here since Saturday, called on Premier Dr. Vojtech Bela Tuka and Education Minister Josef Sivak yesterday morning.

Later the German Minister of Education inspected the building of the German Party where he was greeted by National Group Leader Franz Karmasin, who introduced to him the local leaders of the Party.

Dr. Rust gathered first-hand information on the conditions of German schools in Slovakia which has been autonomous for more than a year.

In the afternoon Dr. Tuka gave a tea party in honor of Dr. Rust and Frau Rust. Members of the Slovak government, leaders of the Party and representatives of the armed forces were present.

Fools the Doctors

I.N.S.

SACRAMENTO, California, August 20.—Albert Moynier celebrated another birthday while the requests of 62 doctors throughout the nation to see his autopsy were denied. A year ago leading medical authorities interested in his rare case shook their heads and despaired of his recovery. During a period of five months, Moynier recovered from a deep streptococus infection of the nose, cavernous sinus thrombosis, double pneumonia, staphylococci septicemia and spinal meningitis—five often fatal diseases. Moynier is perfectly hale and hearty in San Mario today.

FINNISH PRESIDENT HAILS MANNERHEIM

Ryti Writes Commander-in-Chief of Armies in Praise of His Recent Victory

Transocean

HELSINKI, August 18.—On the occasion of the occupation of the Finnish city of Sortavala by the Finnish Army, President Risto Ryti of Finland exchanged telegrams with Field Marshal Baron Gustav von Mannerheim, Commander-in-Chief of the Finnish and German Armies on the Finnish Front.

President Ryti telegraphed to Field Marshal von Mannerheim that "in fierce and stubborn fighting our brave soldiers under your experienced and efficient leadership have defeated strong enemy forces on a wide front; to a great extent annihilating them, and thus liberating Ladoga, Karelia, its capital Sortavala, and large areas east of the old Finnish frontier.

"For these brilliant achievement and successes, I express to you my Field Marshal, as well as all those who participated in these operations under your command, my deepest gratitude and congratulations.

"This success is a further step toward peace. May the Almighty bless our arms also in the future with successes to assure us definitely of a national life and the security of our people, as well as the permanent peace for which we work.—Ryti."

Field Marshal Mannerheim replied: "On behalf of the Finnish Army and myself I express to you, Monsieur President, my sincere appreciation for your telegraphic congratulations.

"The battle scarred Ladoga and Karelia, and its capital, are now all the more dear to us after the fierce battles which our men have waged for them.

"The achievements of my soldiers furnish a guarantee that our people, with the assistance of Almighty God, will fight their way to a more happy future and to permanent peace.—Mannerheim."

FILIPINOS ARE PREPARED TO MEET ANY INVADERS

Democracy Is Not Monopoly Of Anglo-Saxons, Says Sam King

United Press

WASHINGTON, August 16.—Philippine officials are "confident that any would-be invader would have to pay dearly for every inch of Philippine soil he occupied," according to a lead editoral in the magazine "Philippines," published today by the Philippine Resident Commissioner's office.

"It is no secret that the Philippine Army has put the greatest emphasis on defense tactics—preventing enemy landings, fighting rear guard actions, raiding supply lines and communications," the editorial stated. It said that Filipinos were more loyal to the United States than many Americans.

Sam King, Hawaiian Delegate to Congress, predicted in an article published by the magazine that the future would see "citizens of the state of Hawaii and citizens of the Philippine Republic on guard in the Pacific, flying the banner of democracy."

He said that Filipino devotion to democracy and loyalty to the United States had conclusively disproved the belief that democracy is an exclusive quality of Anglo-Saxons.

"We in Hawaii are faced by the inference that Americanism and devotion to democracy is exclusively exercised by mainland citizens, but Filipinos, though not American citizens and though racially alien, have given the lie to this theory," he wrote.

Narvik Hero's Death Refuted

Transocean

BERLIN, August 19.—The reports circulating abroad asserting that the famous German General Dietl, hero of Narvik, was killed in action at the northern Finnish front, was officially denied by the Wilhelmstrasse on Monday. It is declared that the victor of Narvik is enjoying best health and that he is still fighting with his troops.

PRINCE OF SWEDEN PROCEEDS TO U.S.

Leaves Lisbon on Mystery Journey With American Minister Sterling

Prince Carl of Sweden and Frederick A. Sterling, American Minister at Stockholm, sailed unexpectedly aboard the United States Navy transport West Point (formerly the American liner America) when it started homeward from Lisbon on July 26, says a Lisbon report in the New York Herald Tribune, with American consular officials expelled from Axis and Axis-occupied countries.

The departure of the Prince and the American envoy immediately started speculation whether Sweden, endeavoring to maintain neutrality in the German-Russian war, might be seeking some sort of American aid.

Their presence did not become known generally until they boarded the West Point homewhard bound with 367 passengers, including American consular officials, their staffs and families; Chinese diplomats from Rome and Berlin and survivors of two ship sinkings.

The gray-painted vessel, heading for New York on the return voyage of the most extensive diplomatic exchange in American history, left at 6:19 p.m. Her cargo included 170 tons of luggage and an assortment of pet dogs and cats.

Among those aboard were 19 American ambulance drivers rescued from the Egyptian liner Zamzam, sunk in the South Atlantic in April, and Marian McGrill, American Red Cross nurse, who was among a group saved from the torpedoed vessel Massdam last month.

Miss McGill said she saw one of her best friends "chewed up" in the propeller of the Moardam. She flew here from London with K. V. Gwyer and a Dr. Jacques, Red Cross executives, who also boarde dthe West Point.

Diplomatic sources said Prince Carl told them he was going to the United States to visit friends. Mystery shrouded his sudden appearance not long before the sailing.

The Chinese party included 64 members of China's embassies from the Axis capitals. Also abroad were Sousa Peres, Brazilian Minister at Axis-occupied Belgrade; Ernest Chiriboga, Ecuadorian Consul General in Rome, and four Ecuadorian military attaches.

Meanwhile the Axis diplomats and their families prepared to leave Lisbon for their homelands. They had their last unrationed meals here and before departing bought huge quantities of coffee, sugar, chocolates and butter. Their luggage already held large supplies of cigars, cigarettes and canned food bought in the United States.

Co-Prosperity Essentials

The material mobilization plan for the third quarter of the current year just announced by the Planning Board, with the approval of the Cabinet at its meeting last Friday, is noteworthy for its features adapted to the conditions of more recent economic, political and strategic developments of international scope. The most outstanding feature is seen in the elimination made of "third countries" from the scheme of material supplies. This point in national policy is particularly seen in coal and iron, two essentials for industry. Under the newly adopted plan special emphasis is to be placed on the development of co-prosperity and of a self-sustaining entity in these products.

The coal reserves of Manchoukuo are almost common knowledge. Manchoukuo's position as coal supplier has become even more important in the past few years because of the newly found mines in Tungpientao and the east border region, close to the Chosen frontier. Under the current 5-year plan which is now in its last year, and which will have been achieved by the end of this year to the extent of 80 per cent of the original goal, generally speaking, the coal production of the country has been advanced to 28 million tons a year. This achievement is remarkable because the Fushun mine, the richest in the country, was considered at one time to have passed its peak stage of production, according to a Hsinking dispatch to the Nichi Nichi. The potential coal reserves in the country are given as 20,000 million tons, exceeding those of the United States of America.

North China's industry, although handicapped in many respects, is now said to have attained that stage which will be adequate to meet current demands at least for iron ore, coal and salt. Of the coal mines in this part of China those of Shansi Province are the best known. The estimated coal reserves in the province, chiefly clustered around Tatung, are estimated at the impressive figure of 127,127 million tons, including both anthracite, bituminous, and brown coals. Honan and Hopei Provinces follow with totals of 7,764 million and 3,071 million tons respectively.

Of the coal of French Indo-China both Japan and China have always been the most important importers for many years. The mines known by the name of Hongay are credited with estimated deposits of anywhere between 1,500 and 3,000 million tons. The annual production there is around 2 million tons.

Manchoukuo's production of iron ore and pig iron under the current 5-year industrial plan is to attain 400,000 and 950,000 tons respectively on an annual basis. The estimated potential iron ore resources of 3,500 million tons are favorably comparable with those of the United States of America. The iron ore produced in some parts of Tungpientao is of iron content as high as 63 per cent.

Chahar is taking a position of increasing importance as a source of iron ore. What is commonly known as the Lungyen mines comprise the six distinct mining areas of Yengtungshan, Lungchiapao, Hsinku, Sanchakou, Machangkou, Cholu. Whereas their aggregate reserves were estimated at 120 million tons in the pre-Incident times, their wealth is now known to be far more. For instance, the reserves at Lungchiapao which were given at 65 million tons are now definitely known to be 150 million tons.

Of the share actually contributed by the iron mines in the Yangtze basin no data have been available for publication since they passed under the new management. However, it is known that Japanese boats have for some time been calling at Tayeh as in formed times. A new source of iron ore to be taken into account is French Indo-China, although her resources for the most part remain unexploited. Iron ore is distributed all over the country except for Cambodia. The most important mines are those of Thai Nguych in Tonking and Pnondek near the Cambodia border. At the latter mine fairly large scale prospecting was conducted in 1924 with a view to the export of ore to Japan, but the enterprise was dropped for lack of transportation facilities. At the Thai Nguych mine, the richest in the country, the Taiwan Development Company of Taihoku has already entered the field by establishing a subsidiary concern on the spot. The estimated reserves of approximately 20 million tons consist chiefly of hematite and magnetic ores of high iron content.

In connection with the mineral resources of French Indo-China mention should be made of the rich reserves of phosphate rock which have recently been brought to light in the district of Laokai. The reserves have been announced to be "inexhaustible" and at any rate are believed quite sufficient to replace the Florida phosphate on which Japan has largely been dependent in the past. Preparations are being pushed on to instal equipment on the spot, making use of the water resources of the river Sonkai nearby. The new plant proposed for early establishment on this river is to develop an output of 200,000 kilowatts and provide power throughout the Haiphong area. That this enterprise will bring about a new era in the industrial field of French Indo-China is not to be doubted. From the standpoint of chemical industry, it is also important to note that the extensive coastline from the southern portion of Annam to Cochin-China is looked on as a potential source of salt.

In the industrial structure conceived for the co-prosperity area of East Asia, petroleum is conspicuous by its absence. Japan herself produces a fractional amount of what she needs for internal consumption. The oil concessions in North Karafuto (Saghalin) are at present negligible as far as output is concerned. Manchuria is considered a potential source although enterprise there is still in a preliminary stage. Prospecting has been going on at Dalai Nor in the north and over the Fushien area west of the town of Chinchow in the south. In the latter place oil was struck about two years ago. Meanwhile, Manchuria is contributing an increasing amount of coal made fuel. The manufacture at Fushun of oil from shale is said to have attained a commercial stage of development. Synthetic fuel manufacture is also about to get underway near Chinchow and at Kirin.

From the above cursory view it will be seen that the East Asia co-prosperity sphere abounds in great varieties of material resources, apart from food, forestry and livestock products of which, though not mentioned, fairly respectable figures may be given. True it must be admitted that no small portion of these resources still remain to be exploited. Prosperity must rest on production. But as evidence of progressive efforts under Japanese sponsorship it may be sufficient to refer to the new power plant just completed on the river Yalu at the capital outlay of ¥100 million, the second largest in the world, in point of scale, to the new Grand Coulee dam in the United States. This grandiose power station is to be followed by another of even greater dimensions when the dam on the second Sungari is completed next year at the cost of ¥150 million. These new power stations are to industrialize Manchoukuo in the complete sense of the term, an important fact since that country will be a main factor, in many respects, of the new co-prosperity economy and industry of East Asia.

WRITER RE-EXAMINES RELATIONS BETWEEN PHILIPPINES AND STATES

Major Political and Economic Issues Still Remain Unsolved Between Two Countries

By PAUL V. MCNUTT
Former A.H.C. to the Philippines

Annals

It has been 43 years since Admiral Wewey stood on the bridge of his flagship and, in a quiet voice, gave his now famous order—"You may fire when ready, Gridley!" And there are times now when, judging from appearances, the comprehension of millions of Americans of the development of the economic and political life of the Philippines seems limited to the spectacular stories describing the capture of Manila by the cruisers of Admiral Dewey's fleet.

While the United States was acquitting itself of its humanitarian task in the Philippines, we were adamant in our faith that the tremendous sweep of the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans guaranteed our national security from foreign invaders. The Nation, therefore, entered into treaty agreements that precluded it from fortifying the new frontier. Perhaps one reason for this is that these compacts were ratified before the tempo of world affairs was stepped up to a faster beat; before modern methods of transportation and communication were developed to draw the boundaries and the common interests of all countries closer together.

Erection of fortifications in the Philippines and the neighboring island of Guam is now being urged to prevent them from being seized and used against the United States in like manner as this country took them by force from Spain as spoils of war. To back up our status a san Asiatic power, the bulk of our powerful fleet has been shifted from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Even more recently this Government has announced that a fleet train—a flotilla used to supply fighting ships—has been greatly augmented so that the fleet can operate in Philippine waters.

Sea Power Ebbs

Shorn of the Philippines and Guam, American sea power ebbs. To the United States, 6,000 miles would mean the difference between a navy capable of fulfilling all its assigned functions, and one limited to coast defense work. It would also mean that we would leave a barrier reef of islands from Kamchatka to Borneo—a barrier that would intervene between the United States and the continent of Asia. In foreign hands, this barrier could block our trade and intercourse with China and the Dutch East Indies. Withdrawal from the Philippines would very definitely once and for all time resolve our claims of freedom of the seas and freedom of the air.

Included in the trade passing through the waters commanded by the strategic position of the Philippines are six of the 17 "strategic materials" essential to our national defense program. British Malaya provides the bulk of the tin for food-canning industries—and armies, as ever, march upon their stomachs; the Far East provides practically all of the rubber for the tires upon which modern armies travel and for gas masks; more than 50 per cent of the tungsten, indispensable in the manufacture of guns, shells, and armor plate; all of the quinine; and most of the silk needed for gunpower bags and parachutes.

Nearby India is the principal source of mica, with its many irreplaceable uses in electrical equipment, such as radios and spark plugs. The Philippine Islands themselves produce most of the manila fiber used for maritime purposes, and have large deposits of two other strategic materials—manganese and chromium.

Today, the Filipinos enjoy the highest wages and the best standard of living. The deadly tropical diseases—smallpox, cholera, bubonic plague—which long decimated the population, have been wiped out. Thousands of miles of good highways have been built and are maintained. Bridges have replacd bamboo rafts. The budgets is balanced. Taxes are among the lowest in the world. The reserve behind the currency is 100 per cent. The national debt is less than $2.00 per capita. Schools and hospitals dot the jungle and the plain.

American Political Policy

First is the political side. From 1898 to 1913 the Filipinos were prepared for self-government. While the word "independence" seems not to have been officially used, our own Declaration of Independence was read aloud to them. Our school teachers taught their pupils to recite Patrick Henry's "Give me liberty or give me death." No effort was made to "doctor" history. The Filipinos were indoctrinated with our own great epic. But, more substantially, a wide suffrage was established; natives were appointed as town mayors and provincial governors. They were practically forced to take posts in their own government.

In 1916 a full scheme of self-government on the American two-party model was established. This was done with a promise of future independence, and except for the highest executive and the highest judges, the whole political organization was placed in native hands. Where and when they failed they were taught to remedy their mistakes.

From some 65,000 American soldiers and 5,000 American civil employees in 1900, the roll has been cut until there remains row a garrison of fewer than 5,000 American soldiers, and only about 100 American civil employes. Thus, with excellent good grace and speed, Americans and Filipinos proceeded, through participation and partnership, until an autonomous commonwealth was evolved and a definite date of independence was set.

Next is the economic policy. The Philippines were not at first brought into our own customs and tariff area. There was a 10-year promise in the Treaty of Paris to grant Spain the same Philippine trade privileges of which we might avail ourselves. This, together with the most-favored-nation clause in treaties with still other nations, enabling them to claim any Philippine trade privileges that we might grant Spain, prevented us from extending special privileges to American goods in the Philippines until 1909. We did, however, grant Philippine goods the moderate advantage of a 25 per cent discount on our import duties.

This period, 1899 to 1909, may be termed an era of independent economy. The Philippines traded with other countries to as great an extent as they did with us, and their trade was in close balance. There was a slow but steady development based largely on an indigenous economy.

Economic Policy Changed

When 1909 came around and America was released from its obligation to Spain, the policy of an independent economy was changed to one of a complementary economy. The Congress adopted the policy of limited free trade between the United States and the Philippines. The goods of both areas were freely traded, except that the quantities of sugar and tobacco products that could enter the United States free of duty were strictly limited.

These were the only two commodities produced in the Philippines at that time, which threatened to become competitive with American production. The plan was to create an "economic couple" between the motherland and the colony in such manner that both would prosper and neither be damaged. The arrangement was fair and wholesome. Both American and Filipino producers and laborers prospered.

It is to be regrettled that this policy of a complementary economy was not continued for long. In 1913 the Congress removed the limitations on sugar and tobacco and granted unlimited free trade between the United States and the Philippines. This fact and the heightened demands of war resulted in an overwhelming development of the production of sugar, coconut oil, and other commodities, which after the war came into competition with the normal supply of like commodities produced in the continental United States.

Thus, the period from 1913 to 1934 is termed one of competitive economy. Philippine industry and government revenue were directed into artificial trade channels—artificial, because the trade was supported only by the fact that Philippine goods entered the American market free and there commanded a high price, and because we imposed high tariffs on the importation of similar goods from other countries.

Profit Not on One Side

The profit has not been all on one side. American export business to the Islands has flourished. It has risen steadily and the Philippines have come to be the seventh best customer of the United States, purchasing from 60 to 70 per cent of their requirements from America. The Islands are America's largest export market for wheat, flour, butter, condensel milk, cotton cloth, galvanized iron sheets, and a host of other items.

But a problem has arisen, which we alone can solve. We brought the Islands through progressive steps to the verge of political independence. On the one hand we sought to sever the ties; on the other, we chained them ever closer to us.

This problem arose from the insistent, repeated requests of the Filipino leaders during the 1920's and 1930's for us to fix an early date for independence—but for independence with a continuation, at least in part and for a considerable time, of the economic protection granted them. They also wanted neutralization.

Groups representing American producers and investors, who found duty-free Philippine products in competition with their own products, quickly took advantage of the desire of the Filipino leaders, brought pressure to bear on general policy, and aided materially in obtaining for the Philippines the fixed date of independence but without economic protection thereafter.

In bringing this about, there were off-setting American advantages which were not properly presented to the people. For example, the annual value of tobacco and tobacco machinery which we sell to the Philippines generally equals, and sometimes exceeds, the value of cigars which we buy from them. The annual value of the farm products—wheat flour, condensed milk, dairy and meat products—which American farmers sell to the Philippines exceeds the value of Philippine coconut oil sold for use in margarine. Philippine sugar has never replaced an ounce of beet sugar.

It would be well to correct some misconceptions concerning American-Philippine trade—misconceptions which have looked at the gross statistics of their inaccuracies. Many business men have looked at the gross statistic of American-Philippine trade (example, for the year 1937) and have said: $126,057,000 worth of goods imported from the Philippines (exclusive of gold); sales to the Philippines of $85,020,000; ergo, $41,029,000 lost.

Even some so-called trade experts have said that this situation was a calamity; that the United States would gain if it ceased trading with the Philippines altogether.

Negative Balances

While the United States has long been able to report a favorable balance in its overseas trade with all nations, there has never been a year when trade with certain countries did not result in a negative balance. United States trade figures for 1937 show: balance with Brazil, negative in amount of $52,000,000, or 28 per cent of total trade—reason, coffee; balance with Chile, negative $22,000,000, or 31 per cent of total trade—reason, nitrates; balance with Cuba, negative $56,000,000, or 23 per cent of total trade—reason, sugar.

Again, going to that part of the world in which the Philippines are situated, balance with British Inlia, negative $60,000,000, or 40 per cent of total trade; balance with British East Indies (Malaya), negative $226,000,000, or 92 per cent of total trade—reason, rubber and tin; balance with the Dutch East Indies, negative $90,000,000 or 64 per cent of total trade—reason, vegetable oil and rubber; balance with our East Indies, the Philippines, negative $51,000,000, or 19 per cent of total trade—reason vegetable oils and sugar.

Thus it seems that critics of negative balances might find a dozen examples more "horrible" than the Philippines. Follow the theory of these critics, stop trading wherever we have repeated negative balances, and what will have been accomplished? This much, we do know, would happen: Not a few workmen would join the relief rolls for want of employment; we would have to do without tea or coffee; we would use iron tires on our automobiles; we would cut down on the use of soap and sugar.

Solution of Problem

The United States wishes to solve the Philippine problem in fairness to all—we wish to solve it just as we wish to solve our own domestic problems.

On the political side, our flag and sovereignty should remain, allowing to the Philippines every ounce of domestic autonomy they can absorb, holding in our own hands foreign affairs, tariffs, immigration, currency, and public debt—scarcely more than marks of the necessary reservation of dominion. We must feel free, in case of any crisis, to help to preserve the democratic basis of the Philippine Government.

On the economic side, we should from time to time give the Philippines the best trade deal we can without injuring our domestic producers. We must admit the possibility of competition. The present quantity quotas on sugar, coconut oil, and cordage should be retained, and if other or new commodities come into competition with home-side products, they should be restricted by means of quotas. Our aim should be to assist with capital and men, with good will and such preferences as we can afford, the return to a complementary and reciprocal economy between the United States and the Philippines.

Without too great a loss of time and with the co-operation of the leaders among the Filipinos, we should proceed to a realistic re-examination of the needs of these people and the long-range interests of ourselves. If this study should result in a policy of a permanent political and economic relationship with the Philippines, it must be because the Filipinos want it and because it is in line wth our national objectives.

Laboratory Lightning

The modern Ajax defying the lightning is the electrical engineer in the laboratory, and he also has taken over the prerogative of Jupiter, to hurl thunderbolts. Defying the lightning is necessary if electrical transmission lines are to continue in operation when storms are raging. To learn how to obtain protection from the 20,000,000-volt flashes that are common in nature, Charles F. Wagner and Gilbert D. McCann have been using artificial lightning of 3,500,000 volts and a small-scale model of a transmission line in the Westinghouse Laboratories.

They have discharged artificial flashes up to 13 feet in length and watched how they acted in more than 15,000 experiments. The tests revealed that the best protection is a horizontal lightning rod strung parallel to the wires carrying current and placed over them at an angle of 30 degrees, at which point it catches the flashes from all directions and short-circuits them to the ground.—N. Y. Herald Tribune

Tubercular Mothers Live Longer

The old idea that it is dangerous for a tubercular woman to have children has been disproved by an inquiry carried on by Dr. E. S. Mariette, of the department of medicine of the University of Minnesota, who found instead that tubercular women who have borne children have a greater longevity than those who are childless.

Among women of the 18-to-29 age group treated at the sanitarium, the survival rate after five years was 61 per cent for those who did not have children, while it was 77 per cent for those who did. In terms of mortality, the death rate in this period for non-child-bearing women was 39 per cent, and among child-bearing women 18 per cent. Dr. Mariette reported her findings at the annual meeting of the National Tuberculosis Association.—N. Y. Herald Tribune

NEW YORK, August 22.—Cleveland's Indians made it two straight over the League leading New York Yanks today when they registered 11 hits to come through with a 5 to 4 win.

Marvin Breuer was chased to the showers after the Indians nicked him for three doubles and eight singles in the first six innings. Norman Branch finished the game and hurled no-hit ball for the last three innings.

The Detroit Tigers staged a sensational five run rally in the last of the ninth to nose out the Washington Senators 5 to 4. Barney McCosky contributed a homer with two mates on base

Alejandro Carrasquel hurled shut out ball for the Senators until the ninth inning. The Washington club built up its lead by collecting one run in the fourth, two in the fifth and one in the seventh.

The Boston Red Sox downed the Chicago White Sox 2 to 1 in a hard fought game in which both clubs collected a half dozen hits.

Bob Doerr's single scored Jimmy Foxx in the third inning to produce the deciding run.

The Philadelphia Athletics took advantage of five St. Louis errors to push over a 5 to 4 win over the Browns. The loss pushed the Browns deeper into the cellar.

Bob Johnson pounded out a homer for the Athletics and Harland Clift contributed a circuit drive for the Browns.

NEW YORK, August 21.—Cleveland Indians snapped their losing streak with a bang today as the mighty Bob Feller blanked the league leading New York Yanks. Feller struck out nine Yanks and allowed seven hits as the Indians came through with a 2 to 0 victory. The game was scoreless after the first inning when the Cleveland scores were produced by Roy Weatherlys three bagger and Geoffrey Heath's single.

The Boston Red Sox piled up an early lead to defeat the second place Chicago White Sox 8 to 5. The Red Sox led throughout but were outhit by the Chicago club.

Ed Smith was knocked out of the box by the Red Sox in the third inning and he was succeeded by Bill Dietrich who was mauled the rest of the game.

The Washington Senators took two straight from the Detroit Tigers, winning the opener 6 to 3 and blanking their foes 9 to 0 in the night cap.

Emil Leonard turned in another good game for the Senators, allowing but six hits. Louie Newson started on the mound for the Tigers but was chased to the showers in the fifth when Roger Cramer connected with a three bagger and John Lewis clouted out a double.

In the second game Sid Hudson allowed only six hits and Lewis continued his heavy hitting by knocking the ball out of the park in the eighth with one mate aboard.

St. Louis and Philadelphia divided a double header, with the Browns winning the first game 11 to 3 and the Athletics scoring a 12 to 0 shut out in the second contest.

In the first game Fred Chapman of the A's connected with two homers but the Browns broke loose in the seventh and eighth to win the game and enjoy a couple of hours out of the cellar.

Chapman connected with his third homer of the day in the second game while Bob Johnson knocked the ball out of the lot in the first frame with two runners on base.

Bill McKechnie's Cincinnati Reds picked up another game on the senior circuit leaders today when they downed the Boston Braves 8 to 5 while the St. Louis Cards and Brooklyn Dodgers were taking beatings.

The Reds are now nine and onehalf games behind the Brooklyn outfit and eight behind the Cardinals.

Eddie Joost and Frank McCormick had great days with the willow, getting seven out of the Reds' total of 11 hits.

Bucky Walters was on the mound and aside from a bad fifth inning and his foes under control throughout. The Cincinnati hurling ace allowed 10 hits.

The Dodgers were turned back 6 to 2 by the Chicago Cubs who nicked four Brooklyn hurlers for 13 hits.

Jake Mooty limited the league leaders to seven hits and hurled shutout ball in every inning but the fourth. Stanley Hack contributed a homer for the Cubs in the seventh inning.

After leading until the final frame the St. Louis Cards let the Philadelphia Phillies push over a pair of runs in the last of the ninth and treat home town fans to a 5 to 4 win.

The Cards collected 15 hits off two Phillie hurlers while Mort Cooper went the full route and allowed only 10 safeties.

In a night game here the Pittsburgh Pirates staged a four run rally in the fourth to nose out the Giants 5 to 3. Four hurlers were by Manager Bill Terry in an effort to silence the Pittsburgh bats. Al Butcher hurled the full game for the Pirates and allowed only one run after the first inning.

Biggs Captures Yokohama Yacht Race, Pestalozzi Muffs Chance of Sure Win

Before a steady breeze and over a choppy sea; William Biggs of Yokohama, a comparative newcomer to sailing, won his first race in the Yokohama Yacht club competition Sunday afternoon, capturing the combined four-points and Vice-Commodore's cup races.

Biggs managed to keep his Blue Wanderer well in pace with the leading boats among the nine craft competing. The final tabulation of handicapped time gave Biggs first place and brought the young Britisher a silver-bound whiskey decanter.

Max Pestalozzi, the Vice-Commodore, awarded the prize and might have retained it for himself with a better memory. Pestalozzi, who helped lay out the course, was far ahead of the pack throughout the race until, near the end, the course called for rounding the Juniten buoy on the starboard side.

To everyone's surprise, Pestalozzi skippered his boat around the buoy on the port side and headed for the next point until one of the other contestants charitably called out his error to him. He turned about and went around the buoy correctly, but then it was too late.

Carl Riber, sailing his Vinga, spurted into the lead and held it throughout the rest of the race, Jean Longy, sailing his La Belle Poule, came in second despite a bad start which left him trailing the entire fleet. Miss Oku Laffin, skippering the Chinook, came in third after very capable work at the tiller.

POLITICAL DEADLOCK IN INDIA CONTINUES

Two Major Parties Refuse to Accept Viceroy's Offer of Mediation

Reuters

BOMBAY, August 23.—The political deadlock in India continues, the two major political parties, the National Congress and the Moslem League, having so far refused to accept the Viceroy's offer for their participation in the Government.

Meanwhile, constitution of the National Defense Council has created a delicate situation for Sir Sikander Hyat Khan, Fazlul Huq and Sir Mohammed Abdullah Khan, the Premiers of the Punjab, Bengal and Assam respectively, and a number of other prominent members of the Moslem Leaague who have accepted membership on the council to further India's war effort. As a result, they face disciplinary action on proposal of M. A. Jinnak, President of the Moslem League, who contends that their action is against the League's declared policy.

The three Premiers maintain that they have in no way acted contrary to the policy of the League. They say the Viceroy approached them to join the Defense Council in their official capacity as Premiers not as members of the League.

Meanwhile, Congress opposition vis-a-vis the war is unchanged, and according to the Congress Secretary Mohandas Gandhi is satisfied with the progress of the civil disobedience movement which is proceeding "according to plan." The newly-formed Sapru Movement, which has accepted the principle of expansion of the Viceroy's Executive Council, is actively campaigning, demanding immediate transfer of the Defense, Home, Communications and Finance portfolios to Indians.

The Sikhs and depressed classes are demanding individual representation on the Viceroy's Executive Council. At the same time, V. D. Cavarker, President of the Hindu Mahasadha, who welcomed expansion of the Viceroy's council and creation of the National Defense Council, has cabled President Roosevelt, asking if the recent joint Anglo-American declaration applied also to India's future status and whether America would guarantee a free and equal status for India one year after conclusion of the war.

The Indian States are participating to the utmost in India's war effort, contributing magnificently both in men and money. As General Sir Archibald Wavell, Commander-in-Chief in India, announced in a recent broadcast, nearly 750,000 Indians are already under arms.

SYRIA AND LEBANON ARE EVER IN CHAOS

Region Disturbed for Centuries Due to Racial and Religious Clashes

For thousands of years, the populations of Syria and Lebanon have lived in a state of chaos because of thier racial differences and their many religious sects and schisms, says an article by Monica and Vena Cooper in the New York Herald Tribune, which continues:

The great caravan route between Asia Minor and Africa, the Far East and Europe, the seat of conflict of ambitious conquerors and a place of refuge for migratory tribes, Syria continually receives new infiltrations of Aryan, Semitic and Negro blood from Armenia, Persia, Irak, Arabia and Africa.

Under the present denominations of Syrians, Lebanese, Druses and Alaouites, one finds the most diversified and incompatible conglomeration of humanity—descendants of the Hittites, Phoenicians, Assyrians, Chaldeans, Persians, Greeks, Romans, Arabs, Franks, Tatars Mongols and Turks who came as invaders crusaders, pilgrims or refugees.

While a certain fusion has taken place among these hordes from three continents, the populations of Syria and Lebanon still are divided into many distinct religious groups which have guarded their isolation fanatically through the ages. It is hard to imagine any place where there are so many dissimilarities and well nourished differences. All these groups are rivals; all are rabid; each sect guards its own laws, its own customs and, among the peasantry, its own costumes. National spirit, as generally understood, is lacking, for each creed designates its own religion as its nationality.

In Beirut alone, the capital of Great Lebanon, a city of 180,000 inhabitants, there are more than twenty-seven religious sects, for the most part attached to, derived from or a mixture of the three principal monotheistic religions: Christianity, Mahometanism and Judaism, which had their birth or early development in these lands.

In discussing the heterogeneous population of Syria, Lebanon, Alaouite State and the Jebel Druse, Lebanese and Syrians are general terms designating the inhabitants of the two republics, including all the various sects.

The Druses, warrior inhabitants of the Druse Mountains and certain parts of Lebanon, are followers of Hakim, a deified Fatimite caliph of Egypt. It is said that tthe Druses believe in immediate reincarnation somewhere behind the wall of China, with a recompense of a harem of twenty beautiful wives if they die in battle, and this is supposed to account for their bravery.

The Alaouites comprise chiefly the Ismailities and the Nosairis, but include some adherents of other sects.

Descendants of Assassins

The Ismailities are the direct descendants of the Assassins of the Middle Ages, who today worship a descendant of Ali, cousin and son-in-law of the Prophet Mahomet, the wealthy Aga Khan Ali Schah, of India, well known in European society.

At the time of the Crusades the Ismailities, under the direction of the "Old Man of the Mountain," Sheik el Jebel, terrorized Syria by forming a murderer's guild known as the Hashishins, or Assassins, consumers of hashish, a plant having an intoxicating effect.

The Nosairis, also followers of Ali, are divided into four sects, dissensions having arisen betwen them as to whether Mahomet is the sun and Selman the moon; or if Ali is the sky, Mahomet the sun and Selman the moon, or whether God is entirely absorbed by the moon or, finally, if divinity, after manifesting itself on this earth, has become invisible and resides in the atmosphere.

The worst punishment that could be inflicted upon the soul of a Nosairis who disobeyed the commandments of Ali, according to their beliefs, would be reincarnation as a member of some other faith until, purified, he eventually takes his place in the heavens as a star.

The Kurds of Yezidis are refugees from the mountains of Kurdistan called devil or fire worshipers, and their religion is a mixture of the superstitions of ancient Oriental peoples with Jewish, Christian and Moslem beliefs. They are the descendants of the pagan populations of upper Mesopotamia and remained pagan until the third century. They were converted to the Manichean doctrine (Manes or Manichehus attempted to reform Persia), according to which the world is ruled by two great forces, the principle of good, or God, of which the soul is a product, and the principle of evil, or devil, of which the body is a product.

The Metawall are Shi-ite Mussulmans. Among the custom peculiar to the Metawali, two show the survival of ancient pagan practices: The "Kirat" or process of divination to decide problems, such as consulting beads or opening a book at random, and the "Motta," or temporary marriage.

The Bedouins, nomadic Moslem tribes roaming throughout the Syrian desert, form a veritable nation, though possessing no fixed territory. They are governed by their own tribal laws, which have been committed to memory and are handed down by tradition. The Bedouin has a strong love of independence and of justice, and a profound respect for human life, hating bloodshed.

The Circassians, refugees from the borders of the Caspian Sea, who are of fairly recent establishment in Syria, and the Turks, both are Moslems.

The Armenians, comprising different Christian sects—United Armenians, Armenian Gregorians, etc.—settled in northern Syria centuries ago. The recent influx of more than 30,000 Armenian refugees settled in different parts of Syria and Lebanon, mainly in the towns.

In addition, Syria and Lebanon are populated by people from Egypt Abyssinia, Palestine, Irak, Persia, the Hedjaz, Greece and other European countries, the French, and until recently, a small colony of Americans. The great mass is composed of Sunni, or Orthodox Moslems, who dream of re-establishing an empire similar to that of the Omeyades, but the Bedouins, Turks, Kurds and, of course, the Christians, will not hear of Arab domination.

The Minorities

The minorities are the Christians, chiefly the Maronites in the Lebanon mountains, where their patriarch resides in feudal state amidst his bishops, and the Greek Orthodox Syrians, who form the moneyed class in the cities. They have their patriarch also, whose residence at Seidnaya, a convent and village near Damascus, recently was the scene of fighting between British and Vichy troops.

The Maronites, of Aramean origin, were among the first of the original inhabitants of Syria to become evangelized by the Apostles. At that time they lived in the plains around Antioch and Hama, as well as in the Phoenician towns along the coast. During the Arab conquest the Maronites left northern Syria, fleeing from the Moslem invaders. Led by St. John Maron they established themselves in the Lebanon, to the north of the Ibrahim River.

Under the direction of their priests and wealthy landowners, well organized in feudal manner and protected by the high summits of the rugged mountains, they formed a sort of natural Christian bulwark, remaining unchanged by the conquerors and conserving a certain autonomy. Later they helped the Crusaders and advanced into central Lebanon.

The other minorities are the Jews, Druses, Ismailites, Nosairis, Metawali, Circassians and Kurds.

Each group speaks its own dialect, adding to the general confusion. Arabic is predominant, but Persian and Turkish are heard, with Kurdish, Armenian, Greek, English and French.

If these varied elements are governed badly, if justice is not rendered satisfactorily, if peace does not reign, if these varied elements are governed and the frontiers are not respected, who will be criticized? The conqueror or the foreign governing power, of course.

Yet who could even pretend to satisfy nearly 30 religious communities which, for centuries, have torn each other to shreds as soon as the controlling hand had been removed.

U.S. REDS DO A DERVISH

Young Communists Take a Whirl in Their Ideas on Army Draft

Max Weiss, national president of the Young Communist League of the U.S.A. which, like other Communist organizations, has made a whirling dervish look apathetic since Germany attacked Soviet Russia announced on July 19 that the league gave "clearly and unequivocally our complete support to the proposals of the Army General Staff for extension of the period of draft service for the duration of the unlimited national emergency."

Weiss, who said that the Young Communists were imbued with "an intense love of our country," as well as "a burning hatred of Fascism," explained the current state of the gyrating party line at a meeting of the league's national council at its headquarters, 35 East Twelfth Street, New York City. Until the fateful morning of June 22 the Young Communists were among the most vociferous opponents of any draft at all, let alone an extended one.

Pope in Gardener's Home

VATICAN CITY, July 19.—Pope Pius XII, foregoing a vacation at his summer villa, Castel Gandolfo, outside Rome, again this year, because of the war, intends nevertheless to find some relief from the heat—in the home of his head gardener.

This building, in the Vatican gardens, was chosen for the Pontiff's summer quarters because it is airier than the Papal Palace. Augusto Issopi, director of the gardens, who ordinarily lives there, has moved into one of the Vatican palaces.

Y.C.A.C. PLAYERS BEAT VICTOR TEAM

Elder Members of Club Defeat Ladies' Softball Players, 5-3

The Yokohama Country and Athletic Club baseball team defeated the Victor nine by 5 to 4 on Saturday afternoon at the club grounds to win its fifth consecutive victory.

Prior to the baseball game the elder male members of the club gained sweet revenge on the Y.C. and A.C. ladies' softball team by beating them in a return contest, 5 to 3.

Although outhit by the opposition for the first time in two months, the winners came through with singles when they were needed and also were strong defensively when necessary to hold the visitors sufficiently in check to gain the decision. The home team obtained nine hits, while the losers gained 11.

Y.C.A.C. Scores First

The Y.C. and A.C. opened the scoring in the latter half of the third inning in a big way, sending four men across the plate to obtain a commanding lead. Lady Frank, first man up, reached the initial sack due to an infield error. After Pete Kipp received a free pass to first, "Bucky" Harriss slashed out a two-bagger which brought in Frank and sent Kipp to third. Lou Haum grounded to the shortstop and Kipp crossed the plate on the putout at first.

Joe Koch made the initial sack on another infield miscue Harriss taking third. Kochi stole second on the next pitch, after which the next batter popped out to the infield. Then Fred da Silva came through with a double to bring in both Harriss and Koch.

There was no further scoring until the fifth, when Victor got its first run. The first two baters grounded out. Then Hara's fly to the outfield was misjudged and he went all the way to second on the miscue. Hiraishi got a single, sending Hara to third, after which the former stole second. Isa walked to fill the bases, and then Harada was hit by the pitcher, forcing in Hara. With the sacks still loaded, Harriss struck out the next batter to retire the side.

The home team gained their fifth run in the seventh frame. With one away, Kipp singled to center. However, he was forced at second on a fielder's choice when Harriss grounded to the shortstop. Da Costa was given a free ride to first, after which he and Harriss pulled off a double steal. Harriss crossed the plate on a wild throw to first.

Victor Players Pick Up

The Victor players reduced their deficit to two points with a brace of runs in the eighth. Suwama, first man up, started off with a hit to right field. The next batter popped out to first, after which Sato grounded to the shortstop and Suwama was forced at second on a fielder's choice play.

Sato stole second and then made third when Hayashi's grounder was fumbled by the infield. After the latter had pilfered second Hara came through with a hit to center which scored both Sato and Hayashi.

The visitors obtained another point in the ninth, which was just a single run short of tying the count. Isa hit to right and then stole second. After the next batter went down swinging Inouye singled to center, bringing in Isa. The next two batters were retired, ending the game.

Hara of the Victor squad gained the batting honors of the contest with two hits in three official trips to the plate. Isa, Inouye, Harriss, da Silva and Ray Lewis all got two safeties in four times at bat, while Suwama got two for five.

In the softball game the girls started off nobly, gaining two runs in the initial canto and one in the third to obtain a 3 to 0 lead. However, the men were not to be denied, and they made three runs in the fifth to tie the score. Another two runs in the sixth put the "ojiisans" ahead by 5 to 3, and they hung on grimly to their slim margin until the end to gain the decision.

The girls were short one player and obtained the services of Mort Cooke, who contributed considerably to the victory of the "ojiisans". His error in the sixth cost the girls two runs, which proved to be the margin of victory. Some of the cynics declared that Mort, who is a very good baseball player, must have felt sorry for the members of his own sex and helped the "ojiisans" to win as they would never have been able to live down two successive defeats at the hands of the ladies. Defenders of Mr. Cooke's integrity insist that even Ty Cobb and other great ball players made miscues at times.

Those playing in the softball game, umpired by George Edmondson and Serge Bielous, were:

Ladies' Team: Miss M. Prohaska, Miss E. Papendieck, Miss M. Stevens, Miss T. Planas, Miss M. da Costa, Miss J. Darbier, Miss J. Mayers, Miss G. Satchell and Mr. M. C. Cooke.

"Ojiisans": G. W. Gorman, A. Katz, C. Heseltine, K. F. Wiersum, H. Street, J. Blum, G. da Costa and W. A. Tomlinson.

Joe Louis Carries Wife Out of Court As Reconciliation Kayoes Divorce Trial

United Press

CHICAGO, August 20.—Heavyweight champion Joe Louis and his wife, Marva, patched up their quarrel Tuesday and the beaming fighter carried her in his arms from a court hearing.

Joe and Marva conferred for one hour and a half in a little room off the courtroom of special master Dwight S. Bobb, who was hearing Joe's petition to halve a temporary $200 weekly alimony ordered by Superior Court.

After their attorneys had left chambers and announced to newspapermen that a "perfect reconciliation" had been reached, Joe reached over and swept Marva off her feet and carried her out of the door. Marva dropped her plea for divorce.

"Boy," he said, "this is like getting married all over again."

Marva, in her original plea for divorce, charged the world champion with mental cruelty. Joe countercharged that his wife had become far too extravagant. He accused her of reckless spending in answer to her plea for alimony.

P.H. LORD CAPTURES LAWN BOWLS SINGLES

Plays Consistent Game to Beat W. T. Craigie by 21 to 6 in Y. C. A. C. Green

P. H. Lord won the lawn bowls singles championship of the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club on Sunday afternoon, defeating W. T. Craigie by 21 to 6 in the final on the club green.

To win the title Lord won three matches over the weekend, beating A. A. F. Shearer by 22 to 11 in the quarter-final on Saturday afternoon and then winning from H. S. G. Batter by 21 to 8 on Sunday morning in the semi-final. This event was rushed to give Craigie a chance to play off the final as he was scheduled to leave Yokohama this week for Shanghai.

The new champion played consistently well in his three matches over the weekend. Although all his opponents gave a good account of themselves, Lord came through with fine shots when they were needed. In the final especially, he showed great form to win the laurels.

In the men's handicap singles A. A. F. Shearer made the most progress, having reached the semi-finals. Although he has a handicap of minus nine he took the measure of R. G. Hill (minus one), one of the up and coming types, by 23 to 12 in the fourth round.

In the men's handicap doubles, A. A. Weiss and Dr. M. Weidenmann (plus three) two promising beginners, gained a 21 to 15 decision over P. Blamey and H. Fernandes (plus five) to reach the semi-finals. Another pair in the semi-finals is F. R. Devin and H. B. Street (minus five) who beat C. da Souza and G. da Silva (plus three) by 21 to 20 in a hard fought third round match.

Miss T. Planas, who won the ladies' handicap singles for the past two years, is a strong contender in this event again. With a handicap of minus six she defeated Mrs. E. I. da Silva (plus seven) in the semi-finals to gain the last bracket. She will play the winner of the match between Mrs. C. Verleysen (plus six) and Mrs. J. Koch (plus six) in the final.

Three pairs have reached the semi-finals of the mixed doubles handicap, all after close and hard fought matches in which the winners came from behind to gain the decisions after their opponents had commanding leads. These combinations are Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Russell (minus three), Miss F. Gabaretta and E. Dentici (minus seven), who won the event last year, and Miss T. Planas and G. E. Beatty (minus twelve).

Two of the best matches played to date have been in the international tournament which has just got under way. The Americans beat the Continentals by 21 to 20 and the Portuguese defeated the English by 20 to 18 after an extra end.

The Americans played well to beat the Continentals, last year's winners. With the count deadlocked at 20-all and the Continentals lying two, Ray Devin, the Americans' skip, sent down his last shot which bumped out the opposition's first wood to gain the verdict. The other three playing for the Americans were J. Pennybacker, J. Blum and H. B. Street. The Continentals combination was the same as last year's winning quartet, consisting of Miss T. Planas, D. Dentici, E. Dentici and K. F. Wiersum.

The Portuguese squad staged a great rally to win from the favored English team, winning the last five ends to score a victory. V. Rangel, the Portuguese number one, in both the last regular and extra end had touchers with his first shots which his teammates protected successfully.

Playing for the winners besides Rangel were C. da Souza, G. da Silva and E. I. da Silva. The English team consisted of M. L. Russell, C. E. H. Druitt, H. S. G. Batter and W. A. Tomlinson.

Results of matches not announced in previous articles follow:

EMBASSY PLAYERS BEAT CLUB ELEVEN

Y.C.A.C. Cricketers Lose by 140 to 83 in Sunday Contest

The British Embassy cricket team defeated the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club eleven by 140 to 83 in a match played at the club grounds on Sunday to gain their second win in as many starts over the port city players.

Superior batting was the chief factor in the diplomats's victory, five of them scoring in double figures and two of the totals beng the highest in the game, while only three of the club players could get more than 10 runs. The fielding on both sides was good, very few chances being missed.

Major K. S. Himatsinhji, captain of the Tokyo eleven, again played a prominent part in his team's victory. His performance, both in attack and defense, was outstanding. His 40, retired, was the high individual score, and he also obtained five wickets for 12 runs to get a bowling average of 2.40, the best in the match.

Embassy Wins Toss

The embassy side won the toss and sent in the home team to bat first. W. R. Bull and J. A. Sargeant opened the innings, and the latter fell to one of Stark's breaks when eight runs had been made. The next wicket also was lost without any change in the score, but S. Stephens then joined Bull, and this combination raised the total to 27 before the latter was bowled by Mason.

A. G. May then came in to partner Stephens, and they teamed well together. They gained runs steadily, accounting for 35 points, when Stephens was caught. With the scoreboard reading 57 runs for four wickets, H. J. Bird joined May, and the latter flied out when the count was 73.

The rather promising position was soon changed however, when the next three wickets were lost for only one more run, eight wickets being taken for 74. The last two wickets also fell rapidly, the side being retired for 83 runs. Play was then adjourned for the luncheon interval.

The British Embassy opened their innings upon resumption of the match, Major Himatsinhji and D.M. O'Neill being the first batsmen. The latter made six, including a boundary four, before he was bowled by May with the score being seven. P. H. Gore-Booth was out leg before wicket at 17, for the second wicket.

B. Kuskie then joined the major, and they raised the total to 44 before the latter was bowled by Sargeant. M. J. K. Stark then went in, and with his captain added another 18 points to the total before he was bowled.

Mason Replaces Stark

J. R. V Mason replaced Stark, and with Himatsinhji made certain of a diplomatic victory by raising the total to 48, one more than the score of the club players, before Mason lost his wicket to May. The sixth and seventh wickets fell for only four more runs.

However, A. H. Ballantyne and Himatsinhji made a fine stand, boosting the count to 124 before the latter retired. The former was bowled by G. E. Beatty at 138, and the last wicket fell two runs later.

Next to Major Himatsinhji's 40, retired, was Ballantyne's 31. The next high embassy scores were 20, 15 and 12, obtained by Kuskei, Mason and Stark, respectively.

High scorer for the Y. C. and A. C. was May with 27, and Stephens, the captain, followed with 18. Bull was next with 11.

Next to Himatsinhji's five wickets for 12 runs, the best average was obtained by Gore-Booth and Beatty, both with 4.00. May turned in a fine bowling performance by taking four of the hardest embassy wickets for 27 runs.

Mr. M. Ellerton's services as umpire were greatly appreciated by the players, as was Mr. C. E. Mayes' work as scorer.

ROOSEVELT SENDS CONGRESS MESSAGE

President Tells Lawmakers of His Meeting at Sea With British Prime Minister

The full text of the message which President Franklin D. Roosevelt sent to the United States Congress on August 21, which officially informed that lawmaking body of his meeting at sea with Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Great Britain, is given as follows:

"Over a week ago I held several important conferences at sea with the British Prime Minister. Because of the factor of safety to British, Canadian and American ships and their personnel no prior announcement of these meetings could properly be made.

"At the close a public statement by the Prime Minister and the President was made. I quote it for the information of the Congress and for the record.

"The Congress and the President having heretofore determined through the Lend-Lease Act on the national policy of American aid to the democracies which east and west are waging war against dictatorships. The military and naval conversations at these meetings made clear gains in furthering the effectiveness of this aid.

"Furthermore the Prime Minister and I are arranging for conferences with the Soviet Union to aid it in its defense against the attack made by Germany.

"Finally the declaration of principles at this time presents a goal which is worth while for our type of civilization to seek. It is so clear cut that it is difficult to oppose in any major particular without automatically admitting a willingness to accept compromise with Nazism; or to agree to a world peace which would give to Nazism domination over large numbers of conquered nations. Inevitably such a peace would be a gift to Nazism to take breaths—armed breath—for a second war to extend the control over Europe and Asia to the American hemisphere itself.

"It is perhaps unnecessary for me to call attention once more to the utter lack of validity of the spoken or written word of the Nazi Government.

"It is also unnecessary for me to point out that the declaration of principles includes of necessity the world need for freedom of religion and freedom of information. No society of the world organized under the announced principles could survive without these freedoms which are a part of the whole freedom for which we strive."

BANK RULES AGAINST INSTALLMENT BUYING

'Easy Term' Purchases in U.S. Frowned Upon by Federal Reserve Bank

Transocean

WASHINGTON, August 23.—And end to "easy term" purchases in the United States came today when the Federal Reserve Board decreed stringent restrictions on the lending of money to corporations financing such buying.

The Federal Reserve Board, which governs the Federal Reserve Banks in the United States has adopted regulations to come into force on September 1 which will make it difficult for banks to obtain credit on the promissary notes of long-term purchasers.

These restrictions apply especially to money lending and the buying of 24 specified items, including automobilas, airplanes, motor-boats, motor-cycles, refrigerators, washing machines, vacuum cleaners, sewing machines, cooking stoves, radio sets, pianos, furniture, and similar articles.

AZORES HAS GARRISON

Most Valuable Reinforcement Which Island Will Receive Leaves

Transocean

LISBON, August 23.—The most valuable reinforcement which the Portuguese garrison on the most endangered island of the Azores will receive is a contingent from the Portuguese infantry training school at Mafra, which is leaving Lisbon today for its destination.

These forces have received thorough training in the most modern warfare. Their departure was celebrated in Mafra as well as in Lisbon.

NEW YORK, August 23.—Vernon "Lefty" Gomez turned in his twelfth victory of the season when the New York Yankees stopped the winning spurt of the Cleveland Indians today.

In the senior circuit both the Brooklyn and St. Louis clubs tasted defeat and as a result the Dodgers still hold their narrow game and a half lead over the cards.

The Yanks downed the Indians 7 to 2 after staging big rallies in the fourth and fifth frames. Gomez yielded only six hits but was jerked in the ninth frame by Manager Joe McCarthy when the Tribe filled the bases with none out.

The second place Chicago White Sox continued their brilliant play by blanking the Boston Red Sox 3 to 0. The Chisox scored two of their runs in the fourth and the other in the eighth.

On the mound for Chicago was John Humphries who hurled his third consecutive shutout. In addition to holding the Bostonians to seven hits, Humphries doubled with the bases full in the fourth to bring in a pair of runs.

Detroit's Tigers were extended 10 innings to defeat the Washington Senators 6 to 5. The Senators scored all of their runs in the fifth inning.

Hal Newhouser and John Corsica divided the mound assignment for the Tigers and held the Senators to a half dozen hits. The Detroit Club nicked two Washington hurlers for 13 safties.

The St. Louis Browns rolled up a four run lead in the first inning and coasted to a 6 to 1 win over the Philadelphia Athletics.

The Lone Philadelphia run resulted from Sam Chapman's homer which was his 21st circuit drive of the season.

The Cincinnati Reds picked up a game on the league leaders by downing the Boston Braves 7 to 2. On the mound for the winners was Jim Turner who came through with flying colors in the pinches and was never in trouble after the first inning.

The Braves scored a fair of runs in the first frame but the Reds came back to knot the score in the third. In the last two innings the 1940 champs collected five more runs.

The New York and Pittsburgh Clubs divided a twin bill with the Giants winning the opener 5 to 3.

Hal Schumacher was on the mound for the Giants in the first game and rolled up his ninth win of the season in limiting the Pirates to seven hits. Mel Ott, with a homer and a double, and Norman Young with a homer, drove in all of the New York runs.

In the second game Elburt Fletcher and Frank Gustine doubled and Al Lopez produced a single to supply the deciding runs. Charlie Hartnett hit a homer for the Giants in the second inning.

AFRICAN CRICKETERS PLAY

Renew Rivalry With English With Both Sides Using Internationals

Reuters

CAIRO, August 24.—Test cricketers of England and South Africa renewed their rivalry in a match being played between the Gezira Sporting Club and the 1st South African Infantry Brigade.

Both sides include several internationals. Walter Hammond, England's Test captain, and Freddie Brown, England and Surrey all-rounder, are playing for Gezira, and Bruce Mitchell and Ronnie Grieveson, South Africa's Test opening batsman and wicket-keeper respectively, are among the South Africans.

The first day's scores were: S. A. Infantry Brigade 171 (Hammond two for 28, Brown four for 76); Gezira 62 for one.

American Derby Added To Whirlaway's Feat; Achieves Turf Record

Reuter

CHICAGO, August 24.—By winning the American Derby, Whirlaway, the American wonder horse, has added yet another famous race to his long chain of triumphs, which includes the big three—the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness Stakes and the Belmont Stakes—this latter feat having been achieved by only four other horses in American turf history. Starting favorite at 10/1 on in a field of five, Whirlaway won by 2½ lengths, completing the mile and a quarter in time equal to the record set up by Cavalcade in 1934, 2 mins. 4 secs. Buchwacker finished second and Delray third.

FAMED BASEBALLER SAID DOWN AND OUT

Grover Cleveland Alexander Picked Up in N.Y. Street, Drunk, Injured

Grover Cleveland Alexander, one of the greatest pitchers in the history of baseball, was in a serious condition in the psychopatic ward at Bellevue Hospital suffering from a fractured skull, a possible brain hemorrhage, lacerations over his left eye and a hip injury, on July 26, reports the New York Hera'd Tribune. The 54-year-old righthanded pitcher, who is affectionately known to the baseball world as Old Pete, was found lying in the street at the corner of Thirty-ninth Street and Sixth Avenue at 12:30 a.m.

Found by a taxi driver, who immediately notified police, Alexander was delirious when taken to Bellevue. He was placed in the psychopatic ward as being injured while intoxicated.

When he was elected to baseball's Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y., in 1938, Alexander was already among baseball immortals. In his 20 years in the major leagues, from 1910 to 1930, he had won 372 games, which is more than any other National League pitcher, one better than Christy Mathewson's record. He pitched 90 shutouts in the National League, another record, 16 of them in 1916. In 1915, 1916 and 1917, he won more than 30 games and joined Mathewson as the only other pitcher of the 20th century to win more than 30 games in a season for three straight years.

4 One-Hit Games in 1915

In 1915 he pitched four one-hit games, and led the league for six years in games won. He had a hard, fast ball, which he delivered unerringly almost anywhere he desired.

It is said that Alexander made as much as $200,000 during his baseball career, but since he pitched his last game for the Phillies in 1930, his financial difficulties and his drinking have become to the New York police as legendary as his pitching.

Alexander tried to make a go of it in the Texas League, pitching for Dallas, when he ended his major league career. He lasted for one year. He managed the House of David team for four years. He worked as a hotel manager for Johnny Connors, old-time bantamweight boxer in Springfield, Ill. He then came to New York and joined Hubert's Museum, at 230 West Forty-second Street, where for a dime a person could see Professor Heckler's Trained Flea Circus and hear Alexander lecture on baseball He made $100 a week for this. He answered all questions and every day he would tell the story of the greatest moment in his career.

It was not for his pitching during his heydey that Alexander is most remembered, but for one strikeout in the last game of the World Series in 1926, when the St. Louis Cardinals defeated one of the greatest New York Yankees' teams.

Alexander had beaten the Yankees easily twice, and in the seventh inning of the seventh game, he was called in as a relief pitcher with two men out and the bases loaded. He pitched four balls to Tony Lazzeri and struck him out, ending the inning. He blanked the Yankees in the last two innings and the series was over.

Drinking Night Before

But as important to the story as the strikeout is the condition Alexander was in when he delivered those four balls. All night before the seventh game he had been out drinking, celebrating his own victory in the sixth game. It is even said that he was far from sober when he walked out in the seventh inning to win the game. When people asked about this at the museum, he denied it, always disappointing the audience who thought it had been a marvelous stunt.

But when police bent over Alexander lying unconscious in the street, they found little resembling the great pitcher. His face was flabby and puffed; he did not seem to be 6 feet 1 inch tall. Patrolman Peter Dunn, of the Thirtieth Street station, picked his wallet out of his pocket and found an identification card—Grover Cleveland Alexander—and Peter Dunn gasped.

For the last several weeks Alexander had been working as one of the managers at Jack Doyle's Billiard Parlor, just below Forty-second Street on Broadway. He lives with his wife in an apartment at 325 West Forty-fifth Street. She said that Alexander like his work and enjoyed talking with baseball fans who wanted to reminisce on glories of the past.

In 1936 Alexander was found lying on a street in Evansville, Ind., suffering from a head concussion. It was undecided whether he had been run over by a hit-and-run driver or slugged. When Alexander regained consciousness he said he did not remember what had hit him. In 1939 he was injured in an automobile accident, an old leg injury became infected and Alexander was seriously ill. He had no money to pay doctor or hospital bills. It was then that Johnny Connors, of Springfield, came to the rescue, paid all the bills and gave Old Pete a job.

In the last few months Dan Parker, sports editor of "The Daily Mirror," has raised $2,659 through contributions for Alexander's rehabilitation. Mr. Parker had called Alexander to pick up some more of the contributions. Alexander went to the newspaper office. He seemed to be in good spirits and appeared to be feeling well.

AMATEUR SPORTS ORGAN NAMES 10 COUNCILORS

All New Officials Give Consent to Serve as Advisors

The Japan Amateur Athletic Association has announced the names of 10 councilors as its advisory organ, consent having been obtained from all of them.

They are: Colonel Kyuzo Kodama, chief of the military service section of the War Office. Captain Shinzaburo Hase, chief of the 1st section of the education bureau of the Navy Office; Kiyoshi Kitazawa, chief of the sports section of the athletic bureau of the Education Office; Katsuyasu Yoshie, chief of the training section of the population bureau of the Welfare Office; Shigenori Tashiro, director of the propaganda department of the Foreign Office.

Kokushi Kishida, director of the culture department of the Taisei Yokusan Kai (Society for Assisting the Imperial Rule); Yoji Minobe, chief of the 1st section of the 1st department of the Planning Board; I-ichi Kishi, chief of the 1st section of the 3rd department of the Board of Information; Toshitsugu Ueda, chief of the 3rd section of the 5th department of the Board of Information; Dr. Takashi Go, former managing director of the Japan Amateur Athletic Association.

MAZARIN'S CHANCES RISE IN ST. LEGER

Wins Third Successive Trial to Challenge Favorite Owen Tudor in Real Race

Reuters

LONDON, August 24.—Mazarin proved himself the most genuine stayer engaged in the St. Leger by winning the third successive St. Leger trial yesterday and will undoubtedly challenge Owen Tudor for favoritism at next Tuesday's St. Leger call-over.

Mazarin won the more important of the two trials held yesterday, carrying a top weight of eight stones 11 pounds, beating Lord Glanely's Devonian by three lengths over the St. Leger distance of one mile and six furlongs in the Trial Stakes at Salisbury.

Mrs. Dorothy Paget's Bakthawar, only a neck behind, was third.

Mazarin, owned and trained by Robert Dawson, conceded 12 pounds to Devonian, which finished fourth in the Derby, and as Mazarin was still running strongly at the finish, his St. Leger chances are obvious.

There were five runners.

Betting was on Mazarin 4-1, Devonian 4-1 and Bakthawar 9-4.

James Rank's Orthodox, winner of such important races as the Free Handicap, the Newmarket Stakes and the St. James's Balace Stakes, also proved his consistency by winning the other St. Leger trial—the Yorkshire Stakes—at Thirsk.

Orthodox, son of the Derby winner Hyperion, considered the most valuable sire in the last 40 years, beat Lord Rosebery's Felous by three-quarters of a length, with Mrs. Arthur James's Starwort third.

There were six runners.

Betting was on Orthodox 11-4, Felous 6-1, Starwort 11-2, Morogoro, second in the Derby and the Two-Thousand Guineas, started a 13-8 favorite.

U.S. AIR FORCES' WEAKNESS IS TOLD

Statement of Stimson Regarding 'Unification' Is Refuted By Military Authority

By Major Alexander P. De Seversky

United Press

NEW YORK, August 19.—The War Department has announced the "unification of its air activities in a new unit to be known as the army air forces." In informing Congress of the plan, Secretary of War Stimson emphasized the "autonomy" of the new set-up and its "unity of command." This language is unfortunate, in the view of air power advocates, because it may give the average American the false impression that our country has at last made an approach to emancipating its military aviation from the control of non-flying services.

It is important, therefore, to make plain that the new arrangement does not in the slightest degree meet objections to the existing system raised by proponents of an independent air force on par with the Army and the Navy. "Unification" is a misnomer. It is merely a rearrangement inside the Army itself and leaves our aviation splintered as heretofore. The new Army aviation set-up defended by Mr. Stimson may in practice avoid some of the internal departmental confusion, but it does not even touch any of the basic problems of American air strategy.

Issue Confused

Advocates of a separate air force in fact, regard the announced reorganization as a bold maneuver to head off true aerial independence by confusing the issue. In this they hold Secretary Stimson personally blameless since he is a lawyer, not an aviation man, and must of necessity follow the guidance of his war department specialists.

None of these factors is eliminated by the new dispensation. As in the past, generals and admirals will continue to treat aviation as an "extension" of the weapons and strategies with which they grew up, rather than a new military service functioning in a new element. Airplane types will continue to be held back in their full development by procurement arrangements geared to older, slower services.

Secretary Stimson's letter to Congress, arguing against a separate air force, obviously reflects the views of officials in his department who have always fought against relaxing their grip on military aviation. Every one of his arguments, however, applies with equal force to the Navy.

"In our form of government," the secretary wrote, "the effectiveness of joint operations depends on cooperation rather than on centralized control."

If this obscure argument means that independent air power is somehow undemocratic or contrary to the American political system, then it should apply no less to the Navy. By the same logic we should merely have a unit called Army naval forces under command of generals. American democracy has not suffered from the fact of "centralized control" on the sea and on land, and there is no reason to suppose it will not survive "centralized control" in the air.

The application of such far-fetched political theories to a problem of military technique has shocked aviation circles. If there is some mysterious flaw in our form of government which prevents the establishment of an aviation department, then it would condemn us forever to a secondary place in the world struggle for freedom of the skies.

Imaginary Flaw

Fortunately that flaw is purely imaginary. A separate air force is no more un-American than a separate Navy. On the contrary, real cooperation is possible only when those cooperating are equals, each of them free to develop its potentialities to the utmost without interference from another service.

No one can possibly object to improvement of the internal efficiency of any branch of the War Department. That has never been the issue under discussion. The question has been whether American aviation should remain arbitrarily split into two artificial segments, one under the Army and one under the Navy. It has been contended by airmen, from General William Mitchell to the present, that unified planning and equipment for achieving the freedom of the skies is impossible under such a system.

Despite the frequent use of the word "autonomy" by Secretary Stimson, the Army air forces remain as in the past strictly within the bounds of Army strategic ideas and Army domination of procurement. It is as a subordinate liaison officer that the chief of the army air forces meets with the Army and Navy Heads.

Lacks Aviation Strategy

The most serious aspect of the "compromise" is that it does not even begin to give America an over-all aviation strategy in line with the lessons of this war and the amazingly swift development of the air weapon. The Army presumably has strategic ideas involving the use of aviation along with its other weapons. So has the Navy. But our country lacks a strategy of air power as a self-sufficient service carrying through tactical functions beyond the scope of either of the older services.

Under the present system—and the new Army arrangement does not alter the picture in the least—who would command an engagement such as the battle of Britain? Would the Army carry on up to an imaginary line in the skies above the ocean's edge, and the Navy take over beyond that? Or would they flip a coin to decide?

America's backwardness in military aviation may be attributed, in large part, to the following factors:

1. Artificial competition between the older services for spheres of operation and duplication of equipment.
2. Development of war strategy by non-flying officers who ignore aviation except as a subordinated adjunct of their particular service.
3. Restriction of aviation procurement to the Army and Navy bureaus utterly unfamiliar with the dynamic and highly specialized aerial equipment.

NEW YORK, August 24.—Joe McCarthy's pennant-bound Yankees increased their lead to 17 games when they knocked over the second-place Chicago White Sox twice today.

The New Yorkers came through with a ninth-inning rally to take the opener 5 to 1, and in the night-cap they again came from behind to record an 8 to 5 win.

There were 44,000 Chicago fans on hand to witness the twin bill which was featured by Charlie Keller, Yankee outfielder who connected with his 31st and 32nd homers of the season. His team-mate, Tom Henrich, hit his 24th circuit drive of the year in the second game.

Charlie Ruffing was on the mound for the Yanks in the opener and recorded his 14th victory of the season. It was also the 243rd win of Ruffing's long major leagues career.

Chicago took the lead in the second inning but the Yanks knotted the score in the fifth. The game was then scoreless until the ninth when the McCarthy club scored four runs off the veteran Ted Lyons.

In the second game, the Yanks chased Thornton Lee to the showers with their barrage of homers. The big inning for the winners was the eighth when they scored five of their eight runs.

Cleveland's Indians moved within a half-game of second place when they won two straight from the Boston Red Sox, taking the opener 4 to 3, and the night cap 5 to 2.

Ken Keltner, Indian infielder, knocked the ball out of the park to record his 20th homer of the season in the opener.

In the second game, Al Smith limited the Red Sox to six hits and hurled shut-out ball after the second inning. It was his ninth win of the season and he allowed only one hit after the third frame.

Alton Benton recorded his ninth win of the year as the Detroit Tigers defeated the Philadelphia Athletics, 7 to 4. The Tigers scored in five out of the first six innings.

Two Philadelphia hurlers were nicked for 14 hits while Benton allowed 10 safeties. George Stanback, Tiger outfielder, hit a homer in the fifth inning.

The St. Louis Browns won a 10-inning thriller, 4 to 3, by executing an ancient squeeze play. With the bases loaded, Catcher Bob Swift sent a perfect bunt down the third-base line to permit Walt Judich to score.

Chester Laabs hit a homer for the Browns in the sixth and Jimmy Bloodworth of the Senators knocked the ball out of the park in the second frame.

United Press

NEW YORK, August 24.—The Brooklyn Dodgers held on to their scant National League lead when they divided a twin bill with the second place St. Louis Cardinals today.

The Cards took the opener, 1 to 3, to move up to within a half game of the Dodgers but the Brooklyn club copped the night-cap, 3 to 2, to put St. Louis back in the same old groove.

St. Louis sewed up the first game with a three-run rally in the sixth frame which was featured by doubles by Martin Marion and John Hopp and singles by Frank Crespi and Jim Brown. One of the three Brooklyn runs resulted from a homer by Joe Medwick, which was his 17th circuit drive of the season.

Pitcher Whit Wyatt won his own game in the night cap by batting in the winning run in the last of the ninth inning with the score deadlocked. His single scored Harold Reese who had beat out a bunt and moved to second on Arnold Owens' sacrifice.

The Cincinnati Reds showed they were still in the pennant race when they humbled the New York Giants twice, winning the opener 13 to 9, and the second game, 6 to 4. The Reds are now 8½ games behind the Dodgers and seven in back of the Cards.

Harry Craft with two homers and a double drove in six of the Cincinnati runs in the opener. Lin Frey and Bill Werber also contributed homers for the winners.

Both clubs used three hurlers and the Reds collected 19 hits as compared to 10 for the Giants. The big inning for Cincinnati was the sixth when eight runners crossed the plate.

Elmer Riddle scored his 15th victory of the season in turning back the Giants in the second game. However, Bucky Walters went in to take over the mound assignment late in the game when the going got tough for Riddle. Walter also saw relief duty in the opener.

The Boston Braves divided their double header with the Pittsburgh Pirates. They won the opener, which went 12 innings, by a 4 to 3 score but dropped the second game, 7 to 3.

Carvel Rowell, Boston second-sacker, won the extra inning game by singling to score John Cooney from second.

The Braves were not only badly outhit in the opener but also made five errors.

The second game was called after the sixth inning because of Boston's Sunday law. The Pirates won the game in the fifth with a four-run rally which resulted from three singles, a two-bagger, a walk and an error.

Survivors of Torpedoed British Freighter In Convoy Tell Harrowing Experience

United Press

ST. JOHNS, Newfoundland, August 24.—After 10 days adrift in the Atlantic in a life boat, 17 survivors of a crew of 23 from a British freighter bound for a South American port were rescued by a British destroyer and are now in a hospital here.

A story of suffering and horrifying experiences was told yesterday by Gregory Slabbert, of Johannesburg, Chief Steward; John Milner, of London and Sequror Olafson, of Iceland, who were among the rescued.

The majority of the crew were West Africans, five or whom succumbed from exposure and were buried at sea and one of whom went insane and plunged overboard.

The ship was part of a convoy which after nine days dispersed to various destinations. One night, in pitch darkness and with a heavy sea running, a torpedo crashed without warning into the hull and the vessel quickly began to sink.

The crew rushed to the deck, half clad. The life boat was bobbing perilously at the ship's side. Some crew members jumped into it, others clambered down rope ladders. Some were injured. The boat was half swamped.

Captain Hallstron stayed on the bridge until the last man was off. He then was making his way to the lifeboat when fastenings broke and the boat drifted beyond his beach. He went down with the ship.

Food in the life boat consisted of three 21 pound tins of beef, a case of milk and water which was rationed at intervals by the Chief Steward.

Most of the survivors were suffering from frozen feet and hands and were so weak they had to be hoisted onto the deck of the rescue ship.

They described how seas breaking over the boat made continuous bailing necessary for five days. The Africans became exhausted and were unable to work. The others stoically continued to bail and row.

Mr. Slabbert read the burial service for the dead before their bodies were consigned to the sea.

The assistant steward went delirious after three days and attempted to jump overboard but Mr. Slabbert saved him by holding him in his arms and fastening him to life jackets in the bottom of the boat.

The survivors steered a compass course for Newfoundland. On the sixth day one of them cried "land" but it proved to be a fog bank. On the tenth day they were rescued.

BRITAIN SHOULD SCAN SHIPBUILDING COSTS

British Select Committee on National Expenditure Urges Prompt Inquiry

Reuters

LONDON, August 25.—A prompt and thorough inquiry into the actual cost of building ships in Britain is urged in a report of the Select Committee on National Expenditure by its sub-committee on Transport Services.

This investigation of the sub-committee has been rendered necessary in view of the wide differences as to the present increased cost of shipbuilding as compared with the pre-war costs. The report says that though no conclusive figures are yet available some witnesses estimate the increased building cost at between 16 and 20 per cent, while others think it as high as between 40 and 60 per cent.

The committee has received a number of complaints about the designs of ships now being built and thinks that there should be more consultation on such matters between the relative Admiralty departments and shipowners.

The committee recommends that the question of the speed of merchant ships should now be reviewed by the Admiralty in the light of experience of the past 18 months. Evidence is forthcoming that the speed of ships now building in some cases is too slow for war conditions. The increased in a ship's speed, by enabling her to complete more journeys in a given period, may considerably add to the tonnage which she is capable of importing into this country in that time, says the report, which adds that faster ships will also have greater post-war value.

In many cases, pneumatic riveting has been successfully introduced and the report recommends that this process, which saves much time and money, should be made obligatory everywhere.

ITALY IS DOING BEST TO KEEP GREEKS FED

Sending Large Quantities of Food and Encouraging Potato Growing

United Press

ROME, August 22.—Italy today is waging the "battle of the potato" in Greece. The problem of feeding Greece has been the toughest economic nut the Italians have had to crack thus far, since Greece even before the war always was dependent on food imports to live.

Fortunately for the Italians, occupied territory in Jugoslavia is more or less self-sufficient as far as food is concerned.

When Italian troops took over the occupation of Greece there were hardly any stocks of food of any kind in the country. What the retreating armies had not destroyed had already been eaten up. The Italians immediately started applying all the system which they had devised during the fears of their own struggle to achieve self-sufficiency. Besides immediately shipping to Greece large quantities of foodstuffs they installed the system of "Amasio" for all unharvested crops.

Amasio (amassing) is a system in which the Government buys crops direct from the farmer and then supervises and controls their distribution. The producer is permitted to keep as much for himself and family as the Government believed he will need for one year.

In Italy all grains, sugar beets and olive oil are amassed. Meat is under a similar system, since farmers must report what quantity of livestock they have on hand and can't slaughter any animals without Government permission.

Now the same products are being amassed in Greece, with the addition of potatoes and other durable vegetables, and will be strictly rationed to enable the Greeks to survive the winter.

The Greeks always have imported more than half the wheat they consumed and Italian agricultural scientists who have been investigating terrain, came to the conclusion that the wheat crop can not materially be increased—hence the battle of the potato.

Experts believe Greece can grow four times as many potatoes as it produced this year, not only by diverting from crops but also by opening up entirely new fields. During their 12 years struggle to attain food self-sufficiency, the Italians have lived on much of the soil which was classed as unusable by other peoples.

Meanwhile, the Italians are continuing to ship to Greece as much food as they think they can spare without dislocating their own economy. The Messaggero yesterday announced with some pride that bread rations for Greek workers in heavy industries and road workers had been upped to 320 grams daily—about 11¼ ounces.

DANISH WOMAN CREATES 3 MORE WORLD RECORDS

Miss Regnhild Hveger Betters Her Time in Distance Crawl Swims

Transocean

COPENHAGEN, August 21.—Three more international women's swimming records in crawl stroke were recently established by Miss Ragnhild Hveger, a Danish athlete.

Miss Hveger holds the world record for 800 meters in crawl swimming.

Her new records are improvements on her own former time. In the 1,500 meters crawl swim she improved on her own record by 48.87 seconds, establishing a new time of 20 minutes, 57 seconds.

In the course of this event she eclipsed two of her other records: 880 yards in the new time of 11 minutes, 8.7 seconds as compared with the former time of 11 minutes, 16.1 seconds; and 1,000 meters in the new time of 13 minutes, 54.4 seconds as against the old time of 14 minutes, 9.2 seconds.

Round Trips Among 10 Hits in Last Five Games; Reiser Ahead in National

United Press

NEW YORK, August 24.—Ted Williams pounded out 10 hits, five of which were home runs, in his last five games to give him an amazing average of .407 and virtually assured him of the American League batting championship according to figures released on games up to last Thursday.

Cecil Travis of the Washington Senators rested in second place with a .368 average and Joe DiMaggio, out with an injured ankle, was in third place with .364.

Harold Reiser of the Dodgers blasted his way back into the National League leadership with a .340 average, sending John Hopp of the Cardinals into second place although he was only .001 points behind Reiser.

GERMAN SAPPERS BUILD BIGGEST PONTOON BRIDGE

55,000 Tons of Barges Used In Feat Across Danube, Tonnage Equals Bremen

Transocean

BERLIN, August 22.—The big pontoon bridge across the Danube, which enabled German troops to move from Rumania into Bulgaria, is the biggest bridge of its kind which has ever been crossed by any army, it is revealed in the latest edition of the periodical Vierjahresplan.

German sappers had built two emergency bridges and one pontoon bridge. Barges were used as the foundation of this pontoon bridge. These barges totalled 55,000 tons, equalling the tonnage of the giant trans-Atlantic liner Bremen.

Seven thousand and five hundred cubic meters of timber, 1,400 tons of iron, several miles of chains, wire cables and anchor cables were used for the super-structure.

The bridge is more than 1,000 meters in length and has a double track.

$46,000,000 Ravina Ordnance Plant Begins Operations in U.S.

United Press

RAVINA, Ohio, August 19.—The first shell-loading production line of the new $46,000,000 Ravina Ordnance Plant began operations unceremoniously yesterday.

One shift of experts from the Atlas Powder Company operated the four-mile-long plant, loading 75-m.m. supercharged shells which will be delivered immediately to the Army. Three shifts will be operated as soon as workers can be trained.

Details of the establishment covering an area of 21,000 acres have not been divulged, but eventually the plant will employ 9,000 workers, half of them women. The plant will produce howitzer ammunition, also anti-aircraft shells, and aerial bombs from 20 to 2,000 pounds each. The plant is reputedly the largest loading plant in the world.

Russia Built Warships But Did Not Notify Turkey as Treaty Provides

Transocean

ANKARA, August 24.—The announcement made by the German High Command on August 19 about the capture of Soviet Russian warships at Nikolajev, has caused much surprise in Turkish Government quarters, according to well-informed circles here.

Soviet Russia is obliged under the treaty of March 7, 1931, to inform the Turkish government of the construction of every new warship. It was stated here that Turkey had not been notified about the ships found in Nikolajev which included one 35,000-ton battleship, one 10,000-ton cruiser, four destroyers and two submarines.

U.S. PLANS TO BUY CROPS BELOW COSTS

Wisconsin Representative Says Defense Sacrifices Will Be Asked on Farms

Representative Bernard Gehrmann, Progressive, of Wisconsin, said he had received "reports" from "a usually reliable source" that Agriculture Department embloyes plan to start organizing farmers of 3,000 counties immediately with a view to having them produce whatever the department desires "at less than the cost of production" for defense purposes, a Washington dispatch in the New York Herald Tribune reports.

"The report I receive is that the organizing will be done by those on the department pay rolls such as local soil conservation men, F. S. A. employes, and others and that three or four will go into each agricultural county in the nation," he said in an interview.

"I hear they will ignore existing farm organizations and agricultural colleges."

Loyalty Pledges Asked

He said he had heard, from the same source, the employes would, have farmers sign "loyalty" pledges, to follow the recommendations of the department and "instructions to produce whatever the department wants and as much as it wants at prices to be deemed fair by the department."

"It is an effort," Mr. Gehrmann declared, "to get the farmers to produce commodities at below cost and at a sacrifice to them. These are indications the organization will be started probably within a week in the dairy sections such as Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa unless enough pressure is brought to bear so they will not dare to come out with this pledge."

Mr. Gehrmann said a "loyalty" pledge would be "an insult" to farmers.

"They have more than done their share in raising foods and commodities for defense," he said.

Wickard Announcement

Mr. Gehrmann's statement revealed that two weeks ago Claude R. Wickard, Secretary of Agriculture, announced the formation of agricultural defense committees in each of more than 3,000 farm counties to help the department organize and carry out crop control programs designed to provide the country with ample supplies of food and fiber crops.

These committees are now concentrating on efforts to boost production of dairy, poultry and meat products—commodities needed in large quantities not only for domestic requirements but for export to Great Britain under the lease-lend program.

Mr. Wickard has assured producers of these products that they may expect "remunerative prices."

NEW YORK, August. 25.—Jimmy Dykes and his Chicago White Sox ended their final home appearance against the pennant-bound New York Yankees with a brilliant 9 to 1 decision over the McCarthymen today.

Edgar Smith, ace Chicago hurler, chalked up his 13th win of the season as the White Sox closed their series and sent the Yankees out of the city on the last leg of their western trip before they return home for the final stretch drive toward the 1941 pennant.

The White Sox won the game in the second inning with a two-run rally, but added three in the sixth and four in the seventh to give the Yankees a humiliating defeat. The Yankees scored their only tally in the third inning.

The White Sox collected 12 hits and made three errors, while Smith gave up nine scattered safeties.

The Washington Senators dropped a 6 to 3 decision to the St. Louis Browns in the opening game of their double-header when Chester Laab and Walter Judnich hit successive homers in the first inning, after which they were never headed.

The Browns scored twice more in the second, once in the fourth and again in the eighth while the Senators scored single tallies in the second, fourth and ninth frames. Washington collected 12 hits during the game on Archie McKain and Bob Harris while the Browns batted out 11 safeties.

The two clubs fought out the nightcap to a bitter 3 to 3 tie which was called at the end of the tenth inning because of darkness. The Senators took an early lead by scoring once in the third, but the Browns jumped ahead in the sixth with a two-run come-back. The senators added two more in the seventh, however to take a 3 to 2 lead. The Browns pushed one across in the ninth to knot the count and neither club was able to score in the tenth frame.

Laab and Judnich were again the heroes for the Browns. Laab collected a single in the sixth inning, and Judnich brought him home with a round-tripper. The Senators collected 10 hits off four St. Louis hurlers, while Syd Hudson gave up 11 hits to the Browns during the game.

The Philadelphia-Detroit game was postponed because of rain, while the Boston Red Sox and Cleveland Indians were to play a night tilt.

In the National League, the Cincinnati Reds and the New York Giants, the Cardinal-Dodger and the Pirate-Braves games were all postponed because of rain and will be played as double-headers tomorrow. The Chicago-Philadelphia tilt was played as part of the Double-header yesterday.

URUGUAY IS IN THROES OF AN ECONOMIC CRISIS

Minister for Industry and Labor Belgrano Describes Bad Situation

Asahi Service

MONTEVIDEO, August 20.—At great length yesterday Dr. G. de Posadas Belgrano, Uruguayan Minister of Industry and Labor, enumerated the reasons for the present economic crisis in the country.

In a speech before the Chamber of Deputies he declared that the harvests had been bad, freight rates had been increased, the exchange value of the Uruguayan peso had declined; since the outbreak of the war shipping costs had risen from $6.35 to $17.50 per ton while the purchasing power of the peso had declined by 50 per cent.

Living costs in Uruguay have increased from 10 to 12 per cent. Fuel imports have declined as a result of the lack of ships; many factories have oil reserves of less than one month.

Customs revenues are continually declining. The Uruguayan Government has been obliged to consider levying an additional property tax the minister continued.

Therefore, he concluded, it is impossible for the Uruguayan Government to initiate measures designed to lower prices. Instead he asked the Chamber of Deputies to approve wage increases for government officials and civil servants.

Canadian Police Patrol Gives Free Ride To Escaped German Aviator, von Werra

An unsuspecting Canadian policeman in a radio patrol car gave Baron Franz von Werra, German aviator, a ride right to Police Headquarters, in Ottawa, after the flier had escaped from a Canadian prison train, according to an interview which appeared recently in "Das Reich," a German weekly published in Berlin quoted in the New York Herald Tribune. The interview was obtained by the weekly's New York correspondent, Paul Scheffer, shortly before the German aviator, who concluded his successful escape by reaching the United States on Jan. 24, fled to South America.

Werra told Mr. Scheffer that after jumping from the prison train he first thumbed a ride with the driver of a soft-drink truck. The driver let him out at a crossroads, and after trudging several miles in the snow the flyer was picked up by a police car, whose driver had been told about the hitch hiker, supposedly a Dutch sailor, by the truckman.

"I told him the story of the Dutch sailor, and it apparently satisfied him," Werra said. "Then he asked me for the addresses of my relatives, which I obviously couldn't tell him. He didn't ask me for my passport. So I decided to do a lot of talking, and turned to the subject of my money, four English pounds and two ten-shilling notes. I asked the policeman if he could change the pounds. He said perhaps a bank could.

"The man was friendly but he was also curious. I was suspicious that he might have unusual thoughts, even when he was explaining his police radio to me. I was amazed at that. And so we reached Ottawa. We had been driving for almost an hour when suddenly we curved into Police Head quarters, right through two sentries. The car stopped and my second benefactor got out on the left side, I on the right. He described to me the way to the nearest bank, we shook hands and I left the Ottawa Police Headquarters in the greatest of haste."

Werra then continued with the story of his trek to the St. Lawrence River, his attempt to cross on the ice, finding a small rowboat and rowing across to Ogdensburg, New York, where he surrendered to United States immigration authorities. He didn't know whether or not he was on the American side, he said, until he saw a New York license plate with the World's Fair advertisement. Then he found a man "with an eagle on the collar of his brown coat who slapped him on the back and said, 'You're my man.'"

ICELAND OCCUPATION MEANS NAVY EFFORT

U.S. Needs 5 Battleships, 15-20 Cruisers, etc., to Repel Reich Raid

By Rear-Admiral Stirling

United Press

NEW YORK, August 26.—Now that the United States has sent an occupation force to Iceland, it would seem to be mandatory that sufficient naval units be maintained there to guard against the possibility of a German naval raid.

Germany has one battleship, the Tirpitz. The battle-cruisers Scharnhorst and Gneisenau and one heavy cruiser, believed to be the Prinz Eugen, are at Brest, France, under repair of damage received in bombings by the R.A.F. They might be available at any time.

For raids in the Atlantic, Germany also has two pocket battleships, four 10,000-ton heavy cruisers with eight-inch guns and 10 smaller six-inch gun cruisers.

This sizable fleet, in case it should decide to raid Iceland accompanied by a large air force, must be reckoned with seriously by the United States Navy.

To Meet Emergency

A naval force in Iceland adequate to meet such an emergency must consist of at least five battleships, 15 or 20 cruisers, several aircraft carriers, from 30 to 50 destroyers, and a substantially large land-based air force.

The United States fleet in Iceland must be large enough to meet in an open fight any German raid from Europe, for it must be remembered that an inferior fleet, like the second best hand at poker, will lose heavily in a battle on the sea. America cannot afford to risk a defeat in which a majority of its warships would be lost, and that is the fate of an inferior fleet.

In addition to surface warships in Iceland, the United States should maintain a full-sized flotilla of its best submarines. These will be urgently needed by the surface fleet in any battle with the German navy, which would be supported by a number of its long range submarines.

Thus it is evident that the taking over of Iceland by the United States has involved the country in a major naval effort. The nation should be cautioned against a policy of too few and too late naval preparations to hold the island.

Depends on Hitler

That it will lead to a shooting war with Germany will depend upon what Chancellor Hitler decides to do to make that occupancy dangerous or even untenable. The United States must count upon Herr Hitler using the greatest effort to dislodge and defeat the American Navy to bolster German morale. America must be prepared with competent naval forces to check Hitler whenever he strikes.

The ostensible reason for occupying Iceland, aside from relieving British troops there and guarding the northern supply route to Britain is to safeguard it from German seizure. The United States could not afford to overlook the strategic value to Germany if that nation seized it and made out of it a formidable base for submarines and airplanes.

Whereas United States warships based in America would have required from 140 to 185 hours to reach Iceland, German naval units could have made the trip from Norway in from 30 to 40 hours.

It is not at all a new idea that Iceland actually belongs in the defense of the western hemisphere. As long ago as the time Alaska was purchased from Russia, Secretary of State William H. Seward was advised that "Iceland belongs in the western hemisphere and is an insular dependency of the North American continent."

It was contended at that time that the United States Government should also purchase Greenland and Iceland for the protection of this country against European aggression.

SIX BRITISH SHIPS LIMP INTO LISBON

Steamers Evidently Survivors Of Torpedoed Convoy Reach Portugal

Transocean

LISBON, August 26.—Six British steamers evidently belonging to a convoy the remainder of which was annihilated by German naval action, arrived at the port of Lisbon. The steamers in question are: the Lapwing, 1,348 tons, the Marklyn, 4,274 tons, the Petrel, 1,354 tons, and the Starling, 1,320 tons.

The captains of these vessels which, according to their clearance papers, were destined for Lisbon, declared that certain unforeseen circumstances had compelled them to call Lisbon. The Petrel had in tow a life-boat carrying survivors of other British ships. Fearing an attack by German submarines the captain of Petrel had not deemed it advisable to waste any time by shifting these survivors from the life-boat to the ship.

The crews of the six British vessels have not be learned. It is declared, however, that the Lisbon port authorities have already been notified to the effect that these British vessels intend leaving for a new port in the near future, the name of the latter not being known as yet.

According to rumors prevailing here yesterday, another ship which had also succeeded in evading the torpedoes of attacking German submarines is still missing since it was not arrived at any Portuguese port to date.

Lisbon papers, moreover, report that seven other British vessels arrived at the Tajo river, intimating that they had changed their course and called at Lisbon because they had received warning to the effect that waters off the entrance to the Straits of Gibraltar were unsafe owing to the presence of German submarines.

India's Political Problems Studied

There is a growing fear that the creation of Pakistan might endanger the security of the rest of India. All through the ages, before the advent of the European Powers, foreign conquerors poured into India through the passes on the northwest. The transfer of those regions to a state not controlled from Delhi would increase many-fold the vulnerability of the Ganges plains.

Commending his scheme to a Moslem audience nearly three years ago, Mr. Jinnah referred to the action of the Sudeten Germans in seeking the aid of the Reich against Czech excesses. But the analogy has a lurid significance for India. The loss of the Khyber Pass, the Northwest Frontier Province and the Punjab would place the rest of India at the mercy of an aggressor even more decisively than the loss of the Sudetenland put Czech territory at the mercy of the Nazis.

Different Viewpoint

The Sikhs' point of view is very different. They are a minority in the Punjab, constituting less than a fifth of the population. Yet before the British conquest of the Punjab less than a hundred years ago the Sikhs ruled the greater part of the area now included in Pakistan. They knew the art of enforcing their authority on the frontier and among the trans-frontier tribes with a firmness that has not been emulated by their successors. The "Khalistan Movement"—the Khalsa being the symbol of Sikh power—is based on the idea that the Punab, should it pass out of British hands, must revert to the control of the Sikhs. It has rapidly achieved formidable proportions.

The fear of a major clash between the Moslems and the Sikhs and the Hindus has had a sobering effect on the more practical Moslem leaders of the province like Sir Sikandar Hyat Khan, the present Premier. He has learned that the division of India on the basis of Pakistan must involve the Punjab in a civil war which would threaten the security of the entire country. Nor is he alone in opposing Mr. Jinnah's movement. The Shias, who form an influential minority among the Moslems, to the number of between 25,000,000 and 30,000,000, do not subscribe to the two-nations theory and would prefer a friendly settlement with the Hindus.

SPORTS OF WEEKEND VARIED AT Y.C.A.C.

Cricket Captain's Team Will Play Against Vice Captain's

Another full weekend for sports enthusiasts at the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club has been planned for today and Sunday, with cricket, baseball, lawn bowls and a mixed softball game being on the program.

Another added attraction this weekend at the bay city club will be an informal dinner dance this evening, with "Bucky" Shirakata's popular string band playing the latest song hits from 7 p.m.

This afternoon the cricket captain's team will play against the vice-captain's side in a match scheduled to get under way at 2 p.m. As the days are getting shorter the players are being requested to be on hand as soon as possible so that an early start can be made.

Feature Game Dropped

Another married versus single members game was decided on originally a number of the good wifeless players could not play, and the arrangements were changed on Friday.

On Sunday afternoon the ladies' softball team will play against the older male members of the club again from 2 p.m. The girls and the "ojiisans" are all square in their games to date, each side having won one of the two hard fought contests to date.

The Y.C. and A.C. baseball team will play against the Yokohama Third Middle School on Sunday from 3 p.m. The club players have won their last five games and hope to make it six in a row at the expense of the students.

Lawn bowls matches will also be another big attractiin this weekend, with a number of games in the various tournament events being scheduled to be played off today and Sunday.

P. H. Lord, who won the singles championship last Sunday, will play K. F. Wiersum, last year's titleholder, in a men's handicap singles fourth round match today at 3 p.m. Lord and Wiersum did not meet in the championship singles this year, and followers of this sport are looking forward to a battle riyal. Wiersum will carry the top handicap of minus 10, while Lord will start at minus nine.

In the international lawn bowls tourney, the English team will play the Swiss quartet on Sunday at 3 p.m., while it is expected that the Canadian squad will also meet the Portuguese four the same day.

Line-ups for the various sports have been announced as follows:

APATHY TOWARD WAR WORRIES WHITE HOUSE

Washingon Correspondent of New York Times Reports Roosevelt Displeased

Transocean

NEW YORK, August 25.—Growing apathy on the part of the American people towards the war is causing the Roosevelt administration great anxiety, Turner Catledge, the Washington correspondent of the New York Times stated this morning.

He reported that the administration is particularly worried over the outcome of the armament program, the discontent in American business circles the low morale of the American troops, and the one-vote majority by which the House of Representatives approved the extension of the term of compulsory military service.

Moreover, informed Washington quarters feel that President Roosevelt is not informing the nation to the full extent of the progress and the objectives of the armament program, this correspondent continued.

He also pointed to the lack of good grace with which the American public bore the gasoline rationing, which it naturally blames on the armaments demands of Britain.

RENOVATION SOUGHT FOR BIG 6 BASEBALL

Criticisms Made, Present System Does Not Attain Ideal of Real Student Sport

Some participants in the Big Six University Baseball League in Tokyo have come to maintain that a new structure should be introduced to student baseball, pointing out that the present status, especially baseball, is far from being a true student sport, reports the Kokumin.

Concrete plans for reform as entertained by some universities include the following points:

1. The chairman of the League should be elected by mutual vote among presidents of the universities or nominated by the Education Ministry.

2. Students in baseball teams of some universities are given all expenses including school expenses. Such system should be absolutely abolished.

3. Admission fees to intercollegiate baseball matches should be abolished. Students and those concerned with universities in matches should be given priority in getting good seats. Tickets for reserved seats should be sold to such an extent as to obtain money only enough to finance actual expenses for holding matches. Professors of universities must be given the best seats.

4. Coloring of shows should be eliminated from student baseball. Matches should be staged in the true spirit of students.

5. The Baseball League of the Six Universities in Tokyo should be enlarged to include all universities and colleges in Tokyo. Special prominence should not be given to the Waseda-Keio matches.

6. Since baseball is not an individual but group sport, press reports and radio reports on plays of individual players should be prohibited.

Meanhile, Michimasa Ogasawara, Director of the Physical Education Bureau of the Education Ministry, clarified the Ministry's ideas in guiding student baseball in his speech at a round-table conference held between representatives of the Ministry on one part and directors and captains of baseball teams of the six Universities in Tokyo on the other, Friday afternoon.

He said:

"Students baseball does not exist to amuse spectators nor for money-making. It is for training of students. It should be rather encouraged as a good sport in wartime."

Subjects of discussions made following Mr. Ogasawara's speech included the management of matches by the hand of students themselves and abolition of radio broadcasts of baseball games.

GOOD-WILL MISSIONS RESENTED BY LATINS

Yehudi Menuhin, Violinist, Says South Americans Don't Like U.S. Actions

Yehudi Menuhin, the young American violinist, just returned from a South American tour, criticized as "dishonest" and "superfluous" cultural good-will missions to the Latin-American countries. Such missions and the cultural relations bureaus which sponsor them do more harm than good, he said, in a New York Herald Tribune dispatch reports.

Mr. Menuhin, in an interview in his apartment in the Hampshire House, 150 Central Park South, declared that South Americans resent "artificial attempts to establish cultural relations" by the United States. He said that many of them feel they are being patronized and dealt with dishonorably.

This 24-year-old former child prodigy, now a married man with a home in Alma, Calif., said that "this good-will ambassador business is a not quite honorable procedure. Perhaps it is rather for the consumption of the American public than for any genuine good will. And that's where it isn't honest.

Wrong Impression Gained

"South Americans sometimes feel that we are not only getting their business but also that we are deluding our consciences into thinking that we are also doing an act of charity for them," he went on. This attitude, he said, "was symbolized by a certain cartoon which appeared in 'The New Yorkers' magazine, wherein an elderly lady was depicted asking a travel agent: 'What country needs me most?'

"Without any particular artificial efforts South America is leaning more and more to the United States," Mr. Menuhin said. "It is superfluous for us to indulge in artificial efforts which antagonize them. Just plain business and such things as the exchange of professors and students will do more than all the bureaus."

Cultural Influence

The United States is rapidly supplanting France as the dominant cultural influence in South America, and to the extent that France is losing ground, the United States is gaining it, he added.

"Of course, every powerful nation in the world is trying to lean the scales in its favor in South America," Mr. Menuhin said, "but the opinion and feeling of the people doesn't leave me any doubt as to their preference for the United States."

Mr. Menuhin, who gave 20 concerts during his tour, said that the larger South American cities do not have all the music they can digest, but he praised their educational and cultural life. Mr. Menuhin and his wife, the former Miss Nola Nicholas, of Melbourne, Australia, arrived on the Argentina yesterday.

Miniature League of Nations at Rouge Plant With 68 Different Nationalities Represented

"A racial wall? No, I don't think there is such a thing really. We are all men, equal, the same underneath. Political differences? Oh, yes. But they are artificial. Erase them and nothing remains between us. Now, there were those two Russians. . . ."

He was a Japanese. A technical worker at the Ford Motor Company plant. It was lunch time. He said those Russians were engineers who had come to Detroit to learn how to build automobiles. When they first saw him, the Japanese related with a grin, they stiffened, became aloof, suspicious, unfriendly. Their work threw them with the Japanese constantly, but they said as little as possible to him, remained formally polite, with that kind of politeness one reserves for an opponent in a duel.

But—and here the Japanese grinned wider than ever and his eyes sparkled knowingly—when they found one day that he had lived in the United States for some 20 years, and had little knowledge of, and less concern for, the political differences between the two great eastern empires, the Russians suddenly thawed out, became less formal, and finally friendly, with the wholehearted, frank friendliness that ties people with common interests. They were all engineers. They spoke English. They talked about making automobiles, and ate lunch together.

Interesting, you might say, but an isolated case. Not at all. I found in a day's tour of the huge Ford plant at River Rouge—and one would find much the same sort of thing in the Chrysler, or Chevrolet, or Packard, or Hudson factories—proof after proof that men of different, traditionally opposing races and nationalities can work and live together without a spark of enmity, or evidence of supposed inherent racial or national differences.

Various Nationalities

With a guide, an alert, well-read Austrian, I nosed around at will in the big factory. We chose men at random. Sometimes we asked a foreman to point out workers of various nationalities. Usually, though, we found it possible to pick them out ourselves. First there was the French foreman. He and the Austrian guide, on seeing each other, squared off in postures of mock belligerency, then threw their arms about each other.

"How are you, Pierre?"

"Ah, Victor, how iss it?"

The guide turned to beam at me as he suddenly realized that he had provided unconsciously an illustration of just the thing I was looking for. "He is my pal," he said, pointing at the Frenchman. "We don't fight."

"No," piped up the Frenchman, beaming, too, and slapping his Teutonic friend on the back. "We don't know anything to fight about." We found a brawny-armed Armenian. He didn't speak or understand English well, but when I pointed to a dark-skinned Turk working a few feet away and said, "How do you like him," he smiled from ear to ear.

"Ah, he's my fran,'., he said earnestly. He went back to stoop over a fiery-hot mold beside the Turk, nudging him and saying something we couldn't catch. They both looked up, smiled and waved.

Next we encountered a group standing about a large metal casting, apparently discussing some problem in regard to moving it; a Lithuanian, a Frenchman, a Scot, a German. It was significant here, as throughout the experience in the factory, that the men talked freely, frankly. They didn't think it a bit odd that a stranger should walk in and quiz them about how they got along with their neighbors. Anyway, we joshed the German about working with the Scot. The German shook his fist in the Scotsman's face, then laughed heartily. They both laughed. The Lithuanian poked the Frenchman in the ribs, and soon the whole party was roaring.

"Fight. Sure we fight. We never get along. Not us."

And they continued to laugh. They were still laughing when we left—though we should say, in all fairness to Ford discipline, they turned right back to their work. Then there was the Hungarian, with a kindly smile, who professed the warmest friendship for a Russian and a German working near by. Did he like all Russians? He shrugged his shoulders. He'd never thought about that. He had found that this one was all right. They both knew enough English to converse, enough to find, each that the other had the same kind of likes and dislikes, and hopes, and ambitions. There was no one around to tell them about the racial wall that by all traditional rights should separate them. They knew simply that they were living and working together in a free country.

The Russian, when we spoke to him, boomed out good-naturedly that "I like everybody," and went contentedly back to work.

We continued aimlessly through other departments, passing through one room where men sat in a long line at a bench performing some sort of checking operation. One group of four, because of the nature of the work, were somewhat set apart. We stopped and watched.

"I'm going to guess their nationalities," I said to the guide. "The first is a German, the next is a Pole, the next a Scotsman, and the other an Italian."

Right on all, the guide said. He knew them all. The racial characteristics were pronounced. But the differences stopped there. We didn't talk with them. It was quite apparent that they all got along famously. They worked, but they talked and joked together. The job must have required a marked degree of coordination, and they did it with ease and perfection.

In another department the foreman was a wiry little Scotsman. Any Italians? Sure. There was one right over there.

Born in Italy? Yes, Sici'y. "But I'm American," he added, with conviction. "I know nothing about trouble in Europe. Anyway, I gotta good job. The foreman, sure he's good man to work for."

Next was a big Ukrainian. He pulled himself out from under a car he was working on, and thought earnestly for a minute when we asked him if he ever argued with the Italiens, or the Germans, or the English.

"No," he said. "Now, you tell me, why shouldn't we get along all right together here?"

"Well," I muttered, rather taken aback, "you are of different races, different nationalities. You are supposed to be enemies with the others, with Poles, with Rumanians, with Turks."

"Who says we are supposed to be?" he wanted to know.

That was a poser. So we withdrew gracefully.

Another Frenchman turned from his job long enough to philosophize a bit. "Of course we talk about the European trouble, when we get together at noon hour," he said. "I argue sometimes with that German over there. But we don't fight. We never get mad. I've seen two Poles fight, and two Irishmen fight. But they fight over, well, personal things."

Talked Native Tongue

These men we talked with—and there were many more, Danes, Albanians, Hollanders, Swiss, West Indians, Letts, even Chinese—talked the language of their mother countries. Many of them have relatives back home. If there are any real walls between peoples of different races or nationalities, just because of those racial or national differences, those walls must exist wherever these peoples happen to be. If the walls exist only when those peoples are in their home countries, what is the wall made of after all?

Victor, my guide, helped me out. The walls are national boundaries, he said, largely artificial and political, and to some extent the languages. Piled on the national boundaries are fears and suspicions born of entrenched beliefs of superiority, and, yes, inferiority. "But you see how insubstantial these things are," he noted.

"But isn't language a more natural and tangible barrier?" I asked.

"Yes, but it exists and persists for the same reason that the national boundary exists, the mistaken belief that separation is inevitable."

Here in America, in this giant industrial plant, there is a common language. Here there is proof that the only wall between peoples is a nebulous thing, having nothing to do with race, ancestors, color of hair, or shape of head.

W. J. Cameron, official of the Ford Motor Company, refers to this leveling and welding machinery here as a "Little League of Nations." There are 68 nationalities at the Ford plant.

This world in miniature, where men live and work in peace, includes, for example, 2 from Afghanistan, 3 East Indians, 15 Hawaiians, 44 Jamaicans, 2 Uruguayans, 44 Arabians, 12 Cubans, 570 Maltese. Of the total of nearly 90,000 workers in the Ford plants in the Detroit area, exclusive of salaried and office employes, 51,250 are American born, 10,812 colored. The rest are "foreign," the largest group being 4,820 Italians. Next is Canada with 3,574, then Poland with 3,513. There are 2,053 English, 1,076 Germans, 1,885 Scots, 1,244 Hungarians.

P.I. DENIES RESTRICTION ON JAPANESE EVACUEES

Refutes Tokyo Reports That 200 Women and Children Suffered Indignities

Reuters

MANILA, August 26.—Tokyo reports of severe restrictions imposed on 200 Japanese women and children who sailed for Shanghai on the D'artagnan yesterday are denied here. They sailed after their baggage had been searched and they had been prohibited from taking more than specified amounts of cash and securities in accordance with freezing regulations.

A spokesman of the High Commissioner's office said Tokyo reports that the departing Japanese had been subjected to severe difficulties were "quite exaggerated." Baggage had been inspected in conformity with the freezing order but the search was conducted fairly and reports of stripping were untrue, he added.

The seized cash and securities will be held in trust and returned unless war comes. Some cash and bonds were seized from the ship, the amounts not being disclosed.

The Japanese Consul-General conferred with Customs authorities regarding the arrest of 17 Japanese for illegal fishing in Manila Bay and was told that the detained men had not obtained permits. Japanese firms and individuals holding long-term leases in Davao, which is the chief hemp region, are petitioning for renewals.

It is indicated here that they will be rejected in accordance with the Philippines Government's policy of nationalization of natural resources. Each lease for areas of from 500 to 1,000 hectares is expiring shortly.

offered France on the eve of its capitulation.

Furthermore, the immediate recognition of India as a Dominion would guarantee its representation at the Peace Conference through a delegation of its own choice. At Versailles there were two delegates from India, Lord Sinha and the Maharaja of Bikaner; but they were there only as members of the British Empire team. At the next peace conference India expects independent representation, so that its leaders may make their own contribution to the building of a new world order and thus prevent the formation of regional federations based on distinctions of race and color.

GUINEA PIGS MAKE TRIP TO NEW YORK

Clipper Journey From Lisbon Completed as Venture in Typhus Combat

Eight guinea pigs, which may provide the means of effectually combating typhus, the contagion that often follows the devastation of war, arrived at La Guardia field recently on the American Clipper of Pan American Airways. The animals traveled over the Atlantic by air by special permission of the company, which ordinarily does not allow animals on its clippers, the New York Herald Tribune reports.

The American Clipper, completing its first trip to Lisbon and return, having been transferred from the Pacific run, brought fifty passengers from Europe, the Azores and Bermuda and 2,008 pounds of mail. Capt. Charles R. Titus was in command.

The guinea pigs, which were in a large crate, were in the care of Dr. John C. Snyder, who went to Spain four months ago to study typhus for the International Health Division of the Rockefeller Foundation. The guinea pigs have been inoculated with four different strains of typhus, he said, and indicated the experiments to be conducted with them might be of vital importance in preventing epidemics of the disease.

Epidemic in Spain

A mild epidemic of typhus was breaking out in Spain when he arrived there, Dr. Snyder said. It spread for a while but now has subsided with the coming of warm weather. He estimated its mortality as 10 per cent.

Dr. Snyder took with him to Madrid two types of new vaccines, one prepared by Dr. Harold Cox, of the United States Public Health Service in New York, and the other by Dr. Ruiz Castan edain Mexico City. These vaccines were used to inoculate several thousand people in Spain, but Dr. Synder insisted that it was too early to tell whether they helped to prevent the disease.

"We are still experimenting and we shall know only next year whether our new method of fighting typhus is effective," he said.

Dr. Snyder explained that until recently no anti-typhus vaccines had existed. Typhus, he said, is a disease transmitted by body lice, which spreads from malnutrition, lack of soap, poor housing conditions and generals poverty resulting from war. The guinea pigs were freshly inoculated with strains of typhus, and the effects of the inoculation could be studied in a few days. D. Snyder will take his animals to the Rockefeller Foundation laboratories. Sixty-sixth Street and York Avenue. They seemed to have stood the journey well.

Family of 9 Arrives

An American family of nine arrived on a clipper from unoccupied France. They were Lawrence E. Vail, writer and painter; his first wife, Mrs. Marguerite S. Guggenheim, daughter of Benjamin Guggenheim, a member of the copper mining family who went down with the Titanic; his second wife, Kay Boyle the novelist, and his six children, Michael, 18 years old, and Pegeen, 16, from his first marriage, and Sharon, 14, Apple Joan, 11, Katherine, seven and Clover, two from the second marriage. With them came also a 15-year-old French girl, Jacqueline Ventadour, on her way to join an aunt in Morristown, N. J.

The Vail family has lived in France for many years. Vail passed the five last years in Megeve, in the Alps, where, he said, food conditions were better than in larger cities. But things were getting too difficult now, he added; it was hard to receive money from the United States; milk was not easy to find for children. So they decided to return to America. They traveled by train through France and Spain.

GOLF FINALISTS DECIDED

Ward and Bishop Meeting to Decide U.S. National Amateur Title

Domei

OMAHA, August 29.—The fifth day of the National Amateur Golf Tournament being held here, found Ward matched against Riegels and Bishop against Abbott in the semi-final 36-hole match play. Despite clear weather, a stiff south wind proved a serious handicap to the players.

In the upper bracket, Ward showed spectacular form and managed to down Riegels by a comfortable margin. Bishop, the New England titleholder, had a harder time with Abbott. With the 35th hole all square, he barely managed to win the last hole and eased into the finals by the score of 1 up.

Ward and Bishop are scheduled to tangle for the title tomorrow.

APPOINTMENT CONFIRMED

Tugwell Selection for Puerto Rico Post Approved by Senate

Transocean

WASHINGTON, August 26.—After more than usual debate, the Senate today confirmed the president's appointment of Rexford Guy Tugwell to be Governor-General of Puerto Rico.

Mr. Tugwell was one of the closest advisers of President Roosevelt during his first term in office.

The appointment of Mr. Tugwell was strongly opposed by Senator Robert H. Taft (Republican, Ohio). He said that Mr. Tugwell strongly sympathized with the communist programs instituted in Russia; that he believes in the expropriation of the propertied class; that he does not cherish American ideals; and that he is a champion of collectivism.

NEW YORK, August 30.—Pushing over all of their runs in the fifth inning the Brooklyn Dodgers today downed the New York Giants 5 to 4 and increased their lead to a game and a half over the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Dodgers take on the Giants again tomorrow while the Cards will be up against the third place Cincinnati Reds.

Arnold Owen started the Brooklyn rally with a two bagger. Before the side was retired Fred Walker had hit a two bagger and Joe Medwick produced singles.

Wyatt was on the hill for the Dodgers and though nicked for 10 hits he scattered them out well. Three hurlers were used by the Giants.

In the only other Major Leagues game the St. Louis Browns piled up an early lead to defeat the Chicago White Sox 5 to 2.

St. Louis scored two runs in the first inning on Don Heffner's walk, George McQuinns three bagger and Luce Appling's fumble. In the next inning they sewed up the game with John Bernardino's walk, Harland Clift's single and Pitcher Elden Auker's sacrifice fly.

Yanks Move Closer to Pennant

United Press

NEW YORK, August 28.—Joe McCarthy's Yanks moved one step nearer the American League pennant when they turned back the St. Louis Browns 8 to 5 in a ten inning battle today.

The Yanks piled up an early lead and apparently tried to coast through but the Browns slowly overtook their foes and then knotted the score in the ninth.

During the first extra inning the New Yorkers showed new life and pushed over three runs before they were retired.

Four moundsmen were used by St. Louis while McCarthy sent three hurlers into the game.

The Chicago White Sox remained 17 games behind the Yanks by blanking the Washington Senators 4 to 0. All of the Chisox runs were scored in the first five innings.

Thornton Lee capably handled the mound assignment for Chicago and limited his foes to four hits. Three Washington hurlers allowed ten safeties.

The Cleveland Indians dropped 19 games behind the Yankees in dropping a 5 to 3 decision to the Philadelphia Athletics. The Indians led until the seventh inning, when the A's pushed over three runs.

John Babich and Bill Beckman worked on the hill for Connie Mack's club and allowed seven hits. The Indians also used two hurlers but Al Milnar hurled most of the game. Delmar Banker's Detroit Tigers pushed over five runs in the seventh inning to nose out the Boston Red Sox 8 to 7. Both Clubs were hitting the ball hard with the Tigers getting a dozen safeties and the Red Sox ten.

The hard fighting St. Louis Cardinals cut the lead of the idle Brooklyn Dodgers to one game when they blanked the New York Giants 5 to 0 in the feature game of the National League play today.

Largely responsible for reducing the lead of the Dodgers was 20-year-old Howard Pollett, a rookie from Texas, who held the Giants to three scattered hits.

The Cards scored all of their runs in the fourth inning and nicked three New York hurlers for 11 safeties. Tom Earley turned the Chicago Cubs back with two hits as the Boston Braves came through with a 2 to 1 victory.

Boston scored its runs in the first and fourth frames. Phil Carvetta, with a homer in the ninth, saved the Cubs from a shutout. Hits were few and far between with the Cubs getting only two off Earley and the Braves nicking a pair of Chicago hurlers for four safeties.

The Pittsburgh Pirates scored all of their runs in the ninth inning to register a 3 to 2 win over the Philadelphia Phillies. Two outs were against the Pirates when they started the rally.

Three Phillie hurlers allowed 10 hits while two Pittsburgh Pitchers allowed nine safeties.

National Loop Unchanged

United Press

NEW YORK, August 27.—The hectic National League battle between the Brooklyn Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals remained unchanged today when they both emerged victorious.

The Dodgers nosed out the stubborn third place Cincinnati Reds by a 4 to 2 score while the second place Cards turned back the New York Giants, 8 to 5.

Walt Higbe hurled the Dodgers to their 80th victory of the season. He yelded seven hits and opposed Johnny Vander Meer, who was chased from the mound in the eighth inning.

Brooklyn led throughout and scored single runs in the first, third, fourth and seventh innings. Both of the Cincinnati scores were made in the eighth frame.

The Cards chased Carl Hubbell from the mound in the seventh inning as they came from behind to defeat the Giants. The defensive play of the St. Louis club was weak, but they were hitting the ball hard, nicking two Giant hurlers for fifteen safeties.

The big inning for St. Louis was the the seventh when they knotted the score with a three run rally. In the eighth they forged ahead with a two run scoring spree and then they added one more for good measure in the ninth.

The Pittsburgh Pirates battered four Philadelphia hurlers for 21 safeties in scoring a 12 to 2 victory over the senior circuit's cellar club.

John Leanning went the route for the Pirates and held the Phillies to ten hits. He hurled shutout ball until the seventh inning.

Ark Vaughan, Pirate shortstop, led the batting attack by connecting with five safeties out of six trips to the plate. Three of the hits were doubles.

The Chicago Cubs divided a twin bill with the Boston Braves, losing the opener, 6 to 0, and coming back with a ninth inning rally to win the nightcap, 6 to 4.

In the first game, the Braves scored all of their six runs in the third inning on a series of singles and a pair of Chicago errors.

Manuel Salvo turned in this best performance of the year in limiting the Cubs to five hits. Claude Passeau was on the hill for Chicago and looked good aside from the disastrous sixth inning.

In the seond game, Bill Nicholson started the scoring for the Cubs with a homer in the second inning. In the ninth inning, when trailing by one run, the Cubs pushed over three scores to take the game.

The New York Yankees increased their lead to 17 games when they turned back the St. Louis Browns, 11 to 1.

The Yanks collected five runs in the third inning and six more in the fourth. Ernie Bonham was on the mound for the winners and held the Browns to three paltry hits.

Wiersum Defeats Lord in Lawn Bowls Meet At Bay City Club in Hard Fought Battle

K. F. Wiersum defeated P. H. Lord by 21 to 20 in a fourth round match of the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club men's handicap singles lawn bowls tournament on the club green Saturday afternoon. The winner is now in the semi-finals of the event.

As expected, the game between these two outstanding players was a battle royal with the bowling being of a very high standard, and the outcome was in doubt until the final shot.

Lord, who won the club singles championship a week ago, held the upper hand at first and worked off his minus nine handicap fairly rapidly. Wiersum, last year's champion, who carries the heaviest impost of minus ten, gradually cut down the lead and tied the score at 13-all.

However, Lord forged ahead again and gained a 20 to 16 advantage. With his opponent lying two for game, Wiersum's last shot on the next end bumped out Lord's second wood and came to rest half a foot from the jack, an inch closer than his adversary's best effort, making the score 20 to 17.

On the next end again Wiersum saved the situation with his last wood, taking out his opponent's toucher to lie two and cut Lord's lead to a single point. The count was deadlocked at 20-all on the ensuing end, and Wiersum gained the victory with another lone point on the deciding one.

In the only other match played last week, C. V. Grant and R. G. Hill defeated J. Blum and B. G. Ryan by 21 to 7 in the men's handicap doubles. The victory put Grant and Hill in the semi-finals of this event. Both teams started from scratch.

A number of contests scheduled for the weekend were postponed on account of rain.

SOLIDARITY ENJOYED BY SPAIN, PORTUGAL

Non-Aggression Pact Between Two Countries May Operate As Danger Noted

Transocean

BERLIN, August 28.—American aspirations toward the Azores are possibly already making operative the protocol attached to the Spanish-Portugese Non-Aggression Pact, Dr. Heinz Barth, the noted Madrid correspondent of the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, wrote today.

He pointed out that there is a growing sense of solidarity between the two countries of the Iberian Peninsula.

The protocol attached to the non-aggression pact between these two nations provides that both countries would consult with each other on the means to safeguard their common interests in case of "unexpected events that might menace the territorial integrity or the security and independence of either or both nations."

Commenting on this provision, which was added to the treaty last August, Dr. Barth wrote that "it is obvious that this clause converts the defensive pact into an instrument of active policy which may assume genuine significance under present circumstances.

"As a matter of fact the conditions foreseen in this protocol have already arisen. For what else but such events as are referred to in that sentence are foreshadowed by the aggressive aspirations of the United States?

"So nobody should be surprised if Lisbon and Madrid are giving thought to these matters."

U.S. ARMY DEVISES PORTABLE RUNWAYS

Plowed Fields Changed Into Plane Landing Fields by Steel Pavements

Portable steel pavements with which plowed fields may be converted in a trice into landing fields suitable for huge bombers have been devised by the War Department, a Senate committee was informed, says a Washington report dated July 15 to the Baltimore Sun.

"Upon the request of the chief of the Air Corps," the Senate's special defense-investigating committee was told, "studies have been made on portable steel landing mats leading to the development of a type for laying on a field otherwise not suitable for the landing of military aircraft."

Robert P. Patterson, Under Secretary of War, who supplied the testimony, added that:

"Three successful types have been developed which are suitable for use by heavy bombers, but are considered too heavy for use on fields on which pursuit ships and light bombers are to land. Tests are now being made on other types which will be adequate for the lighter military aircraft and which will have the advantage of lighter weight and ease of placement."

The information about the landing mats was one of several similar items contained in an exhaustive twenty-three-page review of the War Department defense production progress to date. Among similar items culled from the otherwise heavily statistical report were the following:

"Notable among the new products entering the field (of serving the Army Medical Corps' equipment needs) are manufacturers of silverware who have changed to the production of surgical instruments and manufacturers of bicycles who have produced litter carriers.

"Approximately 15 per cent of the soldiers' ration will be expended for fresh fruits and vegetables. . . . Ours is the best-fed army in the world. . . . For the fiscal year 1942 the appropriation bill contains a subsistence appropriation of $263,689,382, or approximately $722,437 per day."

Five factories are engaged in assembling gas masks for noncombatants, but "facilities would have to be greatly expanded if civilian needs became acute." Protective chemicals and "ointments of a secret nature" are to be produced in fifteen plants now under construction.

The defense authorities, however, appear to attach relatively little importance to the offensive or defensive aspects of chemical warfare, for "the normal priority preference rating of chemical warfare contract items is just above that of unrated civilian supply needs" with the result that construction of production facilities is being delayed.

"The chief of engineers have been studying methods of protective construction for the civilian population which might be needed in case of air attack.

"All available European information has been digested and collated; structures to give protection against near misses and direct hits have been designed, constructed and tested by actual bombing."

Construction of "bombproof seacoast defense batteries, including both major and minor calibers," was begun "during the current fiscal year."

"All bombardment and transport planes have a radio liaison set, a low or medium power receiving and transmitting radio set, which in one type has a range as great as 2,500 miles, for use in communication with other airplanes or with vehicular or other ground points."

In the number of vessels owned and operated by it, the army rivals the navy, for it now owns twenty-one transports outright and has an additional twenty-one under charter. It owns, besides, 306 vessels in its harbor boat service and is acquiring an additional 564. To operate its own navy, the army employs 5,729 civilians.

FRENCH INDUSTRIAL REFORM

Concentration of Means of Production Desired by Government

Transocean

PARIS, August 28.—Concentration of the means of production of French industry is the aim of the French Government, Secretary of State for Industrial Production Lehideux informed newspapers today.

He said that an advisory committee consisting of employers, workmen, and technicians had been formed.

The first task of this committee would be to draw up a program for increasing the supply of raw materials.

VICE-CAPTAIN'S MEN WIN Y.C.A.C. CRICKET

Defeat Captain's Team by 77 To 60 at Club Grounds Despite Rain

The Yokohama Country and Athletic Club cricket vice-captain's team defeated the captain's side by 77 to 60 in a match played at the club grounds on Saturday afternoon, making the series standing four victories to two in favor of the vice-captain's squad.

Although old Jupiter Pluvius returned to form by getting to work again on weekends, the rain did not dampen the enthusiasm of the cricketers who played in spite of the adverse conditions. Both teams were one man short.

Play began shortly before 3 p.m. in a drizzle, with the captain's side batting first. The initial wicket fell for only three runs, but J. A. Sargeant and M. L. Russell combined to raise the total to 21 before the latter was out, leg before wicket.

Joined by Beatty

Sargeant was then joined by G. E. Beatty, and this pair worked well together until the latter was dismissed on a good catch by L. N. Haum at 48. Sargeant was stumped by F. R. Harriss after making a fine 23, the scoreboard reading 51 for four wickets.

The next four wickets well rapidly, being lost for only nine runs. S. Stephens, the captain, did not bat, declaring at this stage so that the opposition would have a fair chance to complete its innings before it became too dark.

The first two wickets of the vice-captain's team were taken for only eight runs, but the rot ended when Harriss joined J. R. V. Mason. They raised the total to 21 before the former was retired, leg before wicket. Vice-captain J. H. Bird partnered Mason until the latter fell at 33, while the former was caught by Sargeant four runs later.

A fine sixth wicket stand by M. Parsram and H. T. Langstone ensured victory for the vice-captain's side, the scoreboard reading 65 before the former was well held by T. W. Stembridge. Langstone retired soon after to enable the remaining batsmen to wield the willow before the light failed. The tail did not wag effectively, the last two wickets falling fairly rapidly to end the match.

Sargeant was high scorer of the game with 23, while Parsram followed with 15. Next in line were Beatty, Mason and Bird, with 14, 13 and 11, respectively.

Bell Best Average

G. H. D. Bell had the best bowling average with two wickets for nine runs. Parsram took four wickets for 24 runs, and M. L. Russell also had an average of six. Sargeant bowled well, getting four wickets for 30 runs, but his average suffered due to two chances going begging.

Mrs. J. R. V. Mason and some of the players shared the scoring assignment. The analysis follows:

MATCH PRODUCTION CUT

British Supplies Decreased by 50 Per Cent

Transocean

STOCKHOLM, August 20.—Match production in Britain has been cut down by 50 per cent by British Government owing to the falling off of imported raw materails, the Stockholms Tidningen said yesterday.

Lack of matches has induced one Stanley Tomkins to invent a match which can be struck at either end. The middle of the match is treated with non-inflammable substance. In this manner, each stick of match can be used twice, the newspaper reported.

United Press

NEW YORK, August 30.—Dramatically the St. Louis Cardinals moved into first place in the hectic National circuit race today when Lonnie Warneke hurled the first no-hit and no-run game of the nearly completed Major leagues season.

Warneke entered baseball's hall of fame the hard way, picking as his victims the hard hitting third place Cincinnati Reds, world champions of 1940. The Cards took the game 2 to 0.

The lanky southerner didn't permit a Red to reach second base. He issued a lone walk and two other Cincinnati batsmen reached first on errors. It was Warneke's first no-hitter but he has turned in many fine performances for the Cards. Last year he turned in 16 victories.

St. Louis scored both of its runs in the seventh inning when Jim Brown drew a walk, John Hopp singled and Don Padgett drove the ball deep into right center field where Harry Craft failed to hold onto the horsehide, permitting Brown and Hopp to score.

It was a touch game for Elmer Riddle, ace Cincinnati hurler, to drop because he allowed only five hits and both of his foes' runs were unearned.

Credit for knocking the Dodgers out of first place, however, goes to the New York Giants who took both ends of a double header from the Brooklyn outfit. The Giants won the opener 4 to 3 and then came back to take night cap 5 to 1.

In the first game Mel Ott hit his 24th homer of the season, in the eighth inning, to knot the score and then in the ninth he singled to score Dick Bartell who had doubled.

Bartell and John Rucker led the batting attack in the night cap by getting three hits each and Charles Hartnett produced a circuit drive in the fourth inning.

The Dodgers were saved from a shutout when Joe Medwick hit a homer in the eight inning. Seven Brooklyn hurlers were used in an effort to stop the Giants and they were nicked for 26 hits.

With Paul Ericson turning in another good game the Chicago Cubs had things their own way throughout as they downed the Pittsburgh Pirates 4 to 1.

Erickson allowed six hits while the Cubs touched two Pirate hurlers for 11 safeties. The Cubs sewed up the game in the eighth with a three run rally resulting from two bunts, a single and a pair of Pittsburgh errors.

The New York Yankees increased their American League lead to 18½ games by trounding the Washington Senators 8 to 1.

Tommy Henrich collected four of the Yanks 11 hits. However, most of New York's runs were of the unearned variety since the Senators made four errors.

The second place Chicago White Sox suffered a 10 to 1 setback from the St. Louis Browns. On the mound for the winners was George Caster who held the Chisox to five hits and hurled shutout ball until the eighth inning.

The Browns led throughout and their big innings were the sixth, when they scored three runs, and the eighth, when they pushed over four counters, Cleveland's Indians continued their losing streak, bowing to the Detroit Tigers 7 to 3. Lou Newsom was on the hill for the Tigers and limited the Indians to seven hits.

The Boston Red Sox went into a tie with the Indians for third place when they trounced the Philadelphia Athletics 12 to 3. Jimmie Foxx batted in three of the Boston runs with a double in the second when the sacks were full. Ted Williams homered with one mate aboard in the fourth and Bob Doerr knocked the ball out of the lot in the eighth frame.

Professional Football Players Defeat College All Stars, 37 to 13, in Chicago

United Press

CHICAGO, August 30.—The famous "T" formation may be a trifle rusty from a summer layoff but it would be hard to convince the College All-Stars that it still is not football's most formidable offense, for the Bears, pro champs, walloped them, 37-13, yesterday in a charity game.

The Chicago Bears, professional exponents of the intricate play, gave the All-Stars a practical demonstration in Soldier Field before a capacity crowd of 98,200.

The Bears led 16-13 going into the final quarter by virtue of a 46 yard place kick which might occur from any football system and they were finding the All-Stars defense surprisingly ragged. Then Sid Luckman, the Bears' quarterback and master manipulator of the "T" maneuvers, took charge.

Before head coach Carl Snavely of the All-Stars could rush his publicized warriors into the gap, the Bears had applied three clincher blows to win, 37 to 13.

NEXT QUEZON PARTY TO USHER NEW ERA

To Be Composed of Nacionalista Party Which Will Work For Independence

United Press

MANILA, August 30.—The November elections in the Philippines will usher in a new era of President Manuel L. Quezon's administration which is bound to be epochal in the history of the islands.

The forthcoming administration—a Nacionalista party clean sweep in the elections is a foregone conclusion—will witness the closing six years of the 10 year Commonwealth period which was designed to prepare the country for independence.

Indicating the course of action Mr. Quezon's next administration would take, the Nacionalista platform said:

"We declare the unflinching determination of the Filipino people to attain their independence. The date of independence has been set. We will countenance no move to alter or postpone it. We shall continue every effort to prepare the nation adequately for independence, to prevent the dislocation of the national economy as a consequence of that status and to establish proper safeguards to insure our continued existence as an independent state.

To Secure Revision

"We propose to secure from the United States a revision of the economic provisions of the independence act so that our preferential trade with America may be allowed to continue after independence and shall not be terminated until the expiration of such period as may be considered reasonably necessary to permit the Philippines to make a proper readjustment of her economy."

The Filipinos hope for the best but they know their country's outlook is far from bright. Wars abroad eliminated what little foreign markets the Philippines had and made Philippine economy more and more linked with that of the United States. The Philippines is endeavoring to secure Congressional legislation to suspend diminishing quotas and graduated export taxes on Philippine products entering the United States, which were fixed by the Independence Act. The Commonwealth is also asking the United States for a substantial loan to be used in tiding over the present economic emergency.

The forthcoming administration will find the Philippines farther from economic independence from the United States than when the Commonwealth was inaugurated on November 15, 1935.

So far as political independence is concerned—and despite the plank of the Nacionalista Party—there is frank doubt in the minds of many Filipinos as to whether it will materialize under present world conditions. The eagerness to be independent has been tempered with the realization that it would be useless to gain independence in 1946 and lose it soon thereafter.

No analysis of the independence question could be better than that made by President Quezon in his speech on the occasion of his nomination for reelection by the Nacionalista national convention. He said that although independence was the ultimate goal of the Filipino people, they need not discuss the question because it was now "in the hands of God."

"The question of our independence is being debated on the Atlantic ocean," said Mr. Quezon. "It is being debated on the battlefields of Russia. It is being debated in munitions factories. It is being debated by bombs."

To Strive for Unity

With reference to internal affairs the Government, as the majority party platform would indicate, would strive to maintain national unity, promote education and continue the program of social justice" initiated by Mr. Quezon. The platform also reiterated belief in Democracy and the Democratic way of life and loyalty to the United States. The all powerful Nacionalista party has opened its campaign. The election will be, aside from the presidency and vice-presidency, for 24 senators and 98 representatives who will occupy the newly created bicameral congress.

When Mr. Quezon and Vice-President Osmena were nominated they were as good as elected. Since the Senate will be elected at large, that is by the electorate of the whole country instead of by districts, the minority party is not conceded a chance to land a seat.

The only chance the opposition seemed to have is to land a few seats in the House of Representatives. Representatives will continue to be elected by districts and it was conceded by political observers that the opposition may win several seats.

Mr. Quezon's second term will expire December 30, 1943. The presidential term has been changed from six to four years but no man may serve as president more than eight successive years. Mr. Quezon already has served six years.

When Mr. Quezon steps out of the presidency, Mr. Osmena will automatically become president, serving two years or for the remander of the Commonwealth period.

The Nacionalista lineup for senators included three industrial magnates, Ramon J. Fernandez, Vicente Madrigal and Esteban de la Rama, all of them engaged, among other things, in the shipping business.

Most of the 21 others are seasoned politicians, such as the former Resident Commissioner in Washington, Quintin Paredes; the former Secretary of Interior, Elpidio Quirino; the Secretary of Finance, Manuel Roxas; the Secretary of Interior, Rafel Alunan; former Senator Melecio Arranz, former Senator Manuel C. Briones; Speaker Jose Yulo of the last Assembly; Assemblymen Daniel Maramba, Jose Ozamiz, Norberto Romualdez and former Senator Claro M. Recto.

U.S. SENDS BOLIVIA AIRLINE COMMISSION

$660,000 Loan Invested in Economic Warfare Against Nazi Interests

The first commercial air-line commission sent to counteract Axis infiltration in Latin America has returned to the United States after six weeks of successful negotiation with the Bolivian government. Largely as a result of its efforts, the German-controlled Bolivian air-line system has been reorganized and the Nazi influence entirely removed, the New York Herald Tribune reports.

The mission, representing the United States government, consisted of Thomas O. Hardin, technical adviser to the Federal Loan Administrator; Franklin Field, partner in the New York brokerage concern of J. E. Swan & Co., and Allen W. Dulles, attorney in the law firm of Sullivan & Cromwell.

On May 15 the Bolivian government expropriated the 60 per cent German holdings, largely those of the Junkers aircraft interests, in the Lloyd Aereo Boliviano. This line held the exclusive franchise for air service in Bolivia. Part of the line has been assigned to Pan American Airways' subsidiary, Panagra, thus making possible the first coast-to-coast crossing from Brazil to Chile under American management and by American planes. The rest of the line has been nationalized by the Bolivian government and a loan of $660,000 obtained from the Federal Loan Administration.

Under the agreement negotiated by the commission the Bolivian government agrees: First, to make no air-line concessions to Europeans for five years; second, to employ only citizens of the Americas in technical positions, and third, to buy all transport equipment from the Americas. The Bolivian government also has granted a subsidy of $16,000 a month to the line.

Of the $660,000 F. L. A. loan, $300,000 will be used for working capital and the rest in payment for three Lockheed Lodestar transport planes which the F. L. A. has obtained from the War Department. The commission agreed to take over three Junkers planes formerly used on the Bolivian lines.

Economic Warfare Spurred

The contract specifies also that the equipment and working-capital loans shall be paid back in five and 10 years, respectively. Furthermore, the new nationalized air-line is concluding a management contract with Panagra which will run for five years while native personnel is being trained.

Meanwhile a new government corporation is being formed by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to head up the economic warfare in aviation which the United States government intends to wage with Germany and Italy in the western hemisphere. The new agency—Airline Development Company and Airline Credit Corporation have been considered for its name—will offer capital, transport equipment and other aids to South American countries.

The new enterprise will be headed by Will L. Clayton, deputy loan administrator, as president and William Barclay Harding, of Smith Barney & Co., New York, as vice-president. William A. M. Burden, vice-president of the National Aviation Corporation, New York, also has been active in its formation while serving recently as a dollar-a-year man with the R.F.C. Mr. Harding and Mr. Burden, Wall Street men long identified with aviation, have completed an exhaustive report on South American aviation.

Shipments Run Blockade

Other commissions under the sponsorship of the new agency either have been or soon will be dispatched to other South American countries such as Brazil, Argentina, Ecuador and Peru. While conditions vary in each country, it is believed that the agreements concluded by the Bolivian commission may serve as a model for the definite steps undertaken to remove European airline influence as much as possible in Latin America.

When the war started it was thought that the Germans would have difficulty in obtaining equipment for their South American lines. Authorities point out, however, that such has not been the case. Last March 15 the German freighter Lech dropped anchor at Rio de Janeiro, after running the British blockade from Bordeaux, with a Junkers tri-motored transport lashed on her after-deck and 25 tons of spare parts stowed in her hold.

On April 9 the German freighter Hermes turned up in the inner harbor of Rio with more Junkers planes and parts. Before the Hermes arrived the German Condor syndicate announced publicly that it would expand its service with new equipment soon to be delivered.

It has been reported that the Germans have flown cargoes of gold and black diamonds, vital to armament precision work over the extended Condor line and also down the Amazon to the Italian South Atlantic service and thence to Rome and Berlin.

$1,000,000 LIBRARY BUILT IN CAMBRIDGE

Little-Used Books Will Be Housed in Building Constructed in New England

A new million-book library building for the storage of little-used books in New England libraries is under construction in Allston, on Western Avenue, behind the Harvard Business School, it was announced in a Cambridge, Massachusetts dispatch to the New York Herald Tribune.

The building will be operated by the New England Deposit Library, a nonprofit Massachusetts corporation whose participating members now include the State Library, the Boston Public Library, the Boston Athenaeum, the Massachusetts Historical Society, Boston College, Boston University, Harvard University, and Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Simmons College, Radcliffe College and Tufts College plan to join the enterprise. The library was incorporated in May by a special act of the Massachusetts General Court.

Books on deposit in the new library will be available in a reading room in the building and will be shipped on call to any of the cooperating institutions by a daily messenger-truck service.

The purpose of the new building is to provide storage space for such little-used volumes as old newspaper files, government reports and textbooks, and thus to clear needed shelf-room in the various participating libraries for the addition of books having more active demand.

Harvard University has contributed the land for the new library and is financing the construction costs. The deposit library corporation will repay Harvard for the building costs over a period of forty years, from the building's income. An annual rental of approximately 20 cents will be charged per foot of shelf space and will, it is estimated, pay off the building costs, maintenance and administration.

The unit now under construction will have a brick stack building 63 by 90 feet, with five stories above ground and one basement level. In the front of the building will be a single story administration center with a reading room and receiving room. In the book stacks are 137,000 feet, or some twenty-six miles, of book shelving. Three-quarters of this room will be for books and one-quarter for newspaper files.

It is expected the building will be ready for occupancy January 1.

KANTO NET TOURNEY TO OPEN NEXT WEEK

Matches Will Be Played in Tokyo at Den-en Courts While In Kanagawa at Kamakura

The elite of the Kanto district amateur tennis set will swing into action next week, with the scheduling of tournaments in both Kanagawa and Tokyo under the sponsorship of the Japan Tennis Association. Both tournaments will open on August 8 and continue for five days.

Locally, at the Den-en Courts, matches will be played determining championships in both men and women's divisions. The entries for these titles list most of the topflight men and women veterans.

The scene of the matches of the Kanagawa district will be the Kamakura Lawn tennis club.

The preliminary rounds will be a three set match affair with the semi-finals and finals to be determined by five-set matches. According to the list of seeded players for the Tokyo district, the Keio University star, Fujikura is top seeded, just above another Keio star, Kumamaru.

In the women's flight, Misses of the Den-en Club, Nakamuda and Kamo head the seeded players. These two also are top seeded for the doubles championship.

The following lists Tokyo's seeded players;

ALL DUTCH SUBJECTS GREET QUEEN BY RADIO

Wilhelmina in London Felicitated by 8,000,000 Upon 61st Birthday

United Press

LONDON, August 31.—In the biggest world radio hookup ever devised, the British Broadcast Company today allowed representatives of 8,000,000 Dutch subjects to speak directly to London with birthday greetings for Queen Wilhelmina, who was 61 Sunday.

While the Queen sat beside the radio in her country home "somewhere in the home counties" Prince Bernhard and members of the Dutch Government spoke from a theater in Regents park to Princess Juliana in Ottawa, Canada and other officials throughout the world.

Replies came from Batavia, Curacao, Pretoria, a Dutch warship in the Atlantic, a Dutch merchantman in the Pacific, a Dutch military camp somewhere in England and also from Dutch soldiers in Canada.

The Queen spent Sunday quietly in her country home and will broadcast replies to the greetings Monday.

PLAZA NAMED FOR GEHRIG

Memory of Famous Baseball Player Is Honored by New York City

The plaza in front of the Bronx County Building, New York City, will be named Lou Gehrig Plaza under a bill passed unanimously by the City Council and sent to Mayor F. H. LaGuardia for his signature. The plaza is in 161st Street, between Walton Avenue and the Grand Concourse, two blocks from Yankee Stadium, where Gehrig starred for many years as captain and first baseman of the New York Yankees, reports the New York Herald Tribune.

Gehrig died on June 2 of amytrophic sclerosis, a rare form of infantile paralysis. After he had played in 2,130 consecutive games between June 1, 1925, and May 2, 1939, he was forced to retire because of the disease, and on October 9, 1939, he was appointed a member of the Municipal Parole Commission by Mayor LaGuardia.

On July 4 a granite monument to Gehrig was unveiled in Yankee Stadium. The Council bill giving his name to the plaza in front of the Bronx County Building was introduced on June 2 by Councilman Joseph E. Kinsley, Bronx Democrat.

Duke of Kent Touring

CHAMPAGNE STAKES WON BY KING'S BIG GAME

Winner Not in Usual Form but Keeps Unbeaten Record

Reuters

NEWBURY, August 31.—The King's Big Game, by Bahram out of Myrobella, won a thrilling race yesterday for the valuable Champagne Stakes by a short head from Lord Derby's Watling Street, by Fairway out of Ranai.

Lord Rosebery's Hyperides, by Hyperim out of Priscilla, was two lengths behind third.

Trained by Fred Darling and ridden by Harry Wragg, Big Game scored his fifth win of the season, having thrice been successful as a Myrobella colt in the early racing days. He started a hot favorite at two to one, while the starting price for Watling Street was 7-2 Hyperides 9-1.

Big Game was not in his usual brilliant form and was put under pressure for the first time, but he kept his unbeaten record, and the crowd showed their appreciation of the King's tenth win this season by cheering for a long period.

SATURDAYS SCHEDULED FOR STEEPLECHASING

To Be Resumed November 8 Despite Fewer Courses

Reuters

NEWBURY, August 31.—Authoritative circles stated today that steeplechasing will be held on Saturdays starting November 8, though the first venue has not been settled.

Fewer courses are available. Most meetings will take place at Cheltenham, Nottingham and Manchester, with occasional fixtures at Taunton.

Prominent trainers of jumpers feel that a 20-weeks' program, which with occasional clashings may produce 30 meetings, is sufficient only if no long intervals, through unforeseen circumstances, come between meetings. In that case they hope new fixtures for abandoned meetings will be sanctioned.

St. Leger Race Nearing

Reuters

NEWBURY, August 31.—Chateau la Rose, owned by H. E. Morriss, of Shanghai, joined Mazarin as joint 6-1 favorite in the course betting on the St. Leger yesterday. Eight to one on others were offered. Bassanio and St. Blazey, which were both 100-1 chances in the last callover, have been scratched.

CRICKET CROWD GOOD IN SPITE OF FOOTBALL

King Willow Provides Plenty of Thrills to Spectators Wherever Played

Reuters

LONDON, August 31.—Football overlapped cricket in England yesterday, but there were good attendances wherever King Willow held sway, and spectators had plenty of thrills at Tonbridge, where the London Counties beat Frank Woolley's team.

The latter were all out in 80 minutes for 69, which total the Counties passed for the loss of five wickets, winning the 12-a-side game by six wickets though batting on to a total of 162 for 10.

The Public Schools provided good cricket at Lord's, where the South beat the North by 247 runs. The South declared at 275 for six, with D.P.T. Deshon of Sherborne getting a century before lunch. The North were all out for 28, with T. E. Bailey, who scored 63 for the South, taking five wickets for 11 runs.

An Army team was too good for the Metropolitan Police, the opening pair hitting off the necessary 130 to win the game.

FOOTBALL IN BRITAIN HAVING FULL SWING

Attendance Excellent With About 130,000 Watching 32 Contests

Reuters

LONDON, August 31.—Football was in full swing throughout the country yesterday and, despite fixture troubles following the breakaway of London teams, attendance was excellent.

An aggregate of about 130,000 people saw 32 English league matches. Nearly all favorite players were available somewhere in England though not always playing for their usual team, but that is unavoidable in wartime, when men in the services play for a team nearest to where they are stationed. For example, Lawton, England leader, who usually wears Everton's colors, helped Aldershot yesterday to beat Fulham.

Manchester United were top scorers, with Rowley notching seven of their 13 goals.

Brentford and Arsenal enjoyed the best London crowd, about 12,000, who were surprised by the Arsenal's slowness, which led to their defeat.

The best provincial crowd was also 12,000, watching the War Cup holders, Preston, win.

Scottish games also produced many goals, but the feature was the fourth week in which Rangers' two teams finished victorious.

The complete results of yesterday's games in the two Scottish competitions and the three English leagues—new London competition and south and north sections—were:

NEW YORK, August 31.—Billy Southworth's St. Louis Cards stayed at the top of the National circuit by the narrow margin of .002 percentage points today when they scored a lucky 6 to 3 win over the third-place Cincinnati Reds.

The Cards led throughout but most of their runs were unearned. They made only five hits in collecting their half dozen scores.

Bucky Walters handled the hurling assignment for the Reds and allowed five safeties but he received erratic support. Three St. Louis hurlers were nicked for nine hits by the Reds.

Brooklyn's Dodgers, after dropping a double-header yesterday, came back to trounce the New York Giants, 13 to 6, today and showed they were still in the penant race.

Dolph Camilli, Dodger first-sacker, knocked the ball out of the park in the seventh to put the Brooklyn club ahead. It was Camilli's 28th homer of the season.

The heavy hitters for the Giants were Dick Bartell, who connected safely four times with his last blow a homer, and Mel Ott, who recorded his 21st homer of the season in the fourth with one mate aboard.

The Pittsburgh Pirates came from behind to nose out the Chicago Cubs, 4 to 3.

Elburt Fletcher socked a homer in the sixth with one man aboard to tie the score. In the eighth, Fletcher hit a three-bagger and came home with the winning run when Catcher Curt Davis single.

Al Butcher was on the mound for the Pirates and hurled shutout ball after the third frame. Claude Passeau did the hurling for the Cubs and allowed nine hits.

Boston and Philadelphia divided a twin bill with the Braves taking the opener, 8 to 3 and the Phillies the night-cap, 8 to 5.

Jim Tobin registered his 12th mound victory of the season when he limited the Phillies to six hits in the opener.

The Braves won the game in the fifth inning when four doubles and a pair of walks produced five runs.

In the second game, the Phillies duplicated the earlier feat of the Braves and pushed over five runs in the fifth inning. The Braves attempted to overcome the lead in the ninth inning, but the rally was checked after two runners had crossed the plate.

United Press

NEW YORK, August 31.—The New York Yankees made it two straight over the Washington Senators today as they moved to within three games of Cinching the America League pennant.

Vernon "Lefty" Gomez recorded his 13th victory of the year when the Yanks rushed over three runs in the fifth to come through with a 5 to 2 victory. The game was put on ice through singles by Bill Dickey, George Selkirk, Joe Gordon and Phil Rizzuto.

It was the 88th win of the season for Joe McCarthy's club. They have 22 more games to play and hold a lead of practically 20 games.

The second-place Chicago White Sox dropped both ends of a twin bill to the St. Louis Browns, the opener by 12 to 8 and the second game, 5 to 4.

Six Chisox errors beat the veteran Ted Lyons, who needs only one more win to bring his string of major league victories to 200. Three of the miscues were by Luke Appling.

The big inning for St. Louis was the seventh when four runs were scored.

The lone homer of the game was supplied by Taft Wright, Chicago outfielder.

In the second game, the Browns though outhit came through with a three-run rally in the ninth to win by a one-run margin. Manager Jimmie Dykes of the Chisox was ejected from the ball park in the fourth inning for protesting a decision.

The Cleveland Indians divided a double bill with the Detroit Tigers, dropping the opener, 7 to 5, but winning the night cap, 7 to 4.

Paul Trout, who replaced Lynwood Rowe when the latter was hit in the head by a wild throw, won his own game in the ninth by hitting a three-bagger and then scoring on Bill McCoskey's single. Bob Feller started on the mound for the Indians but was chased to the showers.

In the second game, the Indians nicked Tommie Bridges for three runs in first inning and then added to their total in the fifth seventh and eighth innings. Detroit helped out the Indians by making three errors.

Heber Newsome held the Philadelphia Athletics to five hits as the Boston Red Sox took the first game of their double-header by a 5 to 3 score.

Ted Williams won the game for Boston by hitting a homer in the sixth with two mates aboard. It was his 31st circuit drive of the season.

Fred Chapman supplied all of the A's runs by knocking the ball out of the lot in the fourth inning with two men on base.

The A's took the second game, which was called by darkness in the seventh inning, by a 3 to 2 score. Phil Marchildon was on the mound for Philadelphia and held his foes to three hits.

Germans Hear Telephone Conversations Between Red Generals Telling of Plight

Transocean

BERLIN, September 1.—A German infantry regiment recently overheard for two full days telephone conversations between the Soviet Commanders of Gomel and Shlobin and learnt things which were certainly not for German ears, the war correspondent, Franz Hoeller, relates.

"The regiment had advanced up to the Shlobin-Gomel railway line," he writes. "Strong enemy resistance from the direction of Gomel was expected. For this reason one had to act most circumspectly. No wonder that our Commander had the idea of tapping the telephone wires along the railway.

"As luck would have it, he listened in to a by no means calm conversation between the Commander of Gomel and the Commander of Shlobin, which an interpreter took down. The conversation ended with these words: 'If I do not get 80,000 men immediately, then the war would be over in three days.'

"After some hours, the Commander of Shlobin called back his colleague at Gomel. We learnt with glee that not 80,000 men but one transportful of men would be sent to Gomel as the Commander at Shlobin was unable to conjure up 80,000 men amidst all his own cares and worries."

Continuing, the war correspondent stated that officers of the German regiment then heard a conversation carried on between two railway officials until the one at Gomel had to put down the receiver in order to seek shelter with his wife from a German air raid. Both officials agreed that they could not hold their posts for very long in Gomel and in Shlobin.

The official in Gomel told his friend at the other end: "In confidence and you are not to tell anybody else, the 'gentlemen higher up' have left for the east with all their property. My wife too believes it best to do likewise."

While the interpreter of the German regiment was still listening to the political family talks along the wire and learnt of various news about conditions in the two towns, a special train—which the listeners had earlier learnt about from the conversation between the Commanders at Gomel and Shlobin—appeared on the horizon. The military passengers were surprised when they were asked somewhat bluntly to get out and to head for a German prisoners camp. Their faces revealed that they had expected everything else but this.

"But what will Stalin say when he hears that two of his Commanders where for two days in telephonic touch with the officers of a German infantry regiment?" asked the correspondent.

DiMaggio Is Honored At Surprise Party By Player-Friends

United Press

WASHINGTON, August 30.—Joe DiMaggio's teammates on the New York Yankees gave him a surprise party Friday night, presenting their star outfielder with a sterling silver humidor as a token of the important part he has played in the club's pennant drive. On the inside of the cover are engraved the individual signatures of the Yanks and on the front is another engraving setting forth Joe's 50-game consecutive hitting streak.

WILLIAMS HOLDING .407 BATTING MARK

But Having Hard Time Keeping it; Hopp of Cards Leading Nationals

United Press

NEW YORK, August 31.—Ted Williams, slugging Red Sox outfielder, continued to breeze along on top the American League batting list but he was having a hard time keeping his average above the golden .400 mark which no major leaguer has achieved for a full season in 16 years.

Williams is hitting .407 according to figures released today and including Thursday's games. Cecil Travis of the Washington Senators was in second place with .364.

In the National League, Johnny Hopp, Cardinal outfielder, held his lead for the third straight week with Nick Etten of the Phillies in second place.

San Casimiro Sunk

Transocean

MADRID, August 30.—The discovery of an empty lifeboat has led to the belief that the British 8,046-ton tanker San Casimiro has been sunk in the Atlantic. The lifeboat bearing the name of that ship was sighted by a fisherman near Santa Cruz de Tenerifa. Articles were found in it which may have belonged to the British seamen.

REPUBLIC STEEL CO. AGREES WITH C.I.O.

Will Accept Collective Bargaining If Majority of Workers Are Members

Republic Steel Corporation, one of the United States' large steel producers, made an agreement on July 15, says a Washington report to the New York Herald Tribune, with the Steel Workers Organizing Committee providing for the signing of a contract with the committee as collective bargaining agent at eleven of its 15 plants, if the union can demonstrate that a majority of the company's 41,630 workers are members. Republic was one of the chief objectives of the 1937 "Little Steel" strike. The C. I. O. union expects to bring all Republic workers under contracts as a result of the agreement.

Simultaneously, the National Labor Relations Board disclosed that under the general agreement between the company and the Congress of Industrial Organizations affiliate cases involving alleged unfair labor practices by Republic will be settled subject to the approval of the Third Circuit Court of Appeals at Philadelphia. The charges were an outgrowth of the 1937 strike and under the agreement the company will reinstate with back pay approximately 6,500 workers involved in the 1937 strike which the S. W. O. C. lost.

In order to eliminate disruption of the company's defense-production schedule, membership in any plant will be established by checking S. W. O. C. records against Republic's pay rolls. These will be verified by the labor board.

Girdler Issues Statement

Tom Girdler, chairman of Republic Steel, who once said that he would go back to the farm and dig potatoes before he would sign with the C.I.A., said in a statement that the agreement marked "the union's first effort to submit proof of its membership in the company's plants."

"In view of the claims of S. W. O. C. that it now represents a majority of Republic's employees, the company believes that the orderly way to determine the facts is through an investigation of membership records by the National Labor Relations Board," he said.

Mr. Girdler on a number of occasions severely condemned what he termed "C. I. O. arrogance" and insisted that he would never sign with John L. Lewis's union.

The C. I. O., which won a major victory only last month when the Ford Motor Company agreed to a one-year contract with the United Automobile Workers, said that the signing of the Republic-S. W. O. C. stipulation agreement marked the end of union opposition by the smaller independent companies included in "Little Steel."

Details of Agreement

The five-point agreement, signed in the offices of the Labor Board by Lee Pressman, S. W. O. C. general counsel; Thomas Patton, Republic's general counsel, and Malcolm Halliday, N. L. R. B. assistant general counsel, provides:

1. Republic will negotiate a signed contract with S. W. O. C. in all plants where a cross-check of union membership cards with pay rolls shows a S. W. O. C. majority. This includes iron ore mines in Minnesota and Michigan.

2. All plants where S. W. O. C. shows a majority will be treated as a single collective bargaining unit. Petitions for similar certification in other plants can be filed from time to time by S. W. O. C., and those showing a majority of S. W. O. C. members will be included in the single collective bargaining unit and the contract will be extended to cover them.

3. Settlement of all National Labor Relations Board cases between S. W. O. C. and the corporation, subject to the approval of the Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia:

4. Reinstatement with back pay plus vacation money in many instances of workers discharged during or after the Little Steel strike and other union activities in Republic plants.

5. The corporation will drop the anti-trust suit filed against S. W. O. C. in May, 1939. This suit was dismissed in the Federal district court, and the corporation agrees not to appeal the dismissal.

The following is a list of the plants covered by the agreement and the number of workers involved:

Steel plant and strip mill, Cleveland, 5,200; steel and tubes division, Cleveland, 440; steel plant, Youngstown, Ohio, 8,275; steel plants, Warren and Niles, Ohio, 6,100; culvert division, Canton, Ohio, 70; Union Drawn Steel Division, Canton, 540; Ideal Foundry Division, Newton Falls, Ohio, 125; steel plant, Buffalo, 2,900; steel plants, South Chicago, 2,200; steel plants, Canton, 7,800; Berger Manufacturing Division, Canton, 1,140; steel plant, Massilon, Ohio, 4,750, and bolt and nut division, Cleveland, 4,750.

One of the specific stipulations provided that all company unions at Republic's Buffalo plant must be "disestablished." About 400 workers not taken back after 1937 strike will be reinstated if the S. W. O. C. proves that it has a majority. Reinstated employees will receive back pay from Nov. 1, 1938, to date of reinstatement, less amounts earned by employment elsewhere:

ENGLAND TO ORDER MAIL-CERTS SYSTEM

To Supplement Navi-Certs—Post to Be Confiscated Without This Permit

Transocean

BUENOS AIRES, August 31.—Another encroachment upon the rights of neutrals has been evolved by the British Government, an announcement of the British Embassy disclosed today.

To supplement its already existing system of "navi-certs," the British Government in September will introduce "mail-certs."

According to this new imposition, anyone wishing to send a letter or parcel to a neutral country must first obtain a "mail-cert."

According to this new imposition, anyone wishing to send a letter or parcel to a neutral country must first obtain a "mail-cert" from the British censorship authorities. He will then be able to post his missive.

This system of "mail-certs" will be in force for mail from Argentina to French West Africa, Ireland, Spain, Portuguese Guinea, Iraq, Iran, the Portuguese and Spanish islands in the Atlantic, Liberia, Madagascar, Spanish Morocco, the International Zone at Tangiers, Portugal, Sweden, Switzerland and Turkey.

"Mail-certs" will not be issued for parcels containing documents, photographs, stamps, literature, commercial papers, and other items.

The British Embassy announced that mail sent without these "mail-certs" would be subject to confiscation.

SPORTS SCHEDULE IS SET AT Y.C.A.C.

Members None Too Optimistic About Weather Coming Weekend

With Friday morning's weather forecast for today being none too bright, members of the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club are none too optimistic over prospects of carrying out their weekend program, but nevertheless a full schedule including cricket, baseball, mixed softball and lawn bowls games have been mapped out.

Rain last weekend washed out the baseball, mixed softball and a number of lawn bowls fixtures, only the hardy cricketers braving the inclement weather to play their match on Saturday as planned. As a result games not played last Sunday have been postponed a week, and provided the law of averages functions, they will be contested this weekend.

Married vs Single

The club's married cricketers will be opposed by the single players for the third time this season on Saturday afternoon from 2 p.m. The wifeless sportsmen have yet to gain a decision over the benedicts, and will no doubt do their best to even the score.

The ladies' softball team will play another game with the elder male members of the club on Sunday at 2 p. m. The girls and the "ojiisans" are even in their clashes to date, each squad having won one of the two close and hard fought games to date.

The Y.C. and A.C. baseballers will take on the Yokohama Third Middle School nine at 3 p.m. Sunday, after the softball game. The club squad has won all of its last five tilts and hopes to extend its winning streak to six consecutive victories, and has a better than even chance to do so if it plays the baseball of which it is capable.

The lawn bowlers have a full program for the weekend also. On Saturday afternoon there are several matches billed, a couple of which are semi-finals, one in the ladies' handicap singles and the other in the mixed doubles handicap. Mrs. C. Verleysen is to play Mrs. J. Koch at 2 p.m. Sautrday, and Miss F. Gabaretta and E. Dentici will be opposed by Miss T. Planas and G. E. Beatty an hour later.

Two Tourney Matches

On Sunday there will be two international tourney matches as well as other games in the other lawn bowls events. At 10:30 a.m. the Swiss team is scheduled to play against the Born-in-Japan squad, and the former will also meet the English quartet at 3 p.m. The Canadian four will also play at 3 p.m., against the Portuguese combination.

G. da Costa and J. da Costa, father and son, will meet E. Dentici and K. F. Wiersum in the men's handicap doubles Sunday morning, while the latter pair will probably meet H. Schoene and F. Rodriguez in the semi-finals of the men's championship doubles in the afternoon.

Line-ups of the various events have been announced as follows:

Cricket

Married Men: G. H. D. Bell, F. J. Bond, W. R. Bull, F. J. da Silva, G. W. Gorman, P. H. Gore-Booth, L. N. Haum, P. H. Lord, J. R. V. Mason, A. G. May, M. Parsram, M. L. Russell, J. A. Sargeant, S. Stephens (captain).

Single Men: A. H. Ballantyne, A. E. Bell, H. A. Bird (captain), R. W. Child, F. R. Harriss, C. Heseltine, B. Kuskie, H. T. Langstone, F. Moysey, M. J. K. Stark, T. W. Stembridge and E. V. Thomas.

U.S. PROF FORGETS SYMBOL

Mathematical Conclusion in London Air Raid Chance Not Confirmed

Sitting in a hotel room with another American doctor during an air raid, Dr. John E. Gordon, professor of public health at Harvard University and now director of the new American Communicable Disease Hospital in England, started to estimate the chances of being hit.

By mathematical formulas he based a calculation on the area of London, destructive power of a bomb, probable number of attacking planes and defending fighters and intensity of anti-aircraft fire. The scientific conclusion was that the chances were 1 in 250,000.

Confident of this calculation, he and the other doctor dozed off to sleep. Then a raider crashed a bomb across the street and jolted the medico-mathematician out of bed.

Through the blackout in the room drawled Dr. Gordon: "By the way, just what value did we ascribe to Pi?" (the Greek letter commonly used as a mathematical symbol).

Observatory Near Rome

ROME, September 2.—An observatory is at present under construction near Rome for housing a Zeiss telescope which the Fuehrer donated together with all pertaining paraphernalia during his visit to the Palazzo Venezia on May 4, 1938. The observatory is to be finished already this year.

Guggenheim Estate, Left to 4 Women, May Total Only $20,000 When Filed

The will of William Guggenheim, industrialist and amateur song writer who left his estate to four former show girls, was filed in Surrogate's Court, but there was no assurance that its estimated value of $1,000,000 or more would stand up, a New York report in the Baltimore Sun states.

Former value was listed as "more than $10,000."

Pearce H. E. Aul, of Griffiths & Content, New York law firm which filed the testament, said the higher estimate was correct when the will was drawn in January, 1940.

Four Women Named

The Daily News quoted Aul as saying the estate might be even less than $20,000, after meeting immediate expenses, outstanding debts and other encumbrances.

The four women named to share equally in the estate were Lillyan Andrus, of Los Angeles, and Mildred Borst, Florence Sullivan and Mary Alice Rice, all of Manhattan.

Aul said Guggenheim's residence at 3 Riverside Drive was assessed at $85,000 and had a heavy encumbrance against it. The property was owned by a corporation in which Guggenheim held shares, the lawyer said.

The News quoted Aul as saying that as far as was known, Guggenheim left no insurance, annuities or real estate other than the five-story house.

No Surprise

Miss Rice said the naming of her and the others came as no surprise.

"For my part," she said, "I am not surprised about the will for he (Guggenheim) always spoke of it. He was the nicest sort of person and his greatest enjoyment was doing things like this."

No provision was made in the will for his widow, Mrs. Aimee Steinberger Guggenheim, or his son, William, Jr., Guggenheim explaining that he had provided amply for them when he was alive.

Guggenheim, 72 when he died June 27, occupied seven rooms of the Riverside Drive house which overlooks the Hudson river. Here he spent his last years. The other 10 rooms were leased to a family.

'Vacancy' Sign Hung Out

Today a small "vacancy" sign hung out front.

One of the seven sons of the late Meyer Guggenheim who founded a vast copper business, he was a familiar figure backstage at Broadway musical shows.

"He wanted to help us all along," said Miss Rice, a Texan. He wanted to do things for us. He was interested in anybody with ambition."

Miss Borst, a native of North Haven, Connecticut, Miss Connecticut of 1930, said he financed her singing and dramatic tutoring. She met him when she was in Earl Carrol's Vanities.

'Kind, Generous Man'

"He was just a kind and generous man," she said.

Miss Andrus was Miss America of 1929. Miss Sullivan was in the show business briefly and had been a secretary.

Mrs. Guggenheim's attorney said that under New York law she could claim one-third of the estate, regardless of the will. There has been no announcement of what action she will take.

COLLEGE REGATTA COMMENCES TODAY

21st Race With 10 Eights to Continue Tomorrow in Arakawa River

The twenty-first Tokyo intercollegiate regatta will be held today and tomorrow in the Arakawa river at Oku, between Odaibashi and Otakebashi. Ten college eights will swing into action this morning in races over a 2,000 meter course. These will be the highlights of two days of competition during which the Tokyo Collegiate Rowing championships will be decided.

First Koto Gakko, the defending champion is paired against the Meiji eight this morning in the third race. Another race which should provide keen competition will be Imperial—Waseda race. Imperial always tops among the local crews will be manned today by oarsmen who were members of the last season's champions, First Koto Gakko.

U.S. SAILORS GET $500 TO GO TO A SOVIET PORT

Men on Ship American Star Sign for Highest Maritime War Bonus Yet

American Federation of Labor union officers reported a contract with the highest war bonus yet provided in a maritime contract—$500 for each seaman for each Russian port of call, says a New York paper.

Ed Coester, Seattle agent for the Sailors' Union of the Pacific, and Bert Coleman, agent for the Marine Firemen's Union, said the contract was signed for the American Trading Company's steamer American Star.

They said the figure compared with the usual payments of $50 a port plus $3 a day in Red Sea ports and $3 a day on Orient runs.

The union leaders said the American Star agreement also provide for the usual Orient bonus of $2 a day west of the 160th Meridian, with a $150 bonus for Orient ports.

Coester and Coleman gave as reasons for the high Russian bonus:

1. American seamen aboard west coast ships have been mistreated in Russian ports on recent voyages, and

2. The Communist party line changes so rapidly that by the time the ship arrives Russia might be at war with the United States, and no Communist-hating sailor or fireman wants to do any time in a Russian concentration camp.

The ship cleared Seattle but is not expected to call at Russian ports on the present voyage.

Mr. Roosevelt asked the Governors of Alabama, Virginia, Tennessee, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi and Florida to put daylight time into effect at once, if they have legal authority to do so.

After observing that the power shortage was particularly acute in the Southeastern part of the country, he wrote:

"The seriousness of the situation.... makes it imperative that section be taken to alleviate the present shortage at the earliest possible moment. I, therefore, hope that, if it is legally possible to do so, you will immediately issue a proclamation regarding the necessity for establishing daylight-saving time....and that you will take appropriate executive action to effectuate (its) establishment...."

RED EXCESSES TOLD IN PAPAL YEAR BOOK

Lists Imprisonment and Deportation of Many High Prelates From Soviet

Transocean

ROME, September 2.—The annihilation of all church life in the Soviet Union is contained in the Annuario Pontificio—Papal Year Book—for 1941.

This publication states:

In the arch-bishopric of Mohilev, the Apostolic Administrator for Mohilev and Minsk, Prelate Bolelaus Slokan elected in 1926, was, on account of his faith, incarcerated on August 10, 1927, and later deported to Siberia.

The Apostolic Administrator for Moscow, Prelate Neveu, elected in 1926, was deported.

Prelate Matulanis, elected in 1918, was imprisoned from 1923 to 1926 and from 1929 to 1933. He has now been deported.

The Apostolic Administrator for Samara, Prelate Jodokas, appointed in 1926, has been incarcerated for his faith since April 1929.

In the bishopric of Shitomir, Prelate Skalski, elected in 1926, was thrown in jail on account of his faith on July 20, 1926, and expelled from the Soviet Union in 1932.

The Apostolic Vice-Administrator, Prelate Saskrecky, who was jailed for his faith in July, 1929, is living as a deportee since September 1932 at Tiraspol.

The Apostolic Administrator for the Volga district, Prelate Baumtrog, elected in 1926, was incarcerated in August 1930.

In the bishopric of Kamieniec, the Apostolic Administrator, Prelate Swidorski, was incarcerated in January 1930 and deported in September 1932.

The Apostolic Administrator, Prelate Alexander Wierszbick, was imprisoned for his faith since July, 1932.

ANGLO-RUSSIAN COUNCIL OF TRADE UNION WANTED

Object to Get Closest Cooperation and Give Maximum Help to Reds

Reuters

LONDON, August 30.—The establishment of an Anglo-Russian Trade Union Council will be recommended to the annual congress of the Trades Union Council which opens at Edinburgh on Monday.

The decision to recommend this step was reached by the General Council of the Trades Union Congress yesterday.

The object will be to secure the closest cooperation between Russian and British trade union movements, to raise maximum help for the Russians and to prevent German propagandists from playing one movement off against the other.

The Deputy Prime Minister, C. R. Attlee, will address the conference, and for the first time the B.B.C. will record and broadcast part of the proceedings.

Relief Member Expelled

Transocean

VICHY, September 2.—The American Varian Fry, member of the American Relief Committee in France, was sent to the Spanish border Saturday. He had been ordered by a court decree to leave France already by Friday last week but he had not complied with this demand. The official reason given for his expulsion is that it had been proved that he was active in a way which was inimical to France.

tenth inning.

The New York Giants tightened their grip on fifth place by twice defeating the lowly Philadelphia Phillies.

The Giants took the first game 7 to 2 with Bob Carpenter hurling a four hit game and allowing no runs after the second inning.

Hal Schumacher and Bob Bowman handled the hurling assignment in the second frey, which went 10 innings and was won by the Giants 4 to 3. Schumacher held the Phillies scoreless for six innings and was relieved on permitting three scores in the seventh and eighth innings.

Climb to Third Place

United Press

NEW YORK, September 2.—Joe Cronin's, Boston Red Sox crawled up into third place in the American League when they took a pair of free scoring games from the Washington Athletics today. They won the opener 13 to 9 and the night cap 10 to 2.

The Boston outfit nicked six Washington hurlers for 31 hits for one of their best slugging days of the year. They won the first game with a seven run rally in the eighth inning and put the night cap in ice with a six run scoring spree in the sixth inning.

Joe Dobson, a Boston Rookie, limited the Senators to five hits in the second game and hurled shutout ball after the second inning.

The lead of the New York Yankees was cut to 19 games when they divided a twin bill with the Philadelphia Athletics. The Yanks won the opener 13 to 11 and dropped the second half of the Labor Day bill 5 to 1.

New York had a decided off day making three errors in the first game and in the second they lacked their usual punch and could turn 11 hits into only one run.

The Cleveland Indians, early season league leaders, slipped into fourth place by dropping a twin bill with with the second place Chicago White Sox. Chicago won the first game 7 to 5 and then took the night cap, which went 12 innings, by a 4 to 3 count.

Thornton Lee won the opener even though nicked for 13 hits. John Rigney went the full route in the second game, allowing only nine hits for 12 innings and hurling shutout ball after the second inning.

Delmar Baker's Detroit club was hitting the ball hard and frequent as they twice trounced the St. Louis Browns. The Tigers won the first game 9 to 5 and took the second by a 16 to 8 score.

Eight St. Louis hurlers saw service and they were nicked for 36 hits. Baker used five moundsmen and they allowed 27 safeties for the two games.

St. Louis piled up a seven run lead in the first two innings of the night cap but the Detroit outfit pushed over nine runs in the sixth and added insult to injury with a four run rally in the eighth.

RIO NEWSPAPER IS GLAD REICH PROTECTS EUROPE

Says Baltic Lands' Destruction Shows What Red Victory Would Bring

Transocean

RIO DE JANEIRO, August 31.—It is a good thing that a strong Germany is protecting Europe, Gazeta Noticias remarked today.

The destruction wrought by the bolsheviks in the Baltic countries shows what mankind might expect from a Soviet victory.

It is incomprehensible that the christian people of England are able to praise these destructions in their newspapers.

Furthermore, the enthusiasm voiced in London and Moscow at the attempt on the life of Pierre Laval leads to the belief that the responsibility for the shots rests in those capitals, this newspaper added.

RIVIERA IS BRIGHT PLACE IN FRANCE

Gambling Big Business Again—Bars Open Until Midnight—Hotels Half Empty

The Riviera has kept enough of its playground spirit to remain the liveliest spot in France, reports the Associated Press.

Gambling again is a big business. There are stage shows, and the bars remain open until midnight, although Nice is the only place where many offer music and performers. Full floor shows and public dancing are prohibited, however.

Nice, too, is the only place where the stores—not permitted to shut down even though taking a loss—try to keep up window displays recalling the old times.

Transportation Problem

To replace the missing taxicabs, displaced by gasoline rationing, there are velo-taxis and moto-taxis, light two-seater trailers drawn by tandems or motorcycles. But these cannot be used in hilly towns like Monte Carlo.

About 300 Americans still residing along the Riviera have expressed determination to remain, regardless of developments, while another 200 are uncertain or arranging to leave.

They are all that remain of the normal permament colony of 1,500 Americans here and part of the large number of foreign residents who have stuck it out despite the war.

Where once about 60,000 transient foreign visitors came yearly to the Continent's greatest resort, now there are virtually none.

But refugees and a few French visitors kept the guest population considerably more than half that of former years until French from the north began to be repatriated and some of the foreigners were rounded up.

The number of persons remaining seems unaffected by the time of year, so the Riviera doesn't know whether the season is over, still continuing or never began.

With wealthy refugees crowded into cramped quarters in many parts of Vichy's France, the Riviera hotels are half empty because every mouthful of food eaten here is a drain on the country's weakened transportation facilities.

The picturesque closeness of the mountains and shore line leaves no room to grow anything on a large scale except flowers.

Lines at Market

The central market of Nice is one of the few in France where lines form to buy vegetables. Labels on the packing crates of fruits and vegetables show they have come from North Africa.

Meat, poultry and dairy products are either rare or non-existent. There is a small quantity of fish of poor quality. Italian ham and cheese may be found.

Cities with a large native population like Nice, Antibes and Monte Carlo feel the lack of visitors less than Cannes and St. Raphael, while Juan les Pins and Mentone, half occupied by the Italians, virtually are deserted.

Most of the permanent American colony have become stay-at-homes, relying on the continual round of farewell parties for those leaving.

When the Vichy Government prohibited gambling after the fall of France, gambling continued only at the Monte Carlo Casino, in the independent principality of Monaco, which has managed to keep up appearances although it suffers from the same food shortages and the loss of its 40,000 annual visitors.

The casino then was crowded to the doors, with standing room only on special all-night casino busses and "gamblers' trains" running to Monte Carlo.

Even now, with four gambling places open in Nice and others at Cannes and elsewhere, a visit to the Monte Carlo Casino disclosed 14 out of 19 roulette, baccarat and trente-et-quarante tables going most of the time, with 100 persons playing. The stakes, however, were low, and formal wear had been abandoned.

But Riviera authorities seem completely confident of the future and are laying out a vast program of scenic highways and other projects for the day when war is past.

INDIA SHOULD REFUSE TO GIVE AID TO BRITAIN

Leading Paper Writes That Is Only Way to Gain Independence

Transocean

BANGKOK, August 25.—The refusal to aid England is the only means to enforce India's independence, the leading Nationalist organ "Amrita Baza Gatrika" wrote on Sunday. In an exceedingly sharp editorial the organ again deals with the British refusal to declare India's independence stating that Great Britain at least promised independence to the Syrians without the Syrians even asking for such promise.

In India's case on the other hand Great Britain is rejecting any Indian claim to independence although India has been fighting for its independence for years. The newspaper declares that "England is promising all nations liberty with the exception of those she herself is ruling." In concluding, the newspaper points out the extent to which Great Britain is dependent on Indian production, indirectly requesting the Indian people to refuse assistance to England in the present war and to compel England eventually to fulfill the Indian claims.

National Schools' Swim Meet

About 5,000 pupils of eight leading national schools in Tokyo had their swimming contests Saturday afternoon under the auspices of the physical culture section of the Tokyo City's Educational Bureau. The event was simultaneously started at each site at 1 p.m. sharp with the attendance of the municipal authorities, the National School teachers and the parents of the participating pupils. At each site, the 500-meter relay race by girl pupils was the first to be staged. Then followed the 5,000-meter relay participated in by the boy pupils in higher grades, succeeded by the individual contests in swimming skills. The whole affair ended amidst heated atmosphere among the spectators, all of whom could have a fine afternoon under the fine weather rarely the case for the past few days. Photo shows the children of the Kyobashi National School in action.

DEFENSE TO KEEP AUTO PLANTS BUSY

President and OPM Seek to Assure Manufacturers and Labor as Well

President Roosevelt and the Office of Production Management both sought to assure automobile manufacturers and employes today that the industry will not be required to shut down and throw men out of work because of the reduction in the output of civilian automobiles, reports a Washington dispatch in the Baltimore Sun.

Mr. Roosevelt explained that the production of defense equipment gradually will be substituted for civilian goods, so that unemployment will not result, and the OPM informed manufacturers of automobile parts that they will have a chance in the immediate future to obtain a greatly increased volume of defense work.

Gradual Substitution

What the Government is trying to do, the President asserted, is not simply to shut down the auto plants, laying off the employes and keeping them idle until, some time later, the plants begin turning out defense articles. The process actually will be a gradual substitution, he said.

Leon Henderson, head of the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply, announced a program calling for a 50 per cent reduction in the manufacture of automobiles, in order to divert steel and other materials to defense items and to make fuller use of the automobile industry's production facilities.

The new model year for automobiles, begins next month, but the proposed 50 per cent, reduction would not be fully effective until later on. A 20 per cent, reduction from the current year's high level is contemplated at the start.

Mr. Henderson's announcement brought forth predictions from the automobile workers' unions that thousands of men would be out of work. Governor Murray D. Van Wagoner of Michigan arranged a conference with OPM officials to urge a modification of the 50 per cent, cut.

According to Mr. Roosevelt, the Government intends to take full advantage of the labor and equipment of the automobile industry.

He indicated that there has been no change in the plan to curtail the output of civilian cars, and remarked that the process of converting a large portion of the industry to defense production has been under study for over a year.

Assured Of Orders

At the OPM, meanwhile, approximately 120 members of the automobile parts industry were assured that they soon will receive defense orders in large volume. The industry representatives were here to nominate eight members of the automotive industry advisory committee.

OPM officials pointed out that the defense program has grown since last March from around $30,000,000,000 to nearly $60,000,000,000 now authorized or pending in Congress, and that additional defense work must be placed in plants now manufacturing consumers' durable goods to get the program out in time.

Additional defense contracts must be placed quickly, moreover, or many plants will be forced to shut down for lack of materials for civilian production, it was stated. If plants were allowed to shut down, their labor forces would be scattered and the task of reopening would be difficult.

tion of Schubert's works in Germany

The father of Franz Peter Schubert was a good teacher and a fair musician, who perceived early the extraordinary talents of his son. In Vienna he found many of his most devoted friends who helped him out of their little money and bought his music paper. He began with compositions in May 1810. In 1813, he entered his father's school as assistant teacher, but without any interest or success. Although very much impaired by the "slavery of school-work," he took private lessons from the famous Salieri who did much for his future.

Admirers of Schubert

His best year was 1815, when he produced a number of music, the list of which includes Church music, the symphony in D, five operas, sonatas and 146 songs. Like Schiller was invited by Koerner, Schubert was enabled too by one of his rich friends, von Schober, to move into his house in order to devote himself to composition. Soon the number of Viennese admirers of Schubert increased, but he became entirely penniless, because he could not find a publisher for his works. This period of his life remembers the famous French book "Scenes de la vie de Boheme" of Henry Murger, with the fortunes and misfortunes, loves, studies and sufferings of a group more or less impecunious students, artists and men of letters.

For the last years of his life, Schubert's numerous compositions are a kind of biography unique in the history of music. He died unexpectedly by typhus without having completed his 32nd year. Since the resuscitation in 1867, Schubert became more and more popular in all countries of the world. He is recognized to be unsurpassed by his imaginative feeling. Austrians are right to say that he was the greatest songwriter of all times.

Annette Kolb was very successful in painting a new and very colored picture of the composer. Largely citing the documentary material left by his friends, she pointed out his sufferings and his incessant struggle for recognition with the Viennese public. We understand him better today than his own century did. Writing in this spirit, Annette Kolb put a fresh wreath upon the sepulchre of the genius.

VATICAN WAGES INCREASED

Salaries and Bonuses Augmented to Meet Rising Living Costs

Transocean

VATICAN CITY, August 29.—Salaries of all officials and employees of the Vatican administration and their family bonuses were increased today.

This was done to enable them to meet the rising costs of living.

In drawing up the new scales of pay, the Papal authorities took into account the fact that many employees of the Vatican City adminstration do not live within the precincts of the ecclesiastical territory. Consequently, they are unable to purchase food at the reduced prices prevailing there.

TOKYO, MONDAY, SEPT. 8, 1941.

North China

Development of North China toward a new order practically began with the establishment of the Federal Reserve Bank at Peking in February, 1938, to take up the battle of currency with Chungking. This was followed by a number of enterprises in the diverse fields of air service, cotton, telegraphs and telephones, transport, coal, industrial salt, electricity, iron and others. In 1939 an industrial development plan over a period of four years was undertaken with the main accent on coal, liquid fuel, iron ore, pig iron and steel, salt and cotton.

Although data are not available regarding the actual accomplishments in these lines, it may be gathered from the indications given that fairly encouraging results will have been achieved, despite the handicaps im- [illegible] the wartime conditions, be- [illegible] close of the current year [illegible] esents the last of the four [illegible] e present undertaking. In [illegible] coal, iron ore, and cot- [illegible] production in December [illegible] ined respectively 50, [illegible] nt of the marks ori- [illegible] hem. Taken as a [illegible] plan may be call- [illegible] the extent of 80 [illegible]

[illegible] ndustrial undertak- [illegible] bject to unstable cur- [illegible] nditions in the country is [illegible] plain. Due to drastic short- [illegible] f commodities due to hostili- [illegible] proportionate rises in war ex- [illegible] nditure, the devastation wrought [illegible] y heavy floods, and the bombardment of Chungking money, the Federal Reserve Bank notes suffered bad depreciations in the exchange market from 1939 to 1940. A series of counter-measures such as sequestration of the British concession at Tientsin, controls over external trade, and restrictions of private enterprises, were aimed at the bolstering of the position of the new Peking bank currency. The effect of all these measures, however, was hardly visible before the closing part of last year. A more buoyant tone in the North China currency has of late been apparent, the current quotation being as high as ¥55 for $100 of Fapi money. Another wholesome sign is seen in the amount of circulation which has shrunk from the peak of ¥750 million to 600 million. However, unqualified optimism is thought unwarranted as long as the balance of external trade continues adverse as it has been for these few years.

The development of private enterprises in and around Peking may be seen in the table below. The figures for 1939 and 1940 give a fair picture of the situation. Although it is difficult to see in these figures the expanding field of Japanese enterprise, they are at least sufficient as evidence of the orderly condition of business and life that is attracting enterprises in various fields.

Private Investment in Peking (in Yen)

Manufacturing	3,130,500	8,543,800
Mining	1,663,800	5,884,000
Construction & civil engineering	5,546,600	10,302,000
Foreign trade	8,358,200	8,962,000
Wholesale & retail	8,793,900	13,558,780
Financial	1,657,600	3,106,500
Transport & carriage	1,041,100	2,179,000
Hotels & boarding houses	781,150	2,661,400
Restaurants, etc	1,137,600	3,768,800
Other	209,500	1,099,050
Total	32,739,950	60,066,280

In this connection it may be noted that during last year 2,673 Chinese newly entered the field of business, while 949 closed down, the net increase in business enterprise being 1,724. This figure, according to the municipal authorities, is a record high in the history of Peking. Although no small portion of these new enterprises is incident to the wartime condition of the country or on that account lacking in permanency, they are sufficient to show that the economic revival of the urban area, compared with the rural, is more remarkable.

The 80 per cent accomplishment of the current industrial program, as mentioned above, is generally considered as encouraging in view of the conditions under which it was done. No small credit is due to the joint effort of Chinese and Japanese officials charged with the reconstruction work of the country. The development in the future of the country along its new line of economic revival and political reconstruction is chiefly to be determined by the plan formulated in August of last year by the North China Liaison Section of the China Affairs Board.

This plan known as the 5-Year North China Development Plan, is to begin this year and is marked by concentration of attention on a few specific lines of industrial produce of major importance. Coal, above all, is to receive the most attention among all natural resources. Composite plans are to be followed to meet the need of fuel in Japan, Manchoukuo and North China, in addition to supplies for central and South China. To this end a certain section of the equipment set for Japan is to be transferred to North China. By this change in plans, a considerable increase is expected from the Chinese mines which have been either partially working or left undeveloped.

A further progressive step is to be seen in the release from the military control of Chinese mines. These are to be placed under the management of Japanese concerns. It means that the Japanese industrialists engaged in this line are to have an increasing field of activity in North China. As a prerequisite to increased coal production, new power resources are to be developed, together with construction of new systems of irrigation. For extension of transport facilities, work on all new railways is to be suspended. Attention is to be concentrated on the improvement of existing railways as well as on extension of canals and harbor equipment. The new plan, in addition, includes undertakings for increased production of rice, as part of the self-sustaining policy for increasing the Japanese colony in China, extension of acreage under cotton, and increase of production of staple foods for the Chinese population such as wheat, millet and other crops.

It is noteworthy that all these industrial and agricultural undertakings under the new plan are to be carried on side by side with the pacification work of traveling corps. Compared with the plans proposed for the initial years of Japanese undertaking in North China, there are seen marked tendencies to follow practical lines comporting with the existing conditions of labor and industry in North China.

Sun on Bather Measured

A person sitting on the beach at noon in a bathing suit absorbs on every square inch of his body exposed at right angles to the sun 120 microwatts of energy than can manifest itself as sun tan or as freckles. These measurements were made by Dr. J. W. Marden, assistant director of research of the lamp division of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, who says the average bather with only his back exposed absorbs about 100,000 microwatts of ultra-violet energy a second under a cloudless sky.

A microwatt is only the millionth part of a watt. The ordinary household lamp uses from 60 to 100 watts, so the energy in the sunlight that produces tan is relatively small. Twenty minutes' exposure is required to produce a slight tan. A new lamp produces the same tan in five minutes, indicating that man to this extent, at least, has put the sun in second place as a producer of ultra-violet light. The measuring device used by Dr. Marden utilizes titanium, which changes its electrical conductivity with the amount of ultra-violet light that produces sun tan and ignores other rays.—N.Y. Herald Tribune.

Model Country Town

There are far-reaching plans in Germany for reforming and rebuilding unattractive towns and villages. It has been recognized that unlovely outer surroundings are one of the most important causes for the flight from the land. Much has already been done in this respect in the town of Auma in Thuringia, with its 3,000 inhabitants.

Upon the occasion of a celebration there, the provincial peasant leader announced that Auma is to be made a model country town. Its pivot will be formed by the agricultural holdings of the vicinity, which have been formed into efficient going concerns. Beside them, the trades, handicrafts and commerce are to be developed in close community of interests and spirit. With the cooperation of Party and State, a model country town is to arise here.

NEW YORK LEGISLATION HERALDS WHOLESALE CLEAN-UP OF SLUMS

Drive Formed to Redevelop and Rebuild Blighted Areas Certified as 'Substandard or Insanitary'

By THOMAS C. DESMOND

Christian Science Monitor

Many American cities are decaying around the core. Between the flourishing business district at the center of town and the pleasant home neighborhoods at the outskirts come the slums—a belt of run-down, dingy houses, tenements, and business buildings which are both unattractive and unprofitable. These areas are suffering from "blight," a condition which has been much talked about recently, but which remains unchecked. New York State has just begun an experiment with a new law for attacking the problem. The experiment will be watched with interest all over the country.

For some years the United States has been concerned with the problem of those who live in the slums, and we have made a start toward providing new homes for them. The unique quality of New York's new law is that it gives attention to the parallel problem of the blighted area itself, the property afflicted with blight, and the property owners.

The New York statute, which is known as the Desmond-Mitchell Urban Redevelopment Corporations Law, was passed at the 1941 session of the Legislature and signed by Governor Lehman on May 1. It provides for the chartering of a special type of corporation empowered to rebuild areas certified by city planning officials as "substandard or insanitary."

In order to encourage such corporations to tackle this highly important job, the new statute offers them two special privileges, one a limited form of tax exemption, the other a carefully restricted power of condemnation. That such priilveges are not only justifiable but highly necessary public policy is clearly shown by a consideration of the problem of blight.

Blighted Area

The blighted areas of our cities are those which have outlived their usefulness for one purpose and have not yet been developed for another. Most frequently they are old residential neighborhoods whose proximity to the business center was an advantage in days of horse and buggy. At that time, they were built up with large houses for the city's business and social leaders.

As the years have passed they have gone through a gradual process of social and economic decay, passing from one-family use to multifamily and rooming service, and finally to a heterogeneous condition of filling stations, small stores, and used-car lots, interspersed with low-rent and usually shabby living quarters.

No one lives in such a section who can afford quarters elsewhere. Most of the population moves out to newer and more attractive places at the city's perimeter, for the automobile, bus, and rapid transit line make it possible to live far from the job. Vacancies in the old district increase and dilapidation spreads. As buildings become unprofitable they are torn down and their sites left as vacant deserts of rubble and broken glass.

Others are boarded up in a more or less vain attempt to keep out marauders. Such properties are physical hazards and fire dangers, and they give an unmistakable air of failure and decay which seriously depresses all neighboring property values. Those buildings that remain must face a problem of declining rentals and increasing vacancies as tenants, whether residential or business, seek quarters in less depressing surroundings.

The individual owner of property in a substandard area is helpless. His problems are due to the character of the whole neighborhood which cannot be changed by one owner alone. Money spent to improve a single property in a blighted area is usually simply wasted because of surrounding conditions.

Population Growth Slackens

Nevertheless, owners of property hang grimly on. They continue to hope for a day when the downtown business area may expand and their land be bought at a high price.

When our cities were in the period of rapid, almost overnight, expansion, this hope had foundaiton. Growing business needs caused central business districts to expand outward in repeated waves. Over an ever-widening circle, obsolescent property surrounding the downtown area was bought up and rebuilt with stores, banks, and office buildings. As a result, if blight appeared at all, it could safely be considered a temporary condition. But as our population growth slackens, this automatic process ceases to operate and deliberate planning become necessary.

In a few special circumstances, some progress has indeed been made in recent years, in spite of these generally unfavorable conditions.

For example, public housing projects usually are located in blighted areas where they not only directly replace the derelict buildings formerly on their sites but are doubly effective through the spreading influence of their clean newness upon surrounding property. There are other cases where a new park or a new highway or some other development has so changed conditions that private rebuilding has taken place. But there is a limit to the amount of public housing that can or should be built and park and highway projects will never aid more than a tiny fraction of our cities' blighted areas.

Areas Not Suitable

We have experimented with limited dividend housing companies as a method of drawing private capital into low-rent housing. Limited dividend companies have been generally successful and show what can be done by private capital when it is given a helping hand through tax limitation or power of condemnation. But not all sites in blighted areas are suitable for housing at the low-rent levels required of limited dividend projects. Some are best suited for housing for higher income groups; others ought to be used for industry or business. It is to make possible such rebuilding and redevelopment that the new law was passed.

In New York City are two outstanding examples of proper redevelopment of blighted areas. The first is Rockefeller Center, which replaced several blocks of obsolete brown stone houses used for the furnished rooms, Chinese laundries, and cheap lunch rooms so characteristic of blight. Except for the Fifth Avenue frontage the whole area presented a throughly discouraging picture. It might easily have become a source of infection from which blight would have spread. Instead, it has become the showplace of the city. Moreover, it is secure against blight because of its size; it is a neighborhood in itself, and the conditions of neighboring property cannot overwhelm it.

If Rockefeller Center shows what can be done in the field of business building, the vast new apartment by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in the Bronx at Parkchester is an outstanding example of housing. Here pleasant, well-planned apartment buildings are placed in surroundings of trees and grass, with play space for children and air and sunlight for all. This development, covering many acres, is likewise in no danger from blight. It is big enough to determine the character of the whole neighborhood.

It is by such means that the building decline of our cities must be cured. We cannot expect this kind of rehabilitation to be widespread, however, without the help of the new legislation. Parkchester was possible because a large site happened to be available in the hands of a single owner and because a large insurance company could command the necessary resources and could afford to accept a modest return on its investment. The site of Rockefeller Center also belonged to a single owner and offered the further advantage of proximity to the prosperous Fifth Avenue shopping district. If we are to have other such improvements—and the need for them is desperate—we must provide a way for other groups, who do not happen to have these advantages to participate in the task.

Two Distinct Ways

New York's Desmond-Mitchell Urban Redevelopment Corporations Law accomplishes this purpose in two distinct ways. In the first place it authorizes local communities to offer a type of tax exemption. The property of a redevelopment corporation will continue to be assessed at the same value as at the time it was acquired by the corporation.

Improvements made in redeveloping it will not cause any increase in taxes for a given period of years Local communities can give this exemption for as long as 10 years, and after the exemption period full taxes will be levied. In this way no city will directly lose any tax revenue. Furthermore, most blighted areas include many tax delinquent properties, so that if they are taken over by a redevelopment corporation which pays taxes even on the old valuation, the city will gain.

The second method of attracting capital is through giving to redevelopment corporations a regulated power of condemnation. One of the main reasons why private capital has not done more rebuilding has been the fact that except in such unusual cases as Parkchester or Rockefeller Center, acquisition of a tract of suitable size requires buying from great number of separate owners. This usually means paying exorbitant prices to a few "hold-out" owners, who can stop the whole protect unless their terms are met. By providing that sites may be rounded out through use of condemnation proceedings, the new law makes it possible for a site large enough to be worthwhile to be assembled without any chance for obstructionist tactics.

Result of Years' Study

In many places rehabilitation will undoubtedly be accomplished by a pooling of interests by present owners of blighted property. We have seen how hopeless it is for a single owner to spend money to improve his property if his neighbors do nothing Under the new law, a number of owners can join forces by forming themselves into a redevelopment corporation, and can accomplish the lasting improvement that none could achieve alone.

The new Urban Redevelopment Corporations Law in its final form represents the result of several years' study and incorporates suggestions received from many sources and groups with differing views and interests.

The influence of the legislation will be widespread. The Illinois and Massachusetts Legislatures are considering somewhat similar measures. If the redevelopment corporations formed under New York's law prove that the device is an effective one, the law is certain to be widely copied. In any case, New York State can justly claim the credit due to the pioneer in a new and important field.

Straw Press With Surefire Binding

At the Vienna Fair, which attracted an especially large delegation of visitors from Southeastern Europe, a new kind of straw press was shown at the Agricultural Show, in which particular thought had been given to see that the binding was absolutely sure and certain. Knotter, twine holder and cutting equipment are so formed that they work absolutely dependable and have a very long life. In addition, there are also several other new ideas incorporated in this machine. For instance, the straw supply table has no slit, so short straw cannot fall out, and the threading, which had formerly been a generally difficult and often dangerous operation, can now even be done while the machine is running.

Outcome of Defense Strikes

WASHINGTON.—A total of 2,485,150 man-days of employment of vital Army defense work was lost during the first six months of 1941 because of 187 strikes, an official survey revealed.

The study, based on a careful analysis of available statistics on the labor situation directly affecting War Department orders, showed that the greatest volume of tie-ups came in the basic and raw materials field, when 41 disputes affected 87,300 workers and caused the loss of 777,850 days of employment.

The statistics did not include some disputes, such as the soft-coal tie-up, the West Coast shipping strike, and the Ford Motor Company strike, which did not directly involve Army contracts. As a result, authoritative sources said that the results of the survey are considered a "most conservative estimate" of the situation.

Included in the labor picture from January 1 to July 1, the recapitulation showed that 93 of the strikes, involving 100,750 men, with a loss of 1,193,500 days of work, occurred during the first three months. The period from April 1 to July 1 showed a slightly higher trend.

But observers said that this trend is now downward, the decline beginning in June after Army troops, under orders from President Roosevelt, temporarily took over the strike-bound plant of the North American Aviation, Incorporated, at Inglewood, California.

The survey revealed that the average strike lasted 11 days and involved 1,144 men. The study showed the following other categories of work involved, and the effect during the six months' period:

Type of Work	Strikes	No. of Workers involved	Days lost
Electrical equipt...	22	18,050	569,750
Mechanical and motor vehicles and parts (non-combat)	10	12,000	295,400
Munitions, chemicals and weapons.	24	20,500	209,500
Clothing and personal equipment.	32	15,175	225,900
Aircraft engines and parts	17	27,125	105,450
Construction	11	13,000	41,250
Miscellaneous	14	6,875	96,300

One of the numerically small categories of strikes—those taking place in the machine tool and parts industry—actually had one of the greatest adverse effects on defense production, it was said. The study showed there were 16 strikes, involving 13,875 men and the loss of 136,750 man days of work, in this field.—N. Y. Herald Tribune.

WINNIPEG, September 3.—A Chinese who yesterday left a restaurant with a stomach ache told a doctor he had swallowed a knife and fork along with his dinner—and x-rays confirmed the statement. Surgeons operated and recovered the fork but were still groping for the knife. The Chinese was expected to recover.

Louis and Nova Sign Contracts for Bout At End of Month

United Press

NEW YORK, September 6.—Joe Louis, world heavyweight champion, and his latest challenger, Lou Nova, yesterday signed contracts for a 15 round title bout in the Polo Grounds September 29. A physical examiner said that both men were in good condition. It was believed that the Brown Bomber would receive the champion's usual 37½ per cent of the gate receipts while Nova would receive 17½ per cent.

DODGERS NOW LEAD AS ST. LOUIS' LOSE

National Leaders to Meet Terrymen While Cardinals Tackles Cincinnati

United Press

NEW YORK, September 5.—The Cincinnati Reds and Pittsburgh Pirates divided a twin bill in the only National League play today.

The Reds, with the assistance of three Pittsburgh errors, took the opener 10 to 4 while the Pirates nosed out their foes 1 to 0 in the second game, which was halted in the sixth frame by rain and darkness.

Paul Derringer started on the hill for the Reds in the opener but Jimmy Turner and Joe Beggs also saw service before the game ended. They allowed 15 hits while the Reds were getting at two Pirate hurlers for 11 safeties.

Pittsbugrh led until the eighth inning when the Reds went wild and pushed over eight runs before being retired. Lloyd Dietz was on the hill for the Pirates and allowed only six hits during the abbreviated game. The lone run of the game was scored by the Pirates in the final inning.

Tomorrow the Reds will take on the second place St. Louis Cards, while the league leading Brooklyn Dodgers will meet the New York Giants.

Jumps Into First Place

United Press

NEW YORK, September 4.—Without lifting a bat, the Brooklyn Dodgers jumped into first place in the National League today.

Broklyn replaced the St. Louis Cards who dropped both ends of a doubleheader to the Chicago Cubs. The Dodgers were scheduled to meet the Philadelphia Phillies, but their game was rained out. With 22 more games to play, the Brooklyn outfit holds a one-game lead over the Cards.

The Cubs blanked the Cards, 3 to 0, in the opener behind the five-hit hurling of Paul Erickson. Lon Warneke started for the Cards but was soon chased to the showers.

In the nightcap, Claude Passeau turned in his 13th win of the season as the Cubs nosed out the Cards, 4 to 3, in an 11-inning thriller. Four St. Louis hurlers allowed only nine hits but they were given erratic support by their mates.

The Cubs scored single runs in the first three innings and by the sixth the Cards had knotted the score. Until the 11th when the Cubs broke up the game, neither club was able to score.

The Pittsburgh Pirates shut out the Cincinnati Reds, 4 to 0, in a game halted in the fifth inning by rain.

On the mound for the Pirates was Truett Sewell who allowed only one hit, a double in the first inning by Lin Frey. He was opposed by Bucky Walters who yielded five safeties.

FUNERAL SERVICE TODAY FOR ROOSEVELT'S MOTHER

President Postpones Important Address Over Radio Till Thursday

I.N.S.

HYDE PARK, New York, September 7.—Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, mother of the President, who died here today at 12:15 p.m., became ill Friday night. She suffered an alarming acute collapse of the circulation system on Saturday night. She was unconscious for 12 hours before death took place.

Mrs. Roosevelt would have reached her 87th birthday on September 21, had she lived. The President arrived at the Roosevelt home here on Saturday morning, intending to plan a family party to celebrate his mother's birthday. The President, with his wife, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, stayed at his mother's bedside throughout the night.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday.

The President, who, it had been announced, would make a radio address "of major importance" on Monday night, has postponed the address until Thursday night as a result of his mother's death.

No Tobacco for French Women

PARIS, July 10.—Because of the tobacco shortage, it was decreed today that all smokers must register at the tobacco shops of their choice and make future purchases there, but, since women are forbidden to register they will be barred henceforth from buying cigarettes.

The authorities ruled that tobacco stores must close for at least two days a week.

MARRIED MEMBERS WIN CRICKET GAME

Benedicts Make Twice the Number of Runs as Their Opponents

The single cricketers of the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club, playing with four men short, proved no match for the married members, who turned out a full eleven, in a game at the club grounds Saturday afternoon. The benedicts made exactly twice the number of runs their opponents did, the score being 102 to 51.

Although the single men made their total with only seven batsmen, the married players scored more than their opponents for the loss of only four wickets to gain a convincing victory, especially as the bachelors obtained four substitutes to field a complete side.

The losers went in to bat first and the initial wicket was lost for eight runs when C. Heseltine was run out. J. A. Sargeant then joined E. V. Thomas, but both these players were dismissed at 22 and 24, respectively.

Stephens and Harriss

S. Stephens and F. R. Harriss put up a good fourth wicket stand, raising the score to 46 before the latter was bowled by J. R. V. Mason. The fifth wicket was taken for five more points, and the sixth also fell at 51.

It had been hoped that some of the other single cricketers would turn up during their innings, but as none did the side was declared all out for the loss of six wickets.

The married men started off very poorly after the tea interval, their first two wickets falling for only four runs. However, A. G. May and Mason teamed up well, and the 40 mark was passed when the former had his stumps disturbed by Stephens.

The fourth wicket was taken before the half-century point was reached, but M. Parsram and Mason made certain of a win soon after.

Batting honors went to Mason who scored 31 before he was leg before wicket to one of Stephens' tricky deliveries. May's 22 was second high, and P. H. Lord made 17. Stephens seemed set for a good innings when his side's innings ended, his score being 15, not out.

Mason also had the best bowling average, taking three wickets for 10 runs. Sargeant followed with, three for 29. Stephens obtained the most wickets, getting five for 52.

Mr. G. H. da Costa did the scoring and compiled the statistics.

The game next Saturday will be between sides to be led by the captain and vice-captain. The following Saturday, September 20, will see the British Embassy team play against "The Best."

Final Game Sept. 27

The final game of the season, to be held on September 27, will, by special request, be another "Married" versus "Single" match. The intention is to give the single players the chance to muster a representative side, also the opportunity to avenge previous defeats, and as the benedicts put it, "and thereby to justify their existence as cricketers."

MANY GERMAN CATHOLICS SERVING IN ARMED FORCES

Now 1,132 of Which 500 Are Volunteers While 250 Killed

Transocean

BERLIN, September 4.—Presently there are 1,132 members of German Catholic orders serving in the German armed forces, it was disclosed by clerical circles here today.

About 500 of those men are volunteers. Most of them are serving in Red Cross units.

The German Catholic Church mourns the loss of about 250 of its ranks who lost their lives at the front.

Those men, who lost their lives during the first two years of the war, include army chaplains, Red Cross workers, and many young priests who were serving as soldiers.

Twenty-six German monastries have placed parts of their cloisters at the service of the Red Cross. Most of these soldiers' hospitals are situated in the midst of the scenic splenders of the German countryside.

GEO. SIBLEY JOHNS, NOTED EDITOR, DIES

One of America's Leading Journalists Passes in St. Louis, Aged 83

George Sibley Johns, editor emeritus of St. Louis Post-Dispatch and one of the most widely known of American newspaper men, died in St. Louis, Missouri on July 16. He was 83 years old.

George S. Johns once summed up the editorial policy of St. Louis Post-Dispatch by saying: "Our policy always has been to go after anything wrong. Whenever we've had the evidence we have not hesitated, regardless of consequences. Mr. (Joseph) Pulitzer sr. approved this policy. He used to say: 'Be fair. Print the facts. Don't be abusive.' We've always complied with these orders. We attack the wrong and the wrongdoer, but refrain from personal abuse."

It was this policy which, for the thirty years in which Mr. Johns was in charge of the editorial page of The Post-Dispatch, guided the editorials and drew praise even from those who disagreed with them. Mr. Johns—"Old Fundamentalist," as his colleagues called him—believed implicity in the preservation of self-government—the Constitution, the Bill of Rights, state rights and individual rights—and he would lash out furiously and fearlessly whenever he thought that any of them was being endangered.

Started at Princeton

Mr. Johns started his journalistic career at Princeton University, where as a member of the class of 1880 he was editor of Daily Princetonian, undergraduate news-paper. He succeeded Woodrow Wilson to that office and later, after a speech by Wilson which was well received, he said to the President: "You taught me all that I know about journalism, and I taught you all you know about statesmanship."

"You may be right," Wilson is reported to have replied. "That declaratino of mine which fetched cheers from the people today was yours. You wrote it in The Princetonian years ago and I've borne it in mind ever since."

After his graduation Mr. Johns was a reporter on Philadelphia News but soon gave that up and returned to his home in St. Charles, Mo., a suburb of St. Louis, to begin studying law. That lasted no longer than his first reporting job, since his brother, who published St. Charles Journal, became ill and Mr. Johns took over the paper. For two years he ran St. Charles Journal, until the local feeling stirred up by some of his editorials made it seem wise for him to sell out to St. Charles Cosmos. Mr. Johns had started early in his campaign against wrongdoing, but St. Charles Journal was hardly the proper springboard for a successful crusade.

He therefore crossed the river to St. Louis, where he got a job with The Post-Dispatch. He started in 1883, doing odds and ends, and was subsequently Saturday columnist, dramatic critic, reporter, city editor, and then reporter again. He became assistant editor and in 1898 was discharged when a new editor took over.

Mr. John promptly went to St. Louis Republic as an editorial writer and in a short time had involved that publication in a libel suit brought by a group of influential politicians. The paper won and other politicians who had been toying with the idea of suing changed their minds and took Mr. Johns's editorials on the chin.

In 1899 the management of The Post-Dispatch again changed hands and Mr. Johns returned to the staff as head of the editorial page, a position he held until his retirement in 1929.

Backed School Reorganization

Among the things which The Post-Dispatch successfully sponsored during the 30 years of his editorial leadership were reorganization of the local public school system on a bi-partison and non-political plan, construction of a big lake in Forest Park by public subscription, decoration of the Missouri State Capitol at Jefferson City with paintings and sculpture and the raising of $83,000,000 in bonds for public improvements and general beautification of St. Louis. This was in addition to the exposure of graft and corruption and the sponsorship of an annual Christmas festival, at which 5,000 baskets of food were given to the poor.

Mr. Johns was a past president of the St. Louis Artists' Guild and a member of the National Federation of Arts, the advisory board of the Pulitzer School of Journalism, the Missouri Historical Society, the American Society of Newspaper Editors and the Sulgrave Institution, in England. He was also a member of the Princeton Club, the University Club, the National Press Club and the St. Louis Aero Club and was vice-president of the Burns Club.

Mr. Johns married Miss Minnie McDearmon of St. Charles, in 1884. They had four sons, George M., Orrick, G. F. Winston and John Jay Johns, Orrick Johns is a poet, a former editor of The New Masses, former director of the Federal Writers Project of the Work Projects Administration in New York City and the author of The Time of Our Lives, published in 1937, which was subtitled "The Story of My Father and Myself."

NEW YORK, September 6.—Brooklyn's pennant hopes soared today when the Dodgers increased their lead to two games by downing the New York Giants, 4 to 1 while the second-place St. Louis Cards were being blanked by the Cincinnati Reds.

The Dodgers may have been out-hit but they hit the horsehide far when they connected, with homers being contributed by Dolph Camilli and Jimmy Wasdell.

Curt Davis hurled for Brooklyn and kept the blows well scattered for shut-out ball in every inning but the seventh.

After scoring two runs on homers, the Dodgers brought their total up to three when Hal Reiser connected with a double to drive in Bill Herman. The scoring ended in the eighth when Pete Reiser hit a three-bagger and came home on Camilli's single.

Johnny Vander Meer was responsible for the downfall of the Cards. The ace Cincinnati hurler held the St. Louis outfit to two hits and whiffed 14 batsmen. The Reds won the game, 2 to 0. Ernest White did the chucking for the Cards and allowed only seven hits. One of the safe blows was a circuit drive by Harry Craft in the ninth inning.

The Reds are now 13 games behind the Dodgers and are trailing the Cards by 11 games.

The Pittsburgh Pirates staved off a Chicago late rally to sneak through a 6 to 4 win over the Cubs.

The most timely blow of the game was supplied by Ken Heintzelman who singled in the sixth to bring in two Pittsburgh scores. Ken also hurled a good game, limiting the Cubs to eight hits.

The Philadelphia Phillies nosed out the Boston Braves, 4 to 3, by pushing over the deciding score in the ninth inning.

The Phillies ran up a three-run lead in the first inning but in the eighth, the Braves knotted the score. In the next frame Ton Livingston singled to drive in Bob Bragan from second and give the Phillies their 38th victory of the year.

In the American circuit, the Boston Red Sox jumped into second place when they trounced the New York Yanks, 8 to 1. The Yanks have not won a game since they cinched the pennant early in the week.

Joe Dogson hurled for Boston and held the Yanks to seven hits. Jimmy Tabor contributed a homer, double and single, and Heber Newsome socked out a circuit drive.

The Detroit Tigers made it two straight over the wobbly Cleveland Indians, taking the opener 6 to 2 and the night-cap, 7 to 2.

Lou Newsome limited the Indians to five safeties in the first game and fanned the batsmen. He hurled shutout ball in every inning but the sixth and eighth.

In the second game, the big guns for the Tigers were L. D. Meyer, who hit safely three times out of four trips to the plate, and Barney McCosky who turned in three safeties out of his five times at bat.

The Chicago White Sox dropped into third place when they divided a double-header with the St. Louis Browns, losing the opener, 3 to 0 and winning the second game, 7 to .

Bob Muncrief blanked the Chisox in the first game and allowed only five hits. He also batted in one of the three runs.

Chicago piled up a 6 to 1 lead in the first inning of the night-cap. One of the runs represented a homer socked out by Pitcher John Rigney. The Chisox Hurler held his foe to seven hits and pitched shutout ball every inning except the eighth.

The Philadelphia Athletics took the first game of their twin bill with Washington by an 8 to 3 count, but the Senators came back to take the night-cap, 8 to 4.

Bob Johnson, Athletic outfielder, had a perfect day with the willow, getting four hits out of as many trips to the plate. Catcher Al Branco connected with two timely hits that batted in four of the Philadelphia runs in the first game.

Leonard went the full route on the mound for the senators in the second game and yielded 11 hits while two Philadelphia pitchers were being touched for 14 safeties.

Dodson and Hogan At Chicago Tourney Finish Under Par

United Press

CHICAGO, September 6.—Leonard Dodson, of Kansas City, wrecked par for the second time in row Friday with a 32 and 36, (68) for a 136 hole total of 139, giving him a substantial lead among early finishers in the second round of the $10,000 open golf tournament. Ben Hogan, leading money winner of the last two years and the pre-tournament favorite, moved into second place with a six under par, 34 and 32 (66) for a 36 hole total of 139.

MEN'S TENNIS MEET ENTERS SEMI-FINALS

College Stars From Keio and Waseda Shine at Den-en Courts

Collegiate stars from Keio and Waseda universities reached the semi-finals round of the Tokyo men's tennis tourney Tuesday at the Den-en Club courts. The four who battled their way to victories were: Fujikura and Okada of Keio and Taneda and Sumi of Waseda.

The women singles contenders entered into the second round with four members of the Den-en Club successfully downing their opponents. Those who triumphed were Misses Nakamura, Kuwana, R. Miyagi and Asabuki.

Kumamaru, regarded as one of the top man for the championship, downed Kakita on Meiji university, 6-2, 6-3, 6-2. The Keio star commanded the play from the outset and scored with a blistering forehand drive which raked both baseline corners.

Taneda, regarded as the only contender capable of stopping Fujikura, conquered Tanabe, member of the Keio university, 6-4, 6-0, 6-3.

Although offering stiff competition throughout the three sets, Yamakawa of Keio fell before Okada, 6-0, 6-3, 9-7. And Sumi, the Waseda collegian downed Iio of Keio in a hurry, 6-2, 6-0, 6-1.

The program today will get under way at 10:00 a.m. at the Den-en courts with matches in both the men and women's tourney.

SPORTS EVENTS SHOW PROGRESS AT Y.C.A.C.

Three International Contests Staged—Born-in-Japan Team Wins

Favored with unexpected but most welcome fine weather over the week-end, much progress was made in the various events of the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club's lawn bowls tournament, the numerous matches on Saturday and Sunday being played off before a large number of spectators.

Much interest was shown in the three contests of the international tourney Sunday, of which two were extremely close.

The Swiss team of H. Banziger, Dr. M. Weidenmann, S. Weil and A. A. Weiss gave a good account of itself in its two games, proving it will be a strong contender for the honors in this event.

On Sunday morning the highly rated Born-in-Japan quartet eked out a close 22 to 21 victory over the Swiss four, in which the losers nearly upset their more experienced opponents. The B-I-J team consisted of F. R. Harriss, F. J. da Silva, S. Stephens and P. H. Lord.

Win Over English

The Swiss squad came through with a fine 19 to 12 win over the English combination Sunday afternoon. The game was a seesaw affair until the halfway mark, the score being tied at 10-all, but the winners drew away from that stage. Playing for England were C. E. H. Bruitt, M. L. Russell, H. S. G. Batter and W. A. Tonlinson.

The Canadian four gained a 20 to 18 decision over the Portuguese contingent, also on Sunday afternoon, in a match which saw the losers stage a great rally near the finish to almost gain a victory. Trailing by 15 to 1 and then 20 to 6, the Portuguese took the last five ends for 12 points while blanking their opponents.

Playing for the winning team were G. E. Beatty, S. Healey, B. G. Ryan and C. Heseltine, while the opposition consisted of C. Fernandes, V. Rangel, G. A. da Silva and E. I. da Silva.

On Saturday afternoon Miss T. Planas and G. E. Beatty (minus 12) reached the finals of the mixed doubles handicap by beating Miss F. Gabaretta and E. Dentici (minus 7), winners of this event last year, by 21 to 8. The victors got off to a fine start, and although their opponents held their own in the latter stages, found the early lead gained by Miss Planas and Beatty too much to overcome.

Mrs. J. Koch Wins

Mrs. J. Koch defeated Mrs C. Verleysen by 22 to 16 in a semi-final contest of the ladies' handicap singles Sunday morning. Both players started at plus 6. Although Mrs. Verleysen played well towards the end, she could not quite make up the advantage plied up by her opponent in the earlier part of the match. Mrs. Koch will meet Miss T. Planas (minus 6) in the finals of this tourney.

G. H. da Costa and J. M. da Costa (plus 5) staged an upset on Sunday morning by downing E. Dentici and K. F Wiersum (minus 9) in the men's handicap doubles, 21 to 20. The father and son combination played well against the former doubles champions to gain a close and hard fought match, which put the da Costas in the quarter-finals of this event.

A. A. F. Shearer (minus 9) advanced to the finals of the men's handicap singles by a 23 to 10 victory over J. A. Lloyd (minus 2). The winner, a former champion, was in great form in this match Sunday afternoon, to beat an opponent who also played well.

Results over the weekend were as follows:

International

Born-in-Japan beat Switzerland, 21 to 20.

Switzerland beat England, 19 to 12.

Canada beat Portugal, 20 to 18.

Men's Handicap Singles

A. A. F. Shearer (minus 9) beat J. O. Lloyd (minus 2), 23 to 10, (semi-final).

Men's Handicap Doubles

G. H. la Costa and J. M. da Costa (plus. 5) beat E. Dentici and K. F. Wiersum (minus 9), 21 to 20.

Ladies' Handicap Singles

Mrs. J. Koch (plus 6) beat Mrs. C. Verleysen (plus 6), 22 to 16, (semi-final).

Mixed Doubles Handicap

Miss T. Planas and G. E. Beatty (minus 12) beat Miss F. Gabaretta and E. Dentici (minus 7), 21 to 8.

U.S. DRUG COMPANIES TO BREAK WITH NAZIS

Justice Department Issues Decree Against Giant Firms Including Bayer

Reuters

WASHINGTON, September 6.—Four big American drug companies must break contracts with a German dye trust under decrees issued by the United States Department of Justice.

The Department states that these contracts have prevented United States firms from trading with South America.

Commenting on the decrees, the Attorney-General, Mr. Biddle, said the effect would be to make products of American companies available to Latin American republics, which sources of drug supply had been interrupted by the war and would also increase participation by American firms in research and export trade.

The decrees are directed against the Alba Pharmaceutical Company, the Bayer Company, the Winthrop Chemical Company, and Sterling Products Company.

SIX STRAIGHT WINS SHOWN BY Y.C.A.C.

Ladies' Softball Squad Beats Elder Male Club Members

The Yokohama Country and Athletic Club's baseball team extended its winning streak to six consecutive victories on Sunday afternoon by defeating the Yokohama Third Middle School nine by 7 to 6 at the club grounds.

The Y.C and A.C. ladies' softball squad beat the elder mele members of the club by 15 to 9 in a kittenball game prior to the baseball till to gain a two to one decision in its series with the "ojiisans".

The club baseballers seemed headed for an easy victory halfway through the sixth inning when they had a 7 to 0 lead, but the students staged two-run rallies in the latter part of sixth, seventh and eighth frames to fall just one point short of deadlocking the count and sending the game into extra innings.

Club Bats First

The Y.C. and A.C. nine bat first and started well, getting a brace of runs in the first canto. With one out, both Haum and Harriss obtained walks, and reached third and second, respectively, on a wild pitch. Then da Silva hit to right field, bringing in both Haum and Harriss.

The winners scored another point in the second stanza. Boixo started off with a single, and then Bielous reached first on an infield error. Singles by Eymard and Haum sent Boixo across the plate.

No more scoring took place until the fifth, when the Y.C. and AC. obtained another run. Eymard smashed out a double, after which Harriss took first on a miscue, the former making third. Eymard completed the circuit when da Silva grounded out.

The club's big inning came in the sixth, when three runs were made. H. Fernandes, first man up, singled, and after the next batter went down swinging, Bielous worked the pitcher for a walk. An infield error put Frank on first, filling the bases. Then Eymard's third hit of the game drove in Fernandes. Another miscue sent Bielous home, and then Frank scored after Harriss flied out to center.

The students fought back gamely, and shut out their opponents in the next four innings while gaining six runs themselves, and came up to bat in the last of the ninth facing a one point deficit.

Uprising Is Stopped

When the first two batsmen were put out the student uprising seemed to have been stopped, but when Yoshimi singled and then stole second the outcome looked doubtful again. However, Bielous caught Takigawa's fly to left field to end the game.

Eymard obtained batting honors of the contest with three hits, one of which was a two-bagger.

The Y.C. and A.C. ladies' softball team gained a 10 to 0 lead against the "ojiisans" halfway through the third inning of the five-frame tussle. The men made a comeback in their half of the third and fourth innings to make four runs in both, and reduced the margin to only two points. However, the girls drove in five runs in the fifth and held the so-called stronger sex to one point in their half of the stanza to win handily.

The girls, who were one player short, included Coach "Bucky" Harriss in its line-up. The "ojiisans" have challenged the ladies to another game next Sunday, the winners to be the guests of the opposition at a dinner, the date of which will be determined later, on the condition that the girls have no ringers in their line-up in this contest.

George Edmondson and Serge Bielous were the umpires, and were the objects of much vociferous and laugh provoking abuse, as usual.

The players were as follows:

Girls' team: Mrs. J. Koch, Miss M. Stevens, Miss M. da Costa, Miss J. Darbior, Miss G. Satchell, Miss E. Papendieck, Miss M. Prohaska and F. R. Harriss.

Men's team: C. Heseltine, G. W. Gorman, H. B. Street, J. Blum, K. F. Wiersum, G. H. da Costa, W. A. Tomlinson and M. C. Cooke.

RIGGS BLASTS WAY INTO TENNIS FINALS

Beats Youthful California Sensation, Schroeder, in National Singles Meet

United Press

FOREST HILLS, September 7.—Bobby Riggs today blasted his way into the finals of the national singles Tennis championships by beating Ted Schroeder, 6-4, 6-4, 1-6, 9-11, 7-5 in one of the tightest and most gruelling matches of this year's tourney.

Pauline Betz defeated Margaret Osborne, 6-4, 6-3, thereby entering the finals against Sarah Palfrey Cooke who earlier beat Helen Jacobs, 6-3, 2-6, 6-1 in the semi-finals of the women's singles.

Schroeder Beats Grant

United Press

FOREST HILLS, New York, September 6.—Lanky Ted Schroeder, Los Angeles member of the national men's doubles champion team, entered the semi-finals of the singles series yesterday when he beat Bryan "Bitsy" Grant, of Atlanta, 6-8, 6-1, 6-2 and 6-3.

Four-time champion Helen Jacobs joined Pauline Betz and Margaret Osborne in the semi-finals of the national singles champion by defeating Dorothy May Bundy of Santa Monica, California, in straight sets, 6-3 and 11-9.

Schoeder, youthful American who has been dominant in west coast tennis tourneys this season, recovered after a shaky start to beat his more experienced rival.

The youth's power was too much for Grant's ancient legs.

Jacobs, Riggs Set Pace

Reuters

FOREST HILL, September 6.—After a day's holdup through rain, the American tennis singles continued with quarter-final victories for Helen Jacobs and Bobby Riggs, both former champions of America and Wimbledon, while Ted Schroeder also reached the semi-final, in which he meets Riggs.

Jacobs was hard-pressed by Dorothy Bundy, winning 6-3 and 11-9 and if Miss Bundy had not netted 26 times, she might have overthrown the former champion. Instead, she threw her racket at the end of the match toward the stadium wall, where it nearly hit a linesman.

Riggs beat Frankie Parker 6-4, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2, while Schroeder, part holder of America's doubles title, beat Bryant Grant 6-8, 6-1, 6-2, 6-3.

Brugnon, former Davis Cup star, entered the semi-final veterans singles.

SEKIYAMA IS NAMED SHUSAI'S SUCCESSOR

Holder of 6th Rank in Go Made 22nd Master at Shinto Ceremony

Riichi Sekiyama, the holder of the sixth rank in go play, has been made the successor of Master Honinbo Shusai, who passed away last year as the 21st Master of go in this country, in a time-honored ceremony held in the hall of the Japan Go-players' Association here on Wednesday.

Present at the function were Baron Kishichiro Okura, vice-president of the association, Ichiro Hatoyama, well-known politician, and Yoshio Kimura, Master of Shogi game. Besides these three, all high-ranking go players in Haori and Hakama were also there to celebrate Mr. Sekiyama's crowning with the highest honor for go-players in this country.

The ceremony was conducted according to Shinto rites. The priests dressed in yellow and blue robes shook the branches of the sacred tree right to left over the heads of the attendance which were lowered toward the altar improvised in the hall.

The worship over, Baron Okura read a document naming Mr. Sekiyama the 22nd Master of go in this country. Mr. Sekiyama solemnly proceeded to the altar to offer a branch of the sacred tree and pray to Gods for the further development of go games in Japan and elsewhere in the world.

A party to advertise the succession of Mr. Sekiyama as the 22nd Master was held at the association hall the same afternoon at which boys and girls adept at the art of go played games with many amateurs.

The first Master of go in Japan was Honinbo Sansa who served Oda Nobunaga, a well-known lord who lived some 370 ago, as go-instructor, says Domei. From the first Master down to the 21st Master Shusai, masters were selected from among disciples in most cases, and some of the masters selected in this fashion were not necessarily the best players of their days.

This rule, however, has been changed by the association recently in order to give more chances to merit.

In the future, the association has decided, the winner of all games for two years consecutively, will be made the master, and Mr. Sekiyama is the first Master who has been elected in accordance with the new rule.

Highest Go Honor to Sekiyama

What of the Rialto?

By Tsunejiro Amakata

Playgoers' attention is now being concentrated on the forthcoming announcement of the October program at the Kabukiza which will mark the first anniversary of the death of the late Utayemon Nakamura. Utayemon was a well-known Kabuki actor since the Meiji days, particularly famous for his unrivalled acting as female impersonater. Those in the stellar cast will be Uzayemon Ichimura, Koshiro Matsumoto, Kikugoro Onoye, Kichiyemon Nakamura, Nizayemon Kataoka, Tomoyemon Otani and Mitsugoro Bando.

Taking advantage of the anniversary performance, Fukusuke Nakamura, son of the late actor, will assume the name of Shikan, and his younger brother, Kotaro, will be named Fukusuke with the customary Kabuki ceremony called "Kojo" (the introduction of actors under the new names).

An advance report says that the Tokyo Gekijo next month will be occupied by Ennosuke Ichikawa, Sumizo Ichikawa and Tosshi Sawamura who will take the important roles. Ennosuke has not been seen on the stage since early part of summer because a his unusual assignment in producing a motion picture, now in production by the Toho studio.

Goro Soganoya and his followers, who are now playing at the Shimbashi Embujo, presented a matinee last Sunday to raise funds for the construction of a warplane "Haiyugo" (Wings of Actors). The box office returns totaled ¥3,500, which will be sent to the Ministry of War as the third contribution of the Japan Actors' Association.

The contribution campaign will further be strengthened by several performances. Those scheduled to be given in the course of this month include the Takarazuka Gekijo by Miss Yaeko Mizutani and her dramatic company on September 20; the Yurakuza by the Shinkokugeki theatrical troupe on September 20; the Meijiza by the orthodox group of the Shimpa theatrical company on September 21; the Kabukiza by Kichiyemon Nakamura and a group of Kabuki actors on September 21, and the Kokusai Gekijo by Kikugoro Onoye and Ennosuke Ichikawa on September 24-26. All proceeds of these performances are to be sent to the Ministries of War and the Navy for the construction of the warplane.

Under the arrangement of the Relief Department of the War Ministry, the Japan Theatrical League will dispatch a party of vaudeville performers to Central China to entertain Japanese soldiers. The party is scheduled to leave here early next week for a two-month tour.

Actors and actresses of the Shinsei Shimpa dramatic troupe, who are now in Osaka, will return to the capital in the latter part of this month to fulfil their engagement at the local Meijiza during October

Although no official announcement has been made with regard to a detailed list of programs, this much is clear so far to state that the Yurakuza will be occupied by Kenichiro Enomoto and his own group of comedians next month while the Takarazuka Gekijo by the dancers of the Snow Class of the Takarazuka Girls' Opera Company.

Orie Tsusaka and Takiko Mizunoe, two celebrated stage dancers, and a company of dancers of the Shochiku revue troupe will make a special appearance at the Open-Air Auditorium, Hibiya Park on September 20 when a large-scale program of plays, dances and music will be presented in celebration of the aviation day, now under contemplation to be observed throughout the nation under the guidance of the Ministries of War, the Navy, and Communications and the Board of Information. The program will be sponsored by the joint undertaking of the Tokyo Municipal Government, Aeronautical Society, Shochiku Theatrical Company and Gramophone Record Producing Association. A drama called "Kokoku no Haha" (the Mother of the Country) will be presented by the leading players of the Ofuna studio of the Shochiku Motion Picture Company headed by Hiroko Kawasaki, in addition to a program of popular song's relating to the aviation.

Elaborate plans have been started by the Shochiku Company for the presentation of the Japanese version of Peer Gynt as the first special performance of a combined group of modern-school players and dancers of the Shochiku revue troupe. The drama, now being arranged by Sugisaku Aoyama, is scheduled to be staged at the Tokyo Gekijo for a week from November 22, according to the present plan.

Uzayemon Ichimura and a company of his followers, who played at the Okaya silk filature auditorium in Nagano Prefecture yesterday, will call at the Riken's Heavy Industry Factory at Maebashi, Gumma Prefecture, tomorrow to stage "The Tale of 47-Ronin," a classical drama, "Echigo Jishi," and "Sambaso," two dances. With the same program they also will play before a gathering of workers at the Hidachi Mine in Ibaraki Prefecture on September 14-15.

For a week from September 13, a group of stage players belonging to the dramatic group headed by Roppa Furukawa will visit several villages in Chiba Prefecture to present a series of special performances. The itinerary of the circuit performance includes Kugamura on September 13, Sawaramachi on September 14, Yoshidamura on September 15, Nakamura on September 16, Yamakuramura on September 17, Iiokamura on September 18, and Takigomura on September 19.

The Takarazuka Company in Kyoto has organized a new theatrical troupe to be known as the Kokumin Gekidan, which consists of 50 players. The newly organized troupe will be sent to the army and navy hospitals to entertain the wounded soldiers besides the occasional visit to the industrial factories throughout the country.

Four new plays will make up the new bill of the Moulin Rouge at the Shinjukuza, a theater in Shinjuku district, which will open today. They are "Omowanu Shukaku" (Unexpected Fruit of Labor), "Meiji no Kumosuke" (the Palanquin-Bearer of the Meiji Era), "Nanikuso Banashi" (The Tale of Untirely Efforts), and "Nanshin Hokushin" (Southward and Northward Advances).

A new play called "Bakuon" (Roar of Wings), which has been written by Takio Omachi for the celebration of the aviation day on September 20, will be staged by the Shochiku revue troupe at the Kokusai Gekijo, Asakusa Park, opening September 16. The play consists of seven scenes, namely, "Arawashi no Uta" (the Song of Aviators), "Sora no Yushi" (the Heroes of the Air), "Saigo no Tsushin" (the Last Communications), "Koa no Tsubasa" (Wings of the Development of Asia), "Sora no Sencho" (the Captain of the Air), "Koku Nippon" (the Aerial Japan), and "Bakuon" (Roar of Wings).

The second gala performance of the Shochiku Dance Organization is scheduled to be given at the Kabukiza for three days from September 26.

The complete program for a special performance of Kikugoro Onoye and Ennosuke Ichikawa, which will be presented at the Kokusai Gekijo, Asakusa Park, on September 24-26, has been announced. It includes four plays such as "Youchi Soga" (the Vengeance of Soga Brothers), "Shikoroppiki" (Valor of Kagekiyo), "Funa Benkei" (Benkei and Tomomoris's Ghost), and "Nagawakizashi Shiai" (a Sword-fighting). As above referred to in this column, this performance has been arranged to raise the fund for the construction of "Haiyugo," a warplane.

After completing an extended tour of Central China to entertain Japanese soldiers at the front in the past month, 21 members of the Toho dancing team returned to Tokyo last week. Their local stage activity will be resumed in October.

The neighborhood association of the Japan Dancers' League, which was recently organized, will hold its first public performance at the Gunjin Kaikan on September 13. Two different programs, consisting of 10 dances, respectively, will be given at 12 noon and 5 p.m. The dancers will be headed by Mitsugoro Bando.

The Toinkai dance school under the direction of Shizue Fujikage will observe the 25th anniversary of its founding in 1942. Fujikage is planning to produce the standard of Japanese dances, which she composed and produced in the 40 performances given in the past years.

Attendance figures at the various amusement quarters in Chosen, including theaters and cinema houses, in 1940 aggregated 28,348,719, according to a Domei report. This is an increase of about 30 per cent as against the figures for the previous year.

Kabukiza Presents Classical Tragedy

ther, too, has received orders from the same man of influence to persuade his son to give up his hopeless love with Hinadori. They talk about the devilish character of Iruka and lament that their children will not be able to escape unscathed from him, if they disobey him.

Each parent promises to float a cherry twig with blossoms on the river if they succeed in persuading their children to obey and to float a cherry twig with no blossoms should the contrary be the result. The father and the mother, saddened by the cruel necessity, withdraw to their own residences.

The father's words evidently prey on Koganosuke's mind so that he decides to take his own life. The father, too, has decided secretly that he would rather kill his son than to obey the diabolical Iruka, so he resolves to assist him in a harakiri. On the other hand Hinadori, being true to her love, gives silent expression to her objection against the powerful Iruka by suicide.

Prior to their death, the lovers by a strange coincidence left the same request with their parents, asking them to float a twig of cherry blossoms as a means of concealing the passing away of each one from the other. So both the parents carry out the list requests and set the twigs adrift as they were told. But their grief soon disclose the trick. They stands face to face across the stream, with the same parental affection and pity in their hearts.

Then it suddenly occurs to Sadaka to marry her dead daughter to Koganosuke, her love, so as to let them live together in the world of spirits. The proposal is gladly accepted by Kiyozumi. The mother then cuts off the head of the deceased bride and sets it adrift on the stream toward the bridegroom, together with her trousseau and the dolls which have just been displayed in her room on the occasion of the Girls' Festival. Kiyozumi, gathering them all up, places them before his dying son. Then the father and the mother on each side of the river pray with tears that their unfortunate children may lead happy lives together "upon one large lotus leaf in the land of Buddah."

Kaganosuke's role is ably played by Tokizo while that of his sweetheart by Fukusuke, one of the leading young female impersonators of the Kabukidom.

There are three other plays equally well performed embracing such vteran Thespians as Kichiyemon, Baigyoku and Tomoyemon.

The curtain rises daily at 4 p.m. and the performance ends just in time to catch the last bus for most theatergoers.

TOKYO RABID CASE SHOWING INCREASE

Metropolitan Police Orders Dogs Without Owners Be Killed on Spot

Cases of canine madness are again on the ascendancy in Tokyo after a long interval. The last rampancy of the malady was seen in 1924 just after the great earthquake of 1923, when the number of mad dogs in the city leapt up to 904 from the previous year's 179.

This is to show, according to the Kokumin, that rabid cases are always on the increase subsequent to natural calamities and wars. Many dogs driven ownerless because of calamities will go out on the street in search of food, thus bringing on them more chances of associating with rabid dogs.

In 1924, faced with the serious situation among dogs in Tokyo which raised the number of mad dogs to 904, Surgeon Major-General Seiitsu Yoshiuye sent in a petition to the Imperial Diet that some measure must be enacted through the legislature to dispose of the canine madness.

Since the beginning of this year, seven cases of attacks given by the mad dogs have been reported within the jurisdictions of the Fuchu, Manseibashi, Kisagata, Ohmori, Sugamo, Ogikubo and Nakano police stations. The Metropolitan Police Board, with an aim of wiping out the malady among the dogs, recently issued instructions to the police stations within the boundary of Tokyo Prefecture to the effect that ownerless dogs will be killed as soon as they are found.

Dr. Hidetake Yaoi of the Government Institute for Infectious Diseases, known as one of the best authorities on canine madness in Japan, in his press interview Tuesday, said: "The current increase in rabies here has been caused by the scarcity of the dog's food and the introduction of closer contact between the people in Japan and those in the mainland of Asia where cases of rabies are many."

Continuing, Dr. Yaio remarked: "In Europe the cases are mostly found in Russia, Germany and France, while Great Britain, to meet the insufficiency of military dogs, began a large importation of dogs from Belgium. Then spread there the cases of rabies caused by a single mad dog mixed among the canine imports. British women at that time were often reported to in fear of the mad dogs even more than the Zeppelins' raids on the kingdom.

"The best way to prevent the spread of the contagious malady is the injection of the medicine invented by Louis Pasteur, a great 19th century French physician-chemist. Any dog given this injection will be perfectly protected from the madness for a year. Then, those who are bitten by an apparently mad dog are advised to hurry to get treatment. If the dog is mad, they must go to a physician to have the best medical case. What is most required of the dog owners now is to have their canine pets injected as soon as possible."

PAN-AMERICAN UNITY IS GIVEN IMPORTANCE

Stressed by Brazil Army Chief To Paraguay and Argentine Military Party

Reuters

RIO DE JANEIRO, September 5.—The importance of Pan-American unity in face of the dangers arising from the present war was stressed in speeches made at a banquet given by the Minister of War to military delegations of Paraguay and Argentina.

The Chief of the Brazilian General Staff, General Monteiro, paid tribute to the admirable spirit of collaboration on the American continent, which had been given expression by a policy of good-neighborliness. He urged the necessity of intensifying unity on the American continent so as to make it inaccessible to greed and at the same time unconquerable.

The present war, he said, afforded many lessons, among them that a weak Power which did not unite in time and with sincerity, or which thought it could safeguard itself from being drawn into a conflict by various excuses, would end by becoming trampled upon by the uncontrolled fury of belligerents who admitted no right except their own interests.

The South American continent should unite in order to be ready to face the danger resulting from actions of those who sought domination of vital continental and ocean spaces. Even if the pessimistic forecasts alluded to in a recent speech by Colonel Stimson, United States Secretary of War, were not realized, that should not discourage them from protecting their own integrity by action clearly conforming to the American spirit, the Brazilian general added.

The Argentine Minister of War, in reply, said when an American went to another part of the American continent he did not feel that he was leaving his own country.

ROME TO BE MADE CENTER OF INDUSTRY

Gigantic Plan for Expansion of Italy's Capital Revealed by Giornale d'Italia

D.N.B.

ROME, September 10.—The gigantic problem of turning Rome into the center of industry of Central and South Italy is soon to materialize.

The Giornale d'Italia published the first data on the construction of this new industrial zone which is to be established southeast of Rome. The plan of extending Rome as far as the sea will not be affected by this project. The main reason for the establishment of this new industrial zone is the rapid growth of Rome's population besides additional military, political, social and economic reasons

Moreover, the favorable geographic location of Rome as well as its excellent communication system made such a project highly advisable.

This new industrial zone is meant not only for the supply of Rome's population but it is to be the cornerstone for the regrouping of Italian industry after the war. The paper pointed out that the freedom of the Mediterranean which will be the natural result of victory will increase Italy's means of communications with other countries and continents and will thus give particular significance to the city as industrial center of the future.

A total of 35 large joint stock companies have already filed petitions for the permission to establish factories in this new industrial zone which is to cover an area of 3,300,000 square meters. Some 30,000 workmen would find employment in the construction of this project and it is calculated that double this number can be employed in factories to be erected in this area.

It is, moreover, believed, that the projected area will be doubled in the future after the completion of the first plan since ever new applications are being received from all branches of the Italian industry. Most modern houses for workmen and wide clean streets will be the outstanding feature of the residential sections of this new industrial zone.

SPORTS PROGRAM ALL SET AT Y.C.A.C.

Usual Summer Weekend Games Scheduled Including Softball Game

The usual summer months' weekend sports program at Yokohama Country and Athletic Club of cricket, baseball, lawn bowls and mixed softball will be held at the club grounds on Saturday and Sunday. An informal dinner dance on Saturday evening will be an added attraction this weekend.

Another captain's versus vice-captain's teams cricket match is scheduled to get under way at 2 p.m. Saturday. Although a number of players have not sent their replies to the secretary as to whether or not they will play, it is hoped that two full elevens will be available for this contest.

Ladies to Play Again

The club ladies' softball team will clash again with the oldest male members in a kittenball game on Sunday afternoon, with Umpire George Edmondson calling "play ball" at 2 p.m. Both the girls and the "ojiisans" are expected to present their strongest line-ups as the winners are to be the guests of the losers at a dinner to be held later in the season. The ladies expect the men will be the hosts as they gave the "ojiisans" a 15 to 9 beating last Sunday and hold a 2 to 1 edge in the series of three games to date.

With six consecutive victories to its credit, the Y.C. and A.C. baseball squad hopes to make it seven in a row on Sunday when it meets the strong King Club nine from Tokyo. This game should prove to be a hard fought one if previous tilts are a criterion, for the two evenly matched teams have played some close contests this season.

Three international lawn bowls matches in the club tournament will be a big attraction to the followers of Drake's famous pastime this weekend. On Saturday afternoon there will be two of these contests, the Swiss four meeting the Americans in one, and the Canadians clashing again with the Americans in one, and the Canadians clashing again with the Portuguese in the other. Both tilts are scheduled for 3 p.m. On Sunday at 10:30 a.m. the Born-in-Japan quintet will play against the Continentals, and it is anticipated that the contest between these two strong teams will be a battle royal.

Ladies' Handicap Singles

Another lawn bowls tournament fixture which will no doubt attract much attention will be the finals of the ladies' handicap singles at 3 p.m. Saturday, in which Miss T. Planas (minus 6), last year's winner, will meet Mrs. J. Koch (plus 6), who has played very well for her first season at this sport. On Sunday at 3 p.m. G. H. da Costa and J. M. da Costa (plus 5), a pair of up-and-coming tyros, will play against G. E. Beatty and P. H. Lord (minus 10) last year's doubles champions, in the quarter-finals of the men's handicap doubles.

The music for the informal dinner dance at the clubhouse Saturday evening will be supplied by the popular "Bucky" Shirakata and his Aloha Hawaiians, who will commence to play at 7 p.m.

Probable line-ups for the week-end games are as follows:

Cricket

Captain's team: F. J. Bond, W. R. Bull, R. W. Child, J. M. da Costa, G. W. Gorman, F. R. Harriss, L. N. Haum, B. Kuskie, P. H. Lord, G. Meadows, C. G. Stanbury, M. J. K. Stark, T. W. Stembridge, S. Stephens (captain).

Vice-captain's team: A. H Ballantyne, A. E. Bell, G. H. D. Bell, H. J. Bird (vice-captain), F. J. da Silva, P. H. Gore-Booth, G. L. King, H. T. Langstone, J. R. V. Mason, F. H. Moysey, M. Parsram, J. A. Sargeant, E. V. Thomas and W. A. Tomlinson.

Baseball

W. H. Blamey, J. Boixo, M. C. Cooke (coach), J. da Costa, E. Eymard, C. Fernandes, H. Fernandes, L. A. M. Frank, F. R. Harriss (captain), L. N. Haum (manager), P. H. Kipp (vice-captain) J. Koch, F. da Rosa and F. J. da Silva.

Ladies' Softball

Miss V. Albeck, Miss G. Andrels, Miss L. Andreis, Miss M. da Costa, Miss H. Darbier, Miss J. Darbier, Mrs. J. Koch, Miss H. Lord, Miss A. Mayers, Miss J. Mayers, Miss E. Papendieck, Miss M. Prohaska, Miss P. Rau, Miss L. Salter, Miss G. Satchell and Miss M. Stevens.

Lawn Bowls

Canada versus Portugal, and Switzerland versus America, both at 3 p.m. Saturday.

Continent versus Born-in-Japan. 10:30 a.m. Sunday.

Miss T. Planas (minus 6) versus Mrs. J. Koch (plus 6) in the finals of the ladies' handicap singles at 3 p.m. Saturday.

G. H. da Costa and J. M. da Costa (plus 5) versus G. E. Beatty and P. H. Lord (minus 10) in the quarter-finals of the men's handicap doubles at 3 p.m. Sunday.

ANNUAL SUMMER GAMES OF MEIJI SHRINE ON TAP

12th Athletic Meet to Be Held At Tokyo and Yokohama September 22-23

Divided into the marine sport and swimming departments, the summer games of the 12th annual Meiji Shrine Athletic Meet will be held at Yokohama and Tokyo, respectively for two days from Monday September 22, through Tuesday, it was announced by the Welfare Office.

According to the particulars announced, the marine sports department comprises team swimming competition, regatta competitions and yacht races.

The team swimming competitions include events of inter-prefectural young men's associations relay; inter-prefectual middle distance races, and middle-distance life saving competition.

The regatta division events include, inter-young men's association and secondary school competition in rowing Nippon-style boats and inter-prefectual life-saving competitions.

The yachting division includes races for inter-regional, inter-industrial workers and inter-collegiate, plus long-distance contests.

The marine sports events will be held at the Kaiyo Dojo (marine sporting ground) in Yokohama, and the swimming events at the Meiji Shrine pool in Tokyo.

World Series Starts On October 1, Decides Commissioner Landis

United Press

NEW YORK, September 4.—Judge Kennesaw Mountain Landis, Baseball Commissioner, yesterday announced that the next World Series will begin in the Yankee Stadium October 1. The New York Yankees were conceded the American League pennant. Although they have not actually won it, the Yanks were the only American Leaguers represented at the meeting yesterday at which the Series date was set. The Brooklyn Dodgers, St. Louis Cardinals and Cincinnati Reds, in a race for the National League pennant, were the only Nationals represented at the meeting.

SWIMMING RECORDS IN FOR TOTTERING

Arai, Oura, Amano Others In Top Condition for Inter-Collegiate Meet

National swimming records will be threatened again starting Saturday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium. The nations outstanding collegiate swimmers will be featured in the two day Tokyo Inter-Collegiate outdoor championship meet scheduled for Saturday and Sunday starting at noon Saturday.

Six schools will compete in the mad scramble for points and the all-important team crown-Waseda, Nichidai, St. Paul's, Keio, Meiji and Imperial. A year ago, the Maroons of Waseda captured the All-Japan Intercollegiate championships, and they have enough balance to take this year's local meet.

But it will be St. Paul's that probably will be the favorite. In Shigeo Arai, it has that free-style marvel who is primed for a double in the 100 and 200. Also in Seichiro Oura, St. Paul has a man capable of 1:16.0 in the 100-meter breast stroke.

Rivalry should be terrific in the 200, 400 and 800 meter free-style races. In the 200-meter race, Arai will compete against Miyamoto of Waseda, Tsuda of Nichidai, who has given up the longer distance to concentrate on this race, Shirayama of St. Paul's, Sagitani of Nichidai and Ohta of St. Paul's.

The 400 will also have a classy field including Miyamoto, Homma of St. Paul's and Amano of Nichidai among others. Miyamoto already has been clocked in at 4:43.8 this season for the year's high.

As for Shigeo Arai and his effort to take two championships, the 100 should be his without an argument for he has broken 60 seconds flat and should with proper competition come in under 59 seconds. In the 200, Miyamoto should provide plenty of stiff opposition.

With the mermen gunning for titles and reports that they are in good condition records can be expected to be shattered. Pre-meet dope gives Amano of Nichidai a sure bet to come through with a new national record. Especially if Sakai of St. Paul's and Takeuchi of Meiji press him close enough.

The championships will get under way with the spring board events at noon Saturday. On Sunday, the finals of the diving competition will strat at 10 a.m. and the swimming races are scheduled for 2:00 p.m.

Here is a vest-pocket summation of the scoring possibilities of the six team contenders:

St. Paul's—Arai, 100, 200, 400 free style and relay team; Oura, 100 and 200 breast stroke; Honda, 100 and 50 free style; Homma, 400, 800 free style and relay team; Shirayama, 200 free style; Sakai, 400 and 800 free style; Sakamoto, 100 back stroke; Ohta, 50 and 200 free style relay team.

Waseda—Miyamoto, 200 and 400 free and relay team; Tanaka, 400 free style; Yoshida, 50 and 100 back stroke; Koyanagi, 50, and relay team; Sugita and Oura 100 free style; Furukawa, 100 and 200 breast stroke; and relay team Sugita and Oura 100 free style; Furukawa, 100 and 200 breast stroke; and relay team; Uda, 800 free style; Nakano, 50 back stroke.

Nichidai—Amano, 800, 400 free style and relay team; Makino, 50 and 100 free style; Taniguchi, 100 and 50 back stroke relay team; Asano, 400 and 800 free style; Tsuda, 200 and 400 free style; Kawano, 50 and 100 back stroke; Sagitani, 200 free style; Hamaoka, 50 free style.

Keio—Mishima, 100 and 50 meter back stroke.

Meiji—Takeuchi, 400 and 800 free style and relay team. Matsuyama, 800 free style.

Christman will report at the Great Lakes Naval Station in about two weeks, officials said, and will be an assistant athletic director. Christman said he plans to marry September 8.

GERMANY PROTESTS REPORT BY THORDA

German Ambassador at Buenos Aires Denies Allegations Regarding Financial Matters

D.N.B.

BUENOS AIRES, September 11.—German Ambassador in Argentina, Mr. von Thermann, paid a visit to the Foreign Ministry and in the course of a lengthy conference protested most energetically against the report of the so-called Taborda Commission.

He declared that in principle he must decline to make any statement on the financial transactions of the Embassy, pointing that such a case, namely that the revenues and expenditures of a diplomatic mission had been made the subject of public discussion, was unique in the history of diplomacy.

Referring to the assertion made in the report of the Commission to the effect that considerable funds of the Embassy had been used for Argentine propaganda purposes the Ambassador declared that he must reject this accusation pointing out not the least proof could be procured for this. He furthermore declared to be false that officials of the German Embassy had acted as cashiers for private societies. He moreover denied that the German Government was financing the Embassy in Argentina by using Argentine bonds which were owned by persons living in occupied territories. With regard to the insinuation that the German Embassy in Buenos Aires was overstaffed the German Ambassador pointed out that, for instance, the Embassies of the United States and Great Britain had much larger staffs as could be seen from a glance on the list of the members of the diplomatic missions accredited to the Argentine Government and which was issued by the Government. The tendencious report made by the Commission about the expenditures of the German Embassy in comparison with other foreign missions was described by the Ambassador as incorrect.

In conclusion, the German Ambassador stated that he considered it as grotesque that after eight years of successful efforts aiming at an extension and at the strengthening of the relations between Germany and Argentina his Embassy was not described as being the center of anti-Argentine intrigues. Such assertions could only be made by those who were fully ignorant about the development of the relations between the Reich and Argentina in the course of the past eight years. He did not want to presume that this completely irresponsible and malicious action had been chosen for any other purpose than for troubling the traditional good relations between Argentina and Germany.

GERMAN SCHOOLS ADOPT LATIN LETTER TEXTS

Gothic Style Removed From Books Because of Reading Difficulty Abroad

Transocean

BERLIN, September 6.—German children who will go to school for the first time next week will no longer have to learn German Gothic letters, for beginning with the new term, only Latin letters will be taught in German schools.

In this connection it is recalled that after the National Socialists came into power there was a tendency to remove Latin letters. But a few months ago Gothic letters were abandoned obviously because Gothic letters hampered the reading of papers and books abroad.

Today almost all leading papers in Germany are being printed in Latin letters.

Books too will gradually be published only in Latin type letters.

MADRID, September 6.—"Britain indulges too much in illusions which must be dissipated. They must be dissipated gradually in order to forestall the opposite, namely, disillusions."

Such is the opinion of a British paper, according to the London correspondent of the A.B.C., Luis Calvo, in yesterday's message.

Another British paper remarked: "Because the Soviets had put a resistance to the Germans as no other army had done before, many believed that victory for Great Britain was certain."

But the illusions were dissipating like autumn leaves falling from trees, the newspaper declared. The Soviets have already lost territory on the size of Germany and Chancellor Hitler's mechanized troops were knocking at the doors of Leningrad. But the worst was not yet over, it was coming. The British war could not be won by looking on the Soviet war with admiration.

"It cannot be won with power in hard attested by a notary," another British paper remarked, adding that Britain has not even solved the problem of arms production.

The Washington correspondent of the Daily Mail, Luis Calvo continued, contributed much to the dissipation of British illusions by a number of informations. He pointed out that the United States was now passing through a period of thorough changes, of "disorganization, delays in all quarters and similar obstacles and strikes which seriously upset the plan for aid to Britain."

The American workman, stated the Daily Mail, might be willing to support the Soviets to 100 per cent of his capacity but American help would never reach that mark. In the opinion of the Daily Mail correspondent, the majority of Americans feel that the United States will be dragged into a war but a declaration of war will be rejected by the two Houses of Congress with a crushing majority.

The harvest was another illusion, Luis Calvo continued. The British Minister of Agriculture, Robert Spear Hudson, said in July that Britain this year would have the record crop of the century. Today it appeared as if the shortage of farm hands would dissipate this illusion. Neither female labor nor schoolboys nor other helpers would be able to replace the farmers called up for military service.

The Daily Express, it was reported, bitterly complained about the delay in mobilizing women. On Wednesday, for instance, 10,000 women in London were busy selling flags and collecting money for some welfare society. This zeal, asserted the journal, has become a curse in Britain. Since the beginning of summer, there have been 12 collection days and in 1933 Britain had even 250 such days.

"Why do these women not work in factories or on land instead of asking taxpayers for money under the paltriest pretext?" asked another paper.

SAN MARINO CELEBRATES

Founding of Republic Celebrated With Full Ceremonies

ROME, September 5.—The 1,600th anniversary of the founding of the Republic of San Marino was celebrated in that small but ancient state yesterday with appropriate ceremonies.

All the leading personages of the small republic were present.

The significance of the festivities was enhanced by the fact that the island of Arbe, on which the two founders of San Marino, Saint Marino and Saint Leo, were born, this year had been reincorporated into Italy. It formerly was part of Jugoslavia.

200 West Point Cadets Are Given a Sniff Of Fire by 8-Inch Guns Carrying 15 Miles

A new eight-inch railway gun, regarded by the United States Army as vastly superior to older models, was fired at Fort Hancock, New Jersey, on July 21 for the first time outside of tests at the Aberdeen Proving Ground in Maryland, says the New York Herald Tribune. The firing was part of a demonstration of coast artillery harbor and coast defense equipment for 200 cadets from the United States Military Academy at West Point, half of the class of '42, who arrived for a four-day visit.

Two of the guns, officially termed eight-inch railway rifles, mounted on new-type carriages which in turn are placed upon specially built flatcar frames, arrived from Aberdeen with their full complement of steel ammunition cars, fire-control cars and other equipment which go to make up the railway artillery trains.

The cadets, clad in gray coveralls, mingled with dozens of officers from Fort Hancock and with men from the 52d Coast Artillery Regiment (railway), who will later handle the weapons, as a picked gun crew from the enlisted men's instruction detachment at West Point made ready to give the new weapon its first actual test in the place at which it will materially strengthen the coastal defense of New York Harbor. Cadets, officers and enlisted men alike, all with wads of cotton stuffed into their ears, sat expectantly on the tops of railroad cars on adjoining tracks and along the sand dunes on the east side of Sandy Hook.

At 2:50 p.m. the order to fire was given, and there was a tremendous blast, bouncing a camera out of the hands of a photographer, sweeping back the reeds and grass on the dunes as though a gale had hit them, and raising a cloud of sand for yards around the smoking muzzle of the rifle. It was noticeable that the recoil was taken up in the carriage, and that the car on which the gun stood moved back not an inch. Five more rounds were fired before the inspection party moved on to watch other demonstrations.

The range, using a towed target offshore, was between 8,000 and 10,000 yards, although the guns have a maximum of 33,000 yards, or nearly 15 miles. Coast Artillery officers in charge explained that the chief non-technical features of the new weapon are simplified operation, faster firing, greater range, and much greater angle of fire, both vertically and horizontally. In the latter, the barbette on which the gun is mounted has a 360-degree swing, or traverse, so that it can even be fired at right angle to the railway track, with the use of side braces. The gun fires a 260-pound projectile, and uses a 97-pound charge of powder.

The demonstration that followed the firing of the 8-inch guns was of two 155 mm. guns, which are used for closer inshore fighting, the maximum range being 14,500 yards, or just over eight miles; also for some phases of beach defense, and for purposes in which mobility to any point, unrestricted by railroad spur tracks, would make them useful. Demonstration of 3-inch anti-aircraft fire was given tonight by the 62d Coast Artillery Regiment, and after seeing other weapons in operation, the cadets themselves will take over the operation of the batteries as part of their practical pre-graduating training.

NEW YORK, September 7.—Leo Durocher's promise to bring Brooklyn that long overdue pennant looked as though it might be kept today when the Dodgers twice downed the New York Giants to increase their National League lead to three games.

The second place St. Louis Cards slipped back by dividing a twin bill with the third place Cincinnati Reds. Walt Higbe recorded his 20th victory of the season as he pitched the Dodgers to a 13 to 1 win in the opener. Higbe allowed but six hits and hurled shutout ball every inning but the fifth.

Dolph Camilli, the Dodgers smooth working left handed first sacker, connected with homers in the fifth and sixth innings to bring his total for the year to 32. Joe Medwick recorded four hits. In the second game the Dodgers were forced to go ten innings to get the decision. Catcher Arnold Owen scored the winning run, coming home on Hal Reiser's single. The Dodgers took the game by a 4 to 3 score.

St. Louis won the opener with the Reds 11 to 7 but dropped the night cap 5 to 2.

The exciting opener was marked by three big scoring sprees, two by the Cards and one by the Reds. Harry Gumbert and John Mize hit homers for the Cards while Ernest Lombardi and Bill Werder connected with circuit drives for the Reds.

In the night cap Elmer Riddle stopped the Cards with seven hits. The Reds led throughout in the game which was called in the eighth on account of darkness.

Cincinnati, with 21 games remaining on their schedule, now trails the Dodgers by 14 games.

The Boston Braves brought their total wins for the season up to 52 games when they took two straight from the Philadelphia Phillies, winning the opener 17 to 6 and the night cap 10 to 1.

In the first game the Braves made their highest score of the season. Max West connected with a homer and John Cooney and Ed Miller both connected with four hits.

The Braves continued to fatten their batting average in the second game and Ray Berres and Carvel Rowell both connected with homers.

NEW YORK, September 7.—Joe McCarthy's New York Yankees today won their first game since annexing the 1941 American League title, trouncing the Boston Red Sox under an 8 to 5 offensive.

Big "Lefty" Gomez won his 14th game of the season although Johnny Murphy had to replace him on the mound in the sixth inning when the Red Sox tallied four runs to come within striking range of the Yankees who had tallied once in the first and second inning and three times in the third and fifth frames.

Joe Gordon, Yankee second-baseman, collected his 23rd homer of the year.

Ted Williams collected three hits during the game to boost his average to .413, the highest point since the beginning of the season. The slugging Boston star thus was well on his way to becoming the only major league hitter in 16 years to stay over the .400 mark throughout the season.

Despite the loss, the Red Sox held on to second place as the third-place Chicago White Sox dropped a 3 to 1 decision to the St. Louis Browns.

Chicago Took a one-run lead in the fourth inning, but St. Louis tied it up in the sixth and then tallied twice in the ninth off Dennis Galehouse to win the game. Chester Laabs doubled, after which Johnny Berardino and Joe Grace collected singles to send the winning runs scooting across the platter.

Thirty-one thousand fans jammed the Tiger stadium for "Bridges Day" in honor of Tommy Bridges, and the Detroit hurler came through with a masterful 4 to 1 decision over the Cleveland Indians. He held the Indians to six hits while his mates made similar number of safeties good for three runs in the third and one in the sixth.

The Philadelphia Athletics were only one-half game out of the league cellar today after a doubt defeat at the hands of the Washington Senators who are holding down eighth position.

The Senators took a 3 to 2 decision in the opener by outhitting Philadelphia, eight safeties to six. Philadelphia was ahead, 1 to 0, until the ninth when Washington pushed three runs across. The Athletics came back with a single tally in their half of the final inning, but failed to uncover sufficient punching power to knot the score.

Cecil Travis supplied the only long blow of the game by getting a triple in the eighth inning.

Washington took the second game, 4 to 2, with Early Dynn holding the Athletics to six hits while his mates collected eight safeties. Washington tallied three times in the sixth and once in the eighth, after Philadelphia had scored twice in the fifth

Inflation Pokes Its Head Around in U.S.

War price czar would require the freezing of not only industrial prices but wages and farm prices as well. And there comes the rub. For it would make today's Price Administrator virtual economic dictator of the country. And Congress is understandably hesitant to give any such power to any one man, even though that may mean the best way of bridling inflation.

Future Not Bright

In contrast to Mr. Baruch's plan, Leon Henderson's price control program as used to date is less comprehensive, probably more acceptable to Congressmen—and less effective. Mr. Henderson has concentrated on keeping prices down on the basic raw materials, such as aluminum, zinc, steel scrap, textiles. His theory is that by holding the lid on those basic commodities, the prices of other items would be kept in line by association or attraction.

This piecemeal price fixing has worked tolerably well to date. But the future for such a plan is not bright. For already some of the prices of these secondary materials have started breaking through. New price ceilings have had to be fixed as new prices raised their heads. A system where prices are half frozen and half free, as Mr. Henderson is finding out today, is heading toward trouble. It may work tolerably well in the early stages of a boom; but in the latter stages its weaknesses appear. Mr. Henderson may yet have to accept Mr. Baruch's plan as the only one adequate for the present emergency. Whether Congress will embrace it is quite another matter.

355 Britons Train in U.S.

United Press

MONTGOMERY, Alabama, July 21.—Wing Commander Henry Hogan, Royal Air Force officer stationed at Maxwell Field, said today that 355 British cadets had arrived in this country for training at Army air fields in the Southeast. Commander Hogan said 86 of the cadets would be distribution among training schools at Tuscaloosa, Ala. Lakeland and Arcadia, Fla.; Americus, Georgia, and Camden, South Carolina.

RIGGS, MRS. COOKE WIN TENNIS TITLES

Former, 23-Year-Old Veteran, Comes Back After Losing First Set

United Press

FOREST HILLS, September 7.—Robert L. "Bobby" Riggs and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke today crowned their careers by becoming tennis champions of the United States as a result of smashing victories in the national men's and women's singles tourney.

Mrs. Cooke ended her 12-year quest for highest honors with a straight-set victory over Paule Bentz, 7-5, 6-2.

Riggs and Mrs. Cooke stroked their way steadily and surely to the titles on the wind-swept court before a boisterous, unruly crowd of 10,000 who cheered so long and lustily that play was interrupted five times before the Umpire regained order.

Riggs, a 23-year-old veteran, recaptured the men's crown he won in 1939 and lost a year ago by defeating Frank Kovacs by the convincing margin of 5-7, 6-1, 6-3, 6-3.

Playing squarely in the teeth of a wind which at times exceeded a velocity of 40 m.p.h., and obviously nettled by gallery necklers, Riggs recovered his lost laurels in that type of uphill fight for which he is famed.

Riggs dropped the first set in which both players alternated between the net and baselines, but then came back with a masterful sense of court generalship to win the title in three straight sets.

Japan Yesterday And Today

came over him. The sunshine on his countenance suddenly fell, succeeded by chill, stormy clouds. Strong chords stood out on his forehead, his eyes flashed a dangerous glint, his pale lips quivered, his fists clenched. The astonished woman hardly had time to say something when up rose the man, and without a word he dashed toward the door. She followed, trying to catch him, but he was too quick for her. He had already slipped on his pair of geta and disappeared. For a while she stood in the dark outside, wondering whither he had gone. Something whispered he must have gone to the lawyer's house. Seized with dreadful foreboding she followed in his wake, and she was right.

When she had gained the front courtyard of the lawyer's spacious residence, it was just in time to hear the sharp voice of an angry man, the answering echoes of men in protest—then the impact of blow upon blow—oaths,—screams—a regular pandemonium, suggesting crashing fusuma and smashed pottery, men and women running about in a panicky fear. The brave woman rushed into the house, seized hold of her frantic husband, dragged him out of the clutches of three stalwart servants, raining blows on his head and shoulders. When at last she succeeded in carrying her husband home, he made a sorry spectacle one of his eyes blackened, his nose and teeth bleeding, his kimono torn, his hair dishevelled.

Damages Summed Up

Yashita's injuries proved unexpectedly slight. On the morrow he went to his factory as usual. There was a tacit understanding between husband and wife that not a word was to be said about the incident of last night. At the lawyer's house the damages wrought were considerable. The one standing screen bearing a picture by a famous artist, valued at a couple of thousand yen, had been smashed, as was a handsome porcelain vase of no small value. Here was a clear case of assault and battery and unwarranted trespass on another's premises, and the sufferer was a brilliant barrister-at-law, famed for his skill in criminal prosecution. If anyone stood foredoomed in the criminal charges soon to be brought against him, that man was Yashita. But it turned out to the great surprise of all concerned that Dr. Noyama, after carefully weighing the circumstances of the case, the motives of the offender, etc., had the magnanimity of soul to take no legal action against Yashita, and thus this particular "skeleton in the tonarigumi cupboard" has escaped scot free for this once.

Proposal Suggests Resumption Of Normal Trade Relations

Transocean

SANTIAGO DE CHILE, August 24.—The Soviet Russian Government's suggestion to establish trade relations between Soviet Russian and Chile has been received by the Chilean Government, the Chilean Foreign Minister informed the press yesterday.

Moscow proposes the opening of a branch office of the Amtorg Trading Corporation which is the official Soviet Russian foreign trade organiaztion. The Minister said the Chilean government was examining the proposal with much interest as it would welcome extension of Chilean trade.

Diplomatic relations between the two countries have not yet been resumed.

Reconstruction Loan Upped

Transocean

BUCHAREST, September 3.—King Michael of Rumania increased his subscription for the Rumanian reconstruction loan from 1,000,000 to 5,000,000 lei, following his visit to Bessarabia last week, in the course of which he was able to ascertain that the devastation wrought by the Bolsheviks on the liberated regions was greater than previously surmised.

Britain Now Doomed In Battle of Atlantic

of the past. Neither will Britain's efforts to increase its air power effect any alteration in this. In the air Germany is undisputedly maintaining its supremacy and under all circumstances is ready and capable to fight for this air supremacy far out in the ocean.

Even if British shipping during the summer months is retreating more and more to the northern and shorter shipping lanes, this does not alter the fact that the British Isles in latitude and longitude are immovably fixed on the terrestrial globe. And outside of and over their harbors the German Luftwaffe will always be found, dealing heavy blows against incoming and outgoing shipping.

Army Officer's Viewpoint

It is, however, not only a matter of safeguarding British shipping on the northern routes, as Admiral Pratt believes, as well as of deploying increased aerial power between Britain and Iceland, but also the supply lanes for the British forces fighting in the Mediterranean space are chiefly carried by the broad back of the Atlantic Ocean, as the French General Duval clearly showed in the paper "Le Journal" of February 10, 1941. In explanation of this fact General Duval declares that neither the Australian nor the Indian war industries were in a position to satisfy the requirements of the motorized troops which were being employed in North Africa, Eritrea and Abyssinia

General Duval arrives at this conclusion from his professional point of view as an army officer. To his well-presented opinion one may add that also the other weapons of the British armed forces, which are dominated by modern technique, namely the British naval forces operating in the Mediterranean, are largely supplied by the home country One need only remember the bringing up of personnel, materials and munitions but also the necessity—recurring time and again—to send the vessels to shipyards for repairs. La Valetta on the island of Malta already for a long time has not been an exactly resiful place in this respect.

Gibraltar also has been directly affected by the war. Alexandria may have its importance as a naval anchorage, but as a repair harbor it does not come up by a long way to the demands made by the British Mediterranean fleet as time goes on. The same may be said of Aden. Thus, in regard to this question, the Atlantic Ocean again emerges as the most important battleground, for whose possession Great Britain must struggle if Britain wants to avoid a capitulation of its insular fastness.

The recent exploits of heavy German surface forces furthermore strikingly proved that it would be erroneous to believe that victory or defeat solely depended on mastering the submarine menace Since the German Navy from the coasts of France and Norway has free access to the Atlantic Ocean, not only its vision but also its deeds reach much farther afield than before. Eight hundred survivors of destroyed British merchant vessels were rescued by German surface forces in the course of one of their advances far out into the Atlantic. Does it need more proof that they have a measure of freedom of action which to curb is extremely difficult for the British Admiralty, if at all possible. And then, it is seriously believed that the air weapon could bring about a change.

Britain's Fate on Sea

Certainly, as long as the war will last there will have to be a continuous struggle for the domination of the air over and around Britain. But far more important is the fight which is taking place on the battle-ground of the Atlantic. And it is here that the German naval sword is employed to administer heavy blows on the surface and under water. If Britain should lose this battle of the seas, its power will be a thing of the past and Britain will have to cease to be the "Arbiter Mundi."

"On the seas,"' the great German geographer Friedrich Taetzel lectured, "the decisive events are taking place which widen the foundations of history!"—If these words are correct—and history confirms this—then the sea also knows a stagnacy and collapse of world powers. Great Britain's fate will be decided on the battleground of the high seas, on the Atlantic Ocean, where only a few months and even weeks ago Britain believed to be the one and only ruler!

Put in Service Again

Transocean

BARCELONA, September 5.—The Spanish steamer Castillo del Oro, which used to belong to the former Red Spanish Government and was sunk in the port of Palma (Mallorca) and has now been salvaged, left for a trial run Wednesday. The vessel was formerly the British ship Stangrove and was acquired by the Red Spanish Government during civil war. A salvaging commission of the Spanish fleet refloated it. If the ship stands the test, it will be included in the Spanish mercantile marine.

NEW YORK, September 9.—Old Man Weather today halted the scheduled performance of the Dodgers and Cardinals resulting in the heated National League race remaining unchanged with the Dodgers entering home stretch with a three-game lead.

Rain checks were issued at Chicago when a heavy downpour stopped the game between the Dodgers and Cubs at the end of the first inning. At the time, the game was scoreless and neither club had recorded a hit.

At St. Louis, the Cards' game with the Philadelphia Phillies was also halted by rain.

Weather permitting, the same clubs will tangle tomorrow.

Cincinnati's Reds picked up a half-game on the leaders by downing the Boston Braves, 9 to 7. The Reds are now 13½ games behind the league leaders.

Bucky Walters emerged from his slump to turn in his 17th win of the season. Previously, the Cincinnati ace had suffered three successive mound losses.

Walters also did his part with the willow by batting in three runs. The big inning for Reds was the third when they collected a half dozen scores.

Behind the eight-hit hurling of Hal Schumacher, the New York Giants came through with a 4 to 2 win over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Babe Young was the hero of the game, tying the score in the eighth with a homer and then winning it with a circuit drive with a mate on base in the tenth.

They were Young's 23rd and 24th homers of the season.

a "philosophical anthropology." He has a good experience of the numerous special branches of science the solid knowledge of which must be regarded to be the indispensable background of modern anthropology being unthinkable without a complete conception of biology, psychology, physiology, sociology, philology and theory of cognition.

Merit of Book

Another merit of the book is the marked impartiality which differs pleasantly from many similar treatises of this kind. Many problems seem to be contemplated from a new viewpoint, many answers and solutions captivate by their ingenuity. Very valuable investigations were made in the field of the origin of language, fancy, character and heredity. Often the scholar shows success by new and sagacious results. Quite modern is his own explanation of the aim and task of anthropology which he tries to base upon the principle of action, thus introducing a higher degree of value of human performance.

Needless to say, the book appears as pioneer in modern science. Replacing the half-theological interpretation by a new consciousness of human task, the author comes to the same conclusion like the late Oswald Spengler in his philosophy of culture. He recommends activity instead of meditation, achievement and formation of character instead of seclusion from the world and purely abstract thinking, thus completing biology by the virtues of ethics which make alone the life worthy!

Submarine Expert Passes On

LONDON, July 22.—Commander Alistair S. Cumming, recognized as one of Great Britain's foremost submarine experts, was found shot dead in the summer house at his home at Barrow-in-Furness yesterday, it was reported today. Authorities said a revolver was near the body. Cumming, 47 years old, was a submarine authority at the Barrow Shipbuilding Yards of Vickers-Armstrong. He was a submarine commander in the World War.

Music Notes

Popular musical offerings are in the limelight of concert activities in Tokyo during this week. Three popular symphony concerts are announced by the Tokyo Symphony Orchestra for Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, all to be given at the Hibiya Public Hall. Two different music and film evenings are scheduled for Saturday, and a "Freshmen Concert" in the light music line is being announced for coming Sunday.

In commemoration of the naval battle in the Yellow Sea, the Tokyo Symphony Orchestra is holding an "Evening of Music of the Sea," at the Hibiya Public Hall, 7 p.m., Wednesday, under the direction of former Navy Bandmaster Yazaemon Hayakawa. A talk on recollections of the naval battle will be given on the occasion, by Rear-Admiral Kunishige Taketomi.

The Orchestra will play an Overture, "Festival of the Sea," written by the composition department of the Imperial Japanese Navy Band; Rimsky-Korssakov's Symphonic Poem, "La Scheherazade," in four movements (The Sea and the Vessel of Sindbad—The Tale of the Prince Kalender—The Young Prince and the Young Princess—The Festival of Bagdad; The Sea The Vessel is Wrecked; Conclusion); MacDowell's "Sea Pieces," and other selections.

Mr. Takao Ito, baritone, of the Tokyo Academy of Music, will be heard in two Japanese songs, with orchestra accompaniment, titled "Brave Sailors," and "The Battle of Toyoshima."

A special appearance will be made by Tokichi Setoguchi, veteran composer and former Navy Bandmaster, who will direct the orchestra in three of his most popular compositions: "The Great Victory in the Yellow Sea," "Battleship March," and "Patriotic March."

The concert is sponsored by the Tokyo Municipality.

Manfred Gurlitt will direct the orchestra in two "Symphony Appreciation Evenings" to be given with two different programs, Thursday and Friday, 7 pm., also at the Hibiya Public Hall.

Thursday's program features Beethoven's Fifth Symphony in C minor, followed by Johann Strauss' Blue Danube Waltz." Tchaikovsky's Slav March, and Bizet's "Arlesienne Suite No 3," in four movements (Pastorale—Intermezzo—Menuet—Farandole).

Dvorak's Fifth Symphony in E minor, "From The New World," Weber's "Invitation to the Dance;" Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2," and Bizet's Carmen Suite, comprising Prelude to the First Act; Aragonaise; Interlude, and Song of the Toreador, make up the program for Friday.

Under the auspices of the cultural section of the International Cultural Institute (Kokusai Bunka Gakuin), the sixth periodical "Welfare Culture Evening" will be held at the Kyoritsu Hall, Kanda, with two performances of the same program, 1 and 6 p.m., Saturday.

Choral selections by the Kokusai Bunka Gakuin Chorus, conducted by Kojiro Kobune, open the musical art of the program, for which comments and explanations will be furnished by Mitsuru Ushiyama, noted Japanese musical critic.

Solo performances will be given by Miss Taneko Seki, well-known soprano, and Miss Kazuko Kusama, successful young pianist. The singer will be heard in "Karatachi no Hana" and "Matsushima Ondo", by Kosaku Yamada; Lieurence's "By the Waters of Minnetonka" and other popular selections; Mimi's aria from Puccini's "La Boheme," and Gilda's aria from Verdi's "Rigoletto".

Chopin selections, including Etudes No. 3 and No. 12, from Opus 10; Nocturne, Opus 27 No. 1; and Andante Spinato et Grande Polonaise Brilliante, will be interpreted by Miss Kusama.

In the second part of the program, German light opera talkie "Capriccio," starring Lilian Harvey, with music by Alois Melichar, will be screened.

A light music and film program will be offered at the Sangyo Kaikan, 6:30 p.m. Saturday, featuring performances by the New Grand Salon Orchestra; Masaharu Sakakibara and his Hilo Hawaiians; Isao Ban, piano; Ryudo Sho, violin, and Toshiya Yoda, baritone. The talkie of the evening is the German Ufa picture, "La Habanera," starring the singing screen actress Zarah Leander, preceeded by a short musical picture, "Hungarian Rhapsody".

Under the auspices of the Seikyo Association, a "Freshmen Concert of Light Music" will be held at the Sangyo Kaikan, 6:32 p.m. Sunday, September 21. Among the attractions are the S.H.B. Light Music Band from Yokohama, led by Toru Ono, vocalist; Taizo Tamura and his finger whistle group; a swing trio composed of Mariano, saxophone, Francisco Quico, piano, and Raymond Condy, clarinet; and Sadao Umekoji's Tom-Tom Band.

The New Asia Music Society is sponsoring a "New Autumn Music Evening" on the day of the autumnal equinox, Tuesday, September 23, 6:30 p.m., at the Nihon Seinenkan. The Columbia Rhythm Boys; accordionist Tadashi Osanai and his band; Katsuhiko Haida and the Moana Glee Club, and Koichi Sugii with his Novelly Quintet are participating in the program.

Opening its 16th Philharmonic Concert Season, the New Symphony Orchestra will present its 228th subscription concert under the direction of Joseph Rosenstock, 7:30 p.m., Wednesday and Thursday, September 24 and 25, at the Hibiya Public Hall.

In commemoration of the 150th anniversary of Mozart's death and the 100th anniversary of Dvorak's birth, the program will be devoted to works by the two composers. It will open with the Overture to the opera, "Cosi Fan Tutte," and the Symphony No. 39 in E flat major, Koechel No. 543, by Mozart, and close with Dvorak's Symphony No. 4 in G major, Opus 88.

Kenshu Wanibuchi and Akira Shimizu, two members of the first violin section of the New Symphony Orchestra, were called up for military service recently, according to an announcement in the September issue of "Philharmony," monthly musical magazine issued by the orchestra.

ROOSEVELT DISTORTS FACTS IN BROADCAST

German Official Quarters Sharply Rejects Talk as Full of Loop Holes

D.N.B.

BERLIN, September 13.—President Roosevelt's speech was rejected most sharply by German official quarters as an untrue representation of the actual facts, by which the President of the U.S.A. under all circumstances intended to draw the U.S.A. into war against the Axis Powers.

This he tried to attain by representing the position of the U.S.A. as being entirely defensive. For this purpose President Roosevelt furnished a description of alleged incidents—attacks on five vessels four of which sailing under the U.S. flag and one under the flag of Panama—by which he completely distorted the actual facts. By his order—which he at last frankly admits—to the armed forces of the U.S.A. to attack Axis forces wherever this deemed necessary President Roosevelt placed the German forces in the position to undertake on their behalf all necessary measures.

Official German quarters in Berlin are pointing out that "President Roosevelt thus made it plain to the entire world that exclusively he himself is bearing the whole responsibility for all consequences". In this connection political quarters of the Wilhelmstrasse declare that the President of the U.S.A. had been the instigator for the outbreak of the present European war. They recall the publication of documents showing the role which the President of the U.S.A. and his collaborators played in the months preceding the war and during the two years of the war.

President War Monger at Start

Already by the Czechoslovakian incident he tried to provoke war and the opposition in England, France and Poland towards the Munich Conference was supported and furthered by the President. In this connection also the part of Colonel Donovan is recalled which he played in Belgrade attempting at all costs to drag Yugoslavia away from the Axis side. "Criminal" these German quarters describe President's Roosevelt's attempts of "persuading" France to continue her resistance against the Reich supporting his intention by a cruel hunger blockade. "President Roosevelt wants war; hence it is his intention to lead the people of the U.S.A. into a state of incalculable emotion in order to plunge them, blindfolded vis-a-vis the actual facts, into an adventure which the U.S.A. certainly one day will regret intensely."

The Wilhelmstrasse circles charge the President of the U.S.A. with conducting this policy as an exponent of the world Jewry, because it is the latter that is the losing party in this war. Contrary to his election promises to keep the U.S.A. out of the war it is declared that President Roosevelt is working untiringly night and day to lead his people into the war and to sacrifice his people as cannon fodder for the British and Jewish interests. In his speech he attempts to make the people of the U.S.A. believe that their President, being himself in the defensive, is compelled to take measures for the defense of the interests of the U.S.A.

"In reality," Berlin circles declare. "President Roosevelt himself has constructed all these cases in order to have his "incident". The description of the "Greer" case is branded in Berlin as an "intentional distortion of the truth" pointing at the same time at the official German description of this case. Regarding his description of an alleged pursuit of an American battleship by a German submarine it is stated that the Reichs Government knows nothing whatsoever about such a case. Apropos the "Robin Moore" the Wilhelmstrasse declares that this vessel as well as her crew and passengers have been treated in accordance with the recognized rules of warfare.

Steel Seafarer Asked for It

With regard to the description of the sinking of the "Steel Seafarer" it is pointed out that both the German as well as the Italian Governments had explicitly defined the waters where this vessel has been sunk as warzone and that consequently this vessel which according to U.S.A. admittance carried war material aboard was liable to be sunk. Whether other ships sunk in the Suez Canal zone include U.S.A. vessels cannot be ascertained by Germany since the attack had been made during night.

Concerning the alleged sinking of the "Sessa" German official remarks say President Roosevelt has no authority to protest against a possible sinking of this vessel which sailed under the flag of Panama. Obviously, it is claimed in Berlin, the entire description of these cases has been arranged with the sole purpose of demonstrating as though they constituted a methodical German action against the U.S.A. merchant and naval marine.

Berlin political quarters, in this connection, refer to the fact that President Roosevelt issued his order to the American Navy not now but that this order—as has been proved by earlier statements of the Secretary of the Navy Knox—has been in force already since months and that he only did not dare to admit prior to this moment that the U.S. Navy had the order of aggressive action against German warships.

In conclusion it is stated in Berlin that this order of the President of the U.S.A. compels the the German forces on their behalf to adopt all necessary counter measures with the responsibility for the consequences resulting from these action resting solely with President Roosevelt.

LATTIMORE IS BUSY IN HARMONY EFFORT

Trying to Bolster Anglo-U.S. Soviet-Chiang Ties—Chinese Reds Also Active

Domei

PEKING, September 11.—Owen Lattimore, America adviser to the Chiang Kai-shek regime, is now active in Chungking, making all efforts to strengthen the Anglo-American-Soviet-Chiang collaboration, and at the same time to use his good offices to settle strife between the Chiang Kai-shek regime and the Communist authorities, according to information reaching here today.

It is further reported that the Communist authorities at Yenan on August 17 sent the following telegram to Mr. Lattimore with a view to making the situation more favorable to them:

1. The Chinese Communists heartily support the movement of Anglo-American-Soviet-Chungking collaboration.

2. The Chungking authorities should legally recognize the existence of Chinese Communists in China.

3. Equal treatment of the Chungking and Communist forces.

4. Chungking authorities should give the Communists the right of developing the northwestern region.

On the other hand, it is also reported that Chou En-lai, one of the Communist leaders and representative of the Communist party stationed in Chungking recently also asked the American adviser to exercise his power to reorganize the Kuomintang party so as to drive out anti-communist elements from the party.

In the meantime, the Chinese Communist leaders taking advantage of the Anglo-American-Soviet conference in Moscow are now making every possible efforts to develop the situation advantageous to them.

It is also reported that Mao Tse-tung, one of the Communist leaders on August 15, left Yenan, the seat of headquarters of the Chinese Communist party in Shensi Province, for Moscow by air in order to continue his activities there.

It is also reliably reported that other leaders of the Communists such as Lin Piao, Lin Fu and two others on August 24 left Yenan for Moscow by air to assist the movement of Mao Tso-tung in the capital of Soviet Russia.

NEW YORK CONTAINS 15% OF U.S. PLANTS

City Has Over 26,000 Factories, Output Value in Excess of $4 Billion

Fifteen per cent of the industrial plants of the United States are in New York City, according to David L. Tilly, president of the New York Dock Company, which owns and manages close to four miles of waterfront warehouses along the Brooklyn waterfront south from the Navy Yard.

Addressing the industrial real estate brokers, members of the Society of Industrial Realtors, gathered in New York City in July from many sections of the country, Mr. Tilly explained that the importance of New York as an industrial center was not generally understood. Quoting the Federal census of 1939, Mr. Tilly said that there were within the city 26,651 industrial plants.

In that year these plants employed approximately 513,000 wage earners and their products were valued in excess of $4,000,000,000. Obviously, if current figures were available, he said, they would be substantially higher.

"It is, I think, significant to note that these official figures show an increase of 19.8 per cent over the 1937 totals in the number of industrial plants in New York City as against a nation-wide gain of 10.5 per cent, and a 3.7 per cent gain in the value of their total products, as compared with a 6.4 per cent loss in the total national figures. Perhaps the most adequate way to fix New York City's relative position is to compare its 1939 figures with those of Chicago, the second city, for the same year, with its 8,476 industrial plants, approximately 348,000 wage earners and, roughly, $2,843,000,000 of products.

Labor Supply Big Factor

"While the labor supply, the immediately accessible metropolitan market of 12,000,000 consumers and the abundant freight and passenger facilities are primary reasons for this mammoth concentration of manufacturing, the Port of New York, America's largest seaport, has played a vital role. Through it each year move 120,000,000 tons of commerce valued at $10,000,000,000. It constitutes the focal point at which the water transportation lines meet the railroads which span the nation. It is not a single waterfront, nor a single waterway, but a coalition of many harbors, a combination of many channels, a port of many ports.

"Manhattan has a concentration of textile and clothing industries, while its other factories, in the main, do light manufacturing. Brooklyn, however, presents an entirely different picture. Its plants are highly diversified in character. They make almost every conceivable type of product. Nowhere in the entire country is there such a congregating of small enterprises engaged in an infinite variety of tasks. This very diversification, for which the transportation and market facilities of the area are peculiarly adapted, gives the borough its remarkable industrial strength."

The last Federal census, he said, listed in the Borough of Brooklyn 4,910 industrial plants with 135,500 wage earners and annual products valued at about $871,000,000. He explained that the Federal census listed only those plants with an annual volume of more than $5,000. New York State Department of Labor, listing all factories "employing one or more persons," credits the borough with having 6,960 factories and more than 163,000 factory employes.

"The American Safety Razor Company makes millions of razor blades from miles of steel ribbon," he pointed out. "The Intertype and Mergenthaler Linotype plants make machines that set type for virtually all of the country's newspapers and magazines. Tubes of toothpaste and shaving cream, and other drugstore merchandise pour from the E. R. Squibb & Son plant by the ten-ton truckful. From the greatly expanded workrooms of the Sperry Gyroscope Company marine and aeronautical equipment for American ships and planes. Royal Baking Powder, Rockwood Chocolate, Schaefer's beer, Schrader's valves, American Twine, Detecto bathroom scales, Higgins inks, Mongol pencils and Oxford filling supplies are among the prominent products which originate in Broklyn.

"At the risk of being accused of gilding the lily," he went on, "let me remind you that not very long ago your own parent body, the National Association of Real Estate Boards, in seeking a wise and competent leader, drafted a prominent Brooklyn realtor, Joseph W. Catherine, as your president. So you see Brooklyn produces outstanding realtors as well as factory products.

Defense Fallacy Exploded

"You will remember that in the early planning stages of the national defense program the government formulated a policy under which the great bulk of industrial production would be carried on inland, well away from the Eastern seaboard. However, the fallacy of that theory soon came to light and it is little wonder that the ability of the industrial plants in the Brooklyn area to produce diversified and unusual things effectively and expeditiously, has resulted in the very large total of defense contracts placed in the area."

He said more than 350 Brooklyn industrial plants were engaged on war orders, either handling direct defense contracts or subcontracting for the larger manufacturers doing defense jobs. These Brooklyn defense orders exceeded $680,000,000 and include $290,000,000 of direct contracts awarded to private firms, an estimated $100,000,000 in subcontracts, "secret" contracts, etc., and $293,000,000 of work being done at the Brooklyn navy yard, exclusive of private contract work.—New York Herald Tribune.

Defense Headquarters

There will be widespread approval of the Government's latest measures for consolidation of Empire defense. Following upon the creation of National Defense Headquarters came the appointment of General Ōtozo Yamada as Commander-in-Chief of the new establishment and Lieutenant-General Torashiro Kawabe as his Chief of Staff. General Yamada is answerable directly to His Majesty the Emperor and thus is assured that form of direct responsibility which means freedom and rapidity of action in any emergency.

In this war it has been amply demonstrated that singleness of purpose and command is the keynote to success, while the antitype of divided responsibility spells peril. Although nobody would say that one French general was more patriotic and purposeful than another during the European operations last year, the conclusion has been universally reached that the French lacked that unity which the Germans employed in the attainment of victory. Various corps were criticized for acting on their own, without regard to necessary centrality. And when it is realized that the breakdown of the Allied forces derived from divided counsels, the latest measures taken by Japan will be acclaimed.

Of course there already existed in the fighting services of this country the necessary compact machinery for powerful central control in the Supreme War Council and its tactical expression in the General Staff. Nevertheless the creation of a National Defense Headquarters perfected this idea of consolidated command. In the last analysis, whether the operation is a limited or general one, it is the single command that counts. War of defense, where quick decisions and imperative actions are necessary, conclusions by committees are shown by experience to lack the force and effect of a leader's determinations. General policy and strategy are, of course, worked out by a staff; it was the inherited excellence of the wheeling strategy, first laid down before the 1914-18 war that worked to Germany's advantage. Application of policy, however, the tactical use of armies is best seen in the personal direction.

While there is absolutely no tendency in Japan to introduce any form of authority that might appear dictatorial such as Europe has evolved, some of the merits of that personal direction can be used, on the basis of proved experience. General Yamada, a soldier of wide experience and versatility, is chosen to unify Japan's defenses at a time of tension. The public will know that wherever the need arises its vigilant director of national defense will be able to apply his forces immediately, wherever necessary, drawing upon all resources in men and materials. On the mainland, in Chosen and Taiwan, and from various aerial units the C.-in-C. has vast reserves of experienced fighting men to draw upon.

It is explained that the Japanese Army had established four headquarters, in Eastern, Central, Western and Northern military districts. As hostile Powers have increased their pressure on this country there has arisen the need to interlock measures for national defense and this has motivated the Army in its decision to establish a National Defense General Headquarters.

General Yamada also retains two important key positions which dovetail into his new appointment. He is concurrently Inspector-General of Military Education and Army representative on the Supreme War Council. These posts of strategy and administration are rounded out by his service on fighting fronts in the present China Affair.

Further implementing the nation's work of defense unity and power is the establishment of two bureaus, national security and national defense, in the Home Ministry. Three draft Imperial ordinances give further force and effect to the defense headquarters. They empower the Government, and primarily the Commander-in-Chief, to requisition medical facilities, land transport and commodities. Thus, besides the men, the Commander has the materials and the communications.

National mobilization has been completed in all details. These have brought under the Government all the resources and facilities of the Empire. Actions of this kind have given to the people a confidence to face any development on any front.

Completion of such powerful plans, while providing national confidence, also serves to restrain any hostile interests. The best assurance against attack is visible preparation for resistance. The world has been enabled to see, if not the particular plans of defense, at least the existence of the machinery therefor. Such evidence is of immense strength to the Government in its diplomatic dealings with foreign States. An Empire ready to defend itself is an Empire in a strong position to obtain its international rights.

Indians' Own Views

To the Editor:

The British Embassy has recently started sending a bulletin, under the caption "Items From India," to various individuals and institutions in Japan. The purpose of this publication, as is only expected, is to tell all sorts of stories and fables about India and the Indians to the outside world in a way that create an impression among the people in various countries that the Indians are very favorably disposed toward Britain's war aims. They quote various Indians of prominence and other wise, without reference to the context, and through these try to convince the world that what they say is correct.

In Bulletin No. 8, we find quotations from Sir H. P. Mody, Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, and also from the famous Indian nationalist poetess Madam Sarojini Naidu, all praising the courage and sacrifice of the British people. Mr. Mody is reported to have said that "from many points the greatest achievement has been the ranging of the enormous moral and material resources of the New World on the side of democracies." Sir H. P. Mody is a well known supporter of the British imperialism in India and is at present a member of the Viceroy's Council. A man like him is only expected to stand by Britain and say things that would be conducive to British imperialist interest. Yet, I could not find any new revelation in what he said. It is too well known throughout the world that Americas are supporting Britain. It is however absurd to suggest that Americas have ranged on the side of democracies. The correct expression of fact would have been to say that democracies, that are Americas, have sided with British imperialism.

Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru is a liberal leader and is not a nationalist. He has been trying to secure the help and understanding for Britain's war aims. On the other hand he was trying to get Government of Britain to do something that would appease the people of India and make them help Britain. Fortunately or unfortunately neither the Indians nor the British care to listen to what he and his like suggest.

Mrs. Naidu is reported to have said that "from Mr. Churchill down to the youngest child have not hesitated to stake their lives to let England be free." Nobody has ever doubted the patriotism of the British people. What the world, including Mr. Naidu and other intelligent Indians, doubt is the declared war aims of England. Mrs. Naidu was asking the Indians to learn to lay down their lives for the sake of their country's freedom as the British people are doing. She was not supporting British imperialism in any shape or form. That Indian nationalists have a liking for democracy is no more a secret. What we refuse to believe is the false declaration of Britain that she is fighting for freedom and democracy. If she admits the fact that she is fighting the present war to maintain her octopus grip over the world and her aggressive hold on millions of helpless and innocent peoples the world would understand England better.

Self-Suctioning Centrifugal Pump

Attracting much attention at the Agricultural Show of the Vienna Fair was the combination of a slow-going (700 to 1,700 Rev./min.) self-suctioning centrifugal pump with a domestic water supply plant, such as is now being used more and more on farms. The pump quickly generates a very high vacuum, so that a vacuum metrical suction height of 9.5 meters is reached and water can be suctioned up. No foundation is necessary for the plant. The pumps are delivered for hourly outputs of from 1,000 to 12,000 liters (1,056.7 to 12,680.4 quarts).

CONSTRUCTION OF GIGANTIC DAM UNDER WAY IN U.S. ROCKY VALLEY

Curtain Rising for Largest Shasta Reclamation Drama With Federal Government as Stage Manager

By RODNEY L. BRINK

Christian Science Monitor

From the board seats of our steep-tilted Vista House, yours and mine, we may watch the fascinating, never-ending pageantry of the building of the second largest of all concrete dams—Shasta. It is a continuous performance, day and night.

Shasta Dam, as every member-in-good-standing of the Mountainside Superintendents' Club knows, is the northernmost unit of that Paul Bunyanesque galaxy of irrigation, flood control, electric power, salinity control, and navigation projects interlocked and made one in the Central Valley Project of California.

Shasta Dam, now being tucked away in a mountain gorge right up under the 14,161-foot ice-creamy mountain cone from which it gets its name, is at the north end of the valley agricultural empire embraced by the project. Friant Dam, fourth largest concrete dam, is down toward the southern end. Shasta Dam is away up by Redding, under the Siskiyou Mountains, which lie between Oregon and California. Friant Dam is down in central California, 20 miles northerly from Fresno in the foothills of the Sierra Nevada. The central valley they will serve is 500 miles long from Mount Shasta to the Tehachapi Divide, and about 50 miles wide. Its 58,000 square miles of territory are equal to the combined area of Maine, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, and Delaware.

Two Valleys

The central valley of California is really two valleys. They are the Sacramento Valley and the San Joaquin (pronounced San Waukeen) Valley, both bearing the names of the rivers which drain them, rivers which can shrink to pond-like docility in dry summers, and can swell to overwhelm mighty dikes when spring rains combine with melting mountain snows in a unanimous rush for the sea.

The two rivers, one flowing south, the other north, both navigable to huge river boats for their last 50 miles or so, almost bump head-on as they reach a swampy delta area where they both turn into eastern reaches of San Francisco Bay at just about the midsection of that body of water. At this point the rivers level is so nearly that of the tidal waters of the bay that the excess waters of spring floodtime find no place to go, and so sometimes merely back up and flood the countryside for many miles in all directions.

When, in those dulcet Spanish days before gold was found at Coloma, a group of caballeros trailed some horse-stealing Indians from Monterey across the coast mountains and into the central valley country (central valley is not a proper name except in Central Valley Project), they saw only desert, two lines of soft-wood trees on either side of rivers, oaks on the uplands, and an immense swamp area where the two great rivers met the salt water. "Let the Indians have it," they said, in effect, and went back to their salubrious coastal plain and their reputed routine of fiestas, fandagos, siestas.

Times changed. Just a few months after James Wilson Marshall, a millwright, saw the gleam of gold in the Coloma mill race, California swarmed with Americans, fervent and often ruthless in their search for gold. It was easy to divert water from the swollen rivers of springtime out onto rich valley soil and grow grain crops; not hard to dike the soft tule land of the deltas against ordinary floods, and grow hay.

After Civil War

In the first few decades after the Civil War, hydraulic miners with their cataclysmic water jets tore mountains down and washed them into the rivers, clogging the channels, forcing spring flood waters far out over the flatlands, blocking navigation. In summers, when the rivers were low, irrigation water was needed most by the ever-growing agricultural enterprises. Rivers were lowered as water was taken from them. Many wells, pumping underground waters, lowered the water table in the lowland areas. The rivers, too low to hold the ocean waters back, let salt water come far inland up the natural canals in the delta country, and the salt worked havoc with crops, and land, and drinking water supplies.

What had seemed like a paradise to the early comers, commenced to develop serious drawbacks.

"Today," Walter R. Young, Assistant Chief Engineer of the Bureau of Reclamation, said not long ago, "under intensive irrigation, it has become an empire of diversified agriculture, settled by an aggressive population of 1,250,000 persons, supported by producing lands representing an investment of more than $2,000,000,000—all dependent upon a single natural resource, water. . . . This territory includes 10,000,000 acres of irrigable land surrounded by a mountain watershed of 40,000 square miles. Its 3,080,000 acres presently under irrigation comprise two-thirds of the irrigated lands in California and 16 per cent of the irrigated lands of the entire United States. It is the heart of California, both geographically and economically."

But the agricultural development has far outstripped the natural limitations of the unregulated water supply, the engineer points out. The water resources are not equitably distributed for the irrigable lands.

Delta Region

The Sacramento Valley has tributary watersheds producing two-thirds of the water developed in the central valley, but its lands present only one-third of the irrigation need, whereas the San Joaquin Valley has only one-third of the water and crop lands with two-thirds of the need.

The balance between the two merged valleys is off kilter in so far as water for irrigation is concerned, and the activities of the human element in the equation have still further put natural relationships out of joint. Rivers filled up. The ocean came inland in "Little Holland," the delta region, to blight crops with saltiness.

The whole problem is one of restoring and adjusting balance. Great Shasta Dam, 560 feet high from bedrock, somewhat taller than Washington Monument, will store 4,500,000 acre feet of water. In winter and spring it will hold back the floods of water from the high country, keeping the Sacramento River from going amok. In summer and fall it will parcel out those flood waters when they are needed; needed so that flat-bottomed ships may ride again to Red Bluff, needed so grain farms and orchards far to the south may have ample water for crops; needed to replenish the San Joaquin River along its lower reaches, needed to hold a firm front against the salt waters which have in recent years become altogether too neighborly in the delta areas.

Imbedded Ends

Shasta Dam, like its brother and sister concrete dams, built into a solid piece of concrete stone and joined to mountain bedrock, has something of the shape of a wedge of pie. A wedge of pie standing upright on its greatly thickened point, and curved heavily upstream so that the tremendous thrust of hundreds of feet of water leaning against its upper face can only push it more firmly against the rock mountains in which its ends are imbedded.

A wedge of pie. Yes, and, reduced to simplest terms, it is being built as a great mud pie, which will contain 6,000,000 cubic yards of concrete. Its closest relative, Friant Dam, will be a little more than a third as large—with 2,200,000 yards of concrete.

We start our tour of the workings down by Redding, 12 miles away by road. We see the river-bed gravel scooped up in 10-yard bites by an electric dredge, see it sifted into separate piles ranging from six-inch cobblestones down to fine sand. We see a special device in the mammoth gravel plant that takes gold from the gravels, gold enough to divide $6,000 each month between the gravel contractors and the owner of the riverbank property.

We follow the record-breaking, 10-mile belt conveyor which brings the gravel, in assorted sizes, across the river, across highway, and over mountain and valley to stock piles just below the dam.

We see the Southern Pacific Railroad where it dives into an oversized tunnel under the dam's west abutment, a tunnel that will later be used in construction work, to divert the river through at one of its low stages, while the currently vacant midsection of the dam is put in place, block by block.

Double-Deck Bridge

We visit the Pit River Bridge, being built by the Reclamation Bureau for the rerouting of Highway U.S. 99 and 30 miles of the Southern Pacific Railroad, to raise them above the deep end of the 35-mile lake the dam will form. Pit River joins the Sacramento just above the dam site, and the depth of the lake there makes necessary construction of the highest double-deck bridge in existence—another superlative.

We marvel at the inner workings of the eight-story, cylindrical mixing tower, in which several alert young men, with a maze of buttons, lights, switches, and recording devices, weigh and mix each separate batch of concrete that goes into the dam. They operate five four-yard mixers. Water, cement, sand, gravel all are carefully weighed, and an automatic record, in ink, shows the exact consistency of each new-made batch. The mixing tower is another superlative feature in the task of building this dam.

Underneath the mixing tower runs an electric railroad, in a circle. Two electric cars take the product of the mixers around the circle to the far side of the huge structure known as the head tower, where the concrete is discharged into mobile steel buckets in which it will take its aerial ride out to one of the pouring crews on the dam itself.

There are several superlative features connected with the Shasta Dam construction, led by the head tower, that 460-foot steel structure so solidly built (its foundations go 100 feet deep) that it can support seven great sets of horizontal aerial cables, each designed to handle loads of at least 20 tons, bouncing on vertical hoist cables a quarter or a half mile away from the head tower.

Seven Cableways

The head tower is so placed that its seven radiating cableways and conveyors can reach every part of the dam, on both sides of the river. Its eight-yard buckets and big skips, operated electrically and by alert operators high up in the head tower, are as vital a factor in the smooth, speedy progress of the work as the 10-mile gravel conveyor that comes up from Redding.

Each of the seven cableways has its own tail tower, a sturdy, heavily weighted steel tower on a radial track at the far end of the cable. The operator in the head tower controls the movement of his particular tail tower with an electric handle much like that used by a motorman on a streetcar. There is an operator for each cableway. The longest of the cableways are almost exactly half a mile long.

When working at concrete-placing the operator in the head tower takes his orders by telephone and electric flash signal from the signalman with the placing crew, perhaps clear across the canyon and down out of sight among the jutting, concrete squares of the strange checkerboard.

Out on that vast checkerboard a little later, climbing tall ladders to get from one low square to a high one, we see that the termites and midges we had seen down there from a vantage point high aloft are full-grown men, and a husky lot, too. Some are laying water pipe which is built into the dam under every five-foot layer to cool the concrete as it dries and hardens. Other men place pipes to carry grout, which is liquid cement that is pumped under great pressure into the joints between layers of the "mud pie" to seal it against the great force of water it must resist.

Seven-Story Powerhouse

The vastness of it all, a mighty river being trained to work in double harness with a mighty mate, brings a feeling of awe. As we proceed back up the mountainside to our Vista House we give silent thanks that here, in the United States, men are engaged in constructive construction work; that all is not preparation for war, but that the greatest single job of building now being performed by men anywhere is this one, a job of preparedness for bettered living.

We stop at the jumble of steel rods and concrete walls that some day will be the dam's seven-story powerhouse. It is to have a power-productive capacity of 375,000 kilowatts, 515,000 horsepower. Efforts are being made to complete the dam in 1943 instead of 1944, because the power will be needed before it is available.

The project is being constructed by the United States Bureau of Reclamation. It was authorized by the people of California, by ballot They set up a Water Project Authority for the purpose, and authorized issuance of bonds for its payment.

A prosaic engineer of the Bureau of Reclamation affected poetically, as anyone might be upon coming into contact with the Central Valley Project, said recently.

"The curtain is rising for one of the greatest reclamation dramas of history."

It's true. After this job is done, let him beware who points to any vision man may dream and says, "It can't be done."

And one of the best features of it is that it is ours, yours and mine. The United States Government is only the stage manager and the producer of this great drama. The stage is one of our states. The setting and scenery are formed by our rivers and mountains. The production is ours.

Carbon-Stone, New Discovery

Almost all organic and inorganic substances are very sensitiev to the action of hydrofluoric acids and alkaline solutions. A new working material has recently been discovered in Germany which is known as carbon-stone. This substance is impervious to the action of even these powerful chemicals to an extraordinary degree. This immunity from the effects of acids differs in the various grades of carbon-stones according to the ingredients they contain.

Their main constituent element is of course pure carbon, and all grades are alike in their resistance to concentrated or diluted hydrofluoric acids, even when these are mixed at high temperatures with diluted sulphuric acid. In the case of concentrated sulphuric acid, however, the temperature cannot exceed 125 degrees (Celsius). These carbon-stone products are also especially impervious to the action of phosphoric acid, acetic acid, diluted and concentrated hydrochloric acid, alkaline solutions, basic salts, and organic matter. In the case of nitric acid they are not immune, and this applies to all compounds containing nitric acid or nitrates, molten, alkali, and hydrogen and fluorine gas.

United Press

NEW YORK, September 12.—St. Louis nosed out Brooklyn 4 to 2 today to even the count in the crucial National League series. With the Dodgers now holding a one game lead over the Cards, the deciding battle of the series will be fought tomorrow.

The Cards clinched the ball game in the sixth with a two run rally. Catcher Don Padgett drew a walk and scored on Estel Crabtree's three bagger. On the next play Crabtree came home on Frank Crespi's sacrifice fly deep into center field.

Brooklyn has now won 89 games and lost 50 for an average of .640 while St. Louis has won 87 games and lost 50 for an average of .635.

Cincinnati Reds emerged from their slump and downed the New York Giants 8 to 4. Elmer Riddle handled the mound assignment for the Reds and turned in his 17th victory of the season. The big inning for the Reds was the sixth when they collected seven runs. Riddle helped out by clouting out a double when the backs were loaded.

The Reds now trail the league leaders by 13 games and have only 21 games remaining on their schedule.

The lowly Philadelphia Phillies turned in their 30th win of the season at the expense of the Chicago Cubs. The cellar club came from behind to win by a 5 to 3 score. Dan Litwhiler won the game in the seventh by connecting with a homer with one mate aboard It was his 17th circuit drive of the season.

Pittsburgh and Boston divided another double header with the Pirates taking the opener 6 to 3 and the Braves the night cap 5 to 0.

Lloyd Dietz handled the mound assignment in the opener and in limiting the Braves to nine hits turned in his seventh win of the season. Five Pittsburgh errors helped out the Braves in the second game. Alva Javery did the chucking for the winners and limited his foes to six safeties.

United Press

NEW YORK, September 12.—Joe McCarthy's New York Yankees evened their series with the Detroit Tigers today, by scoring an impressive 8 to 2 win which represented their 94th victory of the season.

New York led throughout and sewed up the game with a five run rally in the fourth frame. Three Detroit hurlers were touched for 13 safeties. Ernie Bonham went the route for New York and though nicked for a dozen hits kept them well scattered and hurled scoreless ball every inning but the fourth.

The second place Boston Red Sox blanked the St. Louis Browns 5 to 0 to record their 74th win of the season.

Joe Dobson turned in one of his best games of the season in limiting the Browns to five hits. The Red Sox scored their first two runs in the second added another counter in the sixth and finished their scoring with a two run rally in the 8th.

Chicago White Sox shutout the Philadelphia Athletics 2 to 0 behind the four hit hurling of John Humphries. The Chisox broke into the scoring column in the first inning and added another run for good measure in the eighth.

Washington Senators showed signs of emerging from the American League cellar when they beat out the Cleveland Indians 7 to 4. The Senators are now only one game behind the Athletics.

Stanley Harris' club led throughout and were ahead 7 to 1 when the ninth inning opened. The Indians pushed over three runs before their rally was checked.

FOOTBALL IN BRITAIN DRAWS HUGE CROWD

Spectators Also Take Part in Keenly-Fought Contests Throwing Bottles

Reuters

LONDON, September 7.—Rebel London football clubs and affiliated nearby neighbors had the better of exchanges in yesterday's program of six matches, which were witnessed by a total attendance of 47,000, whereas 19 northern matches brought out a total crowd of 72,000, of which 21,000 saw the match between Blackpool and Preston.

The outstanding feature of the whole program, however, was the remarkable crowd scenes for the Derby match between Glasgow Rangers and Glasgow Celtic at Ibrox Park, where a mixture of 40,000 Protestants and Catholics produced the usual partisan incidents.

A penalty kick to Celtic caused an uproar. Bottles were thrown on the track, and the police drew batons. Several spectators were removed by the police, and a soldier was carried away on a stretcher.

Two Players Injured

The game developed on keen lines, and two Celtic players were injured and carried off on stretchers.

The Rangers won by three goals to nil to keep them at the top of the league, the only Scottish team with the maximum points.

Te outstanding feature of the English matches was five goals by R. Lewis, comparatively unknown Arsenal player. Lewis was spotted with a London school s'de, developed and signed professional forms when 17. Lewis scored two goals in the first four minutes.

Four clubs share the leadership of the London League, Portsmouth, holders of the Football Association Cup, having won two away matches being one of them

Preston, Football League War Cup holders, failed to hold a strong Blackpool team, but had the consolation of sharing the biggest English gate.

There were some remarkable reversals of form in northern matches. Manchester United were held to a draw after winning 13-1 last week, while Stoke lost after trouncing Everton last week.

Following are the results of football matches played yesterday::

MEIJI IS AUSPICIOUS IN FIRST RUGBY TILT

Defending Champs Steam Roll Over Nichidai 87-3 at Hachimonyama Field

The Meiji University fifteen opened it's drive for the collegiate title by steam-rolling over Nichidai, 87-3, Sunday in the opening game of the Kanto Collegiate Rugby League held at the Hachimonyama field.

Running roughshod over Nichidai, the defending champion Meiji served notice that they were to be reckoned with again in the final standing. In the first half, the victors were successful with two tries, scored 5 goals and a penalty goal all for a total of 34 points. And holding Nichidai scoreless.

The second half proved no less comforting for the losers. The powerful Meiji offensive scored at will, coming up with 6 tries and 7 goals. By scoring a penalty goal in the dying minutes of the match, Nichidai avoided a shutout.

SUSPENSION OF ANGOTT TO BE LIFTED BY N.B.A.

Lightweight Champion Scheduled to Fight Lew Jenkins, Jackie Wilson

United Press

WINSTON-SALEM, North Carolina 10.—The suspension of Sammy Angott by the National Boxing Association for failure to defend his title in over six months will be lifted when he fights Lew Jenkins, Bob Montgomery, Jackie Wilson or Ray Robinson, it was officially announced yesterday.

The N. B. A. yesterday rated Lou Nova and Billy Conn as logical contenders for Joe Louis' title.

Lou Salica was named bantamweight champion, while contenders listed were Tony Olivera, Manuel Ortiz, Kui Kong of Hawaii and Tommy Forte. Rush Dalma of Manila was rated as an outstanding boxer.

Little Dado of Manila was named champion of the flyweight division while Jackie Peterson and Little Pancho were named outstanding contenders.

Noted Poet Criticizes British Policy in India

the bravest among the British, French and Greek soldiers have had to evacuate the battlefield in Europe because they were overwhelmed by superior armaments. But when our poor, unarmed and helpless peasants, encumbered with crying babes, flee from homes unable to protect them from armed goondas, the British officials perhaps smile in contempt at our cowardice.

Lathi Training Forbidden

"Every British civilian in England is armed today for protecting his hearth and home against the enemy, but in India even lathi training was forbidden by decree. Our people have been deliberately disarmed and emasculated in order to keep them perpetually cowed and at the mercy of their armed masters. The British hate the Nazis for merely challenging their world mastery, and Miss Rathbone expects us to kiss the hand of her people in servility for having riveted chains on ours.

"A Government must be judged not by the pretensions of its spokesmen but by its actual and effective contribution to the well-being of the people. It is not so much because the British are foreigners that they are unwelcome to us and have found no place in our hearts, as because, while pretending to be trustees of our welfare, they have betrayed the great trust and have sacrificed the happiness of millions in India to bloat the pockets of a few capitalists at home.

I should have thought that the decent Britisher would at least keep silent at these wrongs and be grateful to us for our inaction, but that he should add insult to injury and pour salt over our wounds, passes all bounds of decency."

Louis Ready for Training

CHICAGO, September 10.—The draft board yesterday announced that Joe Louis, World's heavyweight champion, had been placed in the 1-A class and "probably" will be inducted into service in October. The nergo champion must take a physical examination shortly.

CAPTAIN'S PLAYERS WIN CRICKET GAME

Score Third Win in Seven Matches Against Vice-Captain's Team

The captain's team defeated the vice-captain's side by 69 for eight wickets to 67 in a cricket match at the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club on Saturday afternoon. This victory gave the former its third win in seven games with the latter, the vice-captain's squad having gained the decision in the other four contests.

Neither team had a full eleven, the captain's side playing with ten men and the oppostion with nine. However, both squads obtained substitutes to fill the vacancies in fielding.

A fine last wicket stand by L. N. Haum and S. Stephens saved the day for the winners. With the score being 44 and the opposition having made 67, this pair made the necessary runs for a win. Haum made 24 and Stephens, the captain, made 15, both not out.

Go to Bat First

The vice-captain's team went in to bat first, and the initial wicket fell for only two runs, due to a catch by G. W. Gorman. G. L. King and J. R. V. Mason added another 17 runs before the latter was well held by P. H. Lord. The third wicket also was taken at 19, G. H. D. Bell being caught by Haum, the wicketkeeper.

C. Meadows joined King, and this combination produced 19 more points before the former was caught by J. A. Sargeant. The latter was dismissed at 47, being leg before wicket to one of Lord's deliveries. The sixth wicket was obtained for only one more run.

M. J. K. Stark was then joined by F. J. da Silva and they increased the count to 66 before the latter had his stumps disturbed by Sargeant. The eigth, and last, wicket was taken at 67.

The captain's side started very poorly, wickets falling in rapid succession. After seven batsmen had been dismissed for only 25 runs it looked as if the vice-captain's side would gain an easy victory.

However, the rot stopped when H. T. Langstone joined Haum, and the score mounted to 44 before the former was stumped by F. H. Moysey. The tail continued to wag when Stephens went in to partner Haum, and they made the required 24 runs for a victory.

Haum's 24, not out, was the high score of the day, while Stephens' undefeated 15 was next in line. Stark, who captained his side as Vice-Captain H. J. Bird was unable to play, obtained 14, not out, to make the high individual score for the losers. King, da Silva and Mason made 14, 13 and 12, respectively.

Stark Wins Honors

Bowling honors went to Stark, who took four wickets for 14 runs. Lord's average was second best, with three for 15, and this was followed by Sargent's three for 23.

G.H. da Costa kept score and compiled the statistics.

Next Saturday, September 20, the British Embassy team will play against "The Rest" in a match scheduled to get under way at 2 p.m. on the Y.C. and A.C. grounds.

The results of Saturday's match are as follows:

CRICKET IN ENGLAND ENJOYING LAST PHASE

Matches Between Military and Civilians Attract Thousands Of Onlookers

Reuters

LONDON, September 7.—Cricket had a dying fling yesterday with attractive matches.

Interest between the Army and a Lord's XI at Lord's entered on the appearance of Squadron-Leader Bill Edrich, who has just been awarded the D.F.C.—the first Test cricketer to win this award, though Reg Taylor, Essex County player, won similar distinction with the Royal Air Force.

Ten thousand spectators saw a drawn match, the Army scoring 235 for nine declared, with Sergeant Denis Compton making 114, and the Lord's XI replying with 186 for six, of which Sergeant Leslie Todd of Kent was responsible for 57.

The South beat the North by four wickets in a match between teams of County strength at Taunton. The North made 171, and South 175 for six.

The Nottingham County team, scoring 208 for seven declared, drew with the Royal Air Force, who scored 167 for six.

NEW YORK, September 13.—Brooklyn's daffy Dodgers today seemed headed for the National League pennant and a battle with the New York Yankees in the World Series next month.

Baseball experts said Leo Durocher's club could not miss copping the pennant if it continues to play as it did today at St. Louis when the Dodgers beat the Cardinals 1 to 0.

Both clubs were held to three hits and the game was scoreless until the eighth stanza when Brooklyn pushed over the run which resulted in St. Louis dropping the crucial series. Brooklyn tonight held a two game lead over the Cardinals and had 14 more games to play. Today's win was the 90th of the year for Durocher's outfit.

The game was won by Bill Herman who brought Fred Walker home with a two bagger. Previously Walker also doubled.

The Cards threatened to score in the fifth inning when Frank Crespi doubled and Harold Reese made an error, letting another Card get on base. But John Whitlow Wyatt then struck out August Mancuso and Morton Cooper and forced Mimmy Brown to ground out.

The bang-up mound duel was staged by Wyatt of the Dodgers and Cooper of the Cards. Wyatt kept his three hits well scattered but Cooper's downfall was when he allowed the Dodgers two of their three hits in the eighth.

After taking two out of three games in their series at St. Louis the Dodgers move to Cincinnati tomorrow where they face the stubborn Reds. The Cards will entertain the New York Giants over the week end.

Another thriller was supplied at Chicago where the Cubs, after an 11 inning battle, nosed out the Philadelphia Phillies 5 to 4.

The extra inning fray was broken up when Bill Nicholson drew a walk with the bases loaded. On the mound for the Phillies at the time was Rube Melton.

Chicago used four hurlers in an effort to hold the Phillies in tow. The Cubs trailed until the ninth when they pushed over a lone run to knot the score.

Cincinnati Reds remained in the pennant race by downing the New York Giants 6 to 4. The Reds were badly outhit but bunched their blows in the sixth and eighth innings.

The deciding runs were scored in the eighth when Frank McCormick doubled, Ernie Lombardi drew a walk. Bauer hit a two bagger and Harry Craft singled.

At Pittsburgh the Pirates tightened their grip on 4th place by nosing out the Boston Braves 1 to 0. The game was scoreless after the first inning.

Frank Gustine singled and came home with the winning run on Bob Elliott's two bagger. Dick Conger handled the mound duty for Pittsburgh and held the Braves to a half dozen hits.

In the American circuit the mighty New York club was downed 5 to 3 by the Detroit Tigers. Lynwood Rowe won his own game by socking out a three bagger. Detroit scored four out of its five runs in the ninth as a result to Rowe's triple and Frank Croucher's two bagger, which came with the sacks loaded.

Washington fans were treated to an eleven inning battle in which the Senators beat out the Cleveland Indians 6 to 5.

George Case started the eleventh by singling, took second on an error and then stole third. On the next play Case trotted home on Roger Cramer's single.

Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics scored all of their runs in the first inning to beat out the third place Chicago White Sox 3 to 1.

The Athletics, runs resulted from three singles and two walks. The Chicago hurling ace, Eddie Smith, then settled down and allowed only two more hits during the remainder of the game, but his mates couldn't overcome the lead.

Boston's Red Sox trounced the St. Louis Browns 7 to 2 to tighten their grip on second place. The big inning for Boston was the third when three hits, three walks and an error yielded five runs.

Chalky Wright Wins Over Joey Archibald In 15-Round Bout

Reuter

WASHINGTON, September 12.—A new World Featherweight Champion, as recognized by the New York and Maryland authorities, appeared when Chalky Wright, a negro boxer, knocked out Joey Archibald in the eleventh round of a 15 round bout. The National Boxing Association regards Ritchie Lemos, a Mexican, as the champion, since he beat Pete Scalzo in July. A meeting now appears to be necessary between Lemos and Wright to determine who is the undisputed champion.

FALANGISTS RALLY AGAINST BOLSHEVISM

100,000 Spaniards Reminded Of Country's Aims at Ceremony for Fallen Comrades

D.N.B.

ALICANTE, September 16.—A big Falangist demonstration at Elche under the chairmanship of Minister Luis Jose Arrese, Secretary General of the Falangist Party, was attended by some 100,000 workmen. In the forenoon hours the foundation stone of the monument in honor of 52 Falangists murdered by bandits during the Spanish Civil War was laid. The Minister of Agriculture Miguel Primo de Rivera, performed this ceremony.

During a demonstration in the famous Palmgroves near Elche Rivera spoke about the problems of the province of Alicante stating:" The war which the first nations of Europe are waging today is not only a fight for the daily bread but it is fought in order to safeguard the existence of the European nations for the coming centuries. Therefore Spain, with her age old tradition and her new political structure that made her belong to one of those rising nations must not allow herself to be dominated exclusively by food questions. For us, the greatness of our fatherland and its future dominating position among the European nations must be our sublime aim."

The next speaker on this meeting was the Secretary General of the Falangist Party, Arrese, who emphasized that fewer words should be spoken and more should be done. "We Falangists have come over to Elche in order to hand over for cultivation more than 20,000 acres of land," he said. "We are thus serving our fatherland as did those 52 comrades for whose memory this monument has been erected; and also the members of the Blue Division consisting of volunteers from all over the country who are fighting for the cause of a united Europe against Bolshevism are serving our fatherland just the same.

"In, their love and services to the fatherland the Falangists are always prepared for a revolution which is directed against Bolshevism and Marxism, fighting for our national unity against internationalism, and which defends the just cause against—the outworn privileges of the past. We Falangists must therefore stand in the frontline against all those who try to hand over Spain to those demagogues who want to lull Spain with false advices and warnings."

MADRID, September 16.—Commenting on the U.S. Monroe Doctrine the paper Hoja del Lunes brands the foreign policy of the U.S. accusing it of neglecting and ridiculing the principles of the Monroe Doctrine.

"The international Jewry has destroyed the old idea of U.S. isolation," the paper says, "and the Jews of today dominate the entire American business. They have turned North America into their treasury and have made the country the basis of their operations for conquering the world markets. The American people do not want war; but there is a political and social minority consisting of the Jews and their press, the armament industry, and few other men who are presently directing the destiny of the U.S. Since this clique wants war they will also find the necessary pretext for entering it.

"Colonel Lindbergh," the paper concludes," in his recent speech mentioned the names of those guilty of this foul manoeuver namely: the Government of the U.S. and the Jewry with its propaganda machine. No outside help, however, not even that of the U.S. will save Britain."

Iron From Beaches

ROME, September 7.—Iron ore from the sands of certain Italian beaches will be produced by a special process. Large scale exploitation of this resources has already started on the beaches of Foggia Province, on the Adriatic. Machines which magnetically separate the ore from the sand are producing several tons of ore daily from this region.

KING CLUB DEFEATS Y.C.A.C. NINE BY 8-5

Ladies Kitten Ball Squad Loses to Bay City Club Veterans

The King Club of Tokyo stopped the winning streak of the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club baseball team at six consecutive games by taking an 8 to 5 decision from the port city players at the Y.C. and A.C. grounds Sunday afternoon.

The losers had a 5 to 0 lead at the end of the third inning but a disastrous fourth canto saw the score tied. The men from the capital gained a 7 to 5 advantage in the fifth and then made another point in the eighth to complete the scoring.

The Y.C. and A.C. nine and the King Club squad made seven hits, but the latter bunched theirs and were aided by the former's miscues at critical stages to make more runs.

Home Team Leads

After a scoreless first inning the home team gained the lead in the initial half of the second by bringing across one run. Da Silva started off with a single past short, and Kipp followed with a safety over third. Then Koch worked the pitcher for a walk and this filled the bases. The next batter went down swinging, and da Silva was forced at the plate when the following batsman grounded to the infield. However, Kipp completed the circuit on a miscue before the side was retired.

The Y.C. and A.C.'s big inning was the third, when four players crossed the plate. The fireworks started with one away, Haum slashing the ball into leftfield for a single. Harriss was given a free ticket to first, and then da Silva poled out a long hit into rightfield to bring in Haum and send Harriss to third. Da Silva then stole second. Kipp came through with a sacrifice hit which brought in Harriss and pushed da Silva to third. Kipp also was safe when the opposition tried to catch Harriss at the plate, and then the former stole second on the next pitch.

The ensuing batter struck out, but H. Fernandes singled to score da Silva and send Kipp to third. The latter stole home soon after for the fourth run of the inning giving the Y.C. and A.C. a 5 to 0 advantage.

This comfortable margin was wiped out in the next inning when the King Club players knotted the count on five hits and a costly infield error. Three successive hits by Iwata, Sakairi and Nakajima were followed by a miscue. Then Mitsui and Hiyoki also got safeties before the side was retired.

Harriss replaced Kipp on the mound in the fifth, but two bobbles and a hit by Iwata chased in another two runs for the King Club. The Tokyo squad got its last run in the eighth when Yoshida got a walk, stole second and third, and then completed the circuit as one of his teammates grounded out.

Kipp, Iwata and Hiyoki shared batting honors with each obtaining two hits in three official trips to the plate, while both da Silva ad Nakajima got two for four.

'Ojiisans' Beat Ladies

In a bitterly contested softball game prior to the baseball tilt the club veterans beat the Y.C. and A.C. ladies' kittenball squad by 5 to 4 in a regulation seven-inning tilt.

With the losers having to treat the winners to a dinner, both teams fought hard and played good softball. Umpire Mort Cooke had his eagle eye functioning perfectly for he gave all decisions correctly. He apparently realized only too well that any bad calls would have resulted in his being given a rough time by the victims of a poor decision.

The "ojiisans" start, off nicely with a 4 to 0 advantage. However, the girls staged a good rally in the latter hlaf of the third to score three runs and reduce their deficit to only a single point.

Another run by the ladies in the fifth frame tied the score, but the hard pressed veterans managed to gain one point in the sixth to take the lead again, 6 to 5. The "ojiisans" hung on grimly to their slim margin until the end to eke out a nerve-straining victory, after which they made a beeline for the bar to get a much needed drink.

The hosts at the dinner will be Miss L. Andreis, Mrs. I. Brigel, Miss M. da Costa, Miss J. Darbier, Mrs. J. Koch, Miss H. Lord, Miss T. Planas and Miss M. Prohaska, while the guests will include J. Blum, A. Boixo, C. Ettele, G. W. Gorman, C. Heseltine, P. H. Kipp, H. B. Street and W. A. Tomlinson.

CLUB LAWN BOWLS EVENTS PROGRESSING

Center of Attention Was Finals Of Ladies Handicap Singles

Favored with another fine weekend, play in the various events of the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club lawn bowls tournament made good progress on Saturday and Sunday, with all the matches attracting many spectators.

The center of attention for bowling enthusiasts on Saturday afternoon was the finals of the ladies' handicap singles between Mrs. Julia Koch and Miss Teresita Planas, which was won by the former, 22 to 12. Mrs. Koch, who took up lawn bowls only this year and had a handicap of plus six, played very well. Miss Planas, winner of the event for the past two years, also showed good form but found her handicap of minus six, which gave her opponent a twelve points advantage, too much to overcome.

Canadian Quartet Wins

The Canadian quartet of G. E. Beatty, S. Healey, B. G. Ryan and C. Heseltine (skip) had a great weekend. On Saturday afternoon they defeated the Portuguese four of G. H. de Costa, V. Rangel, G. A. de Silva and E. I. de Silva (skip), 24 to 14, to advance to the semi-finals in the upper half of the draw.

The Canadian squad also has a good chance to make the semi-finals in the lower half of the draw. On Sunday afternoon the Canucks played the Continentals and held a 19 to 8 lead after 16 ends when play was called on account of darkness. It is expected that the remaining five ends will be played sometime this week. The Canadian team was the same as on Saturday, while the Continentals were Miss T. Planas, D. Dentici, E. Dentici and K. F. Wiersum (skip).

The Americans also advanced to the semi-finals on Saturday afternoon with a 30 to 12 victory over the Swiss contingent. Representing the U.S.A. were J. Pennybacker, J. Blum, H. B. Street and R. J. Hill (Skip), and the opposition consisted of H. Banziger Dr. M. Weidenmann, S. Weil and A. A. Weiss (skip).

The Continentals were in great form on Sunday morning when they beat the Born-in-Japan contingent by 23 to 8. The winning team was the same that played the Canadians in the afternoon, and the B-I-J four was made up of F. J. da Silva, F. R. Harriss, S. Stepens and P. H. Lord (skip).

Although each of the eight teams in the club's international tournament has two chances to win the event, only four remain in the running. The English, Swiss and Portuguese teams have been beaten twice to be eliminated, while the Scottish squad has had to default due to a number of their players having left recently. The Americans and Canadians remain unbeaten, while the Continentals and the B.-I-J have both lost once.

Kipp in Semi-Finals

P. H. Kipp advanced to the semi-finals of the men's handicap singles on Sunday morning with a 21 to 11 win over C. Fernandes. The victor started at scratch while his opponent had a plus five handicap. Kipp will now meet K. F. Wiersum (minus ten) to see who will play against A. A. F. Shearer (minus nine) in the finals for the prize awarded annually by the American Association of Yokohama.

G. E. Beatty and P. H. Lord (minus ten) reached the semi-finals of the men's handicap doubles on Sunday afternoon by downing G. H. da Costa and J. A. da Costa (plus five), 21 to 12. The winners will now meet Dr. M. Weidenmann and A. A. Weiss (plus three) for the right to fight it out with C. V. Grant and R. G. Hill (scratch) in the finals. Grant and Hill received a walkover in the semi-finals from H. B. Street, and F. R. Devin (minus five) as Devin sailed for the United States recently.

Weekend results were as follows:

Ladies' Handicap Singles

Mrs. J. Koch (plus six) beat Miss T. Planas (minus six) by 22 to 12 (finals).

International

Canada beat Portugal by 24 to 14.
America beat Switzerland by 30 to 12.
Continent beat Born-in-Japan by 23 to 8.
Canada leads Continent by 19 to 8 (16 ends).

Men's Handicap Singles

P. H. Kipp (scratch) beat C. Fernandes (plus five) by 21 to 11 (quarter-finals).

Men's Handicap Doubles

G. E. Beatty and P. H. Lord (minus ten) beat G. H. da Costa and J. M. da Costa (plus five) by 21 to 12 (quarter-finals).

WOMEN GOLFERS ENTER TOURNEY SEMI-FINALS

American Ladies' Championship Now Under Way in Massachusetts

MURDER OF IRANIANS BY REDS CONFIRMED

New York Tabloid Reports 37 Civilians of Tabriz and Sendjan Executed

Transocean

NEW YORK, September 9.—The murder of 37 Iranian civilians by Bolshevik troops at Tabriz and Sendjan was confirmed by the Sunday News in a report from Teheran.

The report in question adds that also at other places occupied by the Soviets numerous execution of anti-Bolshevik citizens of Iran had taken place. According to the same New York newspaper fugitives arriving in Teheran had reported that in all towns occupied by the Soviets the burgomasters, police chiefs and other officials had been arrested, from which time on nothing more had ever been heard or seen of them.

Meanwhile the British military authorities were absolutely powerless against these brutal measures of their allies and thus tried to give them semblance of right.

The unfortunate population of this country like their Government had trusted the Anglo-Bolshevik promises of peaceful settlement are now fleeing to the mountains or to Teheran, hoping to a find safety in their capital.

ITALIAN ADMINISTRATION TAKES OVER CROAT COAST

Military Occupation Is to Prevent Any Surprise Action From Sea

Transocean

MILAN, September 9.—The Croat section of the Adriatic coast, running from Ogalin to Hostar, has now also been placed under a special Italian administration in accordance with an agreement between Rome and Agram, it was revealed here today. This measure is to prevent any surprise action from the sea.

The administration of the Croat coast is headed by Italian General Ambrosio, Commander of the Second Army. The Croat Commissar for Civilian Administration, Dr. Andreas Karcic, will collaborate with him. The troops of this section will be under Italian command for tactical reasons.

General Ambrosio has ordered the population to surrender all arms within 48 hours. Traffic will be restricted in this area.

It was emphasized that this measure is only of temporary character.

INTERPORT GAMES SET THIS WEEKEND

Y.C.A.C. Baseball and Ladies' Softball Teams Going To Kansai Friday

The Yokohama Country and Athletic Club's baseball and ladies' softball teams will travel down to the Kansai on Friday to defend their interport laurels on Saturday against the Kobe Regatta and Athletic Club's nines at the Kobe Recreation Grounds.

The ladies' softball interport will get under way at 10 a.m. and the baseball fixture will commence at 2:30 p.m.

The Yokohama kittenball players will be the guests of their Kobe rivals at a softball interport tiffin to be held at the K.R. and A.C. clubhouse after the game. It will be a mixed affair. In the evening the club will be the scene of an informal stag baseball interport dinner which is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m.

Close Game Predicted

The baseball interport is expected to be a close and hard fought game, with the dopesters predicting that both teams have a 50-50 chance of winning. The Y.C. and A.C.'s prospects of retaining interport honors looked very bright earlier this season, but with Ray Devin and Ray Lewis having left for the United States a fortnight ago, and Pete Kipp, Lou Haum and Henry Fernandes unable to make the trip to Kobe, the Kanto squad's supporters are not as cheerful now.

The Yokohama nine includes three seasoned veterans, while the remainder have yet to be tested under interport fire. However, the former are expected to be a steadying influence to the latter, who have shown up well in general during games this season. The club won six in a row until they were stopped last Sunday in the thirteenth game of the year.

Exactly half of the 12 men on the Kobe squad will be freshmen interporters on Saturday, but three members were playing in these annual tilts more than a decade ago. The other trio has played in one or more interports. With the younger players reported to have plenty of natural ability merely lacking experience, it is expected the K.R. and A.C. team will give the Y.C. and A.C. nine plenty of opposition.

The Yokohama ladies are favored to win their softball tilt against their inter-city rivals. The Kanto girls gained a 23 to 0 victory last year, and have had many games this season with and against the male members of the Y.C. and A.C. In their four games with the not so old "ojiisans" they managed to break even, and that has boosted their stock considerably.

Kansai Softballers Strong

However, the Kobe softballers are quite a bit stronger than last year, according to reports, and are expected to give the Yokohama players a much harder fight than in 1940. Besides, anything can happen in an interport as heavy favorites have learned to regret many a time, and the home team fans believe their girls have a fair chance of bringing home the bacon.

Saturday's baseball interport will be the 42nd of the series which commenced in 1896. There were no games in 1918, 1923, 1938 and 1940, the last two times because Kobe could not make up a team to invade Yokohama. The K.R. and A.C. has won 24 times, while the Y.C. and A.C. has gained 16 victories. The game in 1936 was a three-all draw, being called on account of darkness. The Y.C. and A.C. has not been beaten since 1932.

The softball interport made its debut in 1939, the K.R. and A.C. winning in Kobe by 15 to 6. With the Y.C. and A.C. having won last year, the series is now tied at one-all.

The Y.C. and A.C. line-ups are as follows:

Baseball

F. R. Harriss, captain and pitcher. Played his first interport in 1927 and has seen action in every one since then. A fine all-round player who has been one of the mainstays of the club's ball teams for 14 years.

F. da Rosa, catcher, will be taking part in his first interport. Has not played much behind the plate this season but knows the position well, having been a member of the Yokohama Sport Club nine before joining the Y.C. and A.C. this year.

F. J. da Silva, first base, is a veteran interporter who will be remembered by oldtimers as a star pitcher. A polished firstsacker who also hits hard and often.

E. Eymard, second-base, is a young player who will be making his interport debut. A fast and promising infielder who has shown up well in the field and at bat.

J. Koch, third base. Although this will be his first interport he is one of the best and most experienced members of the team. A capable player who took up the game nearly a score of years ago.

C. Fernandes, shortstop, will also be making his bow in interport baseball. A steady player with a good arm.

S. G. Bielous, leftfield, will be taking part in his first interport but has played for several years. A sound fielder who has come through with hits in the pinches.

L. A. M. Frank, centerfield. Also playing in his initial interport. He covers a lot of territory and has improved greatly in batting.

J. M. da Costa, rightfield, a former Kobeite who will be donning a Y.C. and A.C. uniform in his first interport. Young and fast with a strong arm, as well as a fair hitter.

Ladies' Softball

Miss T. Planas, pitcher, is an all-round athlete who has done well in both previous interports and will no doubt repeat again this year.

Miss M. da Costa, catcher, has only recently taken over the berth behind the plate but has done very well in this position. Is fast on the bases and has a good throw.

Miss H. Lord, firstbase, covers the sack in the fine style and is a hard hitter.

Mrs. J. Koch, second base, is very promising in her first season at this sport. Fields well and has a good eye.

Miss M. Stevens, third base, has a grand whip to first and to a strong hitter. Plays a fine game both offensively and defensively.

Miss M. Prohaska, shortstop, is a sound fielder with an accurate throw. Knows the game well and is expected to be at her best in the interport.

Miss E. Papendieck, leftfield. An enthusiastic and hard worker who has made much progress in her first season.

Miss L. Andreis, centerfield. One of the hardest hitters on the team who also plays well in the field.

In First Interport

Miss G. Satchell, rightfield, will be taking part in her first interport. Bats and fields left-handed, and is the only southpaw on the team. Keen player who has done well for her season.

The Kobe baseball squad will consist of W. S. Baikie, A. Bruggemann, C. Grossman, H. Grossman, E. Jungers, O. Jungers, A. Lopez, O. Lopez, F. Kawasjee, R. Mehta, H. Oberlein and F. Rodriguez, Jr.

Oberlein will be remembered by many Yokohama residents as the ace hurler of the Y.C. and A.C. about 10 years ago. He will probably take on the hurling assignment against his former teammates. "Pinky" Jungers is another veteran who is noted for his prowess at bat. The Lopez brothers are also no newcomers to interport baseball, which also applies to Mehta. H. Grossman will play against the Y.C. and A.C. for the second time.

Baikie, Bruggemann, C. Grossman, O. Jungers, Kawasjee and Rodriguez will be making their interport debut, but are reported to be good players who can be depended on to make a fine showing in the big game of the year.

The K.R. and A.C. ladies' softball team will probably include the following::

Mrs. L. Hudson, p.; Miss M. Mehta, c.; Miss J. Kawasjee, 1b.; Mrs. E. Guterres, 2b.; Miss C. da Costa, 3b.; Mrs. I. Brigel, ss.; Miss M. Smith, lf.; Miss L. Carmona, cf. Miss K. Obata, rf.; Miss S. Rodriguez and Miss A. Rodriguez, outfielders.

Mrs. Hudson, formerly Miss Leah Jungers, is reported to have lots of speed in her deliveries, while Miss Mehta is a steady backstop. The infield is a sound and well-balanced one while the outfield includes some players who are reliable fielders.

The Kobe girls have been unfortunate in not having had many games this season, while the Yokohama players have, which gives the latter a considerable advantage. However, the K.R. and A.C. line-up looks quite strong on paper, and if the squad has a good day it may upset the favored Y.C. and A.C. team.

Yoshio Kubuki, Kokomo Joe for Short, Burning 'Em Up in Pacific Horse Racing

I.N.S.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 16.—Adding an international flavor to this Summer's California fair circuit today is Yoshio Kubuki, Japanese boy jockey. Yoshio booted them home at the Pleasanton track with a total of ten wins during his limited riding career.

The boys in the jockey room had trouble remembering Yoshio Kubuki's name, so they shortened it up to just plain "Kokomo Joe," a monicker to which he answers with an infectious smile.

Yoshio is 19 and weighs 95 pounds and is the son of a Seattle vegetable merchant. He never saw a horse race until last Winter at Santa Anita, where he had gone to visit his cousin. The next morning he asked for "a job to guide the horse," as he puts it.

Charley Brown gave Yoshio his first mount at Caliente. The horse was a stopper, finished well out of the money. Not wishing to discourage Yoshio, Brown told the boy he did all right.

"The horse was merely short," Brown told him in race track jargon.

Yoshio dismounted, looked the horse over from head to tail, and said:

"Look long enough to me. Excuse, please; maybe you just want to make Yoshio feel happy.

Since then Yoshio has improved by leaps and bounds. Brown opines that after a couple of months around the half-milers of the fair circuit the boy will come to Tanforan this fall and be a sensation.

"I wonder why more Japanese boys do not try their hand at riding," says Brown. "Physically, they're built just right to sit on a horse, and few of them are troubled making weight."

One of Yoshi's best boosters is Eddie Thomas, the Pleasanton starter.

"That boy hasn't a nerve in his body," says Eddie. "He's no trouble at the gate at all. Temperamentally, he has what it takes. Kokomo Joe never gets mad, never gets excited."

What of the Rialto?

the Meijiza. The program is scheduled to be announced next week.

Commencing September 29 and continuing to October 24, a program of three dramas of different types will be presented at the Yurakuza by Kenichiro Enomoto and his company of comedians, who are now playing in Kyoto. Of guest performers who will collaborate with Enoken in starring roles are Akira Matsudaira, Ranko Yedogawa, Tsuneko Shiba and Kaoru Tachibana. "Atarashiki Shingun" (The New March), a eight-act drama by Yusaku Yamagata, will be used as the curtain raiser. This will be followed by "Kohan no Sairei" (The Festival on the Shores of a Lake), a series of the Japanese ballet, in which an all-star cast of the Toho dancing team will be the leading spirit. Consisting of 14 scenes, a lengthy comedy entitled "Enoken no Fukunokami" (Enoken, a Luck-Bringer), will conclude the program. The matinee will be given on Saturdays, Sundays and national holidays, commencing 12:30 p.m.

Kinuyo Tanaka, Hiroko Kawasaki, Kenji Oyama, Toshiaki Konoye and a group of the Ofuna studio stars of the Shochiku Motion Picture Company will appear in a stage play entitled "Futari no Aozora" (The Blue Sky of Us). It is part of the feature presentation in a special program to be given at the Open-Air Auditorium, Hibiya Park, at 6 p.m. Saturday under the auspices of the Tokyo Municipal Government, Aeronautical Society, Gramophone Record Producing Association and Shochiku Company in the nation-wide celebration of the aviation day.

Several additional programs relating to the aviation day are scheduled to be presented this weekend not only in the capital but also in the leading cities throughout the country. At the Hibiya Public Hall at 6 p.m. Monday, a program of motion pictures and lectures on air defense will be offered under the joint auspices of the Tokyo Municipal Government and Japan Eigasha. Seiichiro Yasui and Lieutenant-Colonel Misoshi Namba will be the lecturers. Five cultural pictures, including "Seibihei" (the Standing Army) and "Kaigun Kushu Butai" (the Naval Raiding Squadron), will be shown.

The other cities which will celebrate the aviation day with programs of motion pictures and music are Kyoto, Otaru and Saga (today); Toyohashi, Kobe, Fukuoka, and Hiroshima (Friday); Sapporo, Fukuchiyama, Okayama, Nagoya, Osaka and Fito (Saturday); Kyoto (Sunday) and Kushiro (Monday).

The Takarazuka Theatrical Company will hold four extra performances on September 20 to raise the fund for the construction of an army plane. For the purpose, the current program at the Toho Gekijo will be used with the voluntary participation of the Geijutsuza dramatic group headed by Yaeko Mizutani. The Yurakuza also will present two plays out of the current bill at 11 a.m. The third program will be at the Nippon Gekijo, which will open at 9 a.m. to present movies and dances. The Hibiya Eiga Gekijo will open at 9 a.m. for a gathering of girls' school students. Several newsreels and "Atarashiki Tsubasa" (the New Wings), a cultural film, and Men With Wings will be exhibited. The box office returns will be donated to the fund for the warplane construction.

In the case of the Shochiku houses, three performances are scheduled to be given to collect funds for the construction of "Haiyugo" (Wings of Actors), a warplane. They are the Mcijiza by the Shimpa dramatic at 11 a.m. on September 21; the Kabukiza by a group of Kabuki players headed by Kichiyemon Nakamura at 11 a.m. on September 21, and the Kokusai Gekijo by Kikugoro Onoye and Ennosuke Ichikawa at 12 noon on September 24-26.

A party of the popular artists of the Columbia Gramophone Company will leave Tokyo on September 25 for French Indo-China to entertain Japanese soldiers there, where they will stay for two months. Akiko Kikuchi, Yukiko Suganuma, Akira Sasaki and Toyohisa Okamoto are the leading members.

Baku Ishii, who has been active in the stage dance, will start a new activity with members of his own dance school in playing at theaters as a stage attraction.

Gentoku Kameya, Tomiko Kimura, Kazuyo Oshima, Hideshi Hojo and Ryuichiro Yagi, playwrights of note, have been appointed editorial staff members of the Kokumin Engeki, a monthly theatrical magazine, after three magazines, namely, the Chuo Engeki, Butai and Shin Engeki, were reduced to the one publication under the name as above referred to.

Kotaro Bando, who retired from the Shimokamo studio of the Shochiku Motion Picture Company in Kyoto early this summer, and organized a company of stage players, is planning to make his first performance in the capital next month. Those who will support him include Toshiko Iizuka, Reiko Mishima, Masao Hori and Kinnosuke Hayama, formerly silver screen stars.

'Edison, the Man' Enters 2nd Week

talking machine Tracy recorded "Mary had a little lamb . . ." and played it back.

One of the early chalk telephones, on which the user had to turn a handle continuously to make it work, was recreated and hung on the laboratory wall. Edison is credited with being the first ever to say "Hello" on the telephone. Before that, users would say, "Are you ready?" Today, everyone uses the "hello" greeting to start a conversation.

Six Kinds of Light

Duplicated for the laboratory also were six different styles of Edison's electric lights, all made to either fade or glow brightly according to actual facts. They were made by studio glass blowers and electricians from photographs and without models, yet they are duplicates of the real ones now in existence. Edison was seeking a low resistance light and the studio replicas, like the originals, stood only six to 10 volts as compared with the 110 volts universally used today.

The studio built a hand vacuum pump of the 1870 period which Edison used in perfecting his light. They also built a mercury pump through which Edison finally achieved a perfect vacuum. In real life Edison borrowed one from Princeton University.

Studio technicians also had to provide dozens of different kinds of filaments for the light. Incidentally, Edison was the first man ever to use the word "filament." He invented the word as he invented the light. Edison tried nine thousand different items as filaments before he got the right one. It was ordinary sewing thread, impregnated in a muffle furnace (reproduced for another set) with carbon. They tried 65 before they got one that didn't break. This one burned steadily for 40 hours ending on October 21, 1879, and Edison knew he had the right one. He began then preparing to light the city of New York with electricity.

GERMANS LIQUIDATED ALMOST 2 MILLIONS

Suffer Torture and Death While In Russia, Charges Berlin Evening Paper

Transocean

BERLIN, September 11.—The largest part of 2,000,000 Germans—by which figure the number of Germans decreased in Soviet Russia during the past decade—was "liquidated" by the Bolshevists, according to a charge made by the evening press yesterday.

In this connection, the Berlin press links it up with the announcement of the Soviet decision to deport roughly 400,000 Volga Germans to Siberia.

The Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung writes: "Since Soviet statistics for 1940 record the total number of Germans in the Soviet Union at 1,400,000 and since in the same area 2,500,000 lived before the World War, even if emigration to the United States is taken into consideration, the terrible fate of the Germans in the Volga and Black Sea regions is becoming apparent.

"The Volga republic—according to the latest Soviet statistics of 1940—had a population of 605,000 inhabitants, 66.4 per cent of whom were Germans. It can be safely assumed that approximately 400,000 Germans are affected by the barbaric act of resettling, which was decreed on the grounds—which are untrue—that there are dangerous elements and saboteurs among these German peasants who might endanger the Soviet defense," the paper adds.

The Berliner Lokalangzeiger also declares that originally a total of 2,500,000 Germans lived in the Soviet Union. "The ill-treatment of Volga Germans during the past 20 years has been so brutal that a few who succeeded in escaping from Russia sought new homes for themselves in South American countries. The largest part of 2,000,000, however, has been liquidated by Bolshevism. What Bolshevism has done to the Volga Germans is a tale of misery, terror and painful death," it asserts.

The Angriff speaks of the "plan to murder 400,000 Germans"—which is to be carried out now by the resettlement of the Volga Germans in Siberia. "During the past two decades of the Bolshevist reign of terror, more than 2,000,000 Germans were murdered in Russia and the remnants of 400,000 Volga Germans are now to be gathered together and sent on the road to annihilation.

"It is sadistic derision if Stalin speaks of the fertile soil which will be placed at the disposal of the Volga Germans. The soil to which Stalin in cold blooded cruelty will send these Germans is not of this world. These 400,000 human beings left to Bolshevist chaos are being exposed to a fate which the greatest murderer of all times has prepared for them," the journal says in conclusion.

FRENCHMEN ESCAPE FALSE

British Refute Sailors From Syria Make Dash to Join De Gaulle

Transocean

VICHY, September 9.—British reports from Cairo asserting that 120 French sailors while embarking at Beirut jumped overboard the steamer Horizon in order to join the de Gaullist forces were branded by official quarters here as "absolutely ridiculous."

It is pointed out that French soldiers in Syria being transported home, according to agreements signed at St. Jean d'Arc, are each given an opportunity to decide whether they desire to return home or enter the service of the dissidents.

AVERAGE AMERICAN DISLIKES RED AMITY

Argentine Paper Prints U.S. Writer's Views on Anglo-Saxons Idyl With Russia

Transocean

BUENOS AIRES, September 8.—Under the headline "Will it be possible to bring into harmony after the war the interests of the United States, Britain and Russia?" the illustrated weekly Ahora published an article from Washington by James Harrison.

The writer declared that the average American was not ready to accept this idyl between Anglo-Saxon powers and that country which not so long ago was described by the White House as a red beast.

The Americans certainly wanted to see Britain triumphant but not a victorious Bolshevism, he added.

With reference to the attempts made in the United States and Britain to justify the alliance with Moscow, Mr. Harrison remarked "Their motivation cannot convince unbelievers. If in case of an alliance with Soviet Russia they desist from taking into consideration ideologies, how then can the United States and Great Britain speak of a holy war of the Democracies against Nazi barbarism?"

The joint action of Britain and the Soviet Union against Iran further increased this dissatisfaction, the writer continued, which is spreading even among military circles. This attack on Iran taking place two weeks after the Roosevelt-Churchill conference could hardly be brought into harmony with the "high ideals" of this meeting. Certain Washington circles even emphasized that this attack had been hatched in the course of the Atlantic meeting, he stated.

Quite apart from this, unrest is spreading in the United States, according to Mr. Harrison. Would this perhaps be able to affect President Roosevelt's plans? he asked. His answer to this query is that this was improbable despite the fact that the world had experienced stranger things in the past.

NEW SYNTHETIC RUBBER ANNOUNCED BY DUPONTS

Is of Neopreme Type, Resistant To Freezing and Oil, Chemists State

United Press

ATLANTIC CITY, September 14.—Dupont chemists yesterday revealed at a session of the American Chemical Society a new type of neopreme synthetic rubber which is "freeze resistant" as well as oil resistant and therefore is valuable in the automobile and airplane industries.

The chemists also announced that both natural and synthetic rubber can be made to conduct electricity if desired.

M.P. Coe, chemist for the United States Rubber Company, said that reclaimed rubber furnishes 30 per cent of total crude consumption.

The Rubber Reclaimers Association estimated that the nation's reclaiming capaacity was 300,000 tons on a seven day production basis and therefore could furnish a much greater percentage of total crude consumption. However, the association noted that reclaimed rubber was not equal to natural rubber for some uses, notably tire treads.

TWO EVENTS FIXED AT Y.C.A.C. GROUNDS

Baseball and Ladies Softball Teams in Kansai for Interport Games

With both the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club's baseball and ladies' softball teams traveling down to Kobe for the annual interport games against the Kobe Regatta and Athletic Club on Saturday, sports activities at the Y.C. and A.C. this weekend will consist of cricket and lawn bowls matches.

As the entry lists for the club's fall tennis tournaments will close on Sunday evening, it is expected the courts will become active again after the summer lull, with players getting a week-end's practice before the tourneys get under way.

Embassy Players Here

On Saturday afternoon the British Embassy cricket team will play against the Y.C. and A.C. eleven at the club grounds from 2 p.m. sharp. With the diplomats having made arrangements to reach the port city early, the game will be able to get under way on time.

A number of lawn bowls matches will also be played over the week-end and on Tuesday, a national holiday.

Miss J. da Silva and P. H. Kipp (scratch) will meet Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Lloyd (minus seven) in the quarter-finals of the mixed doubles handicap on Saturday at 3 p.m. The winners will meet Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Russell (minus three) in the semi-finals of the this event.

On Sunday at 10 a.m. K.F. Wiersum (minus ten) will play against P. H. Kipp (scratch) in the semi-finals of the men's handicap singles. The victor will meet A. A. F. Shearer (minus nine) in the finals.

The Americans and the Canadians will play an international tourney match on Sunday at 10 a.m. The former will probably consist of J. Pennybacker, J. Blum, H. B. Street and R. G. Hill (skip), while the latter four will be made up of G. E. Beatty, S. Healey, R. G. Ryan and C. Heseltine (skip).

On Sunday afternoon the first of a two-out-of-three series for the men's championship doubles will be played at 3 p.m. The finals will be between G. E. Beatty and P. H. Lord, last year's winners, against E. Dentici and K. F. Wiersum, champions in 1937.

On Tuesday morning Dr. W. Weidenmann and A. A. Weiss (plus three) will probably meet G. E. Beatty and P. H. Lord (minus ten) in the semi-finals of the men's handicap doubles. The winners are to play C. V. Grant and R. G. Hill (scratch) in the finals.

The American four is scheduled to oppose the Born-in-Japan team on Tuesday at 3 p.m. The former will probably consist of the same players who are meeting the Canadians on Sunday morning, while it is expected the B-I-J squad will include F. J. da Silva, F. R. Harriss, S. Stephens and P. H. Lord (skip).

A summary of the program follows:

Cricket

British Embassy: A. H. Ballantyne, G. H. D. Bell, A. E. Bell, R. A. P. Craigie, W. Eckersley, P. H. Gore-Booth, H. C. Hainworth, B. Kuskie, G. W. Makepeace, J. R. Mason, F. H. Moysey, M. J. K. Stark and Major E. V. Thomas.

Y.C. and A.C.: G. E. Beatty, F. J. Bond, W. R. Bull, G. W. Gorman, G. L. King, P. H. Lord, G. Meadows, M. Parsram, M. L. Russell, J. A. Sargeant and S. Stephens (captain).

Match at 2 p.m. Saturday.

Lawn Bowls

Miss J. da Silva and P. H. Kipp (scratch) versus Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Lloyd (minus seven) in the mixed doubles handicap at 3 p.m. Saturday (quarter-finals)

America versus Canada in the international tourney at 10 a.m. Sunday.

K. F. Wiersum (minus ten) versus P. H. Kipp (scratch) in the men's handicap singles at 10 a.m. Sunday (semi-finals).

G. E. Beatty and P. H. Lord versus E. Dentici and K. F. Wiersum in the finals of the men's championship doubles. First match of two-out-of-three series, at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Dr. M. Weidenmann and A. A. Weiss (plus three) versus G. E. Beatty and P. H. Lord (minus ten) in the men's handicap doubles at 10 a.m. Tuesday (semi-finals).

America versus Born-in-Japan in an international tourney match at 3 p.m. Tuesday.

ARGENTINES GO TO U.S.

Mission Will Be Sent by Army and Navy to Purchase Supplies

Transocean

BUENOS AIRES, September 12—An Argentine delegation of leading men of the Army and the Navy will be sent to the United States, the Argentine Foreign Minister declared at yesterday's press conference.

The delegation's task will be to negotiate in the United States about the purchase of war material as well as to discuss questions of joint defense.

The decision to send a military delegation to the United States was made at yesterday's session of the Cabinet.

BELGRADE, September 12.—The Serbian government has been allowed to put up an army of 16,000 men as well as a corresponding number of gendarmes and frontier guards, the Belgrade radio announced today. Premier Nedic said that applicants for the army were three times as many as could be taken on.

Secret Formula Smuggled Out of Germany May Aid U.S. in Solving Aluminum Dearth

I.N.S.

INDIANAPOLIS, Indiana, September 5.—A secret aluminum flux formula, smuggled out of Germany three months ago, has been offered to the OPM by an Indianapolis chemist as an aid in solving the nation's critical aluminum shortage.

The offer was made by H. E. Von Grimmenstein who said he has manufactured quantities of the flux and tested it thoroughly.

Developed by a German professor, the formula was smuggled to Von Grimmenstein after being sent in code to Sweden and then clearing the British censors in Jerusalem.

He asserted that use of the formula—an operation costing less than five cents per 100 pounds of metal—would improve the quality of aluminum, help to eliminate waste, clear it of obnoxious chlorides and permit the wider use of junk aluminum for airplane manufacture.

Von Grimmenstein pointed out that one of the chief bottlenecks in the production of aluminum is the inability to use the junk metal now being collected in a nation-wide drive for airplane parts.

The German flux, he said, will cut down power consumption by making aluminum free running at 200 degrees less than the temperature now in general use; will permit the making of more perfect thin castings; save 50 per cent in machine time and give longer life to cutting tools; allow less shrinkage; permit smoother surfaces and saving polishing time, and quicken the entire operation without affecting the chemical analysis of the metal.

Von Grimmenstein, although of German ancestry, was born in Minnesota. His father served in the German Army and then with the Union troops during the Civil War. He expressed a willingness to cooperate in making the flux available to all aluminum-producing and defense industries.

REVISION IS MADE ON FORWARD PASS

Is Legal From Any Point Behind Scrimmage Line—1st Game October 8

The first big news of the on-rushing American football season in Japan came Wednesday when the Football Rules Committee of the Kanto Gaikyu Renmei (Intercollegiate Football League), announced an important revision of the forward pass rule starting this year.

This season, a forward pass will be legal from any point behind the line of scrimmage. In the past, a forward pass to be legal must have been thrown from a point not less than five yards behind the line of scrimmage.

According to the Chairmen of the Rules Committee, Kenkichi Oki, this change was adopted to encourage more forward passing and to speed up the game in general. Here in Japan, forward passing has sadly lagged in comparison to the other departments of the game. By this interpretation of the forward pass, the Committee believes it will lead to teams becoming pass conscious and at the same time, the natural speeding up of play will greatly contribute to the enjoyment of the spectators.

Also announced yesterday was the playing schedule for this season, the members of the 1941 Gaikyu Renmei and the officials.

The first game of the League will be played at the Korakuen stadium, Wednesday, October 8, and pits the defending champion Keio university against St. Paul's.

With the exception of a double-header at the Higashi Fushimi ground, the home of the Waseda eleven, on Sunday, October 19, all other games will be played at the Korakuen stadium. What should prove to be one of the "crucial" tilts will take place, Sunday, October 26 with Keio meeting Meiji.

The league season will be brought to a close on November 21 with the Waseda-Nichidai clash. However, it was also announced that non-league games and O.B. clashes would extend into December.

The League will again be presided by Ryozo Asano, who has headed the organization since its formation eight years ago. Professor Takizo Matsumoto of Meiji university is the managing-director of the League.

The Rules Committee will simultaneously act as the officiating boly at all games. They are: Chairman Kenkichi Oki, Motoyuki Inouye, Waseda; Masaoki Kajitani, Hosei; Haruo Kawashima, Waseda; Masanori Ban, Meiji; Takeo Nomura, Waseda; Tetsuo Sakaguchi, St. Paul's; Matsu Shimabukuro, St. Paul's; Shin Tamura, Keio; Fumio Saiki, Chuo; Masayuki Takamoto, Meiji; Ayao Tominaga, Meiji; Heichi Nouchi, Waseda; Seiji Machida, Meiji; Aito Nagai, Waseda; Jiro Hirasawa, Meiji; Tsunehiko Kasahara, Nichidai; Fusao Yamashita, Waseda; Hideo Fujima, Hosei; Akira Ogata, Keio; Mikio Yamada, Hosei.

The schedule follows:

Oct. 8—Keio versus St. Paul's.
" 9—Waseda versus Hosei.
" 19—Keio versus Hosei and Meiji vs. Nichidai.
" 22—St. Paul's versus Nichidai.
" 25—Waseda versus St. Paul's.
" 26—Keio versus Meiji.
" 31—Meiji versus Hosei.
Nov. 5—Keio versus Nichidai.
" 6—Waseda versus Meiji.
" 11—St. Paul's versus Hosei.
" 15—Meiji versus St. Paul's.
" 16—Keio versus Waseda and Hosei versus Nichidai.

NEW HIGHWAY IN U.S. TO LINK TWO COASTS

Pittsburgh Studying Plan for Road Extending From Atlantic to Pacific

I.N.S.

PITTSBURGH, September 5.—Delighted by the apparent success of Pennsylvania's proud super-highway, Pittsburgh's Chamber of Commerce is now boosting a proposal to extend the dream highway from coast to coast at an approximate cost of $500,000,000.

A five-man committee, headed by Edward Snodgrass, Jr., has been appointed to work solely on the Turnpike expansion problem. Other members include Richard K. Mellon, Joe C. Trees, Irwin D. Wolf, L. W. McIntyre and P. B. Reinhold.

Snodgrass explained that it was highly probable that some day the highway would be extended as far westward as Los Angeles, passing through 10 states. He added:

"We recognize it as essential that the extension should follow the route that would serve the most thickly-populated areas and where feeder-highways from major cities and industrial sections may intersect the super-highway from both north and south."

The special committee will first meet with Walter A. Jones, chairman of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission, for an exchange of ideas and information. It was under Jones that the present 160 miles of dream highway from Irwin to Middlesex became a reality. Chamber President Frank L. Duggan reported that Jones had already promised the cooperation of the Commission on the extension project.

The Committee will then seek an early conference with President Roosevelt and Vice-President Henry A. Wallace to request early Congressional action.

At present the committee is studying a proposal to operate the extended highway through authorization by President Roosevelt and Congress of a national authority, similar to the charter issued to the Authority for the Port of New York.

The Committee seeks to have the federal government shoulder 45 per cent of the estimated cost with the remainder to come from the 10 states through which the highway would be constructed. It was thought the states might be able to issue 25-year bonds at three per cent interest. This was the procedure followed by Pennsylvania in the construction of the present Turnpike.

The first step in the proposed extension, it was indicated by Snodgrass, would be the building of additional roadway from Irwin, the present western terminal of the dream highway, to either the West Virginia or Ohio border.

In discussing the routes most desirable for approval from Irwin, westward, a policy was outlined to consider the affect of the location on the nation as a whole, on the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, on the industrially-important Pittsburgh district and upon the Turnpike Commission as regards construction costs, traffic flow and income.

The Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce played an important part in the original planning for the recently-completed Turnpike. In 1933 a committee turned in a report which, in a very large part, was carried out in the actual construction of the dream roadway.

RED SUPPRESSION TALKED

Order May Come From Moscow to Halt U.S. Communist Activity

Transocean

NEW YORK, September 12.—Formal suppression of the Communist Party in the United States is to be expected, the magazine Newsweek said yesterday. This would presumably be done by a direct order from Moscow in order to render more easy President Roosevelt's efforts to send help to Soviet Russia.

It is said that a suggestion to this effect has been made to Josef Stalin by Harry L. Hopkins, President Roosevelt's personal representative.

DIMAGGIO MAY GET AS HIGH AS $60,000

Yankee Clipper Added 250,000 To Attendance Equalling $35,000 a Year

I.N.S.

NEW YORK, August 17.—How is your nervous system today? No Hangover. That's fine because we have a little shock for you. You recall, of course, that Babe Ruth's top salary with the Yanks was $80,000 a year and that was the highest salary ever paid a ball player.

Well, from a close friend of Joe DiMaggio's we learn that the Yankee Clipper is going to ask for the same amount provided he leads the league in hitting, runs batted in, runs scored and in homers.

Joe Will Try

We are not predicting that the Yankees will meet Joe's demands even if he succeeds in fulfilling his ambition to lead the league in all departments. But you can't blame a fellow for trying.

When Joe broke in with the Yanks he received a paltry $8,500 and his current contract reputedly calls for $35,000 which is more than enough to keep a large pack of wolves from the DiMaggio domicile.

But Joe is far from a simple country boy. In fact, he is a substantial businessman with a flourishing restaurant in San Francisco and he realizes his value as a drawing card fully as well as Babe Ruth.

Joe learned something while rolling up that record of hitting safely in 56 consecutive games. He saw crowds of 25,000 where normally not more than 10,0000 would have made the turnstile click. And he knew as well as anybody in the park that the fans turned out to see him hit.

The Yankees are smashing all attendance records this season despite the fact that they have made a joke of the American league pennant race.

The most conservative estimate we have heard among baseball men is that Joe has added at least 250,000 to the Yankee attendance this season. Translate this into cash and you will realize that Joe is a bargain for the Yanks at $35,000 a year. He would be reasonably paid this season even at $80,000.

Gentle Hint Expected

Baseball salaries are always based on past performances; not on future prospects. Therefore, when Joe starts to talk turkey over his next contract, all he has to do is point to his record and drops a gentle hint about attendance figures.

He probably won't get $80,000 but he surely will get $50,000 and may get as much as $60,000.

In any event, you may rest assured that the highest paid ball player in the game next season will be Joe Dimaggio of the New York Yankees.

Roosevelt-Churchill Declaration Discussed

not in the interest of the world and of their two countries that any large nation should be isolated or shut out from the means of making a decent living for itself and its people by its industry and enterprise. These were stated to be far-reaching changes.

Regarding the first difference, they intend now to enforce disarmament to the so-called guilty or aggressive nations by the joint force of the United States and Great Britain as well as of their associates and to effect and maintain by that same force "armed peace of the world" for some time to come. The realization of their purpose respecting this point depends entirely on their victory in the war and the maintenance of preponderant force after the war.

Second Difference

With regard to the so-called second difference, the fact should be recognized that they (the United States and Great Britain) seem at last to have come to realize to a certain extent the folly of their past policy of denying to give due considerations to the appropriate life conditions of the German nation and of the accumulating economic barriers and hindrances, so as to have exasperated that vigorous nation and have incited to better their conditions and thus to have created a sure cause of the present war.

In the said broadcast statement, Prime Minister Winston Churchill, referring to the Far Eastern question, declared that every effort would be made to secure a peaceful settlement. He also stated that the United States was laboring with infinite patience to arrive at a fair and amicable settlement which would give Japan the avowed assurances upon its legitimate interests. And, this, notwithstanding accumulation of facts, apparently betraying the enmity on the part of American statesmen to Japan, i.e. the denunciation of the Treaty of Commerce the freezing of Japanese assets, various military, naval or aerial preparations, various pro-Chungking measures, etc. He seems to lay stress on the so-called "legitimate interests." Does that sort of legistimism imply the insistence on the maintenance of the Nine-Power Treaty, as it is rigidly interpreted after the hitherto-held Anglo-Saxon fashion?

If the question is to be answered in the affirmative, one might ask the next question whether the denial to Japan, therein possibly involved, of the freedom of securing the attainment of its life conditions, in free accord with the Far Eastern continental authorities, is not incompatible with the new idea, held by Prime Minister Winston Churchill to have been definitely adopted by the two Anglo-Saxon Powers, not to obstruct the access of large or small nations to the means of making a decent living.

MORE WOMEN WORK IN DEFENSE PROGRAM

Miss Thelma McKelvey, Executive in OPM, Notes Openings Increase

I.N.S.

WASHINGTON, August 17.—If 1,000 workers—half of them women—will be needed by the Stratosphere Aircraft Corporation within the next six weeks, you can bet Thelma Mckelvey knows about it.

This pretty blonde woman, with large, shining brown eyes, holds down an important desk in the Office of Production Management and her title is taller than she is. She's the Special Assistant in the Labor Supply and Training Section of the Labor Division of the Office of Production Management.

When you get past the technicalities, the job settles down into work. Rapidly expanding defense industries need trained workers, hundreds and thousands at a time in some instances. They must have a supply of men and women to call on and the Training Section is out to assure this.

Part of Miss McKelvey's work includes field trips to see if the various government-established training agencies are pleasing the manufacturers and also if the manufacturers are stating their future needs soon enough to permit training of men and women for the jobs

More Women Employed

Miss McKelvey's special interest is watching the growing trend of employment of women in defense

"Women have been found satisfactory in virtually every kind of job ordinarily filled by men, but manufacturers are giving the men first consideration in employment, she said. "However, we've observed a trend towards the mass employment of women in industry, especially in such sections as Connecticut where the avilable manpower is being used up."

In a defense-bent country, the employment of women goes through three distinct stages, Miss McKelvey said. First, due to the increased buying power resulting from greater production, jobs open rapidly in fields traditionally held by women.

The second phase, in which women invade traditionally male jobs, comes when the wage level rises and there's an approaching or anticipated shortage of male labor. Then women are worked into light mass production operations, especially where dexterity, care and speed with a minimum of strength are required.

Third Phase of Cycle

The third phase of the cycle, she said, is to be found in Great Britain today where women are in jobs in trade, service, transportation and manufacturing—doing the heavy work that will relieve a man for other duties.

"Any existing attitudes against the employment of women would rapidly vanish if we were in a war, she said, "but as we're not, such prejudice still exists in places."

Miss McKelvey obtained her background information while working for the National Youth Administration and the Works Progress Administration and her special work, as she describes it, includes "helping plan and co-ordinate the activities of the recruiting, training and placement of defense labor, with my own responsibility being to watch the emergence of women in the defense industries and report on this."

NEW YORK, September 15.—After 16 scoreless innings those daffy Dodgers started knocking the ball all over the Cincinnati park today to crush the Reds and increase their National League lead to two full games.

When the game ended, it was so dark that occupants of the press box swore they could not see batters at the plate. Though Cincinnati's Bill McKechnie protested loudly, the umpires refused to call the game.

Pete Reiser started the seventeenth inning with a homer and before the Brooklyn club was retired they had collected five runs. Dolph Camilli, Lew Riggs and Arnold Owen contributed singles and the Reds helped out by throwing in a couple of errors and a wild pitch.

The final score of one of the wildest games in the major leagues this season was, 5-1.

Brooklyn now has twelve more games on its schedule but after one more battle with the Reds tomorrow they will start heading east to finish up their schedule with some softer clubs.

Brooklyn booted several opportunities to score. They nicked Paul Derringer, Joe Beggs and Jim Turner for 15 hits and also had the benefit of five Cincinnati errors. To Dodger hurlers, John Allen and Hugh Casey, held the Reds to seven hits.

Bill Herman, Brooklyn infielder, turned in four hits for the day but dot not figure in the seventeenth rally.

After the Dodgers had piled up a big lead in the 17th, the Reds made a desperate attempt to duplicate or better the feat but their rally was snapped after one runner crossed the plate.

No other teams in the senior circuit had games scheduled today. While the Dodgers are taking on Cincinnati again tomorrow, the second place St. Louis Cards tangle with the New York Giants.

In the American League, the New York Yanks recorded their 96th victory of the season by beating out the Cleveland Indians, 4-2. The Yanks have only nine more games on their schedule.

In winning, the Yanks were outhit, but they came through in the pinches with singles scores in the first, third, sixth and seventh inning. Vernon ("Lefty" Gomez was on the mound and recorded his fifteenth win of the season.

In the first inning, Tom Henrich knocked the ball out of the lot to turn in his 30th homer of the year.

Boston's Red Sox tightened their grip on second place by downing the Chicago White Sox, 6 to 2. Maurice Harris held the Chisox to five hits.

At Washington, the Senators rallied in the eighth to best the Detroit Tigers, 8 to 5. Emil Leonard, leading Senator hurler, was on the mound and turned in his 17th win of the season.

Cecil Travis, Senator infielder, connected with a single in the second inning and became the first player of the big league to make 200 hits this season.

The St. Louis Browns nosed out the Philadelphia Athletics, 4 to 3, in a 10-inning battle. Harland Clift scored the winning run.

VICHY TRADE RELATIONS WITH NEIGHBORS INCREASE

Steady Flow of Goods Exchange Between Belgium, Holland, Italy Up

Transocean

PARIS, September 11.—Trade relations between France and her neighbors during recent days have been increased and intensified.

Thus, a steady increase of goods exchange is noticeable between France, Belgium, and Holland. However, French imports from these countries are in excess of the exports which France sent them.

Goods exchange between France and Switzerland has struck an equilibrium and final clearing agreements have to be reckoned with.

French trade relations with Hungary and Italy have also developed satisfactorily.

Women's Golf Title Of America Copped By Mrs. B. H. Newell

BROOKLINE, Massachusetts, September 14.—Mrs. Betty Hicks Newell beat Miss Helen Sigel by five and three in the 36-hole final of the American women's golf championship yesterday. Mrs. Newell, who hails from Long Beach, California, was only one up at the end of the first round. This is the first time that she has won the title. Miss Sigel comes from Philadelphia.

MARE RACES COURSE TWICE FOR VICTORY

Throws Jockey at Gate in Edinburgh Turf to Round Tracks, Returns and Wins

Reuters

LONDON, September 14.—Although there was no outstanding event, two race meetings yesterday at Nottingham and Edinburgh had interesting points, with Gloaming making its first appearin a race since winning the Lincolnshire at the beginning of the season, while The Pale, champion sprinter of the North, was set to conceded weight up to four stone, less one pound.

At Nottingham, Gloaming failed dismally, finishing thirteenth in a field of sixteen. The Pale found its task too severe and was unplaced in the Edinburgh race.

Gloaming's outing was in the Trial Handicap over a mile course, which Major Cohen's Euransian won with Harry Wragg in the saddle. This was the beginning of a hat trick sequence for Wragg, whose mount carried eight stone nine pounds, only one other horse carrying more weight.

Wragg then took the Nottingham handicap on Mrs. Russell's Hamae, and the Cromwell Handicap on Lady Ralli's Westfell, both these being topweights with nine stone and eight stone eleven pounds respectively.

Ephraim Smith rode three winners at Edinburgh, but not in succession, although he finished second and third in the races after his first win, later taking the last two events on the program.

A feature of the Edinburgh meeting, apart from The Pale's performance, was the win by Sir Charles Hyde's Congo in the opening event. The horse threw his jockey at the gate, and ran on to complete the course. He then returned to the start and covered the course a second time to win the race.

BRITISH INTEREST UP IN LEAGUE CRICKET

Many Professionals Contribute To Stiff Competition as Priestley Cup Meets

Reuters

LONDON, September 14.—League cricket, owing to the large number of County professionals engaged in the present day, stole a good deal of the season's interest, both in league and Priestley Cup competitions.

The Priestley Cup final yesterday produced sensational cricket, Saltaire beating Undercliffe by 58 runs—102 to 44. Saltaire lost six wickets for 38, but rallied to pass the 100 mark.

Jacques, of Yorkshire County, took six of their wickets for 37. The Derbyshire County men, Copson and Pope, then bowled brilliantly, the former taking six for 30 and Pope four for 13.

Saltaire created a record by going through the season without a defeat in either competition, winning the last 18 games.

Seven years ago J.G.W. Davies, playing for Cambridge, bowled Donald Bradman for nothing, being the first player to dismiss the Australian in England for a duck. Yesterday Davies himself was bowled for a duck by Trevor Bailey, who was playing for Kent against a scratch team at Maidstone, making his first appearance for the County.

Tobacco and History

express himself in verse or prose. Thus Sir John Beaumont, Bt., in "The Metamorphosis of Tobacco," written in 1602:

Me let the sound of great tobacco praise
A pitch above those love-sick poets raise;
Let me adore with my thrice-happie pen
The sweet and sole delight of mortal men,
The cornucopia of all earthly pleasure,
Where bankrupt nature hath consumed her treasure;
A worthie plant springing from Floraes hand,
The blessed ofspring of an uncouth land.

Pipe, Pleasant Comforter

Therein may be discerned the statement of a theme that has been ephrased many times since then: to wit, that whereas a woman is but a woman, a good cigar is a smoke. It is put in another way by Charles Lamb, apostrophizing the weed to which he attempts to say farewell:

Sooty retainer to the vine,
Bacchus' black servant, Negro fine;
Sorcerer, that makes us dote upon
Thy begrimed complexion,
And for thy pernicious sake
More and greater oaths to break
Than reclaimed lovers take
'Gainst women: . . .

And here, is measured prose, unstinted praise from Bulwer Lytton. "The pipe," he said, "is a great soother, a pleasant comforter. Blue devils fly before its honest breath. It ripens the brain, it opens the heart, and the man who smokes thinks like a sage and acts like a Samaritan." Thackeray found his cigar one of the greatest creature comforts of his life—"a kind companion, a gentle stimulant, an amiable anodyne, a cementer of friendship."

And so we treasure tobacco even today. Two cigarettes in the dark. . . . One cigarette and one glass before the fire. . . . Or a pipe and a fishing rod on the bank of a stream, and none beside us singing in the wilderness.

BRITISH ARMY BEATS IRELAND SOCCERITES

35,000 at Belfast Watch Irish XI Lose to Smart Playing Soldiers

Reuters

LONDON, September 14.—The British Army's visit to Belfast to play an Irish XI featured the football program yesterday, and 30,000 enthusiasts saw a game in which Hagan helped the Army to win by scoring a hat-trick.

The final score was four goals to one, with Mercer netting the other army goal, and Martin tallying for Ireland.

Denis Compton, who scored a century for the army in cricket earlier, participted in the match and gave a magnificent display, again proving his worth at both games.

The Army team had eight English and three Scottish Internationals in the side, and led by two to one at half time. The army movements were better planned, and the cleverness was appreciated by the Irish spectators, who will have further chances to see the players in action, as they are engaging in a short tour of Ireland.

Goal Post Breaks

There was a remarkable happening in the Portsmouth-Aldershot game, which was abandoned 10 minutes from the end because the goal post broke when Black, one of the Cupholders' forwards, collided with it as a colleague equalised the scores. The game will be replayed.

Dixie Dean, famous former Everton star forward, appeared in an Army XI against Southampton and scored three goals.

Goals generally were plentiful and crowds again were large, London League matches averaging nearly 6,000, with 11,000 at Fulham, where Lewis, who scored five goals the previous week for Arsenal, had three today.

Dodds, Scottish International, scored three of Blackpool's 10 goals yesterday against Southport, the last five coming in as many minutes when Southport had only 10 men. Two Southport defenders unwittingly helped their opponents by deflecting the ball into their own goal.

Top scorers yesterday were Lee for York and Rowley for Manchester United, each getting four.

In Scotland the two teams of Glasgow Rangers retained their unbeaten records, while Clyde suffered the first reverse of the season when Celtic showed their old-time brilliance, while East Fife suffered their first defeat.

Results of matches yesterday were:

AXIS REPRESENTATIVES WILL AID GREEK BANKS

Germany and Italy Each Appoint Commissioners to Stimulate Finance

Transocean

ATHENS, September 12.—In order to support the note-issuing bank of Greece in fulfilling its currency tasks and thus to stimulate Greek business and industry and, above all, to facilitate payment transactions with abroad, the Germans and Italian Governments have decided that each appoint a commissioner for the Greek banking system.

Payment transactions with third powers will come under the jurisdiction of the Italian commissioner since Greece's foreign trade with these countries will be chiefly directed via Italian clearing accounts.

Clearings with Germany and countries controlled by Germany will be dealt with separately.

At the same time general banking control was introduced to assure the circulation of money without friction within Greece.

The Director of the Reichsbank, Paul Hahn, was appointed German German commissioner yesterday while the Italian commissioner is the Director of the Italian National Bank, Vittorio Forte.

AUSTRALIAN WAR COUNCIL STRUGGLES WITH FINANCE

Canberra Meeting Discusses Enormous Money Problems Of Commonwealth

Reuters

CANBERRA, September 14.—The meeting of the War Council is described by observers as a full dress rehearsal of the coming discussions of Australia's war-time finances. Besides A. W. Fadden, Prime Minister, and other Ministers, John Curtis and four other Labor members of the council, important bankers and economists were present.

The discussions ranged over the whole field of the war, including civil expenditure and problem of meeting these gigantic demands. The members also wrestled with the question of how far bank credits should be used.

Although no conclusions were reached the meeting threw considerable light on the enormous financial problems facing the Government when the next budget session is held.

SWEDEN ARRESTING REDS

Sufficient Evidence to Take in 3 or 4 Persons, Newspaper Says

Transocean

STOCKHOLM, September 12.—Further arrests of Communists are to take place in Goeteborg this week, according to the Goeteborgs Morgenpost.

There is sufficient evidence to hand for the arrest of three or four persons, including a man belonging to a seamen's union, the paper declares. The police authorities neither deny nor confirm these reports.

The arrests in question are to take place tomorrow.

FINNS WANT MORE FIGHT

Country's Socialists Vote for Continuation of War to Very End

Transocean

HELSINKI, September 12.—Finnish Socialists held a delegate meeting on Wednesday during which they unanimously expressed the conviction that Finland's present fight for freedom and independence must be fought to the very end.

The Party delegates were resolved to support Government and military leadership in every possible way in Parliament.

Minister of Supplies Tanner surveyed the political situation, declaring that after the termination of this war Finland's economic situation would not be worse but rather better. He pointed out that next year's budget would be better balanced than the current budget.

NEW YORK, September 16.—Brooklyn's Dodgers had their lead cut to a game and a half when they dropped a 4 to 3 thriller to the Cincinnati Reds today, while the St. Louis cards were being held to a tie by the New York Giants.

Brooklyn took two out of three games in the Cincinnati series. They won yesterday's game which went 17 innings but dropped today's which went 11 frames.

The Dodgers are returning to the east tonight and will perform at Pittsburgh tomorrow. They have 11 more games to play while the Cards have 14 more games on their schedule. Cincinnati drew first blood in today's wild game, collecting a long run in the first frame when Bill Werber singled to score Eddie Joost who had walked. In the second the Dodgers knotted the score.

Cincinnati scored again in the seventh when Werber doubled, scoring Elmer Riddle and Joost. Brooklyn soon came back to knot the score, largely as a result of a double by G. Alan and Hal Reiser's single.

In the last of the ninth the Reds filled the bags but Walt Higbe settled down and retired the side. In the tenth Brooklyn loaded the bases with none out but they likewise failed to score.

Joost scored the winning run for the Reds. In the eleventh he reached first by singling, advanced on Jim Gleeson's grounder and then sprinted home on Werber's single.

In the Cards—Giants battle St. Louis scored a lone run in the first inning and led until the last of the ninth, when the New Yorkers tied the count. The final score was 1 to 1. The Card's run resulted from John Hopp getting a single, advancing to second when Terry Moore drew a walk and then coming home on Estel Crabtree's single.

In the ninth Morris Arnovich, Giant outfielder, connected with a single. Bill Jurges followed with a double and Arnovich came in on the next play when Nick Witek singled. After the first extra inning ended the umpires held a conference and decided it was too dark to continue the game.

In the only other game in the senior circuit the Boston Braves beat out the Chicago Cubs 8 to 5. The Cubs used four hurlers in an effort to silence the Boston Bats. Alva Javery went the full route for Boston and came out ahead, even though he allowed 12 safeties and his mates made four errors.

In the American circuit Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics dropped deeper into the cellar when they were nosed out 9 to 8 in a 12 inning game.

Chester Laabs won the game with a homer in the twelfth. It was his second of the day. The first came in the first inning when the Browns pushed over five runs.

Detroit's Tigers, though held to five hits, bunched their blows and defeated the Washington Senators 4 to 2. Detroit won the game in the fourth inning when two walks and three singles yielded three scores.

Lynwood Rowe and Lou Newsom did the hurling for Detroit while Ken Shase and Al Carrasquel chucked for Washington.

'BIG 6' NINES OPEN FALL SEASON TODAY

Spring Champion Hosei Tackles Teidai 12 Noon at Meiji Shrine

"Big Six" nines resume their hostilities today with the opening games of the autumn season slated at the Meiji Shrine stadium from 12 noon.

The spring champion, Hosei, will be out gunning for a repeat by crossing bats with Imperial in the curtain riser. And the hard-hitting Meiji nine is slated to meet St. Paul's in the second tilt of the day.

The playing schedule for this autumn season has been curtailed by the Education Ministry, and the Tokyo University Baseball League has announced a lis: of but 15 games. Other instructions have been released as follows:

All the infield seats of the stadium will be utilized by students and invited guests. Charged admission tickets will be issued only for the outfield bleachers, and they will be sold in advance to avoid congestion.

According to the schedule, the classic Waseda-Keio tilt will be played on Tuesday, September 23, a national holiday. Sundays, the stadium will be the scene of games from morning to late afternoon as three tilts are on tap.

The schedule follows:

Sept. 21—Hosei vs Imperial and Meiji vs St. Paul's.
Sept. 23—Waseda vs Keio.
Sept. 28—Meiji vs Keio, Hosei vs St. Paul's and Waseda vs Imperial.
Oct. 5—Hosei vs Keio, Meiji vs Waseda and St. Paul's vs Imperial.
Oct. 12—Meiji vs Imperial, Hosei vs Waseda and Keio vs St. Paul's.
Oct. 17—Waseda vs St. Paul's, Keio vs Imperial and Hosei vs Meiji.

Honors in Baseball Are Divided by Teams From Kobe, Yokohama

The Yokohama Country and Athletic Club and the Kobe Regatta and Athletic Club baseball teams split honors Saturday in a pair of interport games played at the Kobe Recreation grounds: Upsetting pregame "dope," the K.R. and A.C. men's team found little trouble drubbing their arch rivals, 16-4 in the annual fixture which was contested in the afternoon. However, the Kanto ladies drew first blood for the local contingent by defeating the Kobe lassies, 10-7 in their softball tilt in the morning. All rivalry was forgotten following the men's game as the visitors were guests at a tiffin at the K.R.A.C. clubhouse, and the men took part in an informal stag dinner later in the evening.

by translations, especially with regard to his recent masterpiece of short story called "The heirs of the loose Jeanette."

A small French provincial town situated somewhere in the Champagne, far from the highway leading to Paris, is the residence of the retired Abbe Pierre Petaut, who got the general reputation of a highly venerable priest. Although being in a very good material situation, the pious man shows signs of exaggerated parsimony which gives occasion to many rumors. Two relatives, his married sister Catherine and his younger brother Silvain, are living and working in the same town. While Catherine and the Abbe belong to the wealthy citizens, the third hero of the charming story, Silvain Petaut, is nothing but a very poor shoemaker and poet, whose wife Claire remembers very much the type of ill reputed Xanhippe.

Well, these three honest people were once the guardians of a most beautiful niece, whom they sent to America, some 30 years ago, by their common expense. The reason of the involuntary emigration of the lovely girl was a love-affair with a stillborn baby, and in order to avoid any prejudice detrimental to the respect of the family esteem, the venerable Abbe persuaded his brother and sister to participate in the complete effacement of the memory of the "ill-bred" woman.

Arrives With News

Suddenly, after so many years elapsed, a lawyer arrives in the small town with an exciting news. The expelled girl, now a would-be sick and very poor creature, would like to get the permission of the family to return to the native place, supported by the charity of her three relatives. While the old Abbe and his sister categorically refuse to comply with her conceivable desire, the poor bootmaker expresses his firm determination to welcome her affectionately.

The lawyer returns to Paris, and two days later, a big announcement is printed in the local newspaper, that Jeanette Petaut died with an heritage of more than three millions of Pesos which might be divided among legal heirs...But the secret condition of the testatrix was, to re-examine just before the promulgation of the testament, the true sentiment and attitude of her relatives which she hoped to be changed during the long period of her absence from France. We cannot tell the further development of the marvellous story, but the reader might be assured of the satisfactory and conciliatory happy end.....

Weismantel refers to the tale as to a real occurrence. Regardless whether she was written by the caprice of life or by his own inventive faculty, the story represents a real masterpiece of novel, belonging to the best German prose published since many years. The reader will be touched by the feeling of happiness and satisfaction. The book is an ingenious performance which will also recommend the well-known Swiss publisher.

OLD WORLD PATTERN MUST BE CHANGED

U.S. Educators Urged to Take Lead in Making New Blueprint for Society

I.N.S.

SAN FRANCISCO, California, September 16.—American educators must take the lead in putting the world back together again—but according to a bright new blueprint. The old plan has worn out.

Dr. William G. Carr of Washington, D.C., laid this challenge before the recent Standford University Annual Education Conference.

"The system of unlimited national sovereignty is done for," he said. "Two great wars in less than a quarter century bear gloomy witness to its bankruptcy. We shall be unwisely led after this war if we waste time trying to fit the pieces of world organization back into the old pattern."

Dr. Carr, director of the research division and assistant secretary of the National Education Association, urged his fellow-educators to accept the leadership in this reconstruction, but warned them such leadership is dangerous. It would open them to attack, bitter criticism and strong opposition.

Stresses Task of Educators

He called an educator to teach the people of America—children, youths and adults—everything possible about the various plans for world organization.

He told them to teach Americans that work is honorable, and to train everyone for useful work. 'Noxious attitudes toward certain types of manual labor," he claimed, "should be weeded out of the minds of adults. They should never be planted in the mind of the rising generation."

Educators must step into the controversial questions of economic organizations and social questions.

It is the business of leadership to be concerned with controversial matters," he declared, "and at this time it is the business of educational leadership in particular to teach the American people that economic questions must be settled in accordance with the general ideals of our society and in accordance with the best knowledge and wisdom that can be brought to bear upon them by scientific society."

Educators must particularly educate for democracy and lead in developing the morale of the American people.

Attacks Opponents of Plan

He assailed those who claim such teaching is impractical. The impractical people, he retorted, are those "who watch this spectacle with mere cold-blooded curiosity" or who are so sorry about everything that they do nothing but a little timid tinkering with world problems.

A complete overhaul job appears necessary for the world, it was emphasized, for there is no simple cure. "Our patient suffers from a multitude of ills; let us prescribe as wisely as we can for each of them.

Education and leadership cannot be separated, he said. "Education which is not leadership is really no education at all, but only a process of grubby fact-collecting or a wicked hypnosis of the intellect."

"As for leadership without education, it is nothing but a little showy strutting at the head of a procession, the wearing of empty symbols of rank, or the exercise of petty, brief authority over those who are powerless to resist."

Gas Turbine News

There's good and important news for the "have not" States in the reported discovery by a Swiss engineer of a machine which may revolutionize transportation and the oil and coal industries. A well-known engineer, H. Dyson Carter, M.Sc., A.C.I.C., is authority for the statement that the machine already exists and is housed in a bombproof mountain cave near Neuchatel, Switzerland. That seems to be an unnecessary precaution, for once the principle is understood the mechanical details are not difficult to work out.

The Swiss, says the report, have produced a new prime mover. Other prime movers are steam-engines, petrol engines, Diesel oil engines and electric motors. A machine is a prime mover when it converts energy into motion. For a hundred years, it is said, investigators have been at work on the gas turbine, which is regarded as the logical step from the Diesel. The theory is that fuel and air will be burned in an explosion chamber, the hot gases being blasted against the vanes of a turbine. In all countries patent offices have scores of claims to such engines. None has been practical. But the new model is stated to be at work driving a 4,000-kilowatt electric generator.

It is claimed for the gas turbine that it is far simpler than the steam, petrol or Diesel motor. It has simply a combustion cylinder, which is the central power station. Underneath this is mounted an air compressor, and an electric generator and the turbine. With these basic parts, the engineer says, operation is beautifully simple. First, a starter whirls the air compressor. This is really a blower fan. Hot compressed air enters the combustion chamber. There it steadily ignites the oil and the burned gases rush down to spin the turbine shaft by pressure on the vanes. Very quickly after the start the engine quickly reaches top speed.

The advantage claimed for this gas turbine is that it has only one revolving shaft. There are no moving parts in contact with the combustion chamber, as in petrol and gas engines. Absent are reciprocating action, valves, cams, pumps, pistons, cooling system.

One of the chief attractions of the gas turbine, and a puzzle at the same time, is that it gives out no heat, and therefore requires no water cooling system. This is what the engineer calls "the secret of its mechanical appeal." He points out that other engines of motor energy must be enclosed in cooler systems, but in this case the super-heated gases pass directly to the working turbine, at flame temperature. The gases are cooled as they work down the turbine channel pushing the blades around.

Compact, simple and foolproof are the claims made for the gas turbine. It needs no water for steam or cooling. It delivers more power for fuel consumed than any heat engine invented. It is operating today a full-sized electric plant. The crudest, cheapest fuel oil can be used. Powdered coal can be burned in it. Here is the point of interest to Japan. The cheapest fuel in the world is low grade coal dust. Now it is made available for the most efficient engine, if the claims advanced for this Swiss invention are substantiated.

Japan has been coping with the question of converting coal into oil. Great progress has been made here and in Germany and England. But the process remains costly and difficult, even though efficient results are being obtained on a large scale in Fushun and other places. But a new machine into which the coal products of Japan, Manchoukuo and North China could virtually be shovelled intact would solve this country's fuel problem for centuries. For coal is one of the richest resources of the co-prosperity sphere.

Mr. Dyson Carter does not say if steps are being taken for the universal use of the gas turbine. It is probable that the plant now working still is in a post-experimental stage in which results over a long period of trial have to be tested. But he predicts an aero-engine on the same principle.

All this should hearten countries lacking sufficient oil resources and to whom cheap coal is readily available. It may end one of the reasons for wars, the strife for primary products.

Reorganized Amusement

The conference called on August 18 to consider the matter of controlling raw film for photographic use led to the official decision last Friday to restrict the motion film production for public entertainment to the number of six photoplays a month. It was further decided that these motion picture productions will be placed in the hands of three producing organizations.

Although the present official decision was primarily due to the shortage of raw film, those who are familiar with the conditions of the motion picture industry of the country will regard it very wise and well considered. Japan at a time was the most prolific producer of photoplays in the world, not barring even America. This situation was brought about by the demand of Japanese exhibitors who used to run at least three features on each of their weekly programs. Nearly two hundred features had to be produced yearly to take care of the motion picture theaters in the country.

Curtailment in picture production was made, though in an indirect way, when the police some years ago, reduced the length of films to be shown on one program. The feature offering at ordinary theaters was cut from three to two features a week. The new rule for film control will no doubt make it impossible to offer more than one feature on the weekly program.

The prolific production of films, as formerly seen, had results which were anything but satisfactory or salutary. It was one of the main reasons of the film industry of the country failing to attain higher levels of quality. Cheaply conceived plays were produced by cheap means and that in almost incredibly short times. Another baneful effect of the situation was seen in the fungoid growth of film producers who were in positions, economical and otherwise, only to produce "fillers." Most of those small scale producers have been driven off the field; but the market is still being shared by too numerous producing units.

Under the new system there will be only producers of adequate means and prestige. Because of the curtailment of production, none of them will be driven to over-production. The producers will no longer have any excuse for turning out pictures of low order such as often seen in the past. State control over the motion picture industry, from this standpoint, seems very timely because this branch of industry, unlike many others, has never been put through the process of rationalization. From the standpoint of public entertainment, motion pictures are the most popular form of amusement but have seldom received so serious official attention as they merit.

Gas-Changing Bacteria

Bacteria that will eat carbon dioxide, the waste gas from combustion, and change it into methane, a fuel gas that can be burned are being studied by Dr. H. A. Barker, assistant professor of soil microbiology at the University of California. The organisms are found in swamps and other places where organic matter is decomposed without access to free oxygen.

They breathe carbon dioxide and will suffocate in free oxygen. Plants breathe carbon dioxide and transform it into starch, sugar and fat, but the methane—producing bacteria, which also belong to the plant world, change the gas they breathe into gas such as used for heating and cooking. They are not likely to be used in any practical way for this purpose, however. The organisms can get into the intestines of animals and can cause difficulties thereby producing methane. The investigation is part of a study how plants use carbon dioxide to produce foodstuffs. Radioactive carbon atoms are being used to trace the course of this material through the living organisms.—N. DEMOCRATIC AMERICANS ARE REAL BETRAYERS OF MONROE DOCTRINE

World Domination Seen as Great Adventure by U.S. —Violating Non-Intervention Policy

PART I.

In the reign of the Chin Dynasty in China, Prime Minister Shang Yang, acting as legislator, established a criminal code based on the principle of meting out severe penalties. But it was he himself who became the first victim of the extreme penalty after returning to the life of a commoner. Confucius maintained that hypocrites were the enemy of virtues and on that basis he admonished pharisaic people. There is no more dangerous democratic people or country in the world than one who or which is obsessed with the self-conceited idea that he or it is the highest exponent of democracy.

The German form of bovernment, as it appears to our unbiased eyes, stands on the basis of the really essential principles of democracy, for the German people are perfectly united as one body around Fuehrer Hitler, whom they discovered with their gregarious instinct in their search for an opening for their national and racial existence and development in the days of extreme difficulties. The votes Chancellor Hitler won were so many that they were really beyond comparison with those which President Roosevelt gained for his third term. Though paradoxical as it may appear to those who are not well versed in such political affairs, Chancellor Hitler can be regarded as a real king of the people, if President Roosevelt is a camouflaged defender of democracy. Corrupt and stereotyped democracy is nothing more than a puppet manipulated by political strings of banking and industrial capitalism.

Intelligent Americans are well aware that their country's Government is run by 60 or 80 plutocratic families. In France the first revolution was followed by another which aimed to change completely the condition of the former, and still other revolutions took place in succession. The communist revolution of Russia was superseded by another revolution and the real significance of the Marxists' revolution is no longer discoverable. In view of such ceaseless changes in the thoughts of man, it behoves us to bear in mind that the people who constitute themselves as the highest quarantine officer of the world are the most dangerous, and that they may be the very people who must be quarantined first of all.

Very Biting Criticism

Is it not fitting to apply to the United States in the present international politics the very biting criticism which Confucius directed against the group of people whom he castigated as hypocrites? Who are the real betrayers of the Monroe Doctrine? Or inversely, who are the real upholders of the Monroe Doctrine able to serve as a propelling force of human conduct with the pristine simplicity and naivety?

The American Monroe Doctrine and foreign policy as exemplified by the open door principle are said to be the result of consideration and requirement of, first, that country's own existence and development and more particularly the preservation of its rights and interests; second, the maintenance of the various peace principles which are traditional to the United States as well as the international treaties born of such principles; third, national defense. However, the bases on which these policies are formulated are not arranged in parallel.

According to the view of the present writer, the second is based on the first and the third is a sort of superstructure built on the basis of the first and second. International advantages or interests and international political principles, therefore, coincide with each other at their starting point, for the latter is nothing other than a form of rationalization or legal protection of the former. Being a rational creature, man is prone to recognize a cleavage between an immutable principle and an accompanying advantage in his effort to formularize his ideas. The United States, having been active from its birth in the stage of international politics and having consistently tried to unify and formulate its ideas, the gap between the advantages and interests on the one hand and the peace principles on the other is especially wide in that country.

A typical example of such a gap is found in connection with the Monroe Doctrine. At first the cleavage between the principle and advantage of the Monroe Doctrine could be adequately filled by broad interpretation of the doctrine. But such at patch-work would no longer serve to cover up the complete change of the country's foreign policy. If democracy is really to be introduced into international politics today, the things which the United States intends to do are diametrically opposed to such a purpose. The Monroe Doctrine in its solemn significance no longer remains in the United States: it is now the doctrine consistently upheld by the Axis Powers.

Agony of Inconsistency

Americans now are groping in the mud of illusion and fallacy, and the so-called American way of life is nothing more than an expression of their agony of inconsistency. It can never serve as protective color legally for what they do. To present the writer's conclusion first, the Americans have launched themselves upon the great adventure of world domination by economic and military power as well as of super-imperialism, while they have degraded themselves to be a betrayer of the Monroe Doctrine. They are being effectively opposed by the Axis nations who uphold loyally the primal principles of the Monroe Doctrine. To prove the statement is the purpose of the present article.

The essential basis of what can be taken as the simple, and therefore genuine, Monroe Doctrine can be found in the principle of non-entanglement in international affairs enunciated by George Washington in his famous farewell address. While still an infant nation, the United States was drawn into an arena of international politics of "alliances and balance of power," manipulated by old and shrewed nations of Europe. Washington, the "father" of that country, admonished the infant nation not to involve itself in such international entanglements.

When France, representing the Holy Alliance, took possession of Spain, George Canning, in order to get compensation in the Western Hemisphere for the loss as well as to bring the New World to help in recovering the balance of power in the Old World, wanted to issue an Anglo-American joint declaration to the effect that the occupation of any part of the Spanish possessions could not be countenanced by Britain and the United States. But Adams, who subsequently drafted the Monroe Doctrine, was not willing that his country should play the subordinate role. He, therefore, chose the form of an independent and solemn proclamation for his own country.

Non-Colonization Principle

In its first part, the proclamation stated the principle of non-colonization with a view to checking the ambition of Russia by emphasizing that the free and independent continents of America should not thenceforth be considered as colonies of European Powers. The second part stated the principle of non-intervention in order to forestall the ambitious designs of the Holy Alliance.

By this principle, the European Powers were prevented from extending their political systems to the American continents on the one hand, and on the other, the United States declared that it would not interfere with the existing colonies and possessions of the European Powers, while the European Powers were prohibited to meddle in the affairs of the American countries which had proclaimed independence and been recognized by the United States.

The policy thus arbitrarily proclaimed became the golden rule for the United States foreign policy and has since served to guide the country in its international relation. It was against the background of this policy that the great undertaking to which Woodrow Wilson devoted his heart and soul, was judged and obliterated. There must be some reason for such a development. Dexter Perkins, in his book The Monroe Doctrine, says that, at the time of the inception of the Monroe Doctrine, communities, young, fresh and unstinted by evils of Europe, were growing with self-confidence on the American continents.

It was wise or rather essential, that the baneful practices of the Old World be prevented from affecting the healthy growth of these young communities. Therefore, the diplomatic activities of the European Powers should not extend to the Americas. It followed that the countries of America should confine their activities within their own limits. Under such circumstances, concludes Mr. Perkins, the Monroe Doctrine prohibited the European Powers to make conquest or colonization of the American continents. The Monroe Doctrine in its original spirit, was generally understood to be confined in its application to the opposition to the European intervention in the pure and unspoiled hemisphere.

Arbitrary Character

By virtue of its arbitrary character, however, the Monroe Doctrine has an expansive tendency. In fact its history is one of expansive interpretation and application. The Americans claim for themselves alone the right of its interpretation. They think it part of wisdom not to give a clear-cut definition of the doctrine and to keep it in a nebulous condition in order that they may take advantage of the right of the strong in direct opposition to the democratic principles.

Provided, as it was, that the doctrine had been retroactive, the United States would have supported the Argentine in its dispute with Great Britain over the question of ownership of some islands and not definitely promised that the United States would not intervene in the affairs pertaining to the existing colonies and possessions of European Powers. But, as time passed, it cast off the non-retroactive principle and began to make interference by aiding independence movement of the European colonies or seizing them.

At first the Monroe Doctrine was applied only to the North American continent but later it came to be applied to both North and South American continents and still later it came to take in the whole Western Hemisphere for its application. It may be natural that Greenland be absorbed into the scope of its application. But when the United States, after occupying the Hawaiian and Philippine Islands, intervened in the affairs of the Far East, seeking military and naval bases in South China, the South Seas and Eastern Siberia, occupied Iceland, and now tries to acquire naval bases in Ireland, instigates Brazil to seize the Azores and thinks of occupying Cape Verde Islands, it far surpasses the question of expansive interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine.

'International Arrogance'

Such a conduct is more than what Bismarck called "international arrogance." In comparison with the British Empire, which monopolizes a fourth of the entire land surface of the globe, leaving the rest of the world in condition of penury, the continents of North and South America which the United States intends to rule are as large as one-third of the land surface of the globe, the Western Hemisphere being a half of the globe. To monopolize the continents and the waters around them with super-imperialistic ambitions is an act which is not only incompatible with the basic principles of the Monroe Doctrine but which absolutely negates the purpose of the true Monroe Doctrine. The fact is extremely important and will be dealt with later.

Then let us see what changes have been made in the contents of the Monroe Doctrine and the conditions to which the doctrine is applied. We find the principle of non-transference of territory being gradually incorporated in the doctrine, as in the recent case of reaffirmation of the doctrine of non-transference of territory in the guise of an assertion for American administration of such foreign territories as French and Dutch Guinea. That the Americans began to claim the Americas for Americans in opposition to Britain, Germany, France and Spain, asserting that the question of the Americas should be decided by the Americas, was a radical expansion in the interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine. The cry for the liberation of the American continents from the European control meant the same thing in the final analysis.

In its original interpretation the Monroe Doctrine held a well-balanced assertion in conformity with the admonition contained in Washington's farewell address as regards the American relations with the Old World that, since the United States, in its effort to remain aloof from European affairs, would not intervene in Europe, the latter should not meddle in the affairs of the Americas. In such a state of psychology the United States, while declaring its policy of non-interference, showed an attitude of acquiescence to the European intervention in Central and South American countries and was even tolerant to the mediation by European countries in border disputes among these American countries.

Eager to Keep Neutrality

The United States was thus eager to maintain neutrality toward affairs abroad, and this attitude may be observed in its dormant state in the present Neutrality Act. A foreign alliance was virtually taboo and the country did its best to avoid such an entanglement. Even when the United States actually joined forces in the last World War and made peace along with the Allied Powers, it still called itself an associated Power. In his excessive zeal for the establishment of an international peace machinery, Woodrow Wilson caused the League of Nations to be founded.

But because this international structure was based on the principle of equality of nations, the Monroe Doctrine, a precious dogma held by the United States, was threatened with disintegration. Therein Wilson found, to his utter dismay, a grave to his political career. It is interesting to see whether the Monroe Doctrine will again mete out such a vengeance to those who ignore it in the future.

With respect to its relations to Central and South America, the primal Monroe Doctrine kept the United States from making any kind of intervention there. However, the Americans wanted to restrain the numerous claims of Great Britain which increased without limit, and put forth their best effort for the purpose. Accordingly, it asserted that a third Power was entitled under international law to intervene in disputes between some other Powers. It even claimed that the United States had a right to mediate in boundary disputes between two European countries.

At the time of building the Panama Canal, it contended that it held the right to own and control the canal, thereby trying to grasp in its own hands the hegemony of the continents of North and South America. Subse-

NEW YORK, September 17.—Leo Durocher's Brooklyn Dodgers found themselves perched on top of the National League pile today with a bare one-game league as the St. Louis Cardinals took a double-header from the Boston Braves while Brooklyn took a single tilt from Pittsburgh.

The Cardinals are still two games behind Brooklyn in the win column but both clubs have lost an equal number of games.

Brooklyn won their game in the ninth inning when they went on a five-run splurge after trailing by a 4 to 1 count. Augie Galan started the rally with a double, after which Harold "Red" Reese and Bill Herman singled. Pete Reiser drew down a triple that cleared the base-paths and yielded three runs.

Harry Lavagetto smashed out a high bounder and Reiser, seeking to reach home, found himself trapped off third base. Lavagetto, during the play, reached second.

Dolph Camilli drew a free pass to first base, and with two men on base, Lewis Riggs rapped out a sharp single that scored both Lavagetto and Camilli.

Bill Southworth's Cards chopped down Brooklyns lead when they beat the Boston Braves twice. The two leading clubs take on the same foes tomorrow. Remaining on the schedule are ten games for the Dodgers and twelve for St. Louis in the hectic pennant chase.

The Cards took the opener, 6 to 1, coming from behind to knot the score in the seventh frame and then pushed over five runs in the eighth.

Estel Crabtree started the scoring with a homer in the seventh. The next inning all of the St. Louis runs were of the unearned variety.

Crabtree was the hero of the night-cap, which the Cards won 3 to 2, when he clouted out his second homer of the day in the ninth inning.

Hubert Lanier was on the mound for the winners and held the Braves to five hits and hurled shutout ball every inning but the seventh.

The Cincinnati Reds, trailing the Dodgers by 13½ games took two straight from the Philadelphia Phillies, the opener 1 to 0 and the night cap 3 to 2.

Johny Vander Meer was the whole show in the opener. He held the Phillies to three hits and registered 11 strikeouts. With today's game the Cincinnati speed ball artist has 195 strikeouts to his record.

The lone run was scored in the fourth when Ernie Lombardi who doubled, advanced to third on Harry Craft's single and came in on Bob Mattick's sacrifice fly.

In the second game Gene Thompson went the route for the Reds and allowed six hits. Cincinnati scored the deciding run in the ninth when pitcher Ike Pearson hit Bill Werber, with the bases loaded, to force in a score.

In the sixth inning outfielder Craft was hit in the head by Pearson. He was taken to the hospital but the extent of his injury was not immediately determined.

At Chicago the Cubs beat out the New York Giants 7 to 3. Vern Olsen did the hurling for the winners and allowed 10 hits.

The Cubs scored in the first, third, sixth, seventh and eighth innings. Most of the scores were of the unearned variety. In the first frame three walks, an error and a wild pitch accounted for two runs.

In the almost forgotten American circuit the pennant cinchers—Joe McCarthy's New York Yankees—turned in their 97th win of the year by downing the Chicago White Sox 5 to 3.

Spurgeon Chandler did the hurling for New York and turned his foes back with five hits. Tom Henrich connected with a homer with two mates aboard in the eighth. It was his 31st circuit drive of the year. In the third inning Jimmy Kuhel of the Chisox turned in his 12th homer of the season.

Boston's Red Sox ran their winning streak up to nine games by nosing out the Cleveland Indians 3 to 2. Joe Dobson was the winning hurler and held the Indians to six safeties.

Dominic DiMaggio won the game for Boston by connecting with a single which brought in two runs in the last of the ninth inning.

At Washington the Senators beat the St. Louis Browns 9 to 8 in a ten inning battle. Jim Vernon, Senator outfielder, batted in the winning run with a single.

Detroit Tigers went into a tie for fourth place by defeating the Philadelphia Athletics 3 to 2. The Tigers were held to four hits but received the help of three Philadelphia errors.

DIPLOMATS-Y.C.A.C. GAME ENDS IN DRAW

Rain and Darkness Force Cricket Match to Close Early

Rain and darkness forced the cricket match between the British Embassy and the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club teams on Saturday afternoon at the club grounds to end in a draw. The diplomats declared after making 115 for eight wickets, while the home eleven scored 35 for three wickets when stumps were drawn due to the failing light.

P. H. Gore-Booth and F. H. Moysey opened the innings for the embassy side and the scoreboard read 30 before the latter was bowled by J. A. Sargeant. The visitors continued their fine showing and another 31 runs were made before W. Eckersley had his stumps disturbed by E. Stephens, the Y.C. and A.C. captain.

Taken at 72

The third wicket was taken at 72, B. Kuskie being leg before wicket to one of P. H. Lord's deliveries. Shortly after J. R. V. Mason joined Gore-Booth an intermission of about 20 minutes was necessary when the drizzle which marred a great part of the game turned into a downpour.

When the rain had let up somewhat, play was resumed and the diplomats' total was 97 before Mason was bowled by Mr. Parsam. Gore-Booth's fine stand ended when he fell to one of Parsram's deliveries at 112. The next three wickets fell rapidly and for as many runs, the embassy side declaring at 4:20 p.m.

After a brief interval for tea, the Y.C. and A.C. eleven commenced their innings. They started poorly, the first wicket falling for only five runs. Sargeant and G. L. King raised the count to 14 before the former was dismissed by one of B. Kuskie's speedy offerings. King was run out at 24, after he appeared to be well set and batting confidently.

Stephens and Parsram played carefully and steadily in the failing light and this pair added another 11 points to the club's total, when it became too dark to continue.

Honors to Gore-Booth

Batting honors went to Gore-Booth, whose 53 was outstanding. Eckersley, Mason and Moysey, with 14, 11 and 10, respectively, were the other embassy players who reached double figures. Stephens, with 10, not out, was the most effective batsman for the club team, while King came next with nine.

Kuskie had the best bowling average, taking two wickets for nine runs. Parsram and Sargeant both took three wickets, for 21 and 30, respectively, while Lord obtained one for 14.

Among the spectators were the British ambassador, Sir Robert Craigie, and Lady Craigie. Their presence was greatly appreciated, and also encouraged the players to perform at their best.

G. H. da Costa did the scoring and compiled the statistics.

Next Saturday the last club game of the season will be played, when the single cricketers will have one more chance to try to gain a victory over the married players, which they have been unable to do as yet this year.

The club's cricket committee hopes to be able to arrange another match with the British Embassy team for Sunday, October 5, which would be the last game this year, and an all-day contest.

The analysis of Saturday's match follows:

Apostoli Climbing Again After Bout With Joe Spangler

United Press

NORFOLK, Virginia, September 17.—Freddie Apostoli, former middleweight boxing champion, was a step farther along the comeback trail on Tuesday and Joe Spangler, his overweight welterweight opponent, Monday night was in Norfolk hospital suffering from a broken jaw. Apostoli knocked out Spangler in 2 minutes 40 seconds of the fifth round of a scheduled 10-round fight. Apostoli drove his opponent through the ropes with a volley of rights and lefts that broke his jaw.

France Ready to Join New Order in Europe

system of measures and conventions when peace is restored. The peace terms, undoubtedly, will greatly be influenced by the unequivocally expressed determination of the French people to lend its support to the new order in Europe. That France has chosen this course is becoming more and more apparent. Public opinion will gradually pass from the stage of comprehension to that of trust and to what Goethe called: "The chosen affinities." British propaganda which is encouraging Frenchmen to close their eyes before reality and incites them to treason, will not hinder this development. For a little more than a year, a lot has already been achieved. No body in France wants to see one continent rise against another in the name of illusions and egoisms which have already caused so many ruins and bloodshed.

The remoulding of a united Europe is already a fact. A new world, like a child, is born in pains, but its appearance is greeted with great hopes. France, freed from a disorder that is dead, is resolutely advancing toward an authoritarian regime, the necessity of which is felt by all Frenchmen, no matter what their former political opinions had been.

If we had grasped the outstretched hand before, the war could have been avoided which was brought upon us by our incapable and irresponsible leaders. We are suffering from their mistakes but there is hope at the end of the path that we have chosen. Behind, to the left and to the right, are yawning abysses. France will not fall into them.

GARCIA-SOOSE BOUT IS TECHNICAL DRAW

Filipino Boxer Given Raw Deal in Eighth Round at Hollywood

United Press

HOLLYWOOD, September 17.—The State Boxing Commission said on Tuesday it was powerless to protest referee Abe Roth's decision Monday night when Roth called a scheduled 12-round non-title clash between middleweight champion Billy Soose and Ceferino Garcia a technical draw in the eighth round after Soose suffered a cut eye.

The decision met with protest from the crowd, and ringsiders were of almost unanimous opinion that 35-year-old Garcia should have been awarded a technical knockout.

Soose easily won the first five rounds, but in the sixth he was almost floored when he suffered two terrific bolo blows.

These two punches slowed him up considerably and by the eighth he was staggering under severe punishment, bleeding from numerous face cuts.

Garcia weighed 161¾ pounds, while Soose tipped the scales at 169½.

Soose was a 5-to-7 favorite on the night of the fight to beat the Filipino at Gilmore field.

The middleweight champion was favored over the former title-holder chiefly because of his youth. He is 23 as compared with Garcia's admitted 35.

Briton Fired for Error

Transocean

STOCKHOLM, September 14.—A British official has been discharged from his post because he had left important documents in his car unguarded on a London street, the Daily Telegraph reported yesterday, according to a dispatch from the British capital. The documents were stolen. The official had repeatedly been warned to keep an eye on the documents entrusted to him. Since the outbreak of the war, secret documents have been stolen from cars in no fewer than 50 cases, it was reported.

Believe It or Not, by Ripley

FUKUDA WINS BY TKO IN BLOODY SLUGFEST

Chin Proves Game but Injury Over Left Eye Brings Medical Intervention

Sokyoku Chin took every blow of the Yellow Bomber Toshio Fukuda on the chin with great stoicism at the Hibiya band-stand Monday night, but was finally overcome by a nasty cut over his left eye and lost the scheduled 12-round bout by a T.K.O. when the referee stopped the tussle at the end of the fifth round.

From the first gong, both fighters mixed freely. Charging from their corners, they collided at the center of the ring, and started walloping in earnest, with Fukuda showing all indications of possessing a will to kill. Maneuvering Chin against the ropes, Fukuda launched a furious attack of blows on his adversary's body, followed up by left and right crosses. Although sensing that the odds were definitely against him, Chin returned the onslaught with interest, but slowed down when an unlucky head-to-head bump ripped open his left eye-brow.

In the second round, Chin resorted to tricky foot work to recover his wits, but ring-wise Fukuda emphasized that he disliked ballets. Unrelentlessly, he resumed his attack, backing each blow with dynamic force.

Fighting bravely, but severely handicapped by the blood streaming into his left eye, Chin relied on every trick he knew to put up a stiff resistance.

At the end of the next round, which was equally exciting, the doctor took the referee to a corner, and advised him to stop the massacre. The excited fans, however, booed him off the ring.

With blood flowing down from his cut in a steady stream, but still game, Chin continued to mix. However, Fukuda was in no sympathetic mood, for in this round, he launched another furious attack, nearly throwing Chin out of the ring on two occasions.

At the end of the fifth, which was quite a messy affair with your correspondent cowering behind his newspaper to prevent the spurting red stains from soiling his well-worn suit, the doctor once again demanded that the fight be stopped. This time, out of respect for the medical profession and the bravery of Chin, the referee lifted Fukuda's paw and brought down the curtains.

In the semi-finals, ring-veteran Toshio Aoki easily won the nod over his disappointed opponent Asaji Futaba, who, until recently, was just one of the preliminary boys.

Excited with his opportunity to mix with a real boxer, Futaba started out as the hunter, but wound up as the hunted. The fifth round was the most eventful, for Aoki frequently pushed Futaba into a corner so as to indulge in a series of one-two's. Groggy at the start of the eighth, Futaba completely lost all technique and fought wildly while Aoki calmly gave out punishment.

In the preliminaries, Oba defeated Imura by a decision; Nishimura knocked out Miyatake; Takanori won a decision over Oba; and Sakuraba kayoed Nakamura.

Reich Economic Policy Founded Since 1933

were developed which made it possible to direct the German economy and to prepare it for wartime needs.

After the outbreak of the war, the second Four Year Plan was announced at the end of 1940, and is naturally designed to serve the requirements of the war. During the war the German economy is working according to the same principles and with the same methods which were developed and applied during the years 1933 to 1939. It was not found necessary to reorganize the German economy to adapt it to the exigencies of wartime conditions.

Since 1933 a principle has been brought to bear by the Government which led to the extraordinary successes of the National-Socialist economic policy; it is called "Fuhrerprinzip" and provides for the deciding of all important questions by a personality who is responsible for the successful completion of a given task.

Important Decisions

Within the Government it is clearly defined which Ministry and which office is in charge of this or that particular field. This is of particular importance in those cases, where—as it is unavoidable in the complicated modern administration and economy—several Ministries are interested in the solution of the same problem. The decisive factor for the success of the National-Socialist policy however is, that, apart from the clearly established competence of a certain office, one particular personality bears the responsibility for the decision rendered. This principle is also applied to the Four Year Plan. Important decisions in cases where various Ministries differ in their opinion are given by Reichmarshal Goering himself.

The willingness of the governed to cooperate corresponds to this leading principle of the Government. The history of the German people furnishes abundant proof of the good qualities of the nation which is faithful, honest, orderly and always willing to obey the orders of a good Government in an exemplary manner.

In the sphere of economics it would not have been possible to increase the national production so enormously in such a short time, if good cooperation had not been established between the Government and the representatives of business. Leaders of industry were always consulted before new plans were put into practice. Their valuable experience could thus be utilized in many instances.

The financing of the projects of the Government which had gradually adopted an unusual scale, was based on a carefully balanced system of taxes. Due to the economic development, tax receipts rose at a rate which nobody would have thought possible. Financing was also facilitated by the control of the money-and-credit market and by the strictly adhered to policy of the Government to lower interests.

Exchange of Goods Increases

The growing of all economic forces of Germany, the heart of Europe, led to a transformation of the exchange of goods within the German foreign trade which prepared the present situation of a European economic sphere. For centuries intensive economic relations have been maintained by Germany with the countries bordering on the Baltic and the North Sea. From 1933 on, the exchange of goods with the southeastern European countries was greatly increased in volume, so that in 1940, for instance, Germany's imports from those countries amounted to 1,300,000,000 marks.

The German trade with the highly developed industrial countries of western Europe had always left a considerable credit balance in favor of Germany, and had thus provided Germany with the means to carry on a lively overseas trade. Far more than half of Germany's foreign trade was always based in Europe. In the course of the last eight years, the economic ties between the European countries were greatly strengthened.

The European nations not only share many social and economic problems, but also have the same experience in common as to the value of their currencies. Experience has taught them that it is not the relative size of gold reserves which guarantees the currency of a country, but that it is the authority of the state itself, the working power of the people, Government control of foreign trade, the money and credit market, and prices and wages, which represent the true basis of a currency.

Blockade Gives Lesson

During the 19th century the peoples of Europe developed into national states, a fact that has to be taken into account in the present political development. In the economic sphere, however, a community of interests has arisen in Europe which never before had been perceived so clearly by the European nations as in this war. The British blockade, which is trying to cut off Europe from its overseas markets and sources of raw materials, serves as an object lesson. Europe's great density of population presents a number of social and economic problems.

The New Order that is advocated by Germany and Italy is trying to solve these problems by the close economic collaboration between all European nations. The importance of Europe as a consumer of foodstuffs and raw materials will probably grow still more once the present war is ended. Recognition of this fact will contribute to the regulation of Europe's economic relations with the other great economic spheres of the globe.

While the war is still raging, Germany is trying to further European cooperation in economic discussions and is also endeavoring to keep in touch with the great East Asiatic sphere, in order to maintain close economic relations with Japan in accordance with the spirit of the Three Power Pact.

Age of Cosmos Placed At Two Trillion Years

is filled with a highly attenuated gas.

Of the future state of our local universe, our sun and our earth, there is little definite knowledge. A heat death, due to the cooling of all the suns and stars, is a possible terminal state. Scientists at one time thought the sun had traveled a long way in that direction but that was before we knew the sun maintains its heat in an atomic-energy process by the consumption of matter.

Sun Getting Hotter

Professor Augustus H. Fox, of Union College, in his recent Sigma Xi lecture, said that the sun creates its heat by consuming some of the mass of its hydrogen atoms while transforming them into helium on a carbon nucleus, and up to the present time has used up only 1 per cent of its available hydrogen.

This does not mean, says Professor Fox, that the sun will continue to shine for 100 times the length of its past history. As the process continues it increase its intensity, so that while only 1 per cent of the hydrogen was consumed during the first 2,000,000,000 years, the remaining 99 per cent will be consumed in 10,000,000,000 years. In the meantime the sun will be getting hotter instead of cooler.

Any increase in the heat of the sun will be developed at such a slow rate, compared with the tempo of life on the earth, that there is slight probability that any measurable increase in temperature on the earth.

Eventually we may discover other forces at work balancing any heat-death or cold-death trends, and assume that life on the earth will carry on very much as at present for eons and eons to come.

Bulldog on 'Bender'

I.N.S.

CHARLESTOWN, Indiana, September 7.—The pet bulldog of Mrs. Allen Barnett, of Charlestown, has become a topic of much gossip because nearly every day he comes home staggering and with a 12-inch breath. She has appealed to a humane officer to discover who has been buying the drinks for the canine. She fears that he will be struck by an automobile during one of his "benders."

Book for Librarians

I.N.S.

WACO, Texas, September 7.—A tentative interpretation of "Library of Congress Rules for Filing Cards in a Card Catalog" has been compiled into a book by Dr. L. M. Tomlinson, associate librarian, at Waco's Baylor University. Dr. Tomlinson was formerly with the Library of Congress. The book, desired by librarians for many years, is believed to be the first attempt at such a compilation. It is to be distributed to every major library in the United States and some in Canada, Dr. Tomlinson said.

MIRACLES POSSIBLE BY UTILIZING MUSIC

Importance of Melodies in Human Existence Stressed With Many Instances

By Dr. Edward Podolsky

It was during the retreat from Mons in the war of 1914-18. One British regiment, worn out by weeks of constant fighting, collapsed in the square of St. Quentin, too exhausted to care if they were captured. Lieutenant-General Sir "Tom" Bridges knew that the advancing German Army was just behind them. Yet it seemed impossible to rally the men, practically unconscious from fatigue.

Facing the square was a deserted toy shop. In a few minutes Sir Tom appeared, a toy drum slung about his neck and a shrill penny whistle clamped in his teeth, playing "The British Grenadiers" and "Tipperary" with gusto. He marched around the square playing for all he was worth.

Weary heads began to lift wonderingly from the cobble-stones. As the soldiers sat up, Sir Tom's trumpeter distributed the regiment's supply of mouth organs. In ten minutes the regiment, weariness forgotten, was up and playing "Tipperary." Their vigour restored, they marched away, whistling gaily and to safety.

Music can accomplish wonders in almost any situation. It can stimulate the most apathetic individual. Jung's music is being used in a New York psychiatric ward to solve the inner difficulties of so-called problem children. Dr. Lauretta Bender, psychiatrist, and Miss Franziska Boss, exponent of the modern dance, found that the use of the tom-tom, drum and gong, and other primitive musical instruments, in Bellevue Hospital, had successfully stimulated children into spontaneous dances during which many of their inner problems were solved.

It has been found that vibrations of percussion instruments provide a stimulus for overcoming inhibitions in the children and are a decided help in provoking reactions. Music thus provides an insight into the working of the child's mind and brings its conflicts to light where they may be studied and the proper readjustments made.

Also at Bellevue, Iso Briselli, violinist, gave a most interesting recital. He was playing to the inmates of the insanity ward. He had been yearning to play to such an audience since he discovered that music soothed his stricken mother when sedatives had failed. The New York Hospital Musical Committee gave him his opportunity. The performance led off a series of experiments to evaluate music's effects on the mentally unbalanced.

Under the magic of Briselli's music, the faces of Bellevue's "semi-disturbed" women assumed calmed expressions. Some swayed to the rhythm. Others tapped the time with their feet. A few sang. They were all happy. Their emotions were soothed and they felt inwardly satisfied.

A very interesting evaluation of the effects of music on the mentally unbalanced was conducted by Dr. Earl D. Bond, in Philadelphia. His patient was a young woman of 29, who suffered all sorts of aches, pains and other distressing symptoms, mostly of mental origin. She was interested in music. She was taught to sing, and to play the violin. The more interested she became in music, the greater was the improvement in her mental health and her physical condition.

After a year of musical treatment her mother wrote: "It is wonderful to see the change in a year. Instead of wandering about the house with a hot water bottle for her pains, she is busy every minute and cheerfully trying to help others." The patient herself remarked: "I am growing happy from the inside. I think I begin to manage my emotions instead of allowing a stampede of forces within. I am alive with ambition."

"Music gives one a moral uplift," is the belief of Bruno Walter, world famous conductor. Singing, he believes, is a wonderful exercise for the emotions. A community sing is a good way to get over petty troubles.

The benefits of music are by no means limited entirely to the performers. It draws the audience into the same magic circle, whether it numbers five or five thousand. They are swept away by the same wave of harmony and raised to the same emotional heights.

Under the magic of music our personalities go through a sort of dissociation which results in their fusion into a single entity. Music, carrying us away irresistibly like a powerful stream of love, breaks down the barriers that have grown around each individual. The human soul, condemned to dwell within itself as in a prison cell, is suddenly transported into the sublime regions of music, and enters into an uninhibited relationship with the rest of the universe.

Singing is always beneficial, whether done in groups or in the bathtub. Singing in the bathtub has, lately, attracted the attention of musicians, psychologists and physicists. Singing in the bathtub sounds very good because the hard surfaces reinforce even the feeblest sounds and make them sound magnificent, say the physicists. Singing in the bathtub is also good for one's ego, say the psychologists. The unrestricted expression of self increases the ego by achieving a perfect escapist outlet. Every one should sing in the bathtub. It is good for the soul.

The right music for you is the music you happen to like. If it makes you feel better to play "Just a Song at Twilight" on the piano with one finger, then you are justified in playing it. Music is a very personal thing. It can be made to help you over periods of emotional, mental and physical upheaval.

Some people forget the troubles and trials of life by playing or listening to Beethoven's "Concerto in C Major." Some enjoy a snappy overture, like "William Tell" or "Poet and Peasant." It takes no great time to find out what musical composition will work wonders for you.

Insomnia may be aided by music. Sleep may be wooed by listening to recorded musical selections. The music should be soft and lulling. It is all a matter of personal preference, and the wide selection of recorded music, at the present time available, should enable you to find the pieces you can use to woo sleep.

It has been found that music can be used with benefit every minute of the day. All over the world, in civilized as well as in barbarous countries, those who labor love to sing to soften their tasks. Among the peasants and working classes song is an habitual accompaniment to work.

From the earliest times the value of music at the dinner table was realized. It was for this reason that Epictetus called a table without music a manger; and because of the realization of this fact, musicians were considered a dining necessity and were rarely absent from the feasts and banquets of the Greeks and Romans.

Physiologists have, within recent years, evaluated the actual effects of music. These effects are real and measurable. They are distinctly beneficial. Summarized in a few sentences they are:—

1. Music may increase or decrease the rate of the heart beats.
2. It increases metabolism (the inner workings of the human body).
3. It accelerates breathing.
4. It increases or decreases muscular energy, depending upon the type of music played.
5. It has definite effects upon the mind.

BRITISH RULER AFFECTED BY CIGARETTE SHORTAGE

King George VI Cuts Down on Favorite Weed—Queen Elizabeth Quits Altogether

I.N.S.

LONDON, September 7.—King George VI, like the majority of his subjects, is today affected by the cigarette shortage in wartime Britain.

In consequence His Majesty has had to cut down on his smoking, rationing himself to 15 cigarettes a day.

The King, who in normal times smokes about 20 cigarettes a day, prefers a Turkish brand. He had a stock of them, but this is now dwindling. He buys them retail and therefore has the same difficulty in getting them as every other customer.

His Majesty smokes his first cigarette after breakfast. While going through his letters he has one or two, and always lights up another at eleven o'clock when he stops work for ten minutes to have a cup of tea.

Only privileged visitors at Buckingham Palace have seen the King enjoying a smoke during an audience. A rigid Court rule is that no one may smoke in his presence until offered a cigarette.

When Prime Minister Winston Churchill goes to lunch with His Majesty, he snuffs his cigar in an ante-room, has it replaced by the King after their meal.

Queen Elizabeth has never been a heavy smoker. Of late, however, she has stopped smoking altogether.

Army Streamlines Equines

I.N.S.

WASHINGTON, September 7.—Streamlining has reached even the Army's cavalry and artillery horses. The plodding type of draft horse is being replaced with a smaller, faster, more active mount developed by a special breeding plan from thoroughbred stock, according to the War Department. Ordinarily the Army purchases less than 2,000 horses a year, but in the past year 23,808 were bought.

NEW YORK, September 20.—An all New York World Series appeared to be "in the bag" today after those mighty club wielders from Brooklyn scored a double win over the Philadelphia Phillies, to increase their National League lead to two full games.

Eighteen thousand fans turned out at Philadelphia to watch the Dodgers down the cellar club of the senior circut by 3 to 2 and 6 to 1 scores. The two teams tangle again tomorrow.

While the Brooklyn outfit was experiencing a banner day, the Chicago cubs turned back the second place St. Louis Cards 7 to 3 and chased to the showers the great Lon Warneke.

Only seven more games remain in the Brooklyn schedule and their foes are the Phillies and the seventh place Boston Braves. St. Louis has nine games to play and its opponents include Pittsburgh and Chicago.

John Whitlow Wyatt, a lanky southerner, held the Phillies to three hits in the opener and in doing so the Dodger ace recorded his 21st win of the season. Wyatt whiffed a dozen Phillie batsmen.

Brooklyn broke into the scoring column in the fourth inning when a walk, a wild pitch and a wild throw yielded one run. They won the game in the sixth when Joe Medwick's long sacrifice fly scored Bill Herman. Before the side was retired Hal Reiser scored when Bob Bragan let Harry Lavagetto's grounder go through his legs.

In the nightcap Walt Higbe, a former Phillie, hurled four hit ball and shut out his ex-mates every inning but the third. It was Higbe's 21st win of the season. He fanned six batsmen.

Brooklyn won the game in the second frame with a three run rally resulting from two hits, three walks and a wild pitch. Fred Walker's long single brought in two of the runs. In the fifth inning Harold Reese doubled to score Dolph Camilli then Walker and Reiser singled to account for two more runs.

Chicago's Cubs pushed over a half dozen runs in the ninth inning to beat out the Cards 7 to 3.

Phil Cavarretta started the rally with a single. Dominic D'Allesandro followed with a double and Bill Nicholson drew a walk. Lou Stringer came through with a timely double and on the next play Clyde McCullough was purposely walked. He was followed by Bob Scheffing, a pinch hitter who knocked the ball out of the park.

Cincinnati's third place Reds made it two straight over the Pittsburgh Pirates taking the opener 2 to 1 and the nightcap 7 to 3.

Bucky Walters hurled the first game and was in old time form and yielded only six hits. The Reds won the game in the fourth when Vincent Dimaggio dropped Frank McCormick's fly and on the next play Lin Frey singled to score McCormick.

Paul Derringer hurled the other game and limited his foes to seven hits. The Pirates made four errors which led to their downfall.

New York's Giants also won both ends of a twin bill, downing the Boston Braves 4 to 3 and 7 to 3.

Bill Jurges scored the winning run in the opener, coming in on Bob Carpenter's single after having connected with a double. In the nightcap Nick Witek played an important role in the New York victory by socking out a homer with two mates aboard.

In the American league the New York Yanks recorded their 98th win of the season by downing the Boston Red Sox 8 to 1. Six of the Yankee runs were scored in the eighth as a result of an error, three walks, a single and Joe Gordon's homer.

The second place Chicago White Sox rallied in the ninth to beat Detroit's Tigers 4 to 3. Don Dollaway won the game by singling with the bases loaded.

Cleveland's Indians piled up an early lead to down the St. Louis Browns 6 to 2. Al Milnar was on the mound for the winners and held the Browns to six hits. Ken Keltner and Geoffrey Heath both connected with homers for the Indians.

At Washington there was a slam bang pitchers' duel in which the Senators came through with a 1 to 0 victory. Emil Leonard did the hurling for Washington and allowed four hit Wolf, a Philadelphia Rookie, held Washington to three hits but he allowed two of them in the second inning.

Jim Vernon scored the lone run of the game. He connected with a single and Jimmie Bloodworth singled to score Vernon.

ST. JOSEPH'S NINE WINS OVER SANCHU

19-Inning Thriller Staged At Yokohama Club Grounds Tuesday

In one of the best and without doubt the longest, baseball games ever played at the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club grounds, the Yokohama Third Middle School nine defeated the St. Joseph's College squad by 2 to 1 in a 19-inning thriller Tuesday afternoon.

Both teams made one run in the first inning, after which neither side could score for 17 consecutive cantos. The Sanchu boys came through with a point in the latter half of the 19th frame to gain the decision.

The standard of play was very good, very few errors being made and some fine defensive baseball being shown by both sides in the pinches. The winners used three hurlers in this pitchers' duel, while the losers used two. Young Peter Minenko was on the mound for the S.J.C. squad 16 innings before being relieved by Y. Kiyono in the 17th.

Both nines came dangerously close to scoring several times in the extra innings, but fine fielding relieved the situation each time until the fatal 18th. Sanchu almost got the winning run in the 15th, but a snappy double play by St. Joseph's retired the opposition.

Mort Cooke and George Edmondson put in a hard afternoon's work by umpiring a game which went more than twice the regulation nine innings.

The line-ups were as follows:

S. J. C.: Y. Kiyono, lf., p.; G. Minenko, 3b.; J. Smith, c.; P. Brown, c.; J. Gomes, ss.; J. Kranz, 2b.; J. Ravetta, 1b.; L. Filippoff, rf.; K. Miyagawa, cf., and P. Minenko, p., lf.

Sanchu: Sano, rf.; Yoshimi, ss.; Maeda, 1b.; Takemura, c.; Sotoyama, p.; Kanematsu, p.; Moriyasu, p., 3b.; Kurihara, lf., and Goto, cf.

of a Good Harvest) by Shinichi Azuma, "Kogen no Aki" (the Autumn on a Plateau) by Shigenori Uchiumi, and "Umi o Wataru Uta" (the Song That Traverses the Sea) by Shigenori Mizuta. The featured roles will be taken by Reiko Hatsune and Yachiyo Kasugano.

Sponsored by Ryutaro Nagai, director of the East Asia Bureau of the Imperial Rule Assistance Association, and Takejiro Otani, president of the Shochiku Theatrical Company, a reception will be given at the Toyoken restaurant at 6 p.m. tomorrow in honor of Dr. Kichizo Nakamura, who recently won a doctorate of literature by presenting a thesis under the title of "Nippon Gikyoku Gikoron" (A Study on the Technique of Japanese Drama).

Two elaborate dance programs are to be presented at the Takarazuka Gekijo and Kabukiza this week-end. The one at the Takarazuka Gekijo will consist of both Japanese and Western dances, such as "Rokudan," "Kurama Jishi," "the Beautiful Green Pasture," "Hokushu," and "Aya no Tsuzumi," which will be performed Saturday and Sunday, twice daily. The leading players will be Jusuke Hanayagi, Fukuko Sayo, Otome Amatsu, Kayoko Hanazato, Yachiyo Kasugano, Oliga Sapphire, Midori Nishizaki and Sumi Hanayaki.

At the Kabukiza, six different programs will be given tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday with a matinee on each day. The feature offerings will be "Tamagawa," "Shiokumi," "Imoseyama," "Onatsu Kyoran," "Sambaso, "Noriaibune," "Urashima," "Echigo Jishi," "Kabuki Odori," and "Wankyu." All members of the Japanese Dance Association, organized by the Shochiku Theatrical Company last spring, wil take part.

The orthodox group of the Shimpa Theatrical Company, which concluded the September performance at the Meijiza yesterday, will play at the Minamiza in Kyoto from October 1 to 14, carrying with it, its repertoire program of three plays: "Oya" (the Parents) by Chiyo Tsutsumi, "Kusa no Hana" (the Flower of the Grass' by Osuke Agi, and "Katsura Shitaji" (a geisha story, by Fuyo Oguri. After the Kyoto performance, the Shimpa will present the same program at the Misonoza in Nagoya during the latter part of October.

Members of the Toho dancing team are planning to visit French Indo-China toward the end of November for the purpose of entertaining Japanese soldiers stationed there. Though no official plans have been announced, they also are contemplating to visit Thailand as a good will mission in May next year.

Miyoe Fujikage, one of the promising dancers under the direction of Shizue Fujikage, will present her first public performance at the Hibiya Public Hall at 6:30 p.m. on October 20 when she will introduce "Taiwan no Rekishi Uta" (the Song History of Taiwan), a dance composed by herself in the form of a Japanese ballet.

Under the direction of Ichiro Miki, the Tokyo Buyoza dramatic troupe will start rehearsal soon for the presentation of the Japanese version of Peer Gynt, which is planned to be staged at the Hibiya Public Hall in the middle of December.

The Yurakuza will present a special program of music Sunday at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. when Tamaki Miura will be heard with the members of the Tokyo Symphony Orchestra playing.

Kyonosuke Hanayagi, popular dancer, will present her first solo performance at the Nippon Seinenkan, Aoyama, at 6 p.m. Sunday. Her program, consisting of nine dances, will be featured by "Chosen no Taiko" (the Drum of Chosen) and "Himatsuri no Odori" (the Dance of Fire Festival).

LAWN BOWLS TITLE WON BY SHEARER

Men's Handicap Singles Decided Tuesday Afternoon At Y.C.A.C.

A.A.F. Shearer won the men's handicap singles in the annual lawn bowls tournament of the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club on Tuesday afternoon by defeating K. F. Wiersum in the finals, 23 to 11.

Wiersum, with the heaviest handicap of minus ten, got off to a good start, but Shearer, minus nine, gradually cut down the former's lead and tied the score at nine-all. Wiersum forged ahead again with another two points, but he could not get past 11, and Shearer went on to win the prize presented by the American Association of Yokohama.

With fine weather prevailing over the weekend and the national holiday on Tuesday, a number of matches in the unfinished events were played off on these days. It is probable that most of the remaining finals will be contested this weekend, weather permitting.

Beatty and Lord

G. E. Beatty and P. H. Lord were the winners in the first match of the finals for the men's championship doubles, beating E. Dentici and K. F. Wiersum by 22 to 12 on Sunday morning. The victors of the event will be decided by a two-out-of-three games series.

The match was a close and hard fought contest most of the way. However, when Beatty and Lord were leading by 14 to 11, this pair gained five points on the next end to practically decide the issue.

Dr. M. Weidenmann and A. A. Weiss upset Beatty and Lord in the semi-finals of the men's handicap doubles on Tuesday morning by 21 to 17. The winners, starting at plus three, more than held their own in the first few ends. However, the losers hit their stride and after erasing their minus 10 handicap overhauled their opponents at 14-all.

Beatty and Lord then led 17 to 14, but Weidenmann and Weiss staged a great rally at this point. Weiss, skip of the winners, carried the jack on two of the remaining ends with his last wood when his opponents were lying, to gain points. With the score 18 to 17 in the victors' favor and the opposition lying one an inch from the jack, Weiss's last shot carried it back to give them three points and game. Weidenmann and Weiss will meet C. W. Grant and R. G. Hill (scratch) in the finals.

Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Russell (minus three) were in good form to beat Miss J. da Silva and P. H. Kipp (scratch) by 22 to 17 in the semi-finals of the mixed doubles handicap Tuesday afternoon.

Opponents Regain Advantage

This contest was very close for two-thirds of the way, but when Miss da Silva and Kipp were leading, 14 to 13, their opponents regained the advantage and were never headed from then on. Mr. and Mrs. Russell will meet Miss T. Planas and G. E. Beatty (minus twelve) in the finals.

Two international matches were played, Canada beating America by 28 to 10 and the Born-in-Japan squad also taking the measure of the Americans by 22 to 8.

In the former match on Saturday afternoon, the winners consisted of G. E. Beatty, S. Healey, B. G. Ryan and C. Heseltine (skip), while the U.S.A. was represented by J. Blum, J. Pennybacker, C. V. Grant and R. G. Hill (skip).

Playing against the same American quartet for the B-I-J squad were S. Stephens, F. J. da Silva, F. R. Harriss and P. H. Lord (skip)

The U.S.A. team, which has been weakened considerably due to the loss of F. R. Devin and H. B. Street, is now eliminated from the tournament due to these two defeats.

The Canadian quartet is the only one which remains unbeaten this season, but with S. Healey and B. G. Ryan scheduled to leave Yokohama this week, the squad will be without two valuable players whose loss may prove irreparable.

Another mixed doubles fixture Saturday afternoon was the quarter-finals match between Miss J. da Silva and P. H. Kipp (scratch) against Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Lloyd (minus seven), with the former pair winning by 22 to 10. The winners played well to defeat their more experienced and dangerous opponents.

K. F. Wiersum (minus 10) defeated P. H. Kipp (scratch)) in the semi-finals of the men's handicap singles on Sunday afternoon by 21 to 7. Kipp started very well but lost his touch about the middle of the match and this lapse proved disastrous, last year's champion piling up 16 points in rapid succession at this stage to practically decide the issue.

A summary of the matches follows:

Men's Handicap Singles

K. F. Wiersum (minus ten) beat P. H. Kipp (scratch) by 21 to 7 (semi-finals).

A. A. F. Shearer (minus nine) beat K. F. Wiersum (minus ten) by 23 to 11 finals).

Men's Championship Doubles

G. E. Beatty and P. H. Lord beat E. Dentici and K. F. Wiersum by 22 to 12 (finals). First match of two-out-of-three series.

Men's Handicap Doubles

Dr. M. Weidenmann and A. A. Weiss (plus three) beat G. E. Beatty and P. H. Lord (minus ten) by 21 to 17 (semi-finals).

Mixed Doubles Handicap

Miss J. da Silva and P. H. Kipp (scratch) beat Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Lloyd (minus seven) by 22 to 10 (quarter-finals).

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Russell (minus three) beat Miss J. da Silva and P. H Kipp (scratch) by 22 to 17 (semi-finals).

International Tournament

Born-in-Japan beat America by 22 to 8.
Canada beat America by 28 to 10.

SILK HOSE INDUSTRY IN U.S. QUITE RECENT

Only One Woman Out of 2,000 Wore Them at Beginning of Present Century

Substitutes for silk stockings, proposed to relieve the current silk shortage, have aroused memories of candy-striped cotton hose of the Gibson Girl era, and the lisle hose with lace insets worn in the Gay Nineties. Silk stockings for general wear, in fact, are relatively a new development on the American scene, says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society.

When the United States entered the 20th century, approximately one woman out of 2,000 wore silk stockings. While dresses remained long, the supply of silk hose stayed short. In 1899, when ruffled skirts swept the side walks, the total American output of silk stockings was 12,572 dozen pairs. These, distributed among the country's more than 24 million womenfolk 15 years old or over, would give one pair a month to but one fortunate female in nearly 2,000. A silk stocking was then less a utility than a luxurious decoration, possibly embroidered in a dainty blue forget-me-not pattern with garlands of green leaves.

Even in 1909, when feminine ankles began to make a few public appearances the American silk stocking industry turned out only 434,000 dozen pairs, not enough for two per cent of the women (if they made each pair last a month).

But the slit and hobbled skirt of 1914, ushering in the new brevity of World War fashions, opened in earnest the era of the silken limb. The stocking output was more than five times as great as five years before. Many of these, while shins were still shy and half-concealed, were silk for only half their length, with cotton tops.

Huge Quantities Produced

The diminishing skirt through post-War decades increased both the silk hosiery output and the amount of silk in each stocking, to sheathe the ladies in silk for the lengthening interval between hem and heel. The 1939 production, before nylon hose entered the 1940 picture, was 640,486,000 pairs, counting both full-fashioned and seamless.

Another striking change in the silk stocking industry is the customer shift—from men to women. In America's Colonial days of powdered wigs, candlelight, and duels, silk stockings were most in evidence as masculine finery. Wealthy colonists, with their short knee-breeches and long ripple-tail coats, copied the English fashion of red or blue silk hose with clocks embroidered in gold or silver thread. A pair of clocked stockings might cost them twice as much as a coat. Portraits attest the popularity of white silk hose with George Washington and other Revolutionary founding fathers. Meanwhile, a record of Martha Washington's order for new clothes from England shows that she thriftily used only one pair of silk hose to 10 of cotton. But the ladies of that period evened things up by wearing silk shoes.

The long-trousered 19th century and its daring new masculine costume known as "pantaloons" brought decades of almost total eclipse to the silk stocking. Seventy years ago the United States imported only $30,000 worth, and manufactured approximately none. As late as 1879, American industry's chief bid for silk stocking trade was silk thread on spools, which was recommended to ladies for knitting hose to present to their favorite clergyman.

Franklin Pushed Industry

Although Ipswich, Massachusetts, claims to have operated the nation's first knitting machines, in the 1820's, Pennsylvania became the center of the vast stocking industry that developed from a silk thread. In 1899 the steel fingers of Pennsylvania mills knitted half the small American output of silk stockings, in 1909 a third. This State, where Benjamin Franklin sponsored an early interest in silk, still has the largest percentage of the country's 1,000 hosiery mills.

The distinctive process of the stocking industry is the "throwing" of silk thread, named from an old Anglo-Saxon word meaning "twist." The twisting transforms a delicate spider-webby strand of natural silk into a miniature cable of many strands, strong enough to stand the handling of high-speed machines and the wear of energetic women. Raw silk reaches the throwster in skeins of long threads, each thread consisting of the filaments from four or five cocoons reeled together for strength. The throwster combines two, three, four, or more of these threads by twisting them together cable-fashion, much as the rope-maker works with his coarser fiber.

"Thrown" silk varies in surface texture and durability according to the number of twists to the inch, and the direction of the twist. A low-twist silk of two threads, with five turns to the inch, may be more lustrous but less lasting than a high-twist three-thread silk with 20 turns per inch. The dull-finish, durable crepe twist is especially complicated: each single thread receives a given number of twists before being combined with another thread and twisted in the opposite direction. A two-thread crepe twist may have a total of 100 turns to the inch.

From the throwster the silk goes to the knitting machines, to be shaped into stockings before being dyed. The number of mechanical knitting needles working on each 1½ inch of the hose determines the stocking's fineness, or gauge. Popular gauges are now produced with 45 or 51 needles per 1½ inch, in contrast with the 8 loops per inch of the earlier days.

Record Reviews

Debussy: "Prelude a l'apres-midi d'un faune," by the London Philharmonic Orchestra under Sir Thomas Beecham. (Columbia light-blue, 12-inch, JW 638.)

An impressionist piece such as this may not captivate everybody, but there are few music lovers who do not find a good part of Debussy's art refreshing and stimulating. This Prelude was composed during the years 1892-94 and first performed (in Paris) in 1894. The music was suggested by an Eclogue by the poet Stephane Mallarme. (There are translations into English by Edmund Gosse and Aldous Huxley and the poem inspired the French artist Manet to illustrate the subject.)

Debussy describes his music as a very free illustration of "the successive scenes in which the longings and desires of the faun pass into the heat of the afternoon". The faun, "a simple, sensuous, passionate being," wonders vaguely what were his experiences with the nymphs, or whether they were real at all. "The sun is warm, the grasses yielding; and he curls himself up again, after worshipping the efficacious star of wine . . ."

In spite of the wonderful evocative power of this composition, it should be listened to as pure music. This Beecham recording is the best of several that have been made in recent years. Both conducting and recording contrive to reveal many delicate touches that were obscured in earlier versions. The tone of every instrument has its full value—the rippling of the harp, the oboe's nostalgia, the fluttering of the muted strings, and the color of the muted horn. The impression of sinking gradually into oblivion at the close is conveyed with languorous effect. The spell is woven with great skill and taste, and the result is pure beauty.

Orpheus: Opera by Christoph Willibald Gluck; original libretto in Italian by Calzabagi. French version by Moline. An abbreviated version on eight 12-inch records. Columbia JS 130-137, sung in French and issued with album and booklet.

Cast

Orpheus (contralto) .....Alice Raveau
Eurydice (soprano)...Germaine Feraldy
Cupid (soprano).....Jany Delille
Chorus...The d'Alexis Vlassoff Russian Choir
Conductor .....Henri Tomasi
Orchestra....L'Orchestre Symphonique de Paris

We must be grateful to the Columbia Company for issuing this album of records. American and European residents in Japan are compelled to rely upon recorded versions for opera, and issues of complete or even abridged works have been few in recent years.

Gluck's "Orfeo ad Euridice" (on the labels translated and abbreviated to "Orpheus") was the composer's twenty-first serious opera, written when he was 48. The story is based on the legend in Virgil's "Georgics." It was first produced in Italian in 1762, the French version coming two years later.

About three-quarters of the work is represented on these records and the cuts have been well managed. The part of Orpheus was originally written for a male contralto (à castrato), but is now usually sung by a woman. Alice Raveau, who takes the part in this recording, achieves real vocal triumphs. Her lovely, even contralto voice is a joy to listen to. Without exaggeration, without ever departing from pure, clean vocal tone, she portrays the feelings of the unhappy Orpheus with superb skill. She has a fine conception of the role, and its execution is marked by beauty of phrasing and purity of enunciation.

Germaine Feraldy sings the part of Eurydice extremely well, and Jany Delille's light soprano suits the part of a saucy Cupid. The d'Alexis Vlassoff Russian Choir provide a satisfactory chorus, the musical direction of Henri Tomasi shows love and understanding of the work, and the recording throughout is on a high level.

Ravel: Three Songs for unaccompanied Mixed Chorus: (1) "Nicolette," (2) "Ronde," (3) "Trois beaux oiseaux de Paradis," sung in French by the Lyons Mixed Chorus, conducted by Leon Viettl. (Columbia light-blue, 12-inch, JW 639.)

These songs were written in 1916 and their recorded appearance after 25 years is proof that they have an enduring value. They are the work of a consummate craftsman and are varied, interesting and spirited compositions, colored with beautiful harmonies. The Lyons Choir sings them faultlessly and with evident enjoyment. The recording is excellent and completes our satisfaction with this most attractive disc. To those in search of something out of the way in music, this group of songs may be warmly recommended.

Mozart: String Quartet in C Major (K 465), played by the Capet String Quartet and issued for the Capet Society; four 12-inch records (Columbia S 1079-82).

One record for the first movement, Allegro; one record for the second movement, Andante Cantabile; one side and part of another for the third movement, Allegretto; two sides and part of a third for the Finale.

This is one of the most famous of Mozart's quartets. It is one of the six which were Mozart's first published works for this combination of instruments, and which he dedicated to Haydn. The Capet Quartet give us reticent and dignified playing which brings out the logic of the music. Other players may provide more obvious emotion and greater excitement but this is a recording which will appeal more and more at each hearing.

These are Society records and it is probable that the Capet playing with appeal chiefly to connoisseurs. The majority of those interested in chamber music will prefer the livelier and more emotional readings of such players as those of the Lener and Budapest Quartets.

Tschaikowsky: Casse-Noisette Suite, by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra under Frederick Stock; three 12-inch records (Columbia JS 146-148).

This music in its original form was a fairy ballet in 14 numbers (1892). It is based on the story of "The Nutcrackers and the Mouse King." A little girl receives a silver nutcracker as a Christmas present. After her party she slips out of bed to look at it again. It is midnight and the toys come to life. Gingerbread soldiers from the Christmas tree fight a battle with the mice; the Nutcracker fights the King of the Mice and is nearly beaten when the little girl comes to the rescue with a slipper and beats down the Mouse. The Nutcracker turns into a Fairy Prince who carries off the little girl to be his Fairy Princess in his real of Sugar Plums. The dances in the Suite are the revels in this land of confectionery. With the final waltz the flowers magically grow and grow until they cover everything, whereupon the little girl wakes up.

The first disc contains the Overture and the Russian Trepak dance on one side and the Dance of Sugar-Plum Fairy on the other. The second disc contains the Arab Dance, the Chinese Dance and the Dance of the Flutes (or Reed-pipes). The third disc has the Waltz of the Flowers.

Frederick Stock has been with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra since 1901. Forty years of cooperation have resulted in a perfect understanding between conductor and players. The recording is a smooth, satisfactory performance. This is an excellent specimen of light classical music and a good introduction for children to the pleasures that may be obtained from orchestral works. The records should be valuable in schools for music appreciation classes. For the rest there can be few works more suitable for the afternoon tea hour.

IMAGINARY SICKNESS SAID NON-EXISTENT

If You Think You're Sick, Then You're Sick, Says Medico

I.N.S

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, PALO ALTO, California, August 27.—If you think you're sick, you are sick. There is no such thing as an imaginary ailment.

That was the opinion expressed by Dr. Herman Chor, of Northwestern University, before the American Physiotherapy Association Convention.

Even a person who doesn't think he is ill, but merely fears that he may become ill should be considered a sick person, Dr. Chor said. He explained that any person believing himself sick must be having sensations which to him are unexplainable. He often may be wrong in diagnosing these sensations as denoting heart trouble, tuberculosis or some other illness, but the sensations are there nevertheless and should be treated, the physician said.

"Such a patient must never be told he's just imagining the whole thing and to go home and forget about it," Dr. Chor said.

The patient's sensations, he reported, often are caused by actual chemical changes in the body resulting from an emotion such as happiness, fear or frustration. He pointed out that experiments have shown that an injection of the hormone adrenalin can produce the same physical symptoms as those of fear.

"Many cases of these so-called imaginary illnesses are due to the patient's failure to meet the three chief problems of life—making a living, getting along with people, and marriage," Dr. Chor stated.

"When people fail to meet one or more of these problems, when they are defeated, they often indulge in this flight into illness. They don't sit down and decide to get sick. I don't think anyone actually wants to be ill, but it happens subconsciously.

"Normal persons have a natural resistance to this, just as some people have resistance to certain infections. Some persons, however, have no defense against the problems of modern life.

"They may be thoroughly careless, continually day dreaming and indulging in fantasy. They usually are the people who are always cutting themselves with can openers, constantly tripping on curbs, breaking bones, or getting hit by automobiles.

"They may drift into alcoholism or crime. They may even attempt suicide.

"Just as crime should be stopped by education rather than punishment, so these psychological conflicts should be avoided by teaching, especially by teaching children how to solve the problems they will have to meet for the rest of their lives.

"It is particularly dangerous to give children the idea that anyone will live happily ever after. Nobody does that and the sooner children learn it, the better they will get along."

Soviet Atheism Declining Before Country's Defense

tellects hunger for something more than the meager fare of "dialectical materialism." The purge had clearly disclosed to them the necessity for basing love, loyalty, justice, honesty, and all the basic ethical concepts of human society on something more than "class interest."

Marxism having incorporated 19th century materialism, had equally rejected the universal divine intelligence with its metaphysical basis of morality. For these it arbitrarily substituted class interest as the universal criterion of human conduct—in terms of which all actions were to be justified or condemned. From the Marxist standpoint there never had been nor would be any morality save class morality, any justice save class justice. Proletarian morality and proletarian justice had nothing in common with bourgeois morality and bourgeois justice.

At the same time, from Hegelian idealism Marxism had borrowed the dialectic—and with it the idea of universal and human progress—a metaphysical principle founded on the existence of the absolute good and truth which Marxism professed to repudiate.

Crusaders for Better World

In practise both Marx and Lenin—crusaders for a better world—were concepts of absolute good and absolute justice which they philosophically denied.

By the same token, the Soviet system, after various experiments was forced to retain and confirm concepts which were first scoffed at and repudiated as "bourgeois morality"—viz., the case of the family.

Efforts to base policy on ruthless class interest untempered by mercy caused untold suffering and early ended in general disaster. Efforts to use terror and coercion as substitutes for good will and loyal had similar effects.

Gradually all the old terms of love, kindness, justice, honesty, and righteousness were empirically restored to the lexicon, albeit grudgingly, through the back door.

It is the need for reconciling outworn theory with present reality that has launched a section of Russian youth on a quest of "bogoiskatelstvo" or God-seeking as it is called—after that strong mystic strain in Gorky's makeup that Lenin so deplored.

Today, like other rulers and regimes before them from the Emperors of Rome to the Jacobins, the Soviets have demonstrated the fallacy of claiming for Caesar the things that are God's.

water at meals because they have been told it causes indigestion.

"They never dare let go of themselves and have a good time for fear they may overdo. The real root of all their misery is their state of mind. If they only knew how to get at that, they would become as well as the best of us."

Dr. Flynn advises every man who finds himself becoming extremely busy to check up on his activity and see if he should not stop doing some things. The overbusy man can't be doing all things well, and some of the things he is doing he should not be doing at all. Looking back later, he will find they got him nowhere.

"As a matter of fact," he says, "many of the laziest people in the world are the busiest. They substitute activity for thought. It is certain that those who develop many diseases in life are victims of overactivity, early nervous breakdowns and early decay of the vascular system being the penalty."

Worry and nerve strain are branded by Dr. Flynn as "the definite factors which use up the inherent vitality with which we are endowed at birth." "Sensible men and women will try to avoid them, while, in the other direction, they will seek a reasonable amount of diversion and happiness," he declares.

By adopting the right attitude toward life any individual can, in Dr. Flynn's belief, overcome to some extent any lack of inherited longevity and can individually share in the increased longevity of the population as a whole.

NEW YORK, September 22.—With only four more games to play the Brooklyn Dodgers tonight held a game and a half lead in the National League pennant race. Brooklyn, making their farewell appearance at Philadelphia today, picked up a half game on the Idle St. Louis Cards when they blanked the Phillies 5 to 0.

The Cards, with seven more games on their schedule, take on the tough Pittsburgh Pirates tomorrow while Leo Durocher' Dodgers tangle with the seventh place Boston Braves. Dodgers by winning all four games are assured at least of a tie in the National League.

Largely responsible for Brooklyn's win was lanky Curt Davis who turned the Phillies back with half a dozen hits and kept the blows well scattered.

Brooklyn nicked two Philadelphia hurlers for eight hits and scored one run in the second and four more in the sixth frame.

In the only other senior circuit play, New York and Boston split a twin bill with the Giants taking the opener, 5 to 3, and Boston winning the second half of the bargain day bill, 2 to 1.

Carl Hubbell was on the hill for New York in the first game. He was nicked for nine hits but came through with flying colors even though his mates made four errors.

Though badly outhit, the Braves came from behind to tie the score in the eighth and then push over the deciding counter in the ninth, frame.

Only two games were played in the American League today and both of them were shutouts. Detroit's Tigers went into a tie for fourth place when they trounced the Chicago White Sox 11 to 0. Detroit scored in five different innings and their biggest rally was in the fourth when four runners crossed the plate.

Alton Benton and Luther Thomas handled the the mound assignment for Detroit and allowed six hits, while three Chicago hurlers were touched for 18 safeties.

Behind John Niggelling's seven hit hurling the St. Louis Browns blanked the faltering Cleveland Indians 5 to 0.

The Browns piled up a four run lead in the first inning and then added another score in the third. In downing the Indians the Browns chased Bob Feller to the showers.

a richman who knows not how on earth he can exist even a single day without money, or who would rather die if he were to live in debt.

Fear of no Money

I used to know a man who kept a printer's shop and who lived a very ecouomical, almost pinched life, neither smoking nor drinking nor usmg any mode of progression more expensive than the city tram, whom I was wont to treat whenever we had occasion to eat together. He died in the early forties, and then I found he had been saving a considerable sum of money and that he had never allowed himself to take a step out of his house without having buried deep in his bosom a thick pocketbook containing ¥1,000 or more. He was, I am now convinced, a species of maniac, having an insurmountable fear and cowardice of moneylessness. To him money was as needful as the two swords to the old samurai—not for use necessarily but as a badge, so to speak, of his spiritual preparedness. He was wont to say to his wife, the only soul who knew his secret, that "anything may happen to him anywhere."

Suppose he were found dead or his dead body discovered with no money on him, his body might be disposed of as that of a common homeless beggar. (To be sure, there appears in the newspapers sometimes a paragraph that an unidentified dead body was discovered at such and such a place, awaiting the claim of his relatives or friends, or that such a body had to be buried in the common unidentified-dead-cemetery somewhere.) Anything indeed might happen to a man who always carried so much money. I thought his was an extraordinary and singular story, but I have lived to find his case was by no means so rare. His ruling characteristic was not meanness, it was hysterical fear of moneylessness, arising from the fact that he had no confidence in the kindliness of human nature. Many people there are, tormented night and day with the same obsession—anything may happen any time.

College of the Sea Library, London, Is Popular With Sailors of Britain

Despite strenuous war conditions seamen want good literature and textbooks for study to fill their off-duty spells. This is the experience of the British seafarers' university, the "College of the Sea" which reports it has doubled its activities in the year 1940-41, says a London report to The Christian Science Monitor.

Nearly 400 men in the Royal Navy and Merchant Service asked for the loan of books or advice on study during the year. Of these 128 enrolled for postal courses of study under a "College" tutor.

Founded in 1939 by the Seafarers' Service to give seamen the benefits of university education for nominal fees, the College has received what it terms a "magnificent" response from university and other professional men and women, experts in many subjects, who have offered their services as tutors.

English language and literature, mathematics, French, German, and Spanish are the most popular courses, but art, speech-training, philosophy, shorthand, building, history, swimming, cookery, and photography are on the long list of interests and hobbies which seamen want to know more about.

The College does not attempt to train seafarers in subject required for the deck, engineering, catering or radio departments.

The Admiralty supports and encourages the work. The cooperation of naval schoolmasters, it is stated, has been invaluable. Though a number of advanced students—some undergraduates in the Navy only for the duration of the war—have received the help of the university authorities, the majority of the students are men and boys who wish to continue their school education and widen their knowledge and interests.

The service is available to a certain extent even if a seaman is made prisoner. For the College is represented on the Red Cross Educational Book Committee for Prisoners of War and has been responsible for dispatching, and in most cases choosing, more than 200 books for seamen prisoners who wish to study technical or cultural subjects.

The "College" is only part of the work of the rapidly growing Seafarers Education Service. With war conditions making it necessary for most sailors to work under great pressure, the Sea War Library service is an important branch of the activities. Since its inauguration in September, 1939, more than 105,000 books and magazines have been distributed to 4,000 ships in the Merchant Navy.

Among the many friends who have helped to make this work possible are the Carnegie United Kingdom Trust and the Rockefeller Foundation of the United States. The Trust gave a timely grant of £500 for new books when a fire-bomb destroyed a number of the books at headquarters, while the Rockeller Foundation, through the agency of the American Library Association has contributed many hundreds of books and magazines.

Another notable gift during the year was that of £500 from the Viceroy of India.

The Seafarers' Education Service, apart from its war library scheme, also supplies up-to-date libraries to the crews of 555 ships owned by 46 companies. Shipowners pay for the service. Seven shore libraries for use of seamen are also maintained. It promotes interest in literature and handicrafts through prize competitions and, in conjunction with the Royal Society of Arts, organizes scholarships to enable deck boys and young seamen of special promise to rise to officer rank.

who declare that Oriental painting directly influenced Italy as there was considerable intercourse between China and Italy.

Home of Fresco

In the present day when Europe has forgotten the line drawing technique, Ambassador Auriti showed good understanding of Japanese art, proving the strong tradition of Italy, the home of fresco.

But the present day Japanese painting is formed of the classic Japanese painting and the oil painting which has become world painting in the modern age. This appears to be a strange development, but when it is fully studied, it tells how Japan has adopted the spirit of oil painting, while still retaining the classic technique of water color. In other words, one sense of beauty that came since the Byzantine days and blossomed in the Italian Renaissance for the last time is now shown by Japanese painting, it can be said. On the other hand, Japanese painting is touching the realistic world painting by the adoption of oil painting, which is another school of sense of beauty on which the present European painting is founded. Thus it can be said that the present Japanese painting is giving an important hint on the basic problem that the modern world painting is now facing.

As its proof, the Japanese people can now point out with pride the reputation of Tsuguji Fujita in Europe. The success of Fujita is recognized to have been the skilful application of Japanese line drawing and the black and white contrast to oil painting. If that was a great success in the history of world painting, it can be said that the strange condition of present Japanese painting should be noted with greater attention and better appreciated.

But often when foreigners look at Japanese paintings of classic technique, there is a tendency to regard them as exotic objects. Then there is a trend of trying to meet such attitude of foreigners. The Japanese are purposely avoiding to show Japanese oil paintings to foreign countries. The foreigners' attitude to Japanese painting is their failure to recognize their own classics that no longer exist. Then the attitude of the Japanese is that of forgetting their own actuality. That is to say, foreigners have forgotten the Byzantine and Italy, while Japanese have forgotten Fujita.

The problem is to make Japanese paintings the objective for the understanding and thought of the whole world, and not the objective of toying The present volume is a collection of Japanese paintings of both water color and oil, for introducing to the world the exhibition held in honor of the 2600th year of the Empire. It is a timely publication. As Director Yashiro said in his preface, the works contained in the volume are not all works of first rate artists of Japan today. But it is a convenient catalogue to grasp the modern tendency of Japanese painting. It is regrettable that paintings shown in color printing are few, as for Japanese painting the tone of the coloring is the most important element just as in fresco.

BRITISH ARMY OFFICER GETS 2 YEARS IN JAIL

Captain Sir Herbert Paul Latham Court-Martialed for Disgraceful Acts

Reuters

LONDON, September 24.—Captain Sir Herbert Paul Latham, aged 36, former member of Parliament for Scarborough and Whitby, who was recently tried by court-martial has been sentenced to be cashiered and imprisoned for two years without hard labor.

Latham, who had been attached to a searchlight regiment of the Royal Artillery, had been found guilty on 11 charges under the Army Act, 10 of them alleging disgraceful conduct of an improper kind while on active service, and the eleventh attempted suicide.

Latham had pleaded not guilty to a total of 14 charges, on three of which he was found not guilty.

THREE GAMES SET AT Y.C.A.C. GROUNDS

Tennis Enthusiasts Will Turn Out for Fall Tourney Practice

Cricket, baseball and lawn bowls games will comprise the weekend program at the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club this weekend.

Tennis enthusiasts are expected to be out in force today and Sunday for their final practices for the autumn tennis tournament which will get under way next week. With a number of prospective entrants for the tourney having been in Kobe last weekend for the baseball and ladies' softball interport games, the club tennis committee has decided to leave the entry lists open until Sunday evening, with the drawings and handicapping to be made on Monday.

This afternoon the last intra-club cricket match will be played. The single men will have their last opportunity to try for a victory against the married members in a game scheduled for 2 p.m. The Y. C. and A. C. is now making arrangements to play against the British Embassy eleven on Sunday, October 5, in an all-day match, which, if it materializes, will be the last game of the year.

Will Play St. Joseph's

The club's baseball team will play the St. Joseph's College nine on Sunday at 3 p.m. The students will be strengthened by their alumni battery of J. Brown and W. Jones, who in the two previous encounters this season were a big factor in their gaining victories over the Y. C. and A. C. players. The club men are expected to be at full strength in an effort to turn the tables this time.

The ladies' softball team, which won its interport match in Kobe against the K. R. and A. C. nine last week, will not rest on its laurels and will have a game with a non-club nine at 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

Three finals in the lawn bowls tournament will be played this weekend.

G. E. Beatty and P. H. Lord will meet E. Dentici and K. F. Wiersum in the second match of the men's championship doubles finals today at 3 p.m. The former pair won the first tilt of the two-out-of-three series last Sunday. Should Dentici and Wiersum win today's game, the deciding match will be played on Sunday.

Dr. M. Weidenmann and A. A. Weiss (plus three) will play against C. V. Grant and R. G. Hill (scratch) in the finals of the men's handicap doubles at 2:45 p.m. today.

On Sunday afternoon it is expected that Miss T. Planas and G. E. Beatty (minus twelve) will meet Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Russell (minus three) in the finals of the mixed doubles handicap.

The summary of events and line-ups are as follows:

'Lost Column' in London May Have to Stay Till Conflict Is Finally Ended

By Charles A. Smith

LONDON, September 10.—There's an American "Lost Column" in London.

It has about 1,500 members and is composed of those Americans who have been here since the war started and cannot get home.

The fault lies with the Neutrality Act, under which Americans cannot cross the ocean in a belligerent (British) vessel. And since no American vessels touch at British ports any more, it looks as though the 1,500 will be staying here until the end of the war. Most of them feel sore about it, but the American Embassy and Consulate are adamant.

When Joseph P. Kennedy was here as Ambassador he took a serious view of the situation and gave all Americans here, in July and August 1939, a warning that if they didn't travel home in two vessels being specially sent across, they would be here for the duration of the war.

Despite the fact that about 2,000 Americans in Britain elected to remain here, there wasn't enough space on the American vessels for all those who did want to go, and fully 1,500 were compelled to remain.

Business Americans, such as bank managers, have taken root in English soil and but for the war would want to remain until the time comes for them to retire. But most of them have families in the United States, which they haven't in some cases seen for more than two years. For this reason they look on the present situation as a rather grim one.

Many of the more wealthy Americans have from time to time tried to get Government priority places on the plane to Lisbon and on the Clipper from Lisbon to New York. But plane seats are reserved today almost exclusively for those on urgent war work. Only those with terrific pull can get a seat if they are not employed on war work for either Britain or America.

Some of the Americans have offered to work their way across the Atlantic as members of the crew of vessels in convoy. But each time they come up against the State Department's veto on traveling in a belligerent vessel.

Most of them, in conversation, seem to feel the only chance they have of getting home is for the United States to come into the war.

man admirer of the tropical empire who started in Frankfort on-the-Main, crossing the ocean by air.

We accompany the writer in his trip from Rio de Janeiro to the farms of serpents, where unknown sicknesses are to be investigated and famous serums produced. We travel to the northern half, the great heavily wooded basin of the Amazon, the longest river in the world. We hear some interesting stories of the coffee which comprehends 69 per cent of the world's supply. As the author introduced often the representatives of strong Brazilian nationalism, we get first-hand informations concerning the real attitude of the inhabitants toward the great problems of the day. Although the population of 45 millions is entirely insufficient to augment the comparatively little developed mineral wealth or to cultivate a greater part of the rich agricultural land, Brazil is closing its borders to new emigrants.

Japanese in Brazil

Especially interesting is what the attentive author has to refer in relation to the Japanese living in Brazil. They have gained a dominant position by their commercial activity as well as by their absolute diligence promoted by a representative collaboration. As political disagreement and complications are unthinkable between Japan and Brazil, which might endanger the friendly relations existing since many years, the intensification of these relations would not be so difficult.

Of course, some misconceptions on Japan are to be corrected. The best way for it is the sending of goodwill missions which would have to spread a better knowledge of Far Eastern problem. A kind of preparatory work was done already by the "Oriental Culture Society" in Tokyo, headed by Kaju Nakamura, whose name is in great esteem in Brazilian circles. Due to all the reasons mentioned above Japanese can be sure of deepening of the cultural as well as economic relations in future.

Under such circumstances, the European literature on Brazil, manifold and unequal in importance, ought to be studied earnestly, because books like this written by Mr. Hoffmann-Harnisch, are valuable by the abundance of news, knowledge and suggestions necessary for any intrinsical study of the rising continent of South America.

Wilhelmstrasse Decries British Propaganda Reporting Difficulty

Transocean

BERLIN, September 22.—"British propaganda in which the wish was father to the thought" was the way the Wilhelmstrasse spokesman today characterized the British reports that difficulties had arisen in the German-Turkish trade negotiations presently being conducted at Ankara by Reichs Minister Dr. Carl Clodius.

He added that German quarters had heard nothing of any such difficulties as the British claimed had arisen.

Music Notes

Popular musical entertainments strike again the keynote of musical activities in Tokyo for the remaining few days of this month. October will be ushered in with a large number of recitals, chiefly by vocalists and pianists, many of them with programs of outstanding artistic merit and interest.

Madam Tamaki Miura, the popular opera and concert soprano, will appear in a concert with the Tokyo Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Professor Manfred Gurlitt, at the Yuraku Theater, 2 and 7 p.m. today. The orchestra will open the program with Beethoven's Sixth Symphony, "Pastorale."

Assisted at the piano by Miss Sonoko Tanaka, Madam Miura will then sing lieder, airs, and songs in French, German, Italian, and Japanese, by Chausson, Mendelssohn, Bach, Paisiello, Takakura, and other composers.

In the last part, the singer will be heard with the accompaniment of the orchestra, in operatic selections from Offenbach's "Tales of Hoffmann," Bizet's "Carmen," Rossini's "William Tell," and Puccini's "Madam Butterfly."

The Kyoyukai Light Music Club is sponsoring its second "Light Music Evening for Everybody," 6:30 p.m. today, at the Gunjin Kaikan. Among the attractions are a guitar duet composed by Takashi Tsunoda and "Bucky" Shirakata; Hiroshi Goto and his "Dexilanders;" Mitsu Toyama, Sachio Koizumi, and their Tango Ensemble; Toyosaburo Yamaguchi and Hiroshi Goto in a "wash-board and trumpet swing duet;" Siro Omi, Polydor singer, and Matashi Taniguchi with his band.

Keinosuke Hanayagi will offer his first ballet recital at the Nihon Seinenkan, 1 p.m. today, presenting classical Japanese as well as modern Western style numbers. The Japanese dances will be accompanied by Nagauta and Narimono, and the Western dances by musical selections from Tchaikovski Rimsky-Korssakov, Chopin, and De-Falla. Todoku Takagi, composer-pianist, is in charge of the musical arrangements, assisted by K. Yoshida, cellist.

The trend leading away from the "girls opera", which has been suffering from waning popularity, to the development of pure music and dance programs, is manifested in two special entertainments announced for today, almost on completely parallel lines, by both the Toho and the Shochiku theatrical companies.

"First Schochiku Grand Meet to Healthy Popular Music", is the slogan of a program to be given at the Tokyo Gekijo, 1 and 6 p.m. today, with the participation of a large number of well known artists in the field of light music. Among the singers to appear in the event are Taro Shoji, Isao Hayashi, Miss Midori Shimbashi, Miss Nobuko Tanida, Miss Chitaka Fujiwara, Miss Sagiri Akino, Hisao Ito, and Tadaharu Nakano. Several light musical bands and other attractions round off the program.

Simultaneously, the Toho Theatrical Company is announcing its "First Toho Ballet Grand Meet", to be held at the Tokyo Takarazuka Theater, noon and 5 p.m. today, featuring classical and modern ballet performances, Japanese folk dances, and interpretations of Chosenese, Loo-Choo, and Western dances. Musical accompaniments will be both in Japanese style (Kyomoto, Nagauta) and in Western style (orchestra).

Among the dancers appearing are Jusuke Hanayagi, Miss Sumi Hanayagi, and other members of the Hanayagi school; Miss Renko Mitsuhashi, Miss Olga Saffaya, and other members of the Toho Ballet; Miss Kayoko Kumono, Miss Fukuko Sayo, Miss Yachio Kasugano, Miss Otome Amatsu, and other members of the former Takarazuka Girls Opera Company; Miss Midori Nishizaki, Miss Keiko Suda, and other well-known dancers.

Orchestra accompaniments will be played by the Toho Orchestra.

Tadashi Osanai, accordionist, and his Music Ensemble are featured in an "Autumn Light Music Festival" sponsored by the Tokyo Light Music Amateur Club, 6:30 p.m. Monday, at the Hibiya Public Hall. Other artists to appear on the program include Tamaki Tokuyama, baritone, accompanying himself at the piano in vocal numbers; Katsuhiko Haida, Hawaiian guitar, leading his Moana Glee Club, and a French Accordion Orchestra.

The first solo recital of the season has been announced by Miss Shigeko Kaneko, piano, for Thursday, October 2, 7 p.m., at the Nihon Seinenkan. She will present an all-Chopin program, consisting of Phantasia in f minor, Opus 49; Sonata in B flat minor, Opus 35; Twenty-Four Preludes, Opus 28; and Three Mazurcas, Opus 24 No. 4, in B flat minor; Opus 41 No. 1 in C sharp minor; and Opus 33 No. 2, in D major.

Tamotsu Kinoshita, tenor, of the Tokyo Academy of Music, whose annual vocal recitals have been outstanding vocal events of the season for several years on account of his unusually artistic choice of programs, will hold his Ninth Vocal Recital at the Nihon Seinenkan, 7:30 p.m. Sunday, October 5. He will present this time an all-Richard Strauss program consisting of five groups of altogether 22 lieder by the great contemporary German master. The name of the accompanist is not mentioned on advance programs or announcements.

With the fifth of seven programs, Noboru Toyomasu will resume the great musical enterprise of his Complete Cycle of Beethoven's 32 Piano Sonatas, 7 p.m. Monday, October 6, at the Meiji Seimei Auditorium. He will play five sonatas, Opus 54, 57 ("Appassionata"), 78, 79, and 81 ("Les Adieux").

A debut vocal recital is planned by Miss Yukiko Maruyama, Wednesday, October 8, 6:30 p.m., at the Nihon Seinenkan. Accompanied at the piano by Miss Yuki Haida and Jiro Akamatsu, the young artist will be heard in selections by Schubert, Schumann, Brahms, DeFalla, Faure, Lieurance, Thomas, Verdi, Bizet, and in Japanese songs.

Leonid Kreutzer, professor of the Tokyo Academy of Music, has announced his first Piano Recital of the season for Friday, October 10, 7 p.m., at the Hibiya Public Hall. His program includes Beethoven's Sonata Opus III, in C minor; Chopin's Sonata in B minor, Opus 58, and Liszt's Paganini Etudes.

Miss Kazuko Kusama, pianist, will be featured as the soloist in two concerts with the Tokyo Symphony Orchestra which will make its second appearance in the Kansai, under the direction of Professor Manfred Gurlitt, playing at the Takarazuka Grand Theater, 7 p.m., Tuesday and Wednesday, October 7 and 8.

Beethoven's Symphony No. 5, in C minor, Weber's Invitation to the Waltz, and Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2 are on the program for Tuesday.

Wednesday's bill includes Beethoven's Sixth Symphony in F major (Pastorale); Schumann's Piano Concerto in A minor; and Rossini's Overture to the opera, "William Tell."

French Cardinal Lauds Germany's Noble Aim To Erase Bolshevism

D.N.B.

PARIS, September 26.—The French Cardinal Beudrillard in a statement lauded Europe's fight against Bolshevism as a truly Christian deed. This statement of the dean of the Catholic University of Paris who is also a member of the French Academy is all the more remarkable as this high church dignitary by no means can be called pro-German. Beudrillard declared inter alia: "How could I as a priest and Frenchman in such a decisive moment fail to endorse Germany's noble intention of freeing Russia from the pest from which she has been suffering now for more than 25 years. How could I fail to endorse the effort of freeing France, Europe and the world from that most dangerous and sanguinary chimera which the world has ever known."

Prince Te Wang Heads to Form Mongol Autonomy

tonomy of Inner Mongolia. And yet the majority of the Mongols are not sufficiently awakened to the vital necessity for their autonomy.

Autonomy Commission Formed

In the meantime, however, Te Wang has succeeded in organizing an autonomy commission, which has been replaced by the Autonomous Government of Mongolia. The latter has in turn been replaced by the Federated Autonomous Government of Menchiang, which has been developed into the Federated Autonomous Government of Mongolia. A tribute must be paid Te Wang for his strenuous efforts in leading the Mongols, who have hitherto been slumbering, to such a drastic reform of their own administration.

A serious difficulty, experienced by Te Wang, is a scarcity of talent in Inner Mongolia. He has only a handful of followers on whose abilities he can rely with full confidence, including Wu Hao-ling and General Li Shou-hsin. Another difficulty, which handicaps him, is poor natural resources of Inner Mongolia. Still another is a small population of Western Inner Mongolia, which hardly exceeds half a million.

But nonetheless Inner Mongolia has risen up. There are various difficulties and obstacles ahead. How will Te Wang deal with them? What development will Inner Mongolia attain under the leadership of Te Wang? These are questions full of interest, which time will settle.

offices under the control of a certain Ministry. For the first few weeks, whenever we chanced to meet, he bemoaned his fate in words of terrible anguish. Hell itself did not hold tortures more unendurable than those he had to bear. "It is not so much the actual work I have to do," he told me, "as the sense of restraint under which I am living that is the cross. A poor, struggling tradesman as I had been, I was my own master—'I am monarch of all I survey, my right there is none to dispute.'—If the money belonged to customers, the goods were mine; if they would not buy, neither would I sell! There was such arrogant spirit within me, and it braced me up in the trials of my daily job. Now I am a sort of galley slave, glued to the same spot for so many hours a day, doing the same thing, day in, day out, at the bidding of the foreman or overseer. Every morning I get up at the same hour and eat my breakfast in a hurry and rush out to catch the Shosen train; and after straphanging for 20 or 30 minutes, get out to tramp half a mile to be at the office at 8 o'clock sharp, and remain there all day till the clock sounds to set me free. All pleasure of work is gone, so is my pride in the job; it is all so degrading to the soul, you know. The only redeeming thing is that I feel so exhausted when I come home after my day's work that I have no time to think anything. What with the fatigue of my journey to and from office in the crowded train or bus and my constant vigilant attentiveness to duty for fear I should catch it from my numerous superiors—I am at the lowest rung, you know—I am dead tired at night and glad enough to crawl into bed and forget the misery of the day till in the morning I am wakened, refreshed, for another day's trial.

'New Life'

A few months passed before again I saw him—out for a saunter one Sunday afternoon with his wife and baby. He was looking fresh and bright, quite smart, even dignified in his defense-colored "national uniform." "How do you find your job these days?" I asked. "I am getting into it, I think," he smiled. "I am afraid what you call 'salary-man-spirit' is already entering into my soul. This new regular life seems to be doing me much good: for one thing, I am improving in health, at least I have better appetite for the three meals than I ever had before. My wife, too, likes the changed life—she has nobody to scold her or customers to bother her all day long. Besides, I am not so tired at night as I used to be before. It seems I have found the secret of not overworking my nerves at the office, or of not taking duty too seriously. I have taken up a little study for my evening hours, reading the sort of book I had never opened since the school days. And then we have this heaven-on-earth, blessed Sunday recurring at every week-end. In our old life we never had such a holiday—wife and I and baby going out together for a jaunt—except perhaps once or twice a year. I have already had one small raise in salary, and am expecting another in a year or two. After all, this salaried job under Government control is not half as bad as it seemed at first. My only fear now is lest this wartime arrangement is over and I have to return to my old life."

Courage, if I am permitted to look wise at the expense of other men's experiences, is more or less a matter of habit, or of training. One man's hell may be another's paradise. We are heroes at our old jobs. An arrant coward everyone of us is, like child afraid to go into the dark, when we are put in strange place. Therefore, don't be afraid to be afraid, for what is courage but to see things and men in right perspective and deal with them as best you may?

Stars Aid Defense

I.N.S.

HOLLYWOOD, September 10.—Hollywood film stars are certainly doing their bit for national defense these days. When the United States Army recently appealed for blond hair, which is urgently needed for weather measuring instruments, such screen beauties as Priscilla Lane, Jean Ames, Georgia Carroll, Joan Winfield and Maris Wrixon were among the first to sacrifice some of their tresses.

Japan and Indo-China

When Japan decided on joint defense arrangements with French Indo-China, it moved into French Indo-China, but the southward movement was viewed in some quarters with suspicions. Of all nations who frowned on the event America went furthest and took occasion openly to express her disapproval. Some of the expressions heard abroad at the time were remarkably illustrative of how minds could be misled by unwishful thoughts. And in all fairness it should be said that the tone of international opinion of the time would have been different had it been able to view this Far Eastern development in the light of world politics under the impact of the current war.

The war in Europe hardly had been started when the Soviet Union saw reason to extend protection over the Baltic states. The move was found necessary if hostilities were to be staved off the Baltic region. Moscow was dictated by its own defense position. When Poland succumbed to German arms, Soviet Russia recovered White Russia and part of the Ukraine. In another direction it took recourse to armed means to secure the Karelia area from Finland. From Rumania it took back Bessarabia, ceding Bucovina in return.

It can hardly be denied that Soviet Russia, in effecting these territorial changes, was primarily motivated by self-defense considerations. But its position was not always appreciated. America took exception to the Soviet policy. Scarcely had it condemned the Moscow statesmen when it turned attention to a number of islands in the Atlantic, from Newfoundland down to British Guinea, which were leased from Britain. After this extensive deal was made with London, it was found necessary to advance American bases to Greenland and further to Iceland.

But America is not content. It is no secret that she has an eye on the Azores and Cape Verdes Islands of Portugal and Dakar of French West Africa. The American attitude on the Dakar question was made clear when Washington intimated that should the French possessions in Africa be placed at the disposal of German arms, America was ready to occupy Dakar for the security of the Atlantic. When, therefore, an American outpost was established in Iceland, the Portuguese Government lost little time to move in self-defense. The Minister at Washington at an early opportunity announced that he had secured assurances from the American Government that it had no intention of taking possession of the Azores or the Cape Verdes Islands.

On July 14 or two days after this announcement was made Assistant Secretary of State Sumner Welles, referring to the same question at a press interview, stated that the American Government had no desire for change of sovereignty in the Azores or the Cape Verdes Islands, and hoped that Portugal would maintain full sovereignty there. This, however, did not mean that America would not take possession of those points under any circumstances. The obvious implication was that should German influence extend over Portugal, America would take possession of the African areas.

This however is not to pass judgment upon American policy. All this is reviewed only to indicate what extraordinary steps may be required even for a neutral country under given conditions. It may likewise be seen how extensive plans sometimes are found necessary for self-defense, especially when hostilities, as seen in the current war, tend to spread out in new directions. That any country has no territory contiguous to that of any belligerent or close to the theater of war is not always sufficient guarantee of security. Self-defense may even call for operations embracing a foreign country or areas far from one's own country. Such a peculiar situation has to be seen when a country finds in its vicinity any country or a colony likely to be swayed by foreign influence.

Japan found itself similarly situated with regard to the southern Pacific where French Indo-China and the Netherlands East Indies occupy positions of increasing regional interests. These countries had to be considered in the light of the possibility of a war breaking out between Germany and America, the possibility by no means so remote when the trend of American policy is anti-Hitler. Such an outbreak would not be without repercussions on the Pacific. In the face of this situation it was the most natural thing for Japan to enter into joint defense arrangements with French Indo-China in order to ensure the security of the Pacific. This point should best be appreciated by America which is occupied with a similar situation with regard to the Atlantic. America could not condemn Japan's southward movement without contradicting its own position.

Japan recently decided to station in French Indo-China a diplomatic mission headed by one of the oldest members of her diplomatic force. The selection of this diplomat indicates the pacific nature of Japanese policy to be followed regarding the French possession. The relationship between Japan and French Indo-China in the past left much to be desired. There were political and economic factors lying in the path of cordiality or intimacy between the two. Their new relations of friendship should be appreciated not only by France and Japan, but by all countries which have vital interests in the southern Pacific.

India's Role in War

By DR. E. STRAMIK

Berliner Borsenzeitung

The war is getting dangerously close to India from the West as well as from the East. This thesis has frequently been expounded of late in the British and Indian press. The conclusions which are drawn from this assumption are of course not the same on the part of the British and of the Indians. The developments of the last few months have led to a further complication of the already inextricable Indian problem.

That India is considered to be an important factor which may influence the course of future events, becomes apparent from Washington's attitude. In these days, Sir Girja Bajpai, will probably reach the capital of the United States. He gave up his former position of General Secretary of the Indian Health Ministry in order to become the first General Agent of India in the United States. Prime Minister Churchill had to give his consent to this innovation at President Roosevelt's request who thus wanted to gain an opportunity to send a U.S. observer to India.

England's ruling position in the Asiatic realm has again been weakened by this measure. In this connection one must also recall the visits of American naval experts and of the United States fleet to Singapore, as well as the activities of President Roosevelt's personal observer of Far Eastern affairs, Mr. Grady. A commentary of the New York representative of a Stockholm newspaper comes to the plausible conclusion, therefore, that by the exchange of agents between India and the United States, President Roosevelt secured at least an advisory role for himself that will enable him to interfere in interior Indian affairs in the future.

London's war propaganda does not produce the desired results in India. Again and again in the meetings of Indian nationalists and in their press the danger of war and its suppression are discussed. Who is menacing India after all? An enemy of India? Not at all—but perhaps an enemy of England. Indian blood which is already shed on various British fronts outside of India, would only be spilled at India's frontiers in order to protect British interests. The British, of course, are not influenced in the least by Indian statements of this kind. They continue to draw on Indian blood for their armies.

BRITISH MUDDLING THROUGH IN FACE OF MANY WAR PROBLEMS

Confidence That Gives People Strength Largely Lies On Support of Dominions and U.S.

By ALLEN NEVINS

N.Y. Times

Recently I was sitting with a group of men in London discussing literary matters. Somebody mentioned that the Everyman Library was approaching the goal which its editor, Ernest Rhys, had set so many years ago—1,000 volumes. "When the publishers reach that point they ought to hold a special celebration," he observed.

"Yes," said a listener, "and they will no doubt make the thousandth book something very notable—a title of outstanding importance."

"Oh, events may take care of that," remarked a third. "Perhaps the thousandth volume will be 'Mein Kampf'!"

This little incident had more significance than might appear on the surface. The British are nothing if not realists. They have always known—they know still—that by a combination of mischances they may not win the war. It was with a sense of shock that soon after reaching England I heard George Macaulay Trevelyan, the stanchest of patriots and by no means a pessimist begin a sentence with the phrase. "If we are defeated." Other men of equally honest mind spoke as frankly. "If the war does not come out right," they would say uneasily. But in their heart of hearts 99 in a hundred think it will come out right. They are determined to go through any agony to see that it does.

Gloomy Outlook Recalled

For this confidence any one who spends six months in Great Britain and travels as widely over the islands as I did can see that there are various causes. One is rooted in the historic past. Britons have been through terrible disasters and dangerous crises in bygone times, and have emerged safely. They recall how gloomy was the outlook when Napoleon concentrated his Grand Army at Boulogne. They vividly remember the weeks in the spring of 1917 when Germany's submarine warfare seemed on the point of complete success. They won through then, just as they surmounted nasty reverses in the Crimean War, the Boer War and many another struggle. They no longer believe that success is won without hard effort and planning.

"Don't talk about muddling through," I heard Lady Tweedsmuir cry to a large audience. "When we muddled in the last war we failed; when we stopped muddling and used our heads we triumphed."

But looking at history, Britons subconsciously feel that their country has a star that as they won against heavy odds in the past.

Another element in British confidence is the encouragement lent them by the support of the dominions and (especially since the Lend-Lease Act) the United States. They have immense trust in the arm of Uncle Sam. They feel that since they are fighting the cause of democracy, democracy everywhere will increasingly rally to their side.

When I addressed audiences in Midland factory towns an auditor would occasionally rise and point an accusing finger at me. "You say that the great majority of Americans believe strongly that Britain is fighting for justice and freedom," he would say. "Then why doesn't the United States declare war and throw all its energies into this fight?" I would explain that nations usually go to war only when their own vital interests are endangered.

America's Safety

The audiences recognized that the United States could hardly enter hostilities except to insure its own safety. But almost to a man they believed that America's safety depended on German defeat. They believed that the United States would increasingly realize this. And they believed that when enough people realized it, America—and other democracies with it—would throw their full strength into the battle against the Nazi Power. The British know that they are not standing alone. They hope that the war will end with the entire democratic world fighting beside them.

But the bulwark of confidence among the British lies in their own dogged determination, and a consciousness of their own fast-growng strength. Britons have long been noted for a certain dogged individualism of spirit. Historically, the doggedness has stood in curious contrast with the enthusiasm and elan displayed in some wars by the Latin races; the individualism in contrast with the robot discipline and servile precision of the Teutons.

After a half-year of observation, I should say that the British have never been more dogged than now, and never more individualistic. They show their resolution in the doughty way they have buckled down to hard work and self-denial. Their individualism comes out in the exploits of the R.A.F., of the sailors facing the U-boats, and of the plan men and women who win the George medal in every air-raid. Yet Britain is always full of contradictions. Along with the doggedness goes a certain exhilaration; along with the individualism goes an unprecedented submission to Government control.

Two Main Expressions

The dour, grim mood in which the British are fighting this war finds two main expressions. One is negative. It lies in the entire lack of any of the pomp, blare and glitter once associated with war. The people have settled down with hard, cold determination to a nasty, unhappy task. Music, flags, bunting and parades are all missing. In Oxford I heard martial music just twice: once in a Boy Scout parade and once when a sound-wagon came up High Street playing such American airs as "Anchors Aweigh" and "Marching Through Georgia." In London and Manchester I hear bands during War Weapons Week. That was all. Flags flew in the large cities on three days—St. George's Day, Empire Day, and the King's birthday.

But a mire positive expression of British doggedness can be found in their way of depreciating their sufferings. They are quick to shut up anybody who talks about his airraid experiences or exploits. "Blitz bores" are not tolerated. But they like to repeat stories which make light of the very real terrors of bombing. They told me, for example, of the Londoner who, after a raid which smashed his home, was found mounting guard beside the piano.

"I don't mind the house," he said, "we haven't been here long. But I can't bear the thought of losing the piano; it's been in the family years and years." They like such stories as that of the Middlesex household which discussed sending the small son from a much-bombed area to a safer district. "Well, all right," the boy said reluctantly, "so long as you come too, Mummy." "Oh," she demurred, "I must stay home and look after daddy." "Then I'll stay at home too," was the decided reply. "I don't mind the noise."

Very Real Danger

Yet now and then a grimmer note is struck. Englishmen knew all last spring that a German attempt at invasion would mean a very real danger, and that even if beaten back, as they were confident it would be, it would cause an immense amount of bloodshed and destruction. Yet many hoped it would take place because they believed its defeat would shorten the war. I was talking to the eminent economist, R. H. Tawney, in March. "It would be just like the blighters not to invade at all," he growled.

At that time the nightly airraids were causing intense suffering. Yet late in March I heard Air-Commander Goddard broadcast a statement which seemed to me one of the most Spartan of all recorded utterances. He said:

"It should be a consolation to people who have lost their folk and their homes to know that many of the bombs that have brought such grief and suffering were meant for other places which, if hit, would bring suffering to the country as a whole."

In other words, the man who saw his family blown to rags might take comfort from the fact that the bomb which bereaved him did not fall on a vital factory instead. It may seem a cold-blooded utterance. Actually, to a multitude of matter-of-fact Britons, ready to make any sacrifice, it spoke a hard sense that really did bring consolation for individual losses.

Morale is Better

Yet along with this grim dourness of the national temper, and along with the tight-lipped acceptance of all but crushing labors and losses, the visitor to Britain encounters some extraordinary flashes of exhilaration. Nearly everyone agrees that morale is better than in the last war. "One reason for it," Sir Alfred Zimmern explained to me, "is that everybody has something to do." That is true. Today everyone stands in a sense in the front line, facing peril and bearing part of the burden. People who hear the unearthly wail of the sirens every night face up to the war better than the generation of 1914-18, when families waited in agonizing suspense for the casualty lists from France.

Another reason is equally clear. To the younger generation in particular, the war has become as an invigorating gale after a period of enervating demoralization. The first night after reaching England I walked from the Stygian gloom of Bristol's blackout into the brightly illuminated lounge of the Grand Hotel full of life and animation. Young officers filled the restaurant. One was the novelist Robert Henriques. "This is a far happier time than two or three years ago," he said. "It is a far nobler England."

As this statement suggests, Britons feel that the spirit of the nation has changed for the better. They also take pride in their sense of worthy national achievement. They do not need a Churchill to tell them that they have been living in one of their nation's finest hours. To be sure, they are aware of errors, stupidities and failures. In three continental campaigns they have met defeat.

When the Government issued its written pamphlet describing the victorious Battle of Britain, it made a sensation. Piles of it appeared at every newsstand and bookstore, and had to be replenished daily. A little later Britons were disheartened by the reverses in the Balkans, and later still were shocked by the loss of the Hood.

Licensing Systems

And if the nation takes pride in its victories, it may well be excused for a certain exhilaration in thinking of its larger achievements. It is maintaining the world's greatest navy. For war purposes, it has reorganized its whole internal life and economy. Government licensing systems have been imposed on practically every raw material; Government priority rules have been applied to almost all types of transportation and manufacturing. Industry has been subjected to a most rigid and painful process of coordination and concentration. Literally millions of people have been forced out of old employments into new. This economic mobilization, indispensable to the almost superhuman effort the country is making, has been accepted not merely without serious grumbling, but with a magnificent loyalty and devotion.

There is something touching in the admiration the British people feel for their accepted leader. They criticize Mr. Churchill sometimes; but on the occasions of the speeches the whole population collects about the radio, and their patriotism rises with the swell of his eloquence. There is something touching also in their faith in Mr. Franklin D. Roosevelt and the American people. They have their moments of discouragement, and their soft and flabby elements of appeasers and defeatists. But both are insignificant.

Even if they lost Mr. Churchill they would fight on. Even if they lost the aid of Mr. Roosevelt and the American people (and that would be one of the great crimes of history), they would fight on. They would go on fighting for two reasons. One is that compromise would be surrender, and surrender would be worse than death. The other is that, they fervently believe that they are fighting for the greatest cause on earth—the defense of freedom, of democracy and of civilization itself.

Small Farmers in Germany

In the course of investigations, which have been carried out recently in connection with the raising of agricultural production in nearly all countries, the importance of the small farmer was shown. Courses have now been arranged in Germany for young women wishing to train themselves as consultants for small gardeners, in which they are made familiar with all the duties and details of small gardening. During such a course, the most varied experimental institutes and stations are visited, such as, for instance, the Experimental and Training Institute or Poultry Raising. Here the students are initiated into the most modern poultry methods. In the Institute, laying records of from 150-160 eggs per year a hen are reached, while the Reich average is 90 eggs apiece. Through explanations and practical demonstrations, such as are made by these young consultants, very much can be done in Germany to enlarge the raising of small animals.

Lemons for High Blood Pressure

Lemon juice is effective in reducing the pulse rate and lowering the blood pressure, according to reports made by Dr. Lawrence E. Dedrick, research associate at the University of California, Los Angeles, and Anthony J. Lorenz, director of nutritional research of the California Fruit Growers Exchange.

The pressure reduction is effected in both normal persons and those suffering from hypertension. The first observation in this field was made by Paul Szent Gyorgi, who found that citrine, a concentrate isolated from lemon peel, reduced blood pressure in animals. In the tests made by Dr. Dedrick and Mr. Lorenz, a mixture of extract of lemon peel and fresh lemon juice was administered with meals. In two to three weeks, the patients disclosed a significant lowering of pressure.—N.Y. Herald Tribune.

NEW YORK, September 25.—An all-New York world series, the Dodgers opposing the Yankees, became possible today when Brooklyn cinched their first National League pennant in 21 years.

Hero of the hour was Leo Durocher, Dodger pilot who kept his promise to bring Brooklyn's rabid fans a pennant. Those fans who have stuck by their club through countless lean years were wild tonight.

Brooklyn captured the senior circuit bunting by blanking the Boston Braves 6 to 0 while the second place St. Louis Cardinals were suffering a 3 to 1 setback from the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The closest and hardest fought National League pennant race in years was decided four days before the close of the season.

The battle for the championship of the baseball world, a seven game series, starts October 1 at the Yankee Stadium. A possibility looms that Brooklyn will rent the Giant's Polo Grounds, since their own park is considered too small to handle the expected record breaking crowds.

No games were played in the American League today.

Whitlow Wyatt, gangling, drawling Georgean, was on the mound for the Dodgers and in holding Boston to five hits recorded his 22nd hurling victory of the season, matching his team mate, Kirby Higbe for the best hurling record of the League.

From the first week of the season the Dodgers and Cardinals have never been more than four games apart in this hardest fought race in the history of the National League. The Dodgers spent 75 days in first place while the Cardinals held the top spot for 70 days.

Wyatt fanned five Braves today and two of the five hits he yielded were of the scratch variety. He was never in trouble.

Brooklyn broke into the scoring column in the first inning when Fred Walker singled, took second on Hal Reiser's walk, went to third on an infield out and scored on Joe Medwicks bunt in front of the plate.

In the second innings Arnold Owen singled, stole second, took third on Walker's single and scored on a wild infield throw.

The Pirates' rookie shortstop, Billy Cox, socked out a three bagger in the third frame and scored on Floyd Vaughn's sacrifice fly to bring in the first of the three runs which proved the downfall of St. Louis.

In the Sixth inning Vincent Dimaggio reached first on being hit by a pitched ball. Elburt Fletcher then won the game by knocking the ball out of the park.

In the seventh the Cardinals filled the bases and Ed Slaughter drew a walk to force in the only St. Louis run.

Al Butcher then fanned two pinch hitters to retire the side.

Cincinnati's Reds blanked the Chicago Cubs 6 to 0 as Starr, a rookie, turned in a two-hit game. All but one of the Cincinnati runs were scored in the fifth when the Reds batted around with Charles Aleno and Mike McCormick contributing doubles.

The New York Giants rallied in the ninth to nose out the Philadelphia Phillies 3 to 2. The game was close and hard fought throughout. In the seventh Mel Ott walked, Jim O'Dea singled, Ott was forced out at third and then Bill Jurges tripled to score Odea. In the ninth John McCarthy singled to score Barna.

GREAT TURF WINNER SAYS HE'S UNLUCKY

Charles S. Howard, Owner of Big-Time Stable, Grumbles Of Misfortunes

I.N.S.

SAN FRANCISCO, California, August 29.—"If anyone calls me 'lucky' Charley Howard, anymore I'm liable to punch him right on the nose."

Those were the words today of Charles S. Howard, who has been dubbed "Lucky Charley" because of the racing successes of Seabiscuit, Kayak II, Mioland and Porter's Cap.

Here are a few of the reasons why he objects to being called "Lucky."

1. Kayak failed to untrack himself in the last year's Hollywood gold cup, then came right back a week later to win the Sunset.

Mioland Gets Poor Ride

2. Mioland, an even money shot for the 1940 Hollywood derby, victim of a poor ride, unplaced.

3. Kayak came down with pneumonia on the eve of an eastern invasion.

4. Mioland ran off, shipped on pavement, knocking himself out. He was on the shelf for several weeks.

5. Called off match race with War Admiral for $75,000 purse, Belmont park, when Seabiscuit went slightly amiss. Seabiscuit later whipped socks off War Admiral for $10,000.

High Price Filly Fails

6. Paid a large price for Fair Knightess and she never won a race for him.

7. Imported 10 Argentine youngsters for fancy figures and all are still maidens.

8. Dropped the Santa Anita handicap to Rosemont by a nose.

9. Dropped the Santa Anita handicap to Stagehand by a nose.

Long Shot Wins

10. Dropped the Santa Anita handicap to Bayview, a long shot, which hasn't been able to get close since.

11. Mioland was left at post in New York in a race he couldn't have lost.

12. Sorteado broke a leg and had to be destroyed, right after breaking American record and with a fortune in purses confronting him.

13. Seabiscuit lost to Esposa (Pimlico) for important money.

14. Howard chose Limpio over Ligaroti, when splitting a band of Argentines with his son Lin. Limpio proved a flop; Ligaroti a sensation.

Whirlaway Foils Him

15. With the grandest chance of winning a Kentucky derby Howard could ever hope for, up had to pop a great colt like Whirlaway to blast long cherished hopes.

16. Mioland lost Kentucky derby to horse he subsequently licked twice.

17. Rider Red Pollard thrice suffered hospitalization through injuries when services were badly needed.

18. Seabiscuit broke down almost on eve of a Santa Anita handicap, wherein the Howard entry could probably have run one-two.

DIMAG'S HITTING DUE TO EYES AND WRISTS

Joe Points Out Timing Needed—Uses Top-Heavy 36-Ounce Honed Bat

I.N.S.

NEW YORK, August 29.—What makes you a great batter?

Joe DiMaggio, the greatest hitter of the Yankees and probably the greatest batter in the game today (Ted Williams is the only current challenger for the title) actually seemed embarrassed by the question.

"I don't know," he answered, "I guess its good eye sight. You have to have a sense of timing too and a good pair of wrists. You know we have to use our wrists a lot."

Drives With Wrists

When you looked at Joe's powerful hands, you sensed where that tremendous drive came from. Joe's wrists are not very large but they're strong looking.

DiMaggio uses a 36-ounce bat sometimes honed down to 35 ounces. He prefers a long bat, heavy at the top end. "That prevents me from swinging too quickly and helps me lay into it when I really connect," he explained.

He hits mostly to left field and to left center and is a line drive hitter. He has a most peculiar stance. His feet are firmly planted into the dust very far apart. He doesn't go in for any superfluous motions, such as banging the plate with his bat, rubbing a lot of dirt on his hands and the like. He simply holds the bat on his shoulder and looks up the line at the pitcher as if to say: "Well, it's your turn Fool me."

Joe's Stance Natural

"That's the only way I ever hit," said Joe. "It's a natural stance with me and no one ever tried to make me change it. I don't think I shift my foot more than three inches when I swing."

Joe said he estimated the ball is about ten feet from the plate when he swings. Asked what kind of pitching he liked best, he said: "A nice fast one right down the middle. But I go after anything I think I can hit," he added. "Change of pace doesn't bother me."

We then brought up the subject of Ted Williams, the eccentric young man of the Boston Red Sox who has been outhitting Joe all year. "I think Ted is one of the finest natural hitters I ever saw," said DiMag. "He isn't easy to fool and very seldom goes after a bad ball."

Mr. Williams, interviewed not too long after the above conversation, told us that DiMaggio was the "greatest hitter I have ever seen and probably the greatest I ever will see." This mutual admiration business was strictly sincere. Both boys have a great respect for each other.

Both Great Hitters

Joe Cronin, manager of the Red Sox and Williams' boss, was asked who was the better hitter. He said: "That's a fine question. I would answer it this way. DiMag is a great right-handed hitter and Williams is a great left-handed hitter. They both have uncanny eyes and seldom go after a wrong ball. I would say they have the eyes of perfect lead-off men. I won't say either is the better, they're two great ball-players."

We agree with Joe's sentiments on the above but as an all-round player, DiMaggio must get a big edge. Williams can't carry Joe's glove as an outfielder and DiMag also has one of the greatest arms in baseball. He also has a very even temperament, a valuable asset to a team that's up there fighting for the pennant.

BACHELORS BEATEN BY MARRIED TEAM

Benedicts Capture Cricket Match at Bay City Club Grounds

The married cricketers of the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club again proved their superiority over the single players in a match played at the club grounds Saturday afternoon, winning a close and hard fought contest by 54 to 50. Both sides were one man short.

The bachelors almost won what was the last intra-club game of the season, but good bowling by J. A. Sargeant and M. Parsram resulted in the last four wickets of the losers falling rapidly to end one of the most exciting matches of the year. In the four married versus single contests this season the former won three, while the other ended in a draw.

The benedicts batted first, and their start was none too promising, six wickets being taken for 20 runs. At this point M. L. Russell joined S. Stephens, the captain, and seven more points were made before the former fell to one of B. Kuskie's fast deliveries.

Bond-Stephens Successful

F. J. Bond then partnered Stephens, and this combination proved the most successful of the game, registering 15 runs before the former had his stumps disturbed by M. J. K. Stark. G. W. Gorman also put up a good stand with the captain, raising the score from 42 to 54 before being caught and bowled by Stark to retire the side.

The single men also fared none too well on opening their innings, but their showing was a little better than that of their opponents when compared wicket for wicket. After losing four batsmen for 20 runs, A. N. Hawkes was joined by F. R. Harriss and the 30 mark passed before the latter was bowled by Sargeant.

As the married men had lost seven wickets for 27 runs, the single players' position was quite favorable, but the latters' tail did not wag like the formers. The scoreboard read 40 with two wickets left; the 50 mark was reached when the last two batsmen were in, and excitement ran high. However, the game ended very soon after with the single men four short of a tie and five more required for a victory.

Stephens gained batting hours with another fine performance, making 21 not out, while Hawkes scored 18 before being run out. J. R. V. Mason followed with 10.

In Great Form

Sargeant was in great form and turned in one of the best bowling displays this year, taking five wickets for 14 runs. He bowled four men, two on successive deliveries, and caught and bowled his other victim. Kuskie and Stark also did well, each getting four wickets, for 19 and 25, respectively.

Mr. G. H. da Costa again attended to the scoring.

An all-day match next Sunday between the British Embassy team and the Y.C. and A.C. will close the club's cricket season. The game will get under way at 10:30 a.m.

Y.C.A.C. TRIUMPHS OVER ST. JOSEPH'S

Club Nine Gains Revenge on Collegians by Scoring 9 to 6

The Yokohama Country and Athletic Club baseball team gained sweet revenge on the St. Joseph's College nine Sunday afternoon by scoring a 9 to 6 victory over the students at the club grounds.

The home team, which had been bested by the collegians' formidable alumni battery of J. Brown and W. Jones in the two previous games this season, finally solved the mysteries of the former's speedy slants in its eighth inning rally which brought in five runs and practically clinched the contest.

Prior to the baseball tilt the Y.C. and A.C. ladies' softball squad and the St. Maur's School girls played to a five-all draw in a regulation seven-inning encounter.

The S.J.C. students outhit the winners by 13 to 9, but the latter made five of their safeties in their eighth canto rally. Fred da Silva was nicked for 12 hits during the seven stanzas he worked on the mound, but the veteran southpaw kept them well scattered. "Bucky" Harriss took over the hurling assignment in the eighth and shut out the visitors during the balance of the game.

St. Joseph's took the lead in the first stanza with a single tally but the Y.C. and A.C. knotted the count in the initial half of the fourth. The students got another point in the latter part of the fifth to regain the lead, but the club players obtained a brace in the first half of the fifth to be ahead for the first time, 3 to 2.

The S.J.C. boys stepped out in front for the third time with a pair of points in their half of the fifth, but the home squad knotted the count again in their turn at bat during the next stanza. Another two runs put the students ahead again as the seventh canto ended, the score being 6 to 4.

Henry Fernandes, the first club player up in the eighth, started the rally with a single. Then Ludy Frank stepped up to the plate and smacked out a home run which deadlocked the count.

Serge Bielous kept up the good work by hitting safely, and Jack Smith did likewise After the next batter went down swinging, George Weed worked the pitcher for a walk, filling the bases. Then "Bucky" Harriss slashed out a two-bagger, bringing in Bielous and Smith to put the club ahead. Fred de Silva also came through with a hit which resulted in Weed completing the circuit, making the count 9 to 6 in favor of the Y.C. and A.C. Neither side could score during the remainder of the game.

Minenko Captures Honors

Batting honors went to G. Minenko, this student getting three hits in five times at bat. Making two in four official tries were Fred da Silva, and J. Brown, H. Fernandes, and J. Gomes obtained two in five attempts.

George Weed made his debut in a Y.C. and A.C. uniform, and handled the second base assignment well. He also showed he could hit by poling the ball deep into the outfield on two occasions, but the fleetfooted students guarding the outer garden managed to catch the horsehide both times.

The ladies' softball game was another hard fought contest, with the lead changing hands several times. St. Maur's made a tally in the initial canto to gain the advantage, but by the end of the fourth frame the club players were ahead by 4 to 2.

The schoolgirls made a point in both the fifth and sixth to again tie the score, but their opponents pushed over a run in the seventh to regain the lead. However, the students were equal to the occasion and again deadlocked the count in their half of the inning. The game did not go into extra innings in view of the baseball game to follow.

The softball line-ups were as follows:

Y.C. and A.C.: Miss Mary Stevens, Miss Mary Weed, Miss Teresita Planas, Miss Maria Prohaska, Mrs. Julia Koch, Miss Erika Papendieck, Miss Gertrude Satchell and Miss Jennie Mayers.

St. Maur's: Miss Mercia da Souza, Miss Lucille Apcar, Miss Carmen Planas, Miss Ella Sequeira, Miss Kathleen Apcar, Miss Lala Balabushkin, Miss Maria Andreis, Miss Lily Onoe and Miss Alice Sikos.

Louis Scores Unexpected TKO in 6th Round Over Nova for 19th Defense of Crown

Domei

NEW YORK, September 29.—Joe Louis, the Brown Bomber from Detroit, successfully defended his heavyweight boxing title tonight for the 19th time when he floored challenger Lou Nova with a terrific right to the jaw for a count of nine, scoring a technical knockout after two minutes and 19 seconds in the sixth round.

The sudden knockout caught spectators and "Yogi" Nova by surprise as the fight had been evenly and savagely fought, despite Nova's getting a bloody nose at the opening of the sixth.

Nova gamely struggled to his feet and braced himself groggily against the ropes as the referee counted nine, but before Louis could throw another punch, Referee Arthur Donovan stopped the bout.

Sixty thousand fans crowded the Polo Grounds to watch Louis in his last match for some time possibly, as the champion will join the army in October.

Louis weighed in at 202½ pounds, while Nova tipped the scales at 217 pounds.

The gate receipts totaled $600,000, of which Louis will receive 40 per cent and Nova 27 per cent.

The odds before the match favored Louis five to 13 to win by a knockout.

NUDISTS SAY CULT WOULD STOP WARS

Fighting Between Naked Troops Would Not Work, Assert U.S. Devotees

Rock Lodge, a remote estate in the Hamburg Mountains, took on the appearance of an overpopulated Garden of Eden recently as 150 men, women and children took off their clothes and opened the tenth annual convention of the American Sunbathing Association, says a Stockholm, New Jersey, dispatch to the New York Herald Tribune.

The agenda reflected the tension of the times. Ample provision had been made for the usual activities: bathing in the nude, tennis in the nude, volley ball in the nude and hiking in the nude, but also up for consideration was the Rev. Isley Boone's Five-Year Plan.

Standing in a pre-Edenic state on the rugged shore of a five-acre pond behind the lodge the Rev. Mr. Boone observed that the international crisis was replete with opportunities for nudism.

War Requires Uniforms

"The adoption of nudism would be the most important single factor against war," he said. "Warfare between nude troops would be impossible."

Mr. Boone is a short, stocky, benign man who was reared in the Baptist Church and later became acting pastor of historic Ponds Reformed Church in Takland, N.J. He is now a full-time nudist, serving as managing editor of Sunshine and Health, the official publication of the American Sunbathing Association.

He had on a worried look. Many nudists are in defense industries, he said, and are fast losing contact with the organization. The object of the Five-Year Plan, he added, was to insure a "strong, united and harmonious fraternity."

"How many nudists are there?" asked a group of overdressed reporters who were glancing nervously about, fearing that the grounds committee might order them to disrobe.

"Forty-five thousand organized nudists," said Mr. Boone proudly. "A multitude of small family groups which can't be enumerated. Why, the woods are full of unorganized nudists."

They Aren't Prudish

The reporters and photographers were taken on a sight-seeing tour of the grounds by Ronald Jump, a former newspaper man who became a nudist when The World ceased publication in 1931.

"The children are having their own convention," said Mr. Jump as he led the press section down the hill to the pond. "They are hiking and playing games, without clothing, of course.

In the evenings we have movies and amateur theatricals and music. We're heavy on music. We aren't snobs. We have folksongs and classical music, but we also sing the latest hits from Tin Pan Alley."

Mr. Jump was asked about the amateur theatricals, and he indicated they were mainly satires on clothed society. Presentation of a comedy entitled "I Object," will feature a courtroom scene in which the fair name of Rock Lodge is being disputed by Mrs. Chatterbox and Emma Gossip, who complain of goings-on. The jury comes in naked with a verdict of not guilty, whereupon the judge, played by Mr. Jump himself, does a strip tease and announces he's off to Stockholm.

The people of Stockholm, incidentally, regard the nudists with tolerance bordering on apathy. Reporters disembarking from the Paterson bus made several inquiries before finding a farmer who had even heard of the Rock Lodge.

It is a 220-acre wooded estate, three miles off the main highway and nestling in a shallow valley among the hills near the Morris-Sussex County line.

They Dress for Dinner

The lodge is a three-story stone building on a knoll overlooking the pond. Herman Soshinski, owner of the place, said it was copied after an early Pennsylvania Dutch farmhouse. Mr. Soshinski keeps it open for nudists the year around. A reasonable practice of nudism is compulsory for all guests, but the rules are relaxed in freezing weather.

Mr. Soshinski was not only clothed but was wearing a double-breasted suit. He apologized for his appearance, pleading the necessity of several trips to the village.

Even with their clothes off, the nudists bore the stamp of solid, middle-class folk. In the group were doctors, real estate men, dentists and press agents. Most of the nudists were middle-aged, but all were indubitably in the pink.

A 60-year-old retired business man of Rochester said that nudism was good for retired business men. He said he had lost two pounds, cutting his displacement to a mere 250.

At dinner the nudists donned shorts and sweaters, for the path to the lodge is visible from the road Some nudists wear pajamas in bed, Mr. Jump said, although the practice was condemned in a recent issue of Sunshine and Health.

SHORTAGE OF CORK SUFFERED IN U.S.

Conservation, Substitution Programs in Full Swing in Container Trade

The people of Rome, Italy, are compelled to turn in used tin containers whenever they apply for canned goods. Nothing like that is contemplated in the United States, says Raymond L. Hoadley in the N.Y. Herald Tribune, despite the record demand for tinned foods and industrial cartons. Yet this increased demand, along with transportation difficulties, carries with it the threat of container shortages, so much so that conservation and substitution programs are in full swing in the container and packaging industries.

The container problems arising from the defense program are most troublesome to the ketchup and soft-drink makers and other bottlecap users. Some time ago cork was placed on priorities, and in July the Office of Production Management forced a cut of 50 per cent in the production of this essential product. Under the order, shipping allotments of cork manufacturers will vary from month to month, depending on conditions at the time.

It is still a moot question how carbonated beverages can be sold without cork in the caps, for trade officials admit there is not a satisfactory substitute in commercial production. They are hopeful, if worse comes to worse, that pulp paper can be used for beverages of low carbonation and a rubber and cork disk combination for other types of beverages. Crown-closure manufacturers are advising their trade that only a 30-day supply of cork-lined crowns may be kept on hand under defense regulations.

Trees Slow Producers

This is the supply-demand situation in cork. It is all imported from Spain, Portugal and North Africa. There is at present about 40,000 tons in the United States, as contrasted with an annual need of 125,000 tons and defense requirements alone of 80,000 tons in the next year or so. Early in the summer defense officials thought that Hitler's next move might be in the direction of the cork-producing countries. Hence the stringent July allocations for this product. When the Germans marched on Russia instead, the cork restrictions were eased a bit.

Attempts to grow cork trees domestically would prove no solution for the present emergency, as it takes upward of 40 years to get the first harvest and another dozen years for the second. Thus there is a sigh of relief in the cork trade every time a shipment of this commodity is received. There have been five in the last two weeks, the last two cargoes consisting of 1,500 tons and 2,000 tons.

Every tin manufacturer is working overtime to provide a satisfactory tinless container. There is a little more than a year's supply of tin here instead of the three year's stockpile the Government would like to have in the event of trouble in the Far East. The coating of tin on 95 per cent of all packing cans has been reduced by 10 per cent. The remaining 5 per cent, where reduction is not planned consists of such items as baby foods, kraut and highly acid fruits like cherries. But this saving of 5,000 tons of tin has been offset already by the huge British lease-lend requirements for tinned foods.

Paints, shaving creams, cold creams and other preparations sold in collapsible tin tubes are appearing in tin-lined lead tubes. Government agencies are seeking similar substitutes for tooth pastes and other pharmaceutical preparations taken internally.

Wherever tinplate use is non-essential, such as in paint cans (except white paint which discolors), tobacco and oil containers, the manufacturer has switched to other types of coated steel. Terne plate, for example, is made of tin and lead, thus requiring less tin.

Should tin imports from the Far East be threatened, more drastic measures would be taken. Additional large savings could be made by expanding the use of glass for such products as nonacids and eliminating the beer can in favor of the beer bottle. The collection of used tin cans would not be profitable on a large scale unless the price of tin rose from the current 50-55 cents a pound level to $2 a pound. Meanwhile, defense officials are giving tinplate preference to foods in order that there will be a sufficient supply of cans to pack the current food crop.

Paper container users are feeling the shortage in waste paper. One big paperboard maker suspended operations several days recently despite heavy orders, and operations of that industry are declining due to the scarcity of waste supplies. About 4,500,000 tons of waste paper is collected annually for use in reclaimed pulp, but O. P. M. officials say 6,500,000 tons should be gathered this year.

The Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply has placed a ceiling on waste-paper prices. But, as in the case of steel scrap and some other secondary materials, confusion reigns and the trade says that price policies of this agency have made a bad matter worse as far as bringing in badly needed supplies are concerned.

Indicative of the current scarcity is a wire Leon Henderson, O. P. A. C. S. Administrator, recently sent to Mayor Edward J. Kelley of Chicago asking him "to do everything possible" to permit waste-paper collectors to work restricted residential areas of that city. This, it is figured, would bring in an extra 4,000 tons each month. A waste-paper collection campaign, like the one scheduled for steel scrap, may be in the offing.

Wood Containers Redesigned

Prices of most types of paper are higher and deliveries delayed. Cleaning shops, for instance, now pay $16 a thousand for paper bags that formerly sold at $9.50 a thousand. Consumption of pulp reached a peak of 16,500,000 tons in 1940 and forecasts place the 1941 demand at 18,500,000 tons. Imports from Scandinavian countries are shut off and defense officials predict a shortage in several types of paper other than newsprint.

The Department of Agriculture is actively at work on the redesign of containers for war commodities. The object is to save cargo space on British-aid shipments, as well as to conserve packaging materials. Claude R. Wickard, Secretary of Agriculture, cites an example of a wooden container for the shipment of 200-pound airplane bombs which have been redesigned in the department's laboratory. The new container employs a lower priced wood, requires less cargo space, lumber and weight, yet is stronger than the original container.

Industry itself is compelled these days to give special attention to the conservation of shipping materials. At the suggestion of Government officials, Lewis S. Rosenthal, chairman of Schenley Distillers Corporation, has submitted a conservation plan for the distilled-spirits industry which entails the re-use of 25 per cent of the 2,000,000 whisky barrels emptied each year. He also has plans for a new case-opener which would permit the re-use of containers and save an estimated 40 per cent of the 50,000,000 paperboard cases used annually by the industry.

In another sector of the container field, the petroleum, paint and chemical industries report difficulties in securing steel drums owing to the steel shortage. Representatives of 27 met recently with O.P.M. officials to discuss the difficulties of getting steel plate to meet both the defense and civilian demand.

LAWN BOWLS MEET IS NEARING FINALS

Only International Event Remains to Be Decided at Y.C. A.C.

With three of the remaining finals in the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club lawn bowls tournament having been played off over the weekend, only the international event remains to be decided to conclude match play this season.

G. E. Beatty and P. H. Lord retained the men's championship doubles for another year by defeating E Dentici and K. F. Wiersum, 21 to 19, in one of the best and hardest fought matches of the season on Saturday afternoon. The result gave the winners their second consecutive victory in as many games in the finals, which was a two-out-of-three series.

Dentici and Wiersum staged a great rally when they trailed 20 to 13, pulling up to within one point of their opponents. In the last end, Wiersum, skip of his combination, carried the pack away from the opposition's first wood to lie one His next shot, only half a foot off the target, made it two, sufficient for game. However, Lord, the singles champion, sent his next effort just inside his opponent's fine shot to save the situation.

In Good Form

All four players were in great form during the last few ends, and on one there were half a dozen woods within six inches of the jack. With both sides continually taking each other out with good shots, the outcome was in doubt until the final wood came to rest.

Miss T. Planas and G. E. Beatty won the mixed doubles handicap on Sunday afternoon by defeating Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Russell, 23 to 15, in the finals. The match took three hours to finish and was as hard fought as the time taken would indicate.

The winners, starting at minus 12, slowly but surely caught up to their opponents, whose handicap was minus three. When the pair with the heavier impost took the lead at 4 to 2 the situation looked decidedly bright for them. However, at this point the Russells made a great comeback and forged ahead again, leading by 12 to 6.

Miss Planas and Beatty managed to tie the count at 14-all and then went on to win. The breaks favored the victors toward the finish, especially in the last end, when Russell carried the jack away from Miss Planas' first wood but sent it into a group of the opposition's back woods.

Ladies Play Excellently

The two ladies bowled extremely well while Russell more than held his own with Beatty for a considerable part of the match.

Dr. M. Weidenmann and A. A. Weiss won the men's handicap doubles on Saturday afternoon by gaining a 22 to 9 decision over C. V. Grant and R. G. Hill in the finals.

The latter pair, starting at scratch, commenced well and after two ends knotted the count at three-all. However, Weidenmann and Weiss, whose handicap was plus three, regained the lead on the next end and remained in front until the finish.

Grant and Hill were in the running until their opponents, leading 15 to 9, scored seven points on the deciding end.

A summary of the weekend results follows:

Men's Championship Doubles

G. E. Beatty and P. H. Lord defeated E. Dentici and K. F. Wiersum by 21 to 19 (finals). Winners took two-out-of-three series in two straight.

Men's Handicap Doubles

Dr. M. Weidenmann and A. A. Weiss (plus three) beat C. V. Grant and R. G. Hill (scratch) by 22 to 9 (finals).

Mixed Doubles Handicap

Miss T. Planas and G. E. Beatty (minus 12) defeated Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Russell (minus three) by 23 to 15 (finals).

MOVIE, NAVY DON'T MIX

Actress Says She Sees Sea-Going Hubby 16 Days in 4 Years

United Press

LAS VEGAS, September 24.—Miss Marjorie Weaver, movie actress, yesterday divorced Lieutenant Kenneth G. Schacht, formerly of the United States Navy's Asiatic Fleet, alleging that their careers could not mix.

She obtained her divorce decree on the routine charge of extreme cruelty, but told reporters that she only saw her husband for 16 days in four years, most of which time he was on duty in Manila and China while she was in Hollywood.

She said that he at present was at sea acting as a United States Navy observer aboard a British submarine.

OIL PLANT BURNS

Indiana Standard Oil Refinery Brought Under Control

United Press

WHITING, Indiana, September 25.—A Standard Oil Company of Indiana spokesman yesterday said that a fire which was raging throughout the 700-acre refinery was regarded as under control, five hours and 40 minutes after it broke out.

Flames from the terrific blaze shot 100 feet into the air. The conflagration started in two huge tanks yesterday morning. Intense heat prevented approach of fire fighters closer than several hundred feet from the blaze.

BALL FANS ON EDGE FOR WORLD SERIES

70,000 Rabid Yankee and Dodger Backers Wait Impatiently for Opening

Domei

NEW YORK, September 30.—As 70,000 rabid Yankee and fiercely partisan Dodger fans held tight to their precious tickets to the opening game of the New York Yankee-Brooklyn Dodgers World Series at the Yankee Stadium tomorrow, the weatherman glumly predicted "cloudy and showers."

Probable pitchers will be "Red" Ruffing for the Yankees and Curt Davis for the Dodgers.

With both teams staffed with an imposing array of good pitchers, the World Series this year is expected to produce some spectacular pitching duels.

Dodger fans, noted for their all-out support of their team even in lean years, are in a state of near-hysteria.

Brooklyn won the National League pennant in the closest fight in years against the St. Louis Cardinals, managing to clinch the race only in the last few games. The championship was in doubt until only late last week.

The Yankees, after a serious relapse last year when they finished in third place, came back strong this year to blast their way to the pennant position with ease.

Star of the year for the uptown New Yorkers was, as usual, Joe DiMaggio, who, among other things, pounded out a 56-game hitting streak to break all existing records for consecutive hitting.

Barring rain, in which case the schedule will be postponed to the following day, the game will be played as follows:

October 1-2: Yankee Stadium (seating capacity, 70,000)
October 3-4-5: Ebbets Field (seating capacity, 32,000)
October 6-8: Yankee Stadium
Starting time: Daily, 1:30 p.m., Sunday, 2:30 p.m.

8 American Films Voted for October

as the genuine culture features. They are "Minagiru Chikara" (Running Power) and "Harakara" (Brothers). The former is a production by the motion picture section of the Wrestlers' Association, and the latter by the Riken.

The major portion of "Sakura no Kuni" (The Land of Cherry), the shooting of which had been conducted in North China, was completed recently. It is one of the ambitious talkies by the Ofuna studio of the Shochiku Motion Picture Company, featuring Ken Uyehara and Hideko Takamine.

Concluding the location in Ishikawa and Toyama prefectures, Kinuyo Tanaka and Shin Saburi and their followers of the Shochiku Motion Picture Company are now visiting Izu peninsula to film the scene of "Joi no Kiroku" (the Diary of a Woman Physician), an all-talking picture dealing with the tale of a village without doctors.

The Japan Motion Picture Magazine Association has compiled the Directory of Motion Picture Theaters in Japan, Manchoukuo and China.

The dramatic motion pictures produced by the Japanese producers last year aggregated 500 or 3,486 reels. With 88 in 561 reels, the Daito Motion Picture Company topped the list. The second was the Shinko Cinema Production Company, which turned out 85 films. The Shochiku Motion Picture Company came the third with 84 films. This is followed by the Nikkatsu (72 pictures), the Toho (63), the Zensho (47) and the Kyokuto (46).

The Education Ministry has decided the following domestic pictures as unsuitable for exhibition before children under the age of 14. They are "Ishimatsu no Kekkon" (Ishimatsu's Wedding) by Daito, "Atarashiki Chikara" (The New Power) by Kokusai, and "Kibo no Mizu-umi" (The Lake of Hope) by Shinko.

Under the support of the Education Ministry, the Board of Information, and the Imperial Rule Assistance Association, the Miyako Eigasha will produce a culture picture entitled "Warera no Toshogun" (the Group of Our Libraries). The film will be edited under the supervision of Kunizo Nakada, chief librarian at Tokyo Imperial University.

ed head of the newly-established Kansai office.

Under the auspices of the Tokyo Municipal Government four programs of music, dances, motion pictures, and recitation of Chinese poems with sword-dance will be given at the Kinshi Park on Saturday, the Open-Air Auditorium, Hibiya Park, and the Ryogoku Public Hall on Sunday, and the Hibiya Public Hall on October 8.

"Ani Imoto" (Brother and His Sister), a modern drama adapted from an original story by Saisei Muro-o, was replaced by a two-act play called "Waga Aino Ki" (A Diary of My Love), which was dramatized by Ryuichiro Yagi from a story of the same title by Satono Yamaguchi. The play is one of the feature offerings on the current performance at the Shimbashi Embujo, where Yaeko Mizutani and Masao Inouye are playing in collaboration with Shin Tokudaiji, a motion picture actor.

In response to the nation-wide movement for reclaiming metal resources, the Moulin Rouge dramatic troupe has decided to dismantle a large windmill, 250 kan in weight, which has long adorned the front of the Shinjukuza Theater, the home of its stage activities. The windmill will be donated to the Ministry of War in the near future.

Tsurunosuke Bando, who is playing an important part in the activities of the young Kabuki actors in the Kansai district, will marry Hideko Yasuda in October through the good offices of Shintaro Shirai, president of the Osaka Shochiku Theatrical Company.

Kotsubo Dayu, veteran reciter of the joruri music, has officially been appointed "monshita" (head) of the famous Bunraku Puppet Theater of Osaka to succeed as the late Tsu Dayu, who died last spring. Kotsubo will formally be introduced to the theater patrons, by taking advantage of the gala performance scheduled to be presented in January.

A program of music, dance and motion pictures will be presented at the Nippon Seinenkan, Aoyama, at 1 p.m. Sunday, sponsored by the Japanese Typists' Association. A party of the wounded soldiers will be invited.

HUNAN CAMPAIGN REVIEW

In what many military observers call one of the greatest Japanese offensives in the China Affair, the campaign in Hunan, the Japanese forces—the army, navy, and air force in perfect cooperation crushed Changsha, the citadel of Hunan, in an astonishingly short time. Below is a summary of the epic campaign:

September 18: The Japanese army, navy and air forces simultaneously at dawn started their operations toward Changsha.

The Army: One hour after the start, the Uzawa, Morita, Kyo, Kitano, Eguchi, Koura, Inoue, Hayabuchi and Murai units traversed the Hsinchiang River from the northern bank where they had been waiting for a chance, while the crack units of Kato, Oda and Kozaka dashed into the walled town of Hsinchiang.

The Hayabuchi, Murai, Kawasaki units in close cooperation with the Kato unit enlarged their war achievements.

By the same evening, the Shigenobu, Matono, Sakamoto, Ishii units had occupied the town of Tachingkai, 20 kilometers south of Hsinchaing, while the Morita unit had succeeded in cutting off the Canton-Hankow Railway at a point 32 kilometers south of Yochow.

Meantime, the Koura, Kyo, Uzawa and the Hotta units furiously attacked Hwangshakia, the seat of the headquarters of the Chinese 90th Division, pressing the retreating enemy to the southeastern coast of Lake Tungting. At about 8 p.m., the Ishii and the Sakamoto units dashed into Yingpanchenkia, one kilometer south of Tachingkai.

Cross Lake Tungting

The Navy: Having crossed Lake Tungting guiding land troops on the night of September 17, some naval units in the Yangtze River convoyed land units of Hirano, Nakahara, Uchiyama, Nakazato to Siachingsha north of Jungtu, 20 kilometers north of Siangyin, in the morning, while the Kubo naval landing party occupied another place. A Japanese gunboat in cooperation with the Hirano unit shelled the enemy from the southeast and northwest.

September 19: In the morning, the Matono, Shigenobu, Toyoshima, Tsutsumi, Ishii and the Hanaya units made their advancement to the line of the Ku River, pushing back the Chinese 12th, 59th, 90th, 95th and 65th divisions, of 300,000 strong, of the 37th Army.

In the evening, the main force of the Matono unit, parts of the Shigenobu and Ishii units traversed the Ku River in the face of the enemy's fire, taking advantage of twilight. Then, the Matono unit seized Hsinchih, a strategically important point along the river, while the Kanda, Arima and the Obata units, having carried Changlokai, the base of supply, in the morning, traversed the Ku River and seized Tatzuho on the southern bank of the river, destroying the 59th Division of the Chinese Army.

Meanwhile, the Hayabuchi, Murai, Kawasaki and the Kato units, changing the direction of their spearhead attacks, cut off the Canton-Hankow Railway at a point southeast of Hsinchiang, following which they encircled and pressed the Chinese 90th Division to the bank of the lake at the delta facing Lake Tungting. These units seized Lukio in the evening to establish their liaison with the Fuse naval landing unit which had been attacking Leishihshan since yesterday from the coastal line.

September 20: The Army: The Kyo, Obata, Takabayashi, Arima, Hotta, Matono, Hiraoka, Murai, Koura, Tsutsumi, Takahashi, Hayabuchi, Nagano, Shigenobu, Hidaka, Uzawa and Kido units completely occupied Changlokai, Hsinchih and Kweiyui, all important points, by noon. In the evening, the advancing Ochiai, Sakamoto and the Ishii units secured Kwokiawan, 10 kilometers west of Hsinchih.

The Navy: The Kubo naval landing unit completely placed all the southern coast of Lake Tungting under its control. The Japanese Fleet in the Yangtze was engaged in the maintenance of the water route in the teeth of bad weather.

September 21: The Army: The Hiraoka, Takahashi, Hidaka and Tomonari units occupied Wengkiang, 25 kilometers southeast of Changlokai.

The Navy: Having seized Lelshihshan, a strategically important point at the mouth of the Siang River yesterday, the Morri naval landing unit in cooperation with naval ships, the Hirano and Uchiyama army units pierced into Weilinchang, nine kilometers southwest of Yingtien.

September 22:—The Hotta, Koura, Hayabuchi, Nagano, Uzawa, Matono, Tsutsumi, Shigenobu, Hiraoka, Takahashi, Hidaka, Hayase, Hanaya, Tomonari, Kobori and Murai units commenced their simultaneous onslaught upon the 26th Army under General Hsiao Chih-chu, the main force of the Chinese Ninth War Zone, the 99th Army under General Fu Chung-fang, the 37th Army under General Chen Leng, and the 4th Army under General Ou Chen.

Enemy Forces Destroyed

Having destroyed the enemy in the sector to the south of Hsin-chih by the evening, the Japanese Kitano, Uzawa, Kyo, Morita, Hayase, Koura and Imamura units continued pressing the enemy main force southward on the plain along the coast of Lake Tungting.

In the meantime, the Japanese Shigematsu, Yamanaka, Nishina, Kamozawa, Araki, Miyoshi and Magara units, having wiped out Chinese troops resisting on the western side of Wanyang mountains, made a round-about advancement to the upper stream of the Ku River and pressed relentlessly the Chinese 60th Division to the Chungchiao Basin in the upper stream of the River.

September 23: The Japanese Kitano, Uzawa, Kyo, Koura, Hotta and Nagano units completed the encirclement of Pingkiang. Thus, the Japanese Matono, Ozawa, Tsutsumi, Orikono, Kato and Shigenobu units encircled and pressed the 37th Army from three directions within a narrow area in Tatouling.

Meanwhile, the Arima and Takehara units, advancing southward from Hwangtsao and Panshihchow destroyed the Chinese 32nd Division and occupied Sanchuetang and Chingkutai. Along the coastal area of Lake Tungting, the Hirano and Uchiyama units seized the edge of the delta of the Sing River.

September 24: The Japanese Arima and Takehara units pierced into Kintsing, 45 kilometers northeast of Changsha, where the headquarters of the Chinese 26th Army and immediately seized it. While the Shigematsu, Kato, Hanaya and Nakagawa units dashed into Chushanpo.

September 25. The Chinese troops of the Ninth War Zone commenced their general retreat.

The Japanese Shigenobu, Matono, Tsutsumi, Sakamoto, Hanaya, Ishii, Miyanaga, Kataoka and Numazaki units, marching from Lishanpu, encircled and destroyed the enemy near Tatouling and then broke through the enemy positions in the mountain region to the east of Fulinpo. At noon, these units occupied Shangshih, 30 kilometers east of Changsha.

Encirclement Is Tightened

Tightening their cordon of encirclement of the Chinese 95th Division at Shaki, 20 kilometers south of Hsinshih, the Japanese Uzawa, Morita and Hayabuchi units advanced to Lichiao.

September 26: The Japanese Tsutsumi, Hanaya, Shigenobu units made a swift drive from Shangshih and occupied Chunmhushan on the Changsha Highway at noon and entered Yungan, 25 kilometers east of Changsha. In the meantime the Takehara and Tomonari units secured Shanshih on the bank of the Liuyang River at noon and succeeded in traversing the river in the afternoon.

September 27: The Japanese Hayabuchi, Kawasaki and Yokozawa units, which suddenly appeared at Shihtsupu, 12 kilometers east of Changsha, on the night of September 26, wiped out the retreating enemy at the delta of the Yangmei River shortly after 11 a.m. Having defeated the enemy troops on the hilly zone east in the northeastern part of Changsha, these Japanese units surged into the city.

September 28: In the teeth of furious resistance offered by the enemy, the Japanese Hanaya, Ishii, Sakamoto, Tsutsumi, Shigenobu, Matono, Numazaki and Hosono units, storming southward from Yung-an, 25 kilometers west of Changsha, traversed the upper stream of the Liuyang River at dawn. The vanguard of these units dashed into one corner of Chuchow, 40 kilometers south of Changsha.

September 29: Chucow was completely occupied by the Japanese advancing units at dawn.

ITALIAN PAPER REVEALS BRITISH-U.S. DESIGNS

First Aim to Occupy Dakar And Then to Get Martinique

Transocean

ROME, September 24.—A sensational report regarding Anglo-American designs on French possessions was published in the Popolo Roma this morning by its Lisbon correspondent, G. Napolitano.

The correspondent said that the first aim was to occupy Dakar in Senegal and Abiajean on the Ivory coast. The second aim is to occupy Martinique, he added.

While Anglo-American designs on Dakar and Martinique are well known already, Anglo-American intention to take Abiajean is certainly news for Italy.

The importance of this port for Great Britain and the United States is that it is situated half-way between Freetown in Sierra Leone and Lagos in Nigeria and controls the sea route to the Guinea Bight.

This plan said to have been agreed upon between President Roosevelt and Winston Churchill in the course of their Atlantic meeting, is connected with the recent return of ex-General Charles de Gaulle, leader of the so-called Free French, to England from Syria, according to the correspondent.

JEWISH BANKS DISAPPEAR

32 Bankers Out of 50 in France Dissolve Business

Transocean

PARIS, September 24.—Since Jews were eliminated from banking by law, 32 Jewish bankers of a total of 50 in occupied and unoccupied France have been liquidated so far.

Five small Jewish provincial banks changed into Aryan hands by private agreement, while 27 were placed under Aryan administration.

Thirty-three private Jewish brokerage firms were dissolved and two official firms were taken over by Aryans.

CAMPAIGN IN HUNAN RUINS SUPPLY ROADS

Quick Japanese Victory Destroys Traffic of Goods to And From Chungking

The recent Hunan operation that has gained speedy and remarkable victory in an astonishingly short period has resulted in destroying the important supply routes to Chungking, says an article in the Yomiuri.

The new roads constructed by the Chungking regime since the outbreak of the China affair total about 6,000 kilometers, according to Chang Kiangnau, Communications Minister of the Chungking Government. The roads are divided into the so-called Northwestern public roads connecting Langchou, Hsian and Chinghai, and the Southwestern public roads that start at Kweiyang in Kweichow Province and fan out in five directions of Chienhsing, Chientien, Chienwei, Chienchuan and Chingi. These public roads end in narrower roads that finally reach foreign territories.

By these public roads, supply of various goods is brought to Chungking from various internal points, but also are transported materials sent from foreign countries for the aid of Chungking as well as tung oil and pig bristles for exportation.

The eastern road of the Southwestern public road is also called Chienhsiang road and runs from Kweiyang to Changsha, totaling 1,009 kilometers in length. Also a new road of 980 kilometers from Kweiyang to Chuchow, Hunan Province, is now being constructed. Of this new line the road between Hsiangtan and Hsianghsiang is already opened to traffic.

Thus at Changsha and Chuchow in Hunan Province are gathered materials for the aid of Chungking smuggled from Fuchow, Kwangtung and Kwanghsi, by the Chekiang-Kiangsi and Canton-Hankow railways. There are also collected rice, wheat, tungsten, antimony, manganese and other products of Hunan Province.

These goods are then transported to Kweiyang by the Chienhsiang road and Chienhsiang railway and forwarded to Chungking by the Chienchuan road that connects the Southwestern and Northwestern roads or by the Chienchuan railway now under construction. By the recent operation in Hunan, these supply roads to Chungking have been destroyed.

PORTUGAL IS ALARMED OVER U.S. IMPERIALISM

Lisbon Informed Circles Say Washington Covets Atlantic Island Possessions

Transocean

LISBON, September 22.—Portugual is frankly anxious over the imperialistic attitude of the Roosevelt administration and the obvious fact that Washington covets Portugal's insular possessions in the Atlantic, informed quarters explained here this morning.

They revealed that the Portuguese steamer Lourenzo Marques had sailed from Leixoes for the Cape Verde Islands with reinforcements for the Portuguese garrison there. Also President Antonio de Fragoso Carmona, after his recent inspection trip to the Azores, the Cape Verdes Islands, and Madeira had stated that the defenses on these isles must be strengthened, especially those of Madeira.

Consequently, additional troop transports will leave Portugal for these insular possessions in the near future. They will carry soldiers, war equipment, and complete ambulance corps.

In addition the Portuguese defenses in the African colonies—Portuguese Guinea with its important airport at Bohama, Angola, and Nozambique—will likewise be strengthened.

YANKS LICK DODGERS 3 TO 2 IN OPENING

Ruffing Holds Brooklyn Hitless To 5th Frame—Gordon's Bat Damaging

Domei

NEW YORK, October 1.—Behind the brilliant pitching of "Red" Ruffing and with Joe Gordon adding timely hits, including a homer in the second inning, the New York Yankees today defeated the Brooklyn Dodgers by 3-2 in the World Series opener at the Yankee stadium before 67,540 spectators.

"Red" Ruffing, aging Yankee pitcher, was in excellent form and held the Dodgers scoreless and hitless until the fifth inning, when Owen, Dodger catcher, rapped out a three bagger to left field to bring in Reese for the Dodgers first tally.

The Yankees, meantime, had chalked up two runs with a towering homer by Joe Gordon in the second inning and another run in the fourth on a double by Dickey which brought Keller home all the way from first.

The Yankees clinched the game in the sixth inning with a hit by Gordon bringing Keller in again for the Yank's third run.

With the score three to one in favor of the Yankees, the Dodgers made desperate attempts to even the score. In the seventh inning Riggs, pinch hitting for Owens, hit safely to send Lavagetto across the platter for the Dodger's last run.

Roosevelt Challenges Byrd on Defense Lag

the neutrality law were rejected. At that conference the Secrtary of State announced that all information showed that war in Europe was very close. Mr. Roosevelt recalled that Senator Borah said, "I'm sorry, Mr. Secretary, but my information is better than yours—there will be no war."

Recalls Borah's Mistake

Senator Borah, Mr. Roosevelt said, had been on the Foreign Affairs Committee for many years and certainly had better information than the people going around making speeches today. Despite that experience and information, however, the Senator had made a mistake which became a classic.

Returning to the matter of defense production, the President said he never had been satisfied. On the average, however, it was up to the estimates made when the defense program was inaugurated. Those estimates may have been wrong—too high in some cases and too low in others—but schedules, on the main, were being met.

Speaking from memory, and explaining that he was not certain he was entirely correct, he said he believed the estimate for plane production had been 1,500 a month by July 1. Actual delivery figures, he added, were about 1,465.

On the subject of gasoline rationing, the President was equally non-committal. He knew nothing of reports that rationing would be extended to the Rocky Mountains and said that nothing much would come from a resolution introduced by Senator John A. Danaher, Republican, of Connecticut, for an investigation of the entire situation. There was, he said, nothing to hide concerning oil, its production and distribution and the use of oil tankers.

MORE PETROL RATION DECREED BY PORTUGAL

Motor-Bicycles Placed on Same Level With Passenger Cars

Transocean

LISBON, September 22.—Motor-bicycles in Portugal have now also been subjected to petrol rationing. They are to be placed on the same level with passenger cars and are not allowed to be driven on Sundays, Mondays and Thursdays.

The new rationing system for petrol in private use will be enforced shortly. Coupon cards will be issued next week.

At least 1,600,000,000 litres of petrol were hoarded by motorcar drivers when the Government first issued the order to save on fuel, and decreeing that cars were not to be used on three days in the week. Simultaneously the Government had ordered that all private stocks of petrol be registered, whereupon it transpired that 1,600,000,000 litres were in private possession.

LONGEST PIPE LINE IS PLANNED IN U.S.

Would Carry 250,000 Barrels Of Crude Oil Daily Across The Continent

Harold L. Ickes, United States Defense Petroleum Co-ordinator, announced that 11 of the largest American oil companies had submitted to him a plan for the construction of the longest single pipe-line system in the world to carry 250,000 barrels of crude oil daily 1,820 miles across the American continent to the New York and Philadelphia areas to overcome the impending oil shortage, a Washington report to the New York Herald Tribune says.

The plan calls for the formation of an $80,000,000 company, National Defense Pipelines, Inc., to start work immediately on the new pipeline system and complete it within nine months. A second company, Emergency Pipelines, Inc., will be set up to build a small connecting link with the larger system, but its capitalization was not announced. The larger company will build all but 65 miles of the pipe lines and all the pumping facilities.

As this proposal was being studied by Mr. Ickes' office, the Maritime Commission made public bids from nine shipbuilding companies for the construction of 16 small, 1,830-ton tankers for use in coastal waters, to relieve the pressure for tanker tonnage to carry petroleum from the Gulf regions to the east coast.

Meanwhile the threat of another fuel shortage was emphasized in a report of the bituminous coal division of the Department of the Interior. The report stated that while the rate of production and storage of bituminous coal had improved in the last two months, transportation facilities were limited and any substantial extra orders for coal might tax them severely.

Mr. Ickes said that the companies which prepared the plan for the two pipe-line corporations had already laid much of the groundwork, so that the construction work might get under way as soon as possible.

"Survey parties are in the field, with aerial photographing of the route in progress," Mr. Ickes said. "In fact, this phase of the project will probably be completed within the next week or 10 days, assuring the making of maximum progress once it is possible to begin actual construction."

President Rosevelt will have to issue a proclamation declaring the proposed pipe lines necessary for national defense before the work can begin, Mr. Ickes said. The proclamation will set forth the terms under which the corporations will build the lines, and will enable them, if necessary, to take over property under the right of eminent domain, as authorized in the pipe-line act.

The companies taking part in the project are Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, the Atlantic Refining Company, Cities Service Company, Socony-Vacuum Oil Company, Inc.; Tide Water Associated Oil Co., the Texas Corporation, Shell Oil Company, Inc.; Gulf Oil Corporation and Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company.

National Defense Pipelines, Inc., would finance itself, without cost to the Federal Government, by borrowing privately 80 per cent of the estimated cost of the lines and facilities to be constructed by it. The balance would be made up through the issuance of junior securities or capital stock, which would be purchased by the 11 participating companies on a percentage basis. Emergency Pipelines, Inc., would be financed in the same manner.

The proposed agreement provides that other companies that wish to participate in the building and use of the network may do so within three months after formal execution of the agreement. They will be subject to the same provisions as the original companies.

The National Defense Pipelines will build and operate a 22-inch line from Shreveport, La., to Salem, Ill., 490 miles away; a 16-inch connecting line from Salem to Wood River, Ill., 35 miles away, to tap existing facilities carrying oil from Oklahoma, Kansas, Texas, mid-continent and Illinois fields, and a 24-inch pipeline from the junction of the first two lines near Salem to refining centers 1,200 miles east to the New York and Philadelphia areas.

Emergency Pipelines will build and operate only a 65-mile, 22-inch pipe line from the East Texas oil fields to Shreveport, La., to connect with the line to be built by National Defense Pipelines.

Expect Early Rationing

Five major oil companies serving the Eastern seaboard reported that the principal effect of the 7 p.m. curfew on retail gasoline sales had been to increase their wholesale deliveries of motor fuel by 6 to 25 per cent.

These increases were registered during the week starting August 3 when the curfew began, and, unless filling stations themselves are hoarding gasoline, fearful of rising wholesale prices, they demonstrate that the new gasoline saving program in 17 Eastern states and the District of Columbia is operating in reverse.

If that is a fact—it cannot be established until the Government has compiled the wholesale figures over a several-week period—compulsory rationing of gasoline is right around the corner, men in the oil industry said.

While it is considered likely that some part of the increase in wholesale deliveries represents not increased consumer buying but precautionary maintenance of full storage tanks by filling stations, oil men believed that up to now, at least, consumer buying had been increased rather than cut down by the curfew.

In support of this, one large company serving New England, New Jersey, New York, Delaware and Pennsylvania reported that its increase of 12 per cent during the first curfew week represented both retail and wholesale sales. In volume the increase was 50,000,000 gallons.

Several of the companies preferred anonymity, saying they thought oil consumption figures were solely for the perusal of Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior and Federal Petroleum Coordinator, who instituted the voluntary curfew plan.

Among their reports, however, were two increases of 9 per cent during the first curfew week, and one of 15 to 25 per cent.

The Automobile Club of New York started a gasoline saving program when William J. Gottlieb, its president, pasted a sticker reading "I Don't Waste Gasoline" on the windshield of a car selected at random at Seventh Avenue and Thirty-third Street. At about the same time in Albany, Governor Herbert H. Lehman stuck a similar sticker on his car. The club has sent 200,000 stickers out for state-wide distribution.

George U. Harvey, Borough President of Queens, assailed the gasoline curfew in a statement, describing it as one of "Ickes' brainstorms" and achieving nothing but throwing men out of work. The program did not save gasoline, he said; it merely transferred purchases from night to day.

Defending Champs, Keio, Clash With Cellar St. Paul's 2:30 p.m.

American football, which has been screened by spring and summer sports, comes right out in the open today, with the opening game of the 1941 Kanto Inter-collegiate League scheduled in the Korakuen stadium.

The Keio University, undefeated and untied champions of last fall, will clash with the St. Paul's eleven at 2:30 p.m.

Last season, Keio in taking the championship made one of the finest records of any team in seven years of football in Japan. Besides victories in League play, the Mita gridsters whipped both Doshisha and Kandai of Kansai. From what pre-season dope points, they have enough material to repeat last season's performance.

Advance information on Keio is that three regular linemen and two backs will be missing from the eleven but every position will be filled by veterans.

Keio's biggest losses via graduation are Yoichi Sato, the triple-threat halfback, who voted the outstanding player last year and captain Yamagata, scrappy pass-snagging end and defensive star.

Outstanding among the players who will face St. Paul's today are Captain-elect Tazawa, wing-back; Teru Yoshida, midget guard, Tanifuchi, all-star tackle and veteran Tomita, whose pass receiving played such an important role last fall.

Keio will probably line-up at the kick-off as follow: Ends, Tomita and Tanaka; tackles, Tanifuchi and Miyoshi; guards, Yoshida and Tsugami and center Tetsuo Yoshida.

The signal-calling position will be filled by Matsuo and flanking Tazawa, at the other wing-half will be Kondo. Nakano speedy, two-year lettermen will take care of the fullback assignment.

St. Paul's, which ended up in the cellar position last year, will again present a small squad led by giant tackle Oguro. They will sorely miss their star back of last fall, Richard Fukuda, who has left school. However, the St. Pual's 11 should feature an effective passing-attack with quarterback Suzuki pitching strikes.

While today's tilt can be termed a "breather" for Keio, it should nevertheless prove an interesting afternoon. For one thing, it remains to be seen whether the defending champion can overcome the loss of Sato, Tomii and Yamagata and yet present a strong enough offense to take Waseda and Meiji in games later.

The consensus is that Keio will present a most interesting style of football, with running plays predominant. St. Paul's meanwhile will have to rely on a effective passing attack to score over the strong Keio forward wall.

With the shifting of national air-raid drills, the League has revised its original schedule. On Thursday, October 8, Waseda will face Hosei in the second of the 15 league schedule, at the Korakuen stadium.

On October 17, a national holiday, a double-header is stated with Meiji and Nichidai in the first game and being followed by Keio versus Hosei tilt.

The first crucial game is scheduled for October 22 when Keio and Meiji clash, Meiji plays its arch-rival Waseda November 6. The big game of the year, the Waseda-Keio fracas is slated November 16.

The complete schedule follows:

October 3—Keio vs St. Paul's.
" 8—Waseda vs Hosei.
" 17—Meiji vs Nichidai and Keio vs Hosei.
" 18—Waseda vs St. Paul's.
" 20—Nichidai vs St. Paul's.
" 22—Keio vs Meiji.
" 31—Meiji vs Hosei.
November 6—Waseda vs Meiji.
" 7—Keio vs Nichidai.
" 9—St. Paul's vs Hosei.
" 15—Meiji vs St. Paul's.
" 16—Waseda vs Keio and Hosei vs Nichidai.
" 21—Waseda vs Nichidai.

LIEGE CITIZENS ENJOY FALSE ARMISTICE RUMOR

Much Celebrating Takes Place in Belgium City as High Hopes Raised

I.N.S.

VICHY, September 30.—A false report that an armistice had been arranged swept through the citizenry of Liege, according to the Brussels correspondent of the Petit Parisen. The citizens sang and danced in the streets and drank their whole supply of beer and wine and gorged on all their supplies. A panic seized the black-marketers who sold out their stocks at any price they could get.

The people tore down the black-out curtains thinking they were no longer needed, and even the police believed the false report. When finally the news was discovered to be false the saddened citizens headed homewards and the black-out curtains were replaced.

JEW STATE GUARANTEED

Prominent U.S. Zionist Official Hints Place in Palestine

Transocean

NEW YORK, September 11.—"After the victorious conclusion of the war, Britain and the United States will jointly enforce the establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine."

This statement was made by the President of the Jewish Relief Society, Goldstein, in a broadcast speech yesterday on the occasion of the annual Zionist meeting at Cincinnati.

The Zionists passed a resolution demanding that after the war Palestine be built up exclusively as a Jewish state.

ENTIRE WEST AFRICA FIRMLY UNDER FRENCH

Governor-General Tells Press At Vichy Colony Backing Petain

Transocean

VICHY, September 23.—"With the exception of the Tshad district, entire French West Africa is firmly in French hands," Governor-General of French West Africa Boisson stated yesterday during a foreign press conference in Vichy.

Not a single of the communications had been interrupted or disturbed by de Gaullists, the Governor-General continued.

Seven districts under the reign of the Governor-General in West Africa, are backing Vichy and the policy of Marshal Petain.

To the question what he had to say regarding numerous reports spread by British propaganda asserting that there were German soldiers in Dakar, Governor-General Boisson replied with the words spoken by his soldiers, when they heard over the wireless that Dakar was being defended by German officers "these beastly liars!"

Asked whether one reckoned with an attack of the U.S. on Dakar, Boisson laughingly stated "I am not a prophet."

WYATT CHUCKS WIN 3 TO 2 OVER YANKS

Gives 9 Hits but Bears Down In Pinches—Following 3 Tilts at Brooklyn

Domei

NEW YORK, October 2.—With hard-pitching Wyatt taking the mound for the Brooklyn Dodgers, manager Durocher's boys today took the New York Yankees over 3 to 2 in the second game of the World Series before a capacity crowd at the Yankee Stadium. The Dodgers' victory evened the series at one apiece.

Although the Yankees outhit the Dodgers 9 to 6, Wyatt effectively held the Yanks to well-scattered safeties throughout the game, adroitly silencing the potent bats of the Yankee sluggers.

Chandler pitching for the Yankees in his first World Series appearance held the Dodgers hitless and scoreless until the fourth inning but he had to be relieved by "Fireman" Murphy in the "Lucky Seventh" after giving up three runs to the Dodgers in the fifth and sixth innings.

Replacing Chandler, Murphy blanked out the Dodgers for the remaining three innings. The hard-hitting Yankees today, however, failed to show anything after they scored two runs in the second and third innings.

The Yanks had a good chance to even the count in the ninth inning when, with no down, Selkirk, pinch-hitting for Murphy, connected with a long drive to right field but Wyatt proved equal to the situation by retiring the Yanks without a hit.

The following three games are scheduled to be played at Ebbets Field, Dodgers' home ground.

Giants Defeat Redskins

United Press

NEW YORK, September 28.—The New York Giants took the first step toward the National Professional Football Championships today by trouncing the Washington Redskins, 17 to 10. In the western loop, the Chicago Bears took a 25 to 17 decision from the Green Bay Packers.

Army Air Cadet Terrifies Football Fans, Players When He Loses Bearings and Fuel

United Press

STOCKTON, California, September 28.—A United States Army flying cadet last night terrified football spectators and players at the College of Pacific stadium when he nearly landed on the field.

Lost and low on fuel, the pilot tried desperately but vainly to land his training plane on the field, during the football game.

He zoomed and dived his plane for nearly 30 minutes over the stadium, whizzing a few feet over the heads of terrified spectators and players, clipping a power line and plunging the stadium into darkness. A night game was being played under powerful flood lights.

Then, with his gasoline tank empty the pilot set his plane down in an automobile parking lot next to the stadium, without damaging either the plane or the automobiles.

Army authorities tentatively identified the pilot as Cadet V. M. Wieser, attached to Mather Field, Sacramento He was described as being in a "dazed condition" after landing. He said he lost his way during a cross country flight from Sacramento to Fresno and return.

RIKKYO HOLDS KEIO TO CLOSE 7-0 WIN

Defending Champs Outplayed in First Half of Varsity Football Opening

A 15-yard touchdown run by a driving freshman fullback, H. Ibaragi, late in the final quarter enabled Keio University to eke out a 7-0 victory over a stubborn St. Paul's eleven in the opening game of the Kanto Intercollegiate Football League Friday afternoon.

The spectators at the Korakuen stadium saw the St. Paul's eleven outmaneuver and out-rush the defending champions for the first half. At the start of the final period, Keio took command and put over a touchdown with a final drive.

The defending champions soon adjusted things in the final quarter after Captain Tazawa returned a punt to St. Paul's 38. Ibaragi broke through over right tackle and raced to St. Paul's 23-yard line. Tazawa on third down picked up four yards for a first down on the 19.

Two attempts by Tazawa and Ibaragi gained another four yards. With third and 15, Ibaragi skirted left end to hit pay-dirt in the far corner of the end-zone standing up. Ibaragi dove over his right tackle for the extra point.

St. Paul's with a stubborn line had all the better of it in the first period after Keio kicked off. With Ando and Terai alternating, they made substantial gains but were unable to piece together a sustained drive.

In the second period Keio missed two scoring opportunities. After an exchange of kicks had given Keio the ball on St. Paul's 29, they worked the ball to the 11. Here a pass Tazawa to Tomita brought the ball to just inside the 10. However, the St. Paul's forward line stiffened and with Captain Oguro crashing through, the Keio attack stalled completely.

Immediately after, St. Paul's after a plunge through the middle attempted to skirt their own right end. Tanaka, Keio's end broke through to spill the runner and St. Paul's was backed up inside their 5. A short punt gave the ball to Keio inside the 30. But again, the St. Paul's line charging furiously broke up Keio's reverses and tackle lunges as the half ended.

Following Keio's touchdown, St. Paul's started their longest sustained drive. Terai, the St. Paul's right end dropped back to the backfield and started passing. One of his throws to end Yoshida, was good for a 25-yard gain to the midfield. Ando, skirted right tackle and broke into the clear only to be tackled from behind on Keio's 32. Tazawa stopped the drive by intercepting a pass on Keio's 28.

From here on, till the final gun, Keio again took command. Ibaragi, skirting ends and cutting back beautifully spearheaded a sustained drive that rolled up three consecutive first downs. As the game ended Keio was in possession of the ball on St. Paul's 28.

The play of the St. Paul's eleven was a considerable surprise. The cellar champs last fall, the St. Paulers displayed a stubborn aggressive line. They not only played Keio to a standstill through a good part of the first half but gave season progresses.

While the whole St. Paul's line played with an aggressive spirit, the play of Captain Oguro stood out especially with his wide awake defensive play. Teaming up also with Oguro was tackle Yokoyama and center Nagai, who caused no end of grief to Keio.

In Ibaragi, Keio revealed a speedster with plenty of drive, he should team up well with Captain Tazawa, who played his usual steady game. Tanaka, Keio's lanky right end shone in the line with his fine defensive play.

Starting Line-up

Dam Break Reported

The breaking of a dam located in Iwato village, Nishiusuki-gun, Miyazaki Prefecture, caused destruction of more than 30 homes and death and injuries to many people in the neighborhood. The collapse was traced to the inordinately heavy rainfall of the past few days. The number of casualties has not yet been announced.

WILLIAMS' BAT MARK FOR SEASON IS .406

1st Player to Hit .400 Since 1923—Also Leads in Homers And Runs

United Press

NEW YORK, September 29.—Ted Williams, youthful Red Sox slugger, captured three American League hitting titles during the 1941 season which ended yesterday, a United Press compilation disclosed today.

Williams led the American League hitters with a season-long average of .406 as a result of his feat in the final two games with the Philadelphia Phillies Sunday when he garnered six hits out of eight times at bat. He thus maintained a better than .400 average throughout the season and became the first American League hitter to reach the golden average since 1923.

Williams also led the home-run division by collectiing 37 during the season and also scored the most runs, collecting 135.

Pete Reiser of the Brooklyn Dodgers was the star of the National League. He led the senior circuit hitters with a season-long average of .343, and collected 117 hits.

Dolph Camilli, his slugging Dodger mate, also shone brilliantly by leading the National League in homers, getting 34 round-trippers. Camilli also led the National League in runs batted in with a total of 120.

Joe DiMaggio, Yankee outfielder, led the American League in runs batted in by collecting 125.

Cecil Travis of the Washington Senators led the hits scored parade by collecting 218 during the season. Stanley Hack of the Chicago Cubs passed Pete Reiser in the last week of play in this department to lead the National League with 185 hits.

EMERGENCY ALLOCATIONS AGREED ON BY OFFICIALS

Appropriations Fixed for Payments to City Employes, Other Purposes

Emergency allocations of the following sums to the Home Ministry and Agriculture and Forestry Ministry were agreed upon at the regular cabinet meeting Friday.

Home Ministry:—special allowances to employes of the municipal, town and village governments, ¥2,000,000; reconstruction allotments to nine flooded areas, including Arakawa district, ¥757,000; building subsidies for flood-damaged regions, ¥4,786,000.

Agriculture and Forestry Ministry:—emergency aquatic products establishment disbursements, ¥2,724,000.

It was also learned that Agriculture and Forestry Minister Hiroya Ino gave his estimates of the rice crop for this year at the cabinet meeting while Admiral Teijiro Toyoda, concurrently Overseas Minister, clarified the measures regarding the purchase price of foreign rice and subsidies.

After the meeting, Minister of Agriculture and Forestry Hiroya Ino proceeded to the Imperial Palace where he presented to His Imperial Majesty this year's rice estimates.

500 TIBET TROOPS FLEE

Fail to Capture Robber Band at Thakchin, Who Loot Monasteries

Reuters

ALMORA, India, September 27.—According to a message from Garbiang, a high official of Tibet, with 500 soldiers, arrived yesterday at Thakchin, where robbers had pitched tents. The troops tried their best to encircle the robbers, but failed and had to flee.

The robbers then looted a number of houses and took captive several youths. Almost all monasteries near Manasarowar were looted and completely destroyed by the marauders. Official confirmation is unavailable.

ed with a suit of winter clothes which he threw to the man. "Take it," his Lordship said, "and be careful how you behave in the future."

Later, when at last Hakamadare sat before the magistrate, he confessed that one of the most dreadful experiences he had was his encounter with the man of the flute on the night of full moon at whose voice he had quailed as he had never quailed before.

Here the story stops, and we may only add that the name of Fujiwara no Yasumasa is known to posterity, or the generality of his posterity, through this single episode which is often depicted in illustrations of historical events or upon the Kabuki stage as characteristic autumn scene taken from the classic age.

THREE EVENTS SET AT BAY CITY CLUB

Cricket, Lawn Bowls, and Tennis to Be Played—Softball Finished

Cricket, lawn bowls and tennis will comprise the sports program at the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club this weekend, the baseball and ladies' softball teams having concluded their activities for the year last Sunday.

With the tennis drawings for the various events in the autumn tournament having been completed during the week, racquet wielders are expected to be out in force to play off their first round matches today and Sunday.

The center of attention for lawn bowls enthusiasts will be the international tourney match between the Canadian and Born-in-Japan quartets, scheduled for 2.30 p.m. today.

Canucks Unbeaten Team

With the Canucks, only unbeaten team in this event, having lost two of their original four, the strong B-I-J squad is expected to have a good chance to hand the opposition its first defeat this season.

The B-I-J squad will probably consist of S. Stephens, F. J. da Silva, F. R. Harriss and P. H. Lord (skip), with Dave Abbey, former champion, as manager. The Canadians are expected to include Mrs. J. O. Lloyd, H. Lefebvre, G. E. Beatty and C. Heseltine (skip).

With winter sports activities almost ready to get under way, a meeting will be held in the clubhouse at 6 p.m. today to elect officers for the various teams, which will include badminton, men's and ladies' basketball, men's and ladies' hockey, rugby and soccer. If there is sufficient support, an American football team will also be organized.

An all-day cricket match between the British Embassy and the Y.C. and A.C. teams on Sunday will close the season in this summer sport. With the game scheduled to get under way at 10:30 a.m. sharp, the players are being asked to turn out to the nets by 10:15 a.m.

The match will be a two innings contest, with the winner to be decided on the result of the first innings in case two cannot be completed.

Luncheon Interval Fixed

There will be an interval at 1 p.m., when luncheon will be available in the clubhouse. Play will be resumed at 2 p.m. and continue until about 4 p.m., when there will be a 15 minutes' intermission for tea. The game will then continue until dark, if necessary.

The cricket line-ups will probably be as follows:

British Embassy: A. H. Ballantyne, R. A. P. Craigie, H. C. Hainworth, Major K. S. Himatsinhji (captain), B. Kuskie, G. W. Makepeace, J. R. V. Mason, P. Shaw, F. L. Simpson, M. J. K. Stark and Major E. V. Thomas.

Y.C. and A.C.: G. E. Beatty, F. J. Bond, F. J. da Silva, G. W. Gorman, F. R. Harriss, A. N. Hawkes, G. L. King, P. H. Lord, G. Meadows, M. Parsram, J. A. Sargeant and S. Stephens (captain).

AMATEUR GOLF CHAMP, MARIAN MILEY, KILLED

2 Masked Burglars Shoot Holder of Western Open at Clubhouse

United Press

LEXINGTON, Kentucky, September 29.—Miss Marian Miley 27, top-flight amateur golfer, was shot and killed in the exclusive Lexington Country Club by two masked burglars yesterday when she attempted to assist her mother who had been beaten and then shot three times by the "thugs." Mrs. Miley was critically wounded.

The burglars ransacked the clubhouse and escaped with $145.

Mrs. Miley is caretaker of the club while her husband, Fred Miley, is a golf professional in Cincinnati.

Mrs. Miley was awakened by burglars beating down the door and went into the hall where she was knocked unconscious and shot. Marian heard the commotion and went into the hall. She was shot in the head and back and was killed instantly.

Marian's golf titles included the Western Open, the Western Women's Amateur, the Southern and the Trans-Mississippi tournaments.

Bandits Harrying Pilgrims

United Press

LONDON, September 27.—The Exchange Telegraph news agency yesterday in a dispatch from Almore said that thousands of Indian pilgrims bound for the holy temple of Kailas in Tibet may have fallen into the hands of bandits from Chinese Turkestan. The bandits were operating recently in western Tibet, it was reported, and now were said to be at Gunkyu, 80 miles from the Indian border.

HOME FRONT MEETS HELD FOR CHILDREN

Thousands of Pupils Gather At Theaters and Hear Patriotic Speeches

Two meetings sponsored by the Toho Theater with support of various Governmental institutes including the Military Protection Board and the Welfare Ministry as well as Tokyo Municipal Office featured the second day of the Home Front Service Enforcement Week. One was the meeting of girl students for sending letters of consolation to soldiers at the front held at the Hibiya Gekijo Friday morning, and the other was for consolation of war bereaved children at the Nippon Gekijo on the same morning.

More than 1,700 girl students from the Sugamo Girls' Commercial School, the Nakano Girls' School, the Hinode Girls' School, and the Ushigome Girls' School attended the meeting. The girls piled up their letters at the entrance of the Hibiya Theater.

The meeting was opened with the chorus of the girls who sang "The Song of the Home Front Service," after which Kajimatsu Soga, Director of the Assistance Bureau of the Military Protection Board, thanked the girls for their kindness to the soldiers at the front.

The girl students then enjoyed pictures and songs to their hearts' content.

Some 300 children of various national schools in Tokyo were invited to the meeting at the Nippon Gekijo.

Two thousand other children from national schools were also invited, giving a gay atmosphere to the meeting.

The boys and girls heard the lecture of Seiya Mishima, Vice-President of the Military Protection Board, who advised them to grow up as good men and women succeeding their fathers who fell at the front for the country.

Rakuten Nishimura, famous story-teller, and the dancing troupe of the Toho Theater graciously donated their service to console the war bereaved children.

gerent parties, but on this occasion a new precedent was set. Muraoka had caused his mounted delegate to say these words: "By the nature of our quarrel it would not be proper to embroil the whole of our vassals in this fight. This is only a contest to prove which of us is the stronger. Therefore let you and me meet in single combat and try our respective skill in arms till either of us shall fall and die."

Minoda immediately acknowledged the justice of Muraoka's advice, "I agree with you," he said, and quick as his word, he rode out single-handed, his arrow fitted to his bow-string, ready for action.

Muraoka, glad at Minoda's compliance, followed suit, and as he left his camp, turned for a moment to his men. "All you have to do is to stay your hands and look on while this contest is being waged, and if you see me fall and die, then come over and fetch my body. So he advanced on his steed, unattended, his bow and arrows gallantly poised.

How It Was Fought

The two adversaries faced each other alone in the open field, while their respective soldiers, left far behind, were in throes of suppressed anxiety. The first arrows let fly by the two men went wide of the mark, falling on the ground, and the spectators heaved a sigh of relief. The second arrows were meant for the vitals of each other. Muraoka's missile, however, Minoda parried with the breadth of a hair by the sudden jerk he gave the horse, while Minoda's arrow was also skilfully dodged by the other. The third arrow Muraoka shot seemed to have gone home, for Minoda fell off from his horse, or made a gesture as if he had done so, and the arrow had hit the chord binding his sword to his side, and he received no injury. The arrow he shot struck Muraoka's trappings about the saddle and the rider was uninjured. Both stood scatheless.

Then did Muraoka address Minoda: "Strange that our arrows which are never in the habit of missing their victims should have gone astray. It seems our skill is now well tested. Thou hast proved thy prowess as I have mine. Besides, this combat has been caused by no real wrong or injury; it was due to our desire to prove our superiority in arms. Now that we have shown ourselves equal, there is no cause for further fighting, and it would be foolish to continue it longer till we were both dead."

Minoda heartily agreed. "I feel exactly in the way thou dost. Thy bravery hath been well demonstrated even as mine hath. Now let us stop."

Men on both sides drew a profound sigh of relief. "Such thrilling combat we have never experienced," they said to one another. "As the two master warriors were in a grip of contest every moment seemed as it were the last of our Lord; and it was far more terrible than if we were fighting ourselves."

Barbarous but Honorable

After this tournament Minoda and Muraoka, the quondam rival neighbors, became good friends and associated with each other on cordial terms of friendship. It was due obviously to their intimacy that their respective sons, Tsuna and Sadamichi, came in later years to serve under the same master, distinguishing themselves in many a famous exploit. When Raiko was out to destroy the notorious malefactor, Oni-do Maru, at Ichiharano, he was accompanied by the two young fighters.

Such was the way in which the typical duel was conducted in those far-off days among the warriors of Eastern Japan, while in the gay capital civilization had reached such a plane that the manners were often deplorably effeminate and the morals corrupt, and men behaved like women and women like men. A duel itself was probably a relic of barbarism, but when it was fought in a valiant spirit and manner, as in the above combat, it must be regarded as evidence of the manly defiance of peril and love of good name, without which the country in time of danger or crisis might be crushed under the foot of a tyrant.

Visiting Kansai This Week

The Tokyo Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Professor Manfred Gurlitt, is making its second visit to the Kansai this week.

ture, which will be illustrated with the playing of phonograph disks.

Music lovers in the Kansai will hear the Tokyo Symphony Orchestra in two concerts at the Takarazuka Grand Theater, 7 p.m. Tuesday, October 7, and Wednesday, October 8, as the orchestra will make its second visit to that part of Japan, under the direction of Professor Manfred Gurlitt. Miss Kazuko Kusama, pianist, will be featured as the soloist of the two concerts.

Beethoven's Fifth Symphony in C Minor; Chopin's Second Piano Concerto in F minor; Weber's Invitation to the Waltz, and Liszt's Hungarian

Miss Kazuko Kusama, young pianist, who will be heard in three concerts with the Tokyo Symphony Orchestra, at the Nagoya Public Hall, October 6, and at the Takarazuka Grand Theater, Takarazuka, October 7 and 8.

Rhapsody No. 2 make up the program for Tuesday, while Wednesday's program includes Beethoven's Sixth Symphony "Pastorale," Schumann's Piano Concerto in A minor, and Rossini's Overture to the opera, "William Tell." Tuesday's program will also be heard on Monday at the Nagoya Public Hall.

Miss Kazuko Kusama, who is considered as one of the few leading female pianists in this country, has spent many years in Paris, but was obliged to return to Japan in 1939, following the outbreak of the second World War. Going to Paris in 1921, at the age of two, with her parents, she received her first piano lessons when she was only four years old. At the age of 15, she was graduated from the preparatory course of the Paris Conservatory, and previous to her graduation from the regular course, she won first prize honors in a French piano concours.

Making her debut appearance in Paris in 1935, Miss Kusama has subsequently appeared in many successful recitals and broadcasting performances in France, Spain, and Germany. Since her return to Japan, two years ago, she has been heard several times in solo recitals and as a soloist with the former Chuo Symphony Orchestra and the Japan Broadcasting Symphony Orchestra.

RECORD VIEWS

Gustav Mahler: "Das Lied von der Erde": Charles Kullmann (Tenor), Kerston Thornborg (Contralto), and the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Bruno Walter. (Seven 12-inch special purple-label records, with notes and album, Masterworks Set. No. 363, ¥29.75.)

This symphonic song-cycle for tenor, contralto and orchestra is undoubtedly the most important recording to be issued in Japan during recent months. It was composed in 1908 and had its first performance on November 10, 1911, at Munich. The present recording was made at a public concert in Vienna in 1936 and conveys accurately the atmosphere of the occasion. The faint preliminary murmur of voices, the occasional coughing of members of the audience and other incidental noises are audible but should by no means be considered as defects in the recording. The set evokes very powerfully the illusion of actual presence in the concert hall and will, for this reason, be valued by many exiles whose memories go back to happy evening in Europe.

The six movements are based on German versions of ancient Chinese poems ("Die Chinenische Flote" or "The Chinese Flute"). The poems were further modified by Mahler to make them fit into his poetic design of a last farewell to the beauties of the earth. The work succeeded the gigantic eighth symphony and the six movements have an ordered relationship comparable almost with the movements of a symphony.

Much has been made of the inexorable gloom of this music, but not enough of its beauty. "The Drinking Song of the Earth" with which the work begins combines the praise of wine with despairing reflections on the brevity of human life. This is splendidly sung by Charles Kullmann. "The Solitary in Autumn" is scored, in strong contrast with the previous movement, almost in the style of chamber music. Kerstin Thorborg, who has often sung in Wagner operas at Covent Garden, sings this with lovely tone. Three humorous poems follow. "Youth" is a delicate piece of chinoiserie and the vocal line of "Beauty" is a naive tune which reminds us of a child singing itself to sleep. Both reveal unclouded happiness and are exquisitely lovely. Li Tai Po's well-known "Drunkard in Spring" follows

The long "Farewell" takes up the last six sides and is the heart of the work. Hesitating purchasers should hear the whole of this movement before deciding that these records do not appeal to them. The performance of the orchestra under Bruno Walter, whose Mahler interpretations are absolutely authoritative, being founded on a long intimacy with the composer, is as fine as any we can imagine. The recording is first rate and all the details of the brilliant and delicate scoring are convincingly reproduced. An excellent set of records.

Ravel: Sonatine, pianoforte solo by Robert Casadesus. (Columbia light-blue, 10-inch, JD 6034-35.)

Casadesus, the French pianist, has carefully preserved the outline of this delicate Sonatine throughout. Ravel's piano music is, perhaps, a matter of surface pleasantries, but this is a charming piece. The second movement (the Menuet) moves forward briskly and comes to a dramatic close. The third movement (marked Animee) is thematically less interesting but pianistically excellent.

As a fill-up on the fourth side of this set we have the Menuet from "Le Tombeau de Couperin," a Suite of pieces in homage to Chopin. The Menuet is No. 5. If there is anything that Ravel can write well, it is a Menuet, and this is exquisite.

Eugen Wolff and his Orchestra: "Troikafahrt" ("Driving a Sleigh") and "Nachtexpres nach Warschau" ("Night Express to Warsaw"). (Columbia 10-inch, black-label, JX 1155.)

Two descriptive pieces with plenty of sound and fury.

The first side gives the authentic sounds of bells as the sleigh and its occupants career over the frozen snow, the driver shouting to the horses. The second has the rhythmical pompity-pom-pom of the train over the points of the railroad as it rushed through the night to Warsaw. Simple music for simple-minded folk.

Zarah Leander and his Orchestra: Vocal music, in German, from the Ufa Film "Zu neuen Ufern." (Columbia 10-inch, black-label, JX 1152-53.)

For those who enjoyed the sound-track of this film when it was going the round of cinemas here, these records will presumably have a further appeal. Side A of the first record is stickily sentimental ("Tiefe Sehnsuch" or "Deep Longing") and Side B gay and lively ("Yes, Sir!"). The second record has the titles "Kinostar" ("Movie Star") and "Ich steh' in Regen" ("I stand in the rain.").

Xavier Cugat and his Orchestra: Kashim'ri Love Song, from "Indian Love Lyrics" (Amy Woodford and Finden) and "In a Persian Market" (Ketelby). (Columbia 10-inch, black-label, JX 1154.)

The Indian Love Lyrics have been popular for many years with young ladies who like to pour out their souls yearningly in the drawing-room. Here is an orchestral version of one of them, competently played, for those whose tastes run in this direction. The sentiment is rather cloying to those whose good fortune it has been to receive a musical education.

Ketelby is a composer who has become popular by turning out simple music that purports to portray the East-Chinese monasteries, Egyptian bazaars and so on. Whether this piece is an authentic reproduction of the sounds of a Persian market (neither English nor Russian voices are to be heard) is doubtful, but it is pleasant, amusing stuff for lowbrows.

This month's records include quite a spate of Serenades, all 10-inch, black-label Columbia records. On Side A of JX285 Otto Dobruidt and his Orchestra give us Gounod's Serenade, and on Side B we have Titl's Serenade arranged for flute, French horn and harp. Neither side is particularly remarkable but the trio is an attractive and unusual combination.

Edith Lorand and her Viennese Orchestra give us the well-known Schubert Serenade on Side A of JX 284. This orchestra has made scores of records of pleasant tea-time music, always capably played and well recorded. This is up to the usual standard. On Side B of the same disc we have a cinema organ record of still another Serenade, this time by Heykens. Organ music does not always record well but this is a success.

Finally we have Toselli's Serenade played by Herbert Koppfe (Vibraphone) and his Ensemble on Side A of JX 286 and Drigo's Serenade on Side B as a violin solo played by Albert Sandler with piano accompaniment. Sandler was for years the leader of an orchestra in a Bournemouth hotel and was popular as a Sunday evening radio performer. His playing is excellent and the record is a good specimen of pleasant, light music.

Third Series Game Called Off Because Of Bad Weather

Domei

NEW YORK, October 3.—The third game of the world series which was to be played at the Brooklyn Dodgers home grounds, Ebbets Field, was called off today because of rain, the first world series postponement since 1936. Rabid baseball lovers, especially the members of the S.P.S.R.A.B. (Society for Prevention of Slurring Remarks about Brooklyn), were deeply disappointed as the series now stands at one game apiece for the Yankees and the Dodgers. Since Ebbets Field seats only 62,000, the fight for the tickets has been terrific, with scalpers doing a rushing business.

American Resources

Vulnerability in the defense material resources of America is taken up as a subject for timely study in the October issue of the Taihoiyo (Pacific) by Mr. Toshiyuki Sato, of the Japan Economic League. The writer looks into the position, actual and potential, of America under the two heads of "strategic materials" and "critical materials," the two divisions into which the American army and navy committee on war materials has classified the varieties of material resources that constitute one of the three factors of any country's economic power. These factors are material resources, productive equipment and labor, of which the first is the subject for study.

By strategic materials is meant a number of articles, essential to national defense, whose wartime supplies must either in all or in part be sought from external sources, therefore calling for adequate stocks and regimented consumption. By critical materials is meant those materials, which are essential to defense, and whose wartime supplies are subject to conditions of war, but which, because adequately produceable internally or because needed only in limited quantities, are not of so much importance from the standpoint of national defense.

The American list of strategic materials officially given consists of the following:—Antimony, chromite, camphor, coconut shells, coffee, skins and hides, iodine, jute, manganese, mercury, mica (sheets), Manila hemp, opium, nickel, platinum, rubber, quinine, silk, shellac, sisal, sugar, tin, tungsten ore, nux vomica, wool. The list of critical materials consists of the following:—aluminum (bauxite), asbestos, coal, copper, lead, petroleum, optical glasses, zinc.

The articles of the second category, excepting optical glasses, hardly present any serious problems for America. They are potentials only so far as they are considered in relationship with transport means, distribution facilities and labor movement. Of those listed in the first group there are varieties whose supplies may be considered as secure because of adequate stocks, an increase of internal production, and possible replacements by substitute products. Such are antimony, camphor, coconuts, coffee, skins and hides, iodine, Manila hemp, opium, nickel, platinum, silk sisal, sugar, nux vomica.

However, the position of America is less secure, to a greater or less extent, with regard to some other articles listed in the same group. This is pointed out, first of all, with regard to chromite. Whereas, the Japanese economist says, its peak consumption in 1937 reached 556,237 English tons, American production for that year was able to fill less than 10 per cent of the requirement. Increased supplies would be possible from Canada, Cuba and Brazil, but such increases would involve considerable time for mechanical extension. When, therefore, imports are cut off and the existing stock of 165,000 tons (as of December 31, 1940,) is exhausted, serious situation would have to be faced.

Manganese, essential to iron and steel manufacture, is produced more abundantly in America, but her entire production, even under the pressure of wartime exigencies, would not be above 20 or 25 per cent of the actual need, according to the Japanese writer. The actual requirement of this material is estimated to be 2.5 million metric tons of the ore, 825,000 tons of ferro-manganese and 511,000 tons of Spiegeleisen. Internal production is very small, except for Spiegeleisen of low grade. America has always depended on imports from Soviet Russia, the Gold Coast Colony, British India. Supplies from these sources would be of even more importance in time of war.

Of America's dependence on external supplies of rubber there is no secret. Of the normal consumption of peace time something like 90 per cent has always been imported from Malaya, Ceylon and the Netherlands East Indies. It is for this reason that importance is attached to the matter of maintaining the lines of communication with the countries in the South Pacific. American consumption of rubber in 1939 amounted to 484,100 English tons of crude rubber and 182,604 tons of reclaimed rubber, the total being 666,704 English tons. The output of reclaimed rubber in war time would no doubt gain, but the Japanese writer is of opinion that even under the most favorable conditions of war it would hardly be possible to expect much more than 150,000 tons of crude rubber by import or 300,000 tons of reclaimed rubber by high pressure operation.

Rubber production within the sphere of American influence is seen in Bolivia which produces between 45,000 and 50,000 English tons a year. This industry has been developed in South America at considerable cost but the results achieved so far are far from encouraging. A far more promising outlook is seen with regard to synthetic rubber, of which there are several varieties. But their manufacture has advanced little beyond the experimental stage.

In sight of this situation the American Government has taken a step for accumulation of crude rubber stocks in the country, by arranging credit facilities to the amount of $65 million. By this plan the crude rubber stocks before the end of the current year will amount to 516,732 English tons. Even with this amount in stock and imports from South America and increased output of reclaimed rubber, the Japanese writer observes, America would have to experience a rubber shortage in the second year of a war.

Of tin, next to nothing is produced in America. The main sources of supply are imports from Malaya and Bolivia and the scrap metal collected in the country. The production from scrap fills 30 per cent of the total consumption of the country, the balance being imported from abroad. Malaya has always been the most important supply source. The Bolivian ore is first shipped to Britain to be refined and then exported to America, Britain and Germany being the only countries capable of refining tin ore on a commercial basis. It is no exaggeration to say that America would have to depend on British refining plants for the great bulk of tin in time of war, under conditions not always so assuring.

For tungsten ore America has depended on China for at least 40 per cent of her consumption. Another source newly added is Bolivia, whose production is thought certain to attain much importance in the course of time. For the supply of quinine America must depend on external sources for 90 per cent of her requirement. Even a higher rate of dependence is seen in shellac, although this substance may be replaced by resin to some extent under force of circumstances. Of mica sheets something like 75 per cent is imported from other countries.

This survey, brief as it is, will be sufficient to show, says the Japanese writer, how even the most favored countries like America must depend on external supply sources, if the exigencies of war and its expanding demands in strategic materials are to be successfully filled. The limits imposed on such material supplies should also be considered in relation with those equally likely to be imposed on labor and capital equipment.

Sugar Entries in U.S.

Sugar entries into the United States during the first half of this year exceeded by a significant margin the total for the corresponding period of last year, U.S. sugar statistics received in Manila showed.

Entries during the January-June period of this year totaled 3,428,551 short tons. This compared with 2,396,057 tons for the like period of 1940, of which 1,571,489 tons came from Cuba, 639,042 tons from the Philippines, 667,940 tons from Puerto Rico, 492,564 tons from Hawaii, 1,764 tons from the Virgin Islands, and 55,752 tons represented full duty sugar entering the United States.

WHY WORLD CAN'T REALIZE PEACE ON PERMANENT BASIS

Writer Admits Germany, Japan, Soviet, Britain, U. S. Are Giants—No Earthly Authority Above Them

By TRACY HOLLINGSWORTH LAY

Christian Science Monitor

Peace on a permanent basis is an imminent possibility. It is closing in on the world with a wide, encircling movement. We are almost threatened with it. But there is no reason why we should let it overwhelm us by surprise as though it were some cosmic phenomenon unrelated to the consciousness of man. Why not weigh it and take its measure?

Of course the very mention of world peace inevitably conjures up in our minds the dreams and yearnings of the past—those altruistic attempts, devoid of realism, which could not work because they proposed, and presupposed the creation by agreement of a state of affairs which did not exist. Nowhere does human nature display itself more crudely than in the behavior of nations, and no formula is ever valid in this field which must call upon human nature for concessions.

Such tests of altruism have had their day. They have taught us much, especially what cannot be done; and why. We know now that world peace cannot be coaxed into the midst of our brawls through acts of comity and abnegation. World peace, when it arrives to stay, will not come as an invited guest, nor as a soft-winged pigeon with a twig.

To most of the world it will look like an ogre, for it will spew itself out of the cauldron of conflict fully armed and accoutred. It will promptly seize command. Not a single order will have to be given to stack arms. That which nations could never decide for themselves, it will decide for them. And when we then look back, how simple and just will have been the process; how logical the outcome!

Universal Concept

For ages the world has conducted its international relations on the principle of the equality of states; that is to say, equality with each other in the number and degree of their sovereign rights. This concept of justice is universal. No other basis is conceivable, except in a lawless world.

Yet there has always been the greatest inequality in the power and influence of these same states. So, while we recognize equality of right among them we must likewise recognize the complete inequality of their might. This distinction is vital. For foremost among the attributes of sovereignty, which each state possesses in like degree, is the right to make war. In the exercise of this perfect right, all semblance of equality vanishes like a smoke screen, leaving the puny to defend themselves with a legalistic fiction.

As a consequence of such "equality," smaller nations are promptly blotted out. All their cherished rights are blown to vapor by dive-bombers, or ground under the wheels of tanks. The government may flee with a handful of sovereign fragments, but the nation cannot follow.

International law does not concern itself with the inherent rightfulness or wrongfulness of war. It merely records the fact that war exists as a practice among nations and then proceeds to discuss this thing-that-can't-be-helped.

What Sovereign State?

The first thing that it discovers is that there is no earthly authority above the sovereign state. What sovereign state? Are we still talking fiction? What are tanks and planes in the hands of a modern aggressor if they are not authority in the raw? They hold the sovereign right to destroy.

There are some 55 nations in the world, representing varying degrees of wealth and Power. Of these there are now only five which may be characterized as giants because of their Power and potentialities for war. The giants are Germany, Japan, Russia, Great Britain, and the United States. It must be conceded that, for the moment, there is no earthly authority above these five giants. That is why we have world wars.

The 50 lesser nations (in the sense of might) do not provoke world wars. They have above them not one superior authority, but five. Every act which they perform in international relations must be with deference—conscious or unconscious—to a superior authority. The development of modern modes of destruction places every one of them within striking range of some potential master. Worse than that, no nation in the world today, be it large or small, now feels itself secure either in its independence or in its possessions. What a system! What a farce!

If only these five giants could be controlled, there would be no world wars. If they only had over them some superior authority capable of crushing them as they may now crush the lesser states, all this hideous sense of insecurity would vanish and nations could dare to be themselves.

Uncertainty of Outcome

Up to now, peace has been maintained very largely through what is known as the balance of power, which means in substance, keeping the giants balanced off against each other so that the outcome of a world conflict would always be in doubt. This uncertainty of outcome, this fear of defeat, was supposed, theoretically, to restrain them. It was looked upon as a sort of coercive force, or threat. It has not worked. The coercive threat was not as strong as human lust. Peace has not been maintained. We have had about as many world wars as could be crowded into the years. The interval between wars is never long enough to pay for the last war. As soon as hostilities cease, all nations must set to work immediately preparing for the next war, which never fails to come. Balance of power as a peace agent has been tested, and proved. But the test only proves that it is a perfect instrument for the perpetuation of war.

But this war is different. Britain and America are threatened within an inch of their lives. This threat has thrown them together. It has opened their eyes to the complete identity of their interests.

Heretofore Britain has never been free to arm itself to capacity. We were constantly prodding it to disarm; threatening to outbuild it if Britain didn't. Arms were in disrepute.

Moral Contribution

Nor were we free to arm ourselves. Our superior authority has asserted itself. No Administration could have gained public support for an arms policy. Public opinion was pulling in exactly the opposite direction. It was forcing us to sink ships and drive our munitions makers out of business. We were disarming. Any sentimental speech made in advocacy of this form of national insecurity was hailed as a moral contribution.

But things are different now. We are helping Great Britain to arm by every means within our power. And we have adopted for ourselves a program of armament which literally dwarfs all previous contributions to armed force. In fact we seem to be counting very largely on defeating Germany by swamping it with planes, tanks, ships, and guns. What a reversal!

It may be asserted modestly that we possess the most valuable store of treasure on this earth; not alone in real estate and gold, but in liberty, opportunity, abundance—everything but security. But if we do not have security, do we really possess these things? The world also possesses abundance, but, lacking security, it faces famine.

All this being quite obvious, America has gone in for security. Not alone for the U.S.A., but for this hemisphere. That is a big order, but the order has been placed. We are on our way.

Old System Outmoded

Now let us picture this spectacle in the light of our giants. We are proposing to build, and are building, a defense which will protect these peoples and this hemisphere against all comers, even if they gang up on us. Do you realize what that means? It means that the old system of balance of power is as outmoded as cavalry. Had we started such a program a few years ago, all the predatory nations would have been on our backs as fast as they could form alliances. This is the only chance we have ever had, or may ever have, to strike for real security.

Russia will probably be defeated by Germany. That would eliminate the third giant. Britain and the United States would have more power than all the rest of the world combined. If they possessed this power, they would never have to use it coercively. They could speak to the world in a very soft voice. Authority would have arisen. Legal fictions would sound profane. Balances of power would be dumped into the ashcan.

Such an authority is forming before our eyes. We are an integral part of it—the very pivot of the movement, whether we know it or not. It is the basic prelude to a permanent peace.

Rigid Control of Wheat Will Be Continued in U.S.

WASHINGTON.—The Administration's rigid marketing control program for wheat, carrying with it a 49-cent-a-bushel penalty sharply criticized by some growers, will come up for a new vote of confidence by farmers.

Claude R. Wickard, Secretary of Agriculture announced that the program, established this year for the first time with the approval of 81 per cent of wheat growers voting in a recent referendum, would be continued for the 1942 crop, subject to a new referendum next spring. Approval by at least two thirds of the farmers voting is necessary.

Mr. Wickard's action to continue the AAA control system came as a Senate Agriculutre Committee approved legislation which would prohibit the Department of Agriculture from selling Government-owned cotton until after the war is over.

With cotton prices advancing to highest levels in more than ten years and some officials feeling that they might continue to artificially high levels, the department has been considering plans for release on the open market of cotton the Government has acquired as a result of its loans to growers.

The committee attached to a House wheat bill a rider which would freeze the Government cotton, now totaling more than 6,000,000 bales. The rider of the committee, who declared its purpose was "to keep Government-owned cotton from breaking the market."

Chairman Smith and Senator Thomas have been active opponents of proposals to fix prices of agricultural products and of measures that would interfere with any advance. These legislators had previously planned to offer a rider that would have forbidden price fixing for farm products, but decided to delay efforts along that line.

The House wheat bill would permit farmers to sell under marketing quotas the amount of wheat they normally would have produced on their AAA acreage allotments, even though this would necessitate taking grain from excess acreage. Such grain otherwise would be subject to a penalty of 49 cents a bushel if sold or used.

Mr. Wickward announced that wheat quotas for the 1942 crop were proposed at this time in order to give growers ample time to plan fall seedings accordingly. The 1942 wheat planting allotments will be 12 per cent smaller than this year.

Record supplies, the Secretary said, made it necessary, under farm law, that the Secretary propose the control plan for the 1942 crop.—Baltimore Sun.

'All-Out' Franco-German Collaboration Urged

By JOHN ELLIOTT

VICHY.—Demands that the Government of Marshal Henri Petain become a regime of action were published in Paris newspapers, with emphasis on three main objectives for future French foreign policy.

These points, as stated in the newspaper "Les Nouveaux Temps," called for "all out" Franco-German collaboration to replace the present "wait and see" policy of the Petain Government; complete accord with Japan on the subject of Indo-China and the invoking of measures to keep Dakar from falling into the hands of the United States.

On the last point, Jean Luchaire said in "Les Nouveaux Temps" that no measures would be complete "unless they took into consideration the promulgation of a general European plan for defense against Anglo-American imperialism." Mr. Luchaire is known to have close connection with the German Embassy in Paris.

The article criticized the Government of Marshal Petain by saying that, despite the "quality of a great many men in Petain's Government" it "does not constitute a stable power and does not give the country the impression that it is acting according to a rigorously defined" policy.
